YOUTHS CONFESS 2ND SLAYING

GERMANY VOTES TODAY; HITLER ASKS DIVINE AID

Also Leads Nation in Hymn of Thanks.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—The entire German nation, led by Reichsfuehrer Hitler, united tonight in bringing the Reichstag "election" campaign to a close by singing a hymn, the words for which were written by a part Jew—"The Dutch Thanksgiving Prayer." Nearly three centuries ago, Germany in a similar manner thanked the Lord for the end of the thirty years' war and the peace of Westphalia.

The hymn sung tonight was prohibited by the Nazis at one time because the words were written by Josef Weyl, Viennese composer, one of whose grandparents, and perhaps two, were Jews. The Nazi chamber of music was ordered to have new words written by a "pure Aryan." The new "Aryan" text is not yet ready, however, so the old one was used.

150,000 Church Bells Peal.

The beautiful hymn echoed through streets and in homes throughout Germany. Then followed the pealing of 150,000 bells in churches of all denominations.

Hitler himself, speaking at Cologne, brought his eleventh speech in the campaign to a close by asking not only the German people to vote for him tomorrow, but also by praying for divine support.

"May God Almighty give me strength to carry on the fight for the freedom and right of my people," he cried fervently.

The fuehrer also repeated his defiance of "politicians and journalists" who doubt his sincerity and love of peace.

"There is no greater guarantee of the sacredness of a treaty in the whole world than if it is signed by this hand," he shouted, shaking his fist before the cheering audience.

Wants a "New Order."

"We believe in a new order in Europe based on nations with equal rights, not a bolshevik, European-Asiatic concoction," he said. "Europe cannot thrive on the sterile ideas of a senile generation.

"I have seen war from a different angle than many of my political opponents in foreign lands. They looked at it from high posts. I was a plain musketeer. I saw its horrors better with my own eyes than they did from a higher vantage point.

"I have reëstablished harmony among the factions in my country. We want the same to happen to the nations of Europe."

Cathedral Flies Nazi Flags.

The Nazi propaganda wizards outdid themselves today in their efforts to whip the nation into a renewed frenzy of enthusiasm on the eve of the balloting to indorse Hitler's foreign policy.

The propagandists were fully successful, to judge by the tons of flags, posters and garlands decorating the entire country. The decorations were especially lavish in Berlin, which was also given the treat of seeing two big Zeppelins, the old Graf and the new Von Hindenburg, cruise together.

From the top gallery of the beautiful Cologne cathedral bright red Nazi flags, with their swastikas, billowed over the square of the medieval city.

Hint Forts to Be Built.

On the eve of the "election," the government announced that [illegible] will provide special funds to creat jobs for the unemployed in the Rhineland, Saxony and Silesia.

The announcement did not specify the kinds of jobs to be created. Since Germany has rejected the British plea not to build fortresses in the Rhineland, however, diplomats assume working squads will soon begin to erect fortresses along the French and Czechoslovakian borders.

Under the rules for tomorrow's "election," the voters have no choice but to vote "yes." There is no provision on the ballots for voting "no," and no provision for any choice of reichstag candidates. All candidates are Nazis. If the voter leaves the ballot blank, or makes any mark on it except an "X" in the circle, he will be considered a traitor to the nation and his vote held invalid and thrown out. Jews are not permitted to vote.

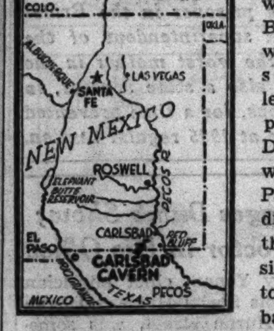
CARLSBAD CAVE STRIKES BUS CROWD DUMB

One of Earth's Great Spectacles.

BY PHIL KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

El Paso, Tex., March 28.—[Special.]—It takes something big to strike a bus crowd dumb, as it were, like Balboa when he stood "silent upon a peak in Darien." It wasn't the Pacific that did it, either, but a side tour up to the Carlsbad cavern in New Mexico.



We are a bus load, leisurely bound for California. Most of the passengers on our bus thought they had enough bus riding when they got to Pecos, Tex., where a short detour is necessary to see this latest national monument. They said they didn't care much for scenery anyway. But a few went along, including the gentleman "in vimmins' hats" and a solemn looking fellow with smoked glasses and a stick.

Disease, Discordant Relatives.

There also were a number of women, and ordinarily they would have spent their time chatting about recipes, diseases and discordant relatives, but this time they didn't have much to say. The Carlsbad cavern makes women stop talking. That is one unique fact here.

The casual comment on this spectacle, one of the greatest on this earth, is hardly worth reporting. "Whew! —Holy smokes! —Goodness gracious!" Such stuff as that. In your correspondent's mind lines of forgotten poetry, like "Cham'd Magic Casements, Opening on the Foam of Perilous Seas, in Faery Lands Forlorn," and Poe's "Caverns of the Sea," were mingled with the refrain of "Rock of Ages," sung in complete darkness, under a roof of rock 700 feet thick, at the foot of a living rock that has been growing since the age of dinosaurs.

Think of a room 729 feet under the surface, so big that it takes two hours to walk around it, so high that an 80 story building or two Tribune Towers could go into it. Think of a rock that has been growing for sixty million years.

Every Form of Beauty.

Every imaginable form of beauty has been hidden in darkness there all these years, while mankind has been emerging from one cell life in the primeval seas. Here is evolution, force and form, determination and freedom—God, if you please—at work before our very eyes. Here is the real "bottomless pit," and heaven's own anthems frozen into immortal beauty.

Frozen music? Yes, and frozen waterfalls and ghostly forests, and kings who reigned before the crust of this earth had cooled, and chambers of such beauty that Shah Jahan could not buy them with all his treasure.

The only remark worth recording came from the gentleman in smoked glasses, who said:

"I guess there are worlds we don't know anything about, and people have lived we never heard about."

"Quite an engineering job," re-

FLEET ORDERS CALL FOR SEATED TOASTS TO KING OF ENGLAND

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—Fleet orders were issued today covering correct procedure in drinking toasts to the king of England. The orders state that the health of his majesty should be honored seated in all naval messes, whether on ship or on shore, on all occasions except when the national anthem is played, when the toast should be drunk standing.

When toasts for foreign heads of states are included, they and that of the king should be drunk standing, whether the national anthem is played or not, the orders provide.

The custom of drinking the royal toast seated is said to have originated in the days of wooden warships, where there was insufficient headroom for a man to stand below decks.

GEM SALESMAN CAPTURES THIEF IN LOOP CHASE

Barney Moore, 29 years old, 1833 Foster avenue, a jewelry salesman, last night captured a robber who broke into his parked car on State street, between Madison and Washington streets.

Moore and his wife, Lillian, had parked the car while they window shopped close by. As they returned to the car Moore saw a man walking away with one of several sample cases from the car. When Moore shouted at him the thief ran down a nearby alley.

Moore took a pistol from the car and fired one shot in the air, causing the thief to halt. Moore then marched him down State street with the gun at this back until they met a policeman.

The captive said at the Central police station that he is Thomas Bolger, 39 years old, of 4410 Washington boulevard.

No Fare Too Tough for His Homemade Teeth

Piqua, O., March 28.—(AP)—Jail fare holds no terrors for the molars of Jack Reynolds, in jail here for intoxication. A sheen about Reynolds' teeth attracted officers' attention today. Examination revealed that his teeth [false] were made of cast aluminum. Reynolds, an expert molder, said he made them with a homemade wax impression and scraps of aluminum and while he was about it he manufactured a duplicate set which he carries in his pocket as a "spare."

Hoover Points Out Four Main G. O. P. Tasks

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Two developments in Republican national politics yesterday in Chicago were:

1. Herbert Hoover outlined briefly the four leading problems he deems the G. O. P. must meet in the coming campaign.
2. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, is being boomed for "keynoter" at the national convention at Cleveland in June in gossip from central west states.

Mr. Hoover arrived yesterday to spend a few days in the neighborhood of Chicago while writing an address in the series he has been making, analyzing the New Deal. He is to speak Saturday at Fort Wayne, Ind., under the auspices of the Republican county committee, and his subject will be "Further Exploration of the New Deal." Yesterday he was a guest of Chauncey McCormick.

The Tasks of the Republicans.

"The Republicans have four jobs in front of them," said the former President.

"First, to demonstrate that the policies of the New Deal would lead the country to ultimate disaster for honest workers and business men alike.

"Second, to offer a courageous, constructive program which will reëstablish progress for all the people.

"Third, to choose the best qualified man to administer the office of President, and to choose the best qualified men to sit in the congress.

"Fourth, for every Republican to get behind them and elect them."

A dispatch from Washington yesterday reported that Mr. Hoover, having abandoned any idea of becoming the candidate himself, was swinging to Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan as a candidate. In Chicago Mr. Hoover said nothing to confirm this.

Talk of Lowden for Keynoter.

The matter of a "keynoter" for the Cleveland nominating convention is expected to be taken up in Washington among the Republican party leaders later in April. In recent weeks sentiment is reported to have been growing in the corn belt states for the selection of former Gov. Lowden, who has a strong following in agriculture.

At the recent Iowa Republican state convention in Des Moines there appeared among the delegates a current of sentiment for Lowden that was reflected in the gossip next day at the Republican celebration in Lincoln, Neb., which was a demonstration for Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas. During the last week Republican visitors from Minnesota and the Dakotas have been expressing similar views, and yesterday a leading Wisconsin Republican reported Lowden spoken of in that state.

Some Others Mentioned.

Among others tentatively mentioned as possibilities for keynoter at Cleveland are: Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon, Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin; Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, and John W. Bricker, attorney general of Ohio, who may be elected governor of that state next fall.

QUINTUPLETS CLIMB OUT OF BED; BANG AT DOORS OF NURSES

CALLANDER, Ont., March 28.—(AP)—Yvonne Dionne celebrated her 22d month of life today by clambering from her bed and awakening the Dafoe hospital staf before sunrise.

It was her newest stunt, this climbing out of bed alone. Her four sisters watched with interest and it was no time at all before all five were banging at their nurses' doors.

Today's early morning performance was another indication to Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, of the marked sense of curiosity and initiative the quintuplets have developed as they near their second birthday on May 28.

EXPECTANT DAD AT 96 IS OFFERED PHYSICIANS' AID

New Bern, N. C., March 28.—(AP)—An offer of free medical expenses and a possible movie contract are no particular inducements for George Isaac Hughes, 96, and his wife to go to New York for the birth of their second child within two years.

Hughes said New York specialists had made this offer—including transportation and all expenses—but that he and his 28 year old wife prefer to remain here so that she can be under the care of the regular family doctor.

The specialists came here 15 months ago after Franklin Roosevelt Hughes was born and confirmed Hughes' claim as America's oldest father. The second baby is expected in May.

Hughes said he needed the money he might derive from the trip to New York as he has only a confederate pension and unemployment relief aid, but that he probably would refuse the offer.

Grasp at New Hope for Life of Hauptmann

Trenton, N. J., March 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman tonight grasped for a new legal loophole to prevent the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnap murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. four years ago. Hauptmann is under sentence to die in the electric chair Tuesday night.

The governor, who once stayed the execution of Hauptmann, looked to the state Court of Pardons, of which he is the eighth member, for the reprieve he is eager to obtain for the alien carpenter, but which he is legally unable to grant.

The pardons court in the past has limited its judgments to pardons, commutations of the death penalty and remittance of sentences, but never has granted a reprieve.

Court's Power Supreme.

The governor, in his quest for means to delay the execution, has obtained the legal opinion that the power of the pardons court is supreme and that it might easily grant the reprieve if it cared to do so.

Eagerness on the part of the governor to stay execution of Hauptmann is based upon his belief that the kidnap murder of the Lindbergh baby has not been solved. He declared his desire for a solution when he granted the first reprieve and immediately started an investigation of the entire case which in eleven weeks has developed virtually no new evidence.

As the time for the execution of Hauptmann drew near last week, Gov. Hoffman indicated he might take the initiative in granting a second reprieve. He was warned immediately by Prosecutor Anthony M Hauck Jr., prosecutor of Hunterdon county, where Hauptmann was convicted, that he had no legal right to stay the execution and that any effort to do so would be fought in the courts.

Bitter Charges Traded.

Hauck and the governor then engaged in considerable talking for publication, the prosecutor declaring the governor was using the Hauptmann case for political purposes and the governor replying that Hauck was an incompetent prosecutor.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who directed prosecution of Hauptmann, was drawn into the discussion and indicated he agreed with Hauck that the governor was without right to grant the reprieve, but he declined to make an official statement, saying he understood the governor would seek a legal opinion from him, but this has not been done.

When a high judicial officer declared tonight that the Court of Pardons might grant the reprieve, a spokesman for the prosecutors said this would not be opposed since they agreed that such action was within province of the court.

Refuse to Upset Conviction.

How much success the governor will have in inducing the court to parole Hauptmann from the death chair temporarily when it meets at

PEACOCK DEATH GANG TELLS OF KILLING TAILOR

State Acts to Send Four to Chair.

Four youthful criminals who confessed on Friday to the brutal killing of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, child specialist, continued yesterday with a complacent recital of how they committed another murder, half a dozen assaults and at least fifty robberies.

The second killing was that of Peter Payer, 65 years old, who was shot down in his basement tailor shop at 1934 North Hoyne avenue on Dec. 11, only eight days after the leaders of the gang, Robert Goethe and Durland Nash, had been released from the bridewell, where they served seven months for larceny.

Killer "Just Went Haywire."

Nash and Goethe asserted that a third member of their crime company, Emil Reck, 19 years old, 2654 Rice street, was the actual slayer of Payer.

"There wasn't much sense shooting the old guy," asserted Goethe, who had gone into the shop with Reck, leaving Nash in a car outside. "Emil just went a little haywire."

Reck and Nash nodded to confirm this theory. Reck said he guessed that was about right.

"We shot six or seven people who didn't act right when we held 'em up," asserted Nash. "But I can't think where right now. We didn't think much about what we did after it was over."

Prosecutors Build Up Proof.

Prosecutors and policemen, horrified by the casual attitude of the youths toward murder and other forms of violence, worked fervently through the day in an effort to build up an edifice of proof to support the confessions.

In a measure they succeeded. They found one man, Irving Schiankel, 4012 Ainslee street, whom the gang shot and wounded in a stickup two weeks ago. They brought in witnesses who identified various members of the band in 40 stickups.

But the police were not so successful in discovering corroboration for the killers' histories as to how they slew Dr. Peacock.

Pistol and Keys Missing.

The pistol which Goethe admitted he used in ending the doctor's life was not found, although the young criminals led them to several hiding places where, they said, it might be. The keys from Dr. Peacock's car are missing still.

State's Attorney Courtney has issued strict orders that the case be made as airtight as possible, fearing that the confessions alone will not be sufficient to convict the youths and send them to the electric chair. Also, he and his assistants recalled that the Illinois Supreme court has reversed many convictions based mainly on confessions. These factors explain the insistence on corroborating evidence of murder.

Early last evening the four youths were put together at the state's attorney's office and, with Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney questioning them, agreed on a version of how Dr. Peacock was slain. Previously there had been discrepancies. After the agreed version was reduced to writing the confession was signed by all the four youths.

Nash Is Most Talkative.

Most talkative from the start has been Nash. He is a sharp eyed young man of 19, who resides at 2734 Cortez street. Goethe, also 19 and residing at 2648 Augusta boulevard, is the hardest of the crew in looks and action. Reck is seemingly a subnormal type with a delight in killing. The fourth member, Michael Livingston, 17 years old, 1016 North Central Park avenue, is said by the police to be the least desperate member; usually the lighter work of driving cars and acting as sentinel was assigned to him.

As the agreed story now stands, Goethe called Dr. Peacock from a poolroom on Division street near California avenue the evening of Jan. 2 and asked him to go to 6438 North Whipple street. The first call found Dr. Peacock away from home, but the second reached him at 9:10 p. m. He left his home at 5555 Sheridan road half an hour later to visit the supposed patient.

"I told him the name was G. Small," declared Goethe. "I used that name because I had some relatives by the name of Small and it was the first name that popped into my mind. If Dr. Peacock wrote it down Smale it was because he didn't hear me very well."

Goethe explained that he had set the rendezvous for 6438 North Whipple street because he knew the building with that number stood alone in a prairie and that the street was little traveled. He was asked if he knew the telephone book showed that George W. Smale lives at 6438 South Washtenaw avenue. He said he did not; it was merely a coincidence, and partly a mistake, that led investigators for days to ponder over the possible connection in the mind of the killers between the name Smale and the number 6438 on two buildings separated by more than sixteen miles.

Richer Haul Expected.

Goethe was asked why he chose Dr. Peacock. "We thought a north side doctor would have a lot of money," he said. "The ones we stuck up around here didn't carry enough to suit us.'

"Did you know he was a specialist in children's diseases?" the youth was asked.

"No," he replied. "It was the same thing I had told the other doctors."

Leaving the poolroom after the call had been put through, the four youths drove to the Whipple street building. Nash and Goethe had pistols and Reck carried a length of pipe he used as a club. All hid in a passageway.

They waited half an hour, at an estimate, before Dr. Peacock arrived. Then Nash went out to the curb and, after a brief preliminary conversation, thrust his pistol against the physician's back. He was then joined by the others.

Order Doctor Into His Car.

Dr. Peacock was ordered into his car and was followed into it by Nash, Goethe and Reck. Livingston got into the car they had used to reach the building.

Although the slayers said Friday that the killing took place directly in front of the building, they said yesterday that they drove a block north first. This is more plausible, as there are no dwellings for nearly two blocks north of the 6438 structure, and there was little chance of interruption in such a spot.

It was Nash who took up the narration at this point.

"We made the doctor get out of the car," he said. "I took $20 off him. Then he set up a fight. I hit him with the butt of my gun, but he kicked Goethe in the stomach and tried to get away. He was a good fighter.

Shot, Clubbed on Head.

"Goethe shot him in the head and he fell. As he tried to get up Reck hit him on the head with his piece of pipe. That ended him."

In the general struggle for agreement in their stories, the killers declared they were mistaken in their earlier story that Dr. Peacock was cut on the scalp and neck with one of his own scalpels, taken from the professional bag by Reck.

Nash continued. "We put the body in his own car, threw his overcoat over it and drove on to the 6300 block in Francisco avenue. We left the car there. We thought it wouldn't be found as soon as it would if we left it where the doc was shot. The three of us stayed in the car until we parked it, then we joined Livingston and rode off with him. We split the money even—$5 apiece."

Two Reasons for Murder.

According to Nash, he asked Goethe why he had shot the doctor.

"I didn't want to have to go back to the bridewell again," the gunman asserted. "Besides, he hurt when he kicked me."

Throughout the recital, whenever Nash or Goethe reached a point where they were doubtful, the others would supply the necessary information. Reck, who suffered severely Friday night from a stomach ulcer, had recovered yesterday and grinned at the interesting points of the tale. He admitted that he usually carried a pistol and that Nash did not. None of the four remembered why the weapon had been taken over by Nash that night.

Assistant State's Attorney Kearney suggested yesterday that Dr. Peacock might have been so deaf that he did not hear the commands of the robbers.

"I have learned that the doctor was hard of hearing," the prosecutor said, "and it might well be that he was slugged for failing to understand an order and fought back after the robbers started the struggle."

In the late afternoon yesterday the confessed killers were given a rest period and after being fed engaged in a game of cards. They professed to be well satisfied with their treatment. They were, in fact, so willing to tell things that some of the investigators began to doubt their truthfulness—not in regard to the Peacock case but concerning other crimes.

As an instance, Nash asserted that Reck shot and killed Mrs. Anderson, 30 years old, in her gift shop at 2125 North Rockwell street on Oct. 19 and that he was along at the time. The last part of the statement was obviously untrue, as Nash was in the Bridewell at the time. There was more than a possibility, the police held, that Reck did the killing.

Reck Ready to Confess.

Reck was willing to confess this, with his silly grin, and also the shooting of Payer. The investigators, however, kept them as well as they could on the main track of the Peacock case.

Most of the credit for the solving of the doctor's murder was given to Detectives Andrew Aitken, Timothy Donovan, Patrick McShane, and Leo Anderson and to Policemen Fred Suseback, Stanley Kula, and Bernard Riley. The detectives, after settling on a theory that the Peacock killers were a band of young robbers who had held up a number of doctors in the West North avenue district, worked unceasingly to catch this group.

Identifications of Reck, Nash, and Goethe on Friday by four physicians led to the accusation that they were in the Peacock killing and to the confessions.

Policemen Susebach, Kula, and Riley made the arrests of the four men, working under the direction of Acting Captain Harry O'Connell of the West North avenue district. They have since been active in seeking evidence to uphold the confessions.

State's Attorney Courtney said that he hoped to have indictments returned early, perhaps by Tuesday, and to bring the four young men to trial in a few weeks.

Much of the work outside the questioning of the prisoners was devoted yesterday to a search for companions who might shed light on their habits. Investigators had little trouble finding Goethe's mother, Mrs. Rose Kasallis.

Goethe's Mother in Cell.

She is in the Bridewell, serving a two year term imposed on her for operating a combination brothel and school of crime in a house at 1336 North Maplewood avenue. Police who raided the place last year found that she had five young girls and eight youths there, and none for any good purpose. At a court hearing it was disclosed that Mrs. Kasallis knew the youths were criminals and Judge Lambert K. Hayes, in sentencing her to prison, declared she was "the worst mother in the world."

Mrs. Kasallis considered that an exaggeration. Interviewed by Mr. Kearney yesterday, she said:

"This was a bum rap they gave me. The neighbors told lies about me and the judge believed them."

Gang's Girl Friends Hunted.

The police are anxious to question Doris Robbins, 17 years old, 1937 Nebraska avenue, who was found in Mrs. Kasallis' resort and was supposedly the sweetheart of Nash. She had been missing for some time and at the request of her parents the police started looking for her early in the week. Nash was taken into custody by Policeman Suseback in an effort to clear up the mystery of her disappearance.

Two girls friends of Miss Robbins also are missing. They are Patsy Dean, 2257 West North avenue, and Evelyn Tveden, 1616 North Fairfield avenue.

PHYSICIANS TELL OF ROBBERIES BY PEACOCK KILLERS

Saved by Quick Obedience to Gang's Commands.

How four other physicians obeyed the commands of the vicious slayers of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, and thus saved their lives, was told last night. As in the case of Dr. Peacock, the physicians were on errands of mercy when they were robbed. Like Dr. Peacock, three of them were held up after responding to telephone calls.

It was the similiarity of these robberies which led to the arrest of the four confessed slayers. Police working on the Peacock case carefully investigated the reports of every robbery of a physician. They noted that most of the holdups took place on the northwest side.

Doctors Point Out Suspects.

Finally, when physicians pointed out the accused youths as robbers, the confessions of the murder of Dr. Peacock quickly followed.

First victim of the specialists in robbing physicians was Dr. Joseph Konopa, 1628 West Division street. On Dec. 21, twelve days before the murder of Dr. Peacock, he received a telephone call asking him to come to 514 Armour street. The caller said: "My little girl, 11 years old, is very sick; please come."

When the doctor reached the Armour street address a man met him and led him to the rear. Two other men appeared from the darkness and one thrust a pistol at his chest. Quickly Dr. Konopa threw up his hands and the robbers took his wallet containing $11. Then they walked away, threatening him with death if he notified the police.

Submits Quickly to Search.

The next recorded victim of the robber band was Dr. R. L. Abraham, 3723 North Troy avenue, who received a telephone call on Jan. 21 from a man who gave his name as "Ryblak," and asked him to come to 1537 Dickson street. "My wife is very sick," the caller said.

Dr. Abraham drove to the address given. Two men met him and one of them produced a pistol, announcing: "This is a 'heist'." Dr. Abraham told them to help themselves and they took $57 from him. They drove away with a third man who waited for them in an automobile.

Ten days later the robbers picked Dr. Bernard C. Kolter, 1834 Monroe street. A telephone caller asked him to go to 1627 North Ashland avenue to attend "my sick mother."

Threatened with Death.

When Dr. Kolter stopped his car at the directed address a man stepped up and said:

"Are you the doctor? Right this way, please."

He led the physician through a dark passageway, where a second man appeared, stuck a pistol in the doctor's back. "Don't holler or I'll kill you," he said. The physician stood quiet and they took his money, $19.

The fourth victim of the robbers was Dr. L. A. Garness, whose office is at 3117 West Logan square. He gave up $6 to the men in the lobby of an apartment building on Mozart street.

"WORST MOTHER IN THE WORLD"

Mrs. Rose Kasallis, mother of Robert Goethe, one of the confessed slayers of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, and herself a prisoner in the Bridewell, talks with Peter P. Kielminski, assistant superintendent of the prison. Judge who sentenced her called her "the worst mother in the world." It is recalled that Kielminski, who is also a state senator, in his capacity of chairman of committee on elections, for a time prevented permanent registration bills from coming to vote at 1935 regular session.

DR. PEACOCK'S WIDOW READY TO HELP STATE CONVICT 4 SLAYERS

Mrs. Ruth Peacock, wife of the slain Dr. Silber C. Peacock, said yesterday at her home in Bowen, Ill., that she was willing to leave the punishment of the four young killers of her husband in the hands of the authorities and would coöperate with them in any way she could.

"They should at least be put where they can never again threaten the life of a doctor."

Mrs. Peacock from the first was insistent that Dr. Peacock had been killed by robbers, even though some of the detectives theorized that he was the victim of a personal enemy who killed for revenge. He had no enemies, she declared, and there was nothing in his life that would have caused any one to wish to kill him. The capture of the killers is only a final tribute to this contention—weeks of investigation proved that the fine faith of Mrs. Peacock in her husband's integrity was fully merited.

Thief Stages Dumb Show; Robs Doctor in His Office

Dr. Nabey Yonan, chief physician of the Illinois Social Hygiene league at 9 East Huron street, was somewhat puzzled last night by a stranger who entered his office with a finger on his lips as a sign for silence. But when the man handed him a note in an envelope, Dr. Yonan began to understand. "Keep quiet and hand over your money," the message read. When the shusher showed him a pistol Dr. Yonan silently handed him $20, with which he departed.

COWGIRL FAINTS AT REPLICA OF ACCIDENT SCENE

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—(AP)—Mabel Strickland, former world champion cowgirl, went to a hospital unconscious today after an accident too strange for a movie scenario.

Several years ago she was trampled and badly injured during a rodeo at Madison Square Garden.

Today she appeared on a set exactly duplicating the Garden, in scenes for a movie, "Rhythm on the Range." She walked toward a gate from which animals come into arena. At just such a gate in the real Madison Square Garden she was trampled.

At the sight of the replica she suddenly collapsed. Phyiscians reported a hemorrhage had started from the old internal wound.

Hunt Blonde and Brunette in Drugged Drink Robbery

Chicago avenue police yesterday sought "Evelyn," a blonde, and "Dorothy," a brunette, at the request of W. C. Roth, 325 Englewood avenue, president of the First Lamp company, 100 North La Salle street. Roth reported early yesterday at the station that the two women drugged his drinks and stole his $1,600 diamond ring, $184 in cash and a check for $1,847 issued to his company for electrical appliances by the West Parks. Roth said he met the two in a loop hotel bar and spent $37.50 on their drinks. Later he went with them to a hotel room, he said, where he lost conciousness after a few drinks.

U. S. CRITIC OF NAZIS WITHHOLDS PROTEST TO INSULTS ON LINER

MANILA, March 28.—(AP)—Alvan T. Simonds, Boston manufacturer, changed his mind today about protesting to Philippine High Commissioner Murphy concerning the alleged conduct of fellow passengers aboard the German liner Reliance. He said he will withhold complaint until he reaches the United States.

Two police guards were assigned to Simonds and his wife at their hotel here after their arrival on the world touring liner yesterday, when he expressed fears of being attacked after criticizing the Nazi government in an interview at Singapore.

Following the interview Simonds said, German passengers carried their insults to the extent of spitting on his wife. He said the situation was so threatening he and Mrs. Simonds remained in their cabin "about five days, eating only canned food."

The trouble, according to the manufacturer, arose from a statement he made to the effect that he didn't think anybody should agree with Germany on anything because that country regards agreements as scraps of paper. However, Simonds conceded that the officers and crew of the ship treated them fine, and Commodore Fritz Kruse of the Hamburg-American line also aboard the Reliance, said he thought the couple had "exaggerated conditions."

HUNDREDS MORE FLEE FLOODS OF RAMPAGING OHIO

Observers Doubt Damage Will Be Extensive.

Cairo, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—Hundreds of bottom land residents in southeastern Illinois were forced to seek higher ground today as the muddy flood waters of the Ohio river swept out of banks on their rampaging way toward the Mississippi.

Although the Ohio still was above flood stage over its entire length, from Pittsburgh to Cairo, it was not believed serious damage would immediately result. However, observers warned that a 46 foot crest next week would cover the Golconda, Ill., water front to a depth of five feet.

More than 100 persons had been forced to evacuate their farm homes in Pope county, Illinois. Ferry service at Shawneetown, Ill., and New Harmoney, Ind., was suspended. A flood stage of 45 feet was predicted at Metropolis, Ill., for next week.

Water in Lower Shawneetown.

Several inches of water covered the lower part of Shawneetown today, but Mayor William Brinkley said it was from heavy rains and not seepage from the Mississippi. A flood crest of 46 feet was expected there, but little anxiety was felt since the Shawneetown levee will withstand a 60 foot water level.

Fifteen families left their dwellings in Golconda as water swept over Front street and threatened Main street in the center of the business section. Even with five feet of water predicted Gonconda residents expressed no particular alarm, for sanitary conditions were considered good and the city water plant is well outside the flood zone.

Flood waters in the upper Mississippi valley were retarded by freezing temperatures, eliminating further danger of high water at the present time unless there are heavy rains. The Mississippi was at 11.9 feet at La Crosse, Wis., remaining at the same stage since Thursday afternoon.

Little Change in Upper Valley.

Although the new rise of the Ohio virtually had halted in its upper valley, overflowing waters forced two score additional families to move from their Ohio or Kentucky homes in the greater Cincinnati area. The stream was expected to stand near its crest of 60.6 feet at Cincinnati.

W. C. Devereaux, Cincinnati forecaster, predicted that the continued slow fall of the Ohio in its upper reaches would cause it to drop below flood level in the Cincinnati area by midweek. He predicted the river would slowly fall tonight and tomorrow from the Kanawha river at Mount Pleasant, W. Va., to Carrollton, O., except at Cincinnati, where it promised to remain nearly stationary.

The Allegheny river flowed out of its banks in northwest Pennsylvania, flooding lowland streets of Franklin and Oil City and covering the Erie railroad tracks at several points. Rescuers used boats to take some families from homes in Franklin.

Pittsburgh Nears Normal.

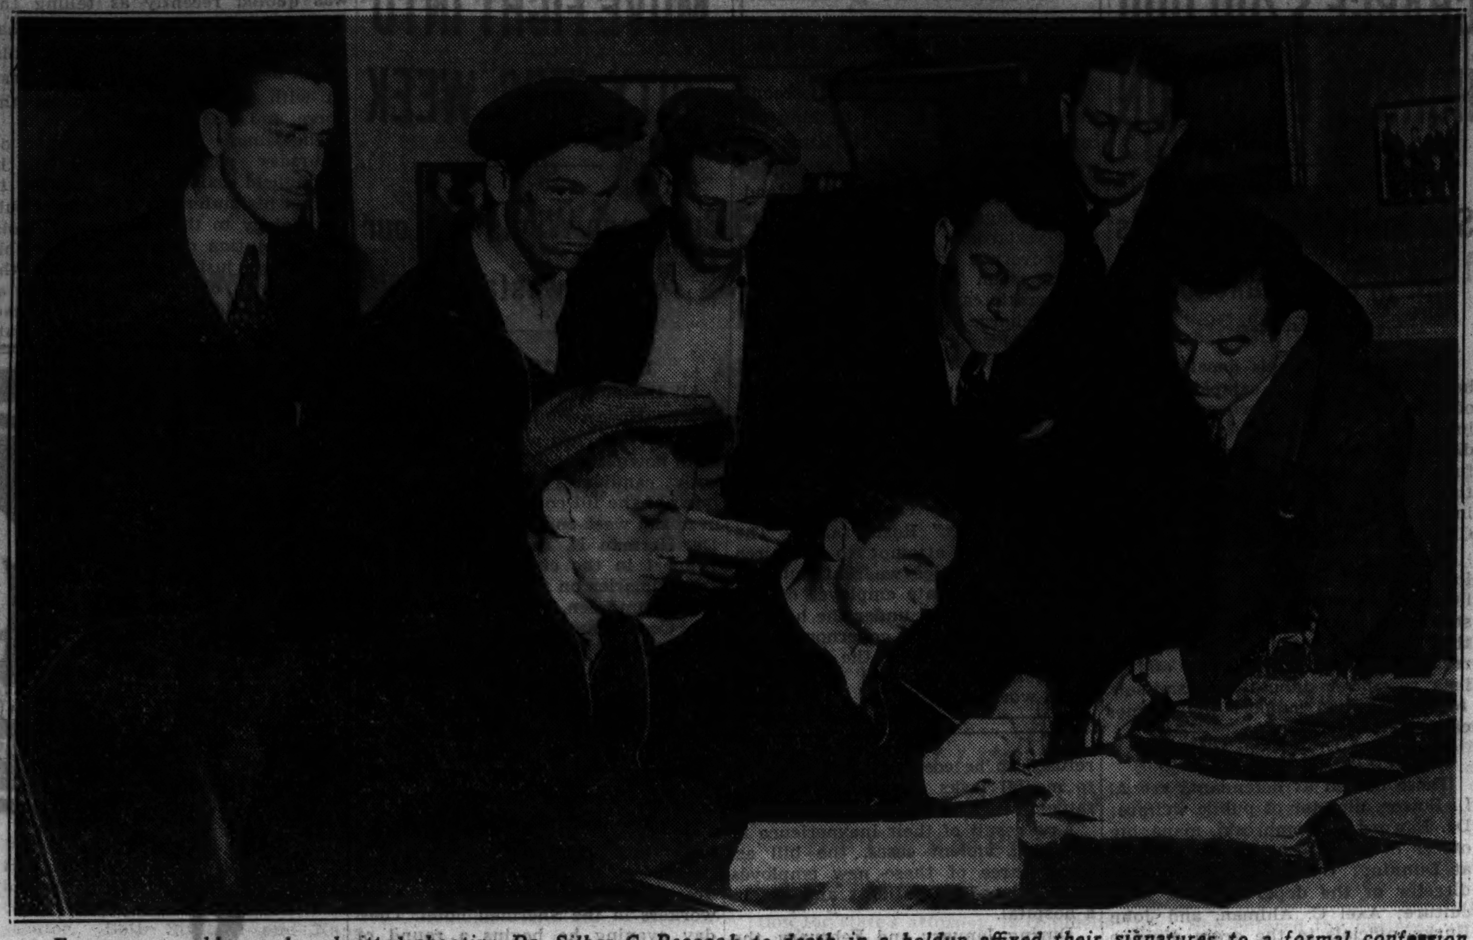
Weather bureau officials said the rise of the Allegheny would not seriously affect the Pittsburgh district, through which the stream flows, 85 miles south of Franklin.

National Guardsmen were being demobilized in Pittsburgh and it was expected the city will be almost normal on Monday. City officials expected to have the billion dollar "Golden Triangle" area open for business for the first of the week after a gigantic "face washing" tomorrow to drive away the last traces of the flood.

The Tennessee river continued out of its banks, flooding thousands of acres of lowlands and forcing many residents into the hills.

The flood waters spread into low parts of Chattanooga, Tenn., causing refugees to take up emergency quarters in school houses and fire stations.

FOUR YOUTHS SIGN CONFESSION OF SLAYING DR. PEACOCK



Four young robbers who admitted shooting Dr. Silber C. Peacock to death in a holdup affixed their signatures to a formal confession late last night. Seated are Emil Reck (left), who confessed slaying Peter Payer, a tailor, in a later robbery, and Michael Livingston. Standing, left to right: Assistant State's Attorney Blair Varnes, Robert Goethe, and Durland Nash, the other killers; Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney and Wilbert F. DONATIONS FOR RELIEF OF FLOOD SUFFERERS REACH $158,118 HERE

Contributions toward Chicago's $225,000 quota for the American Red Cross flood relief fund reached a total of $158,118.49 at noon yesterday, James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter, reported.

The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company donated $3,000 yesterday, the Commonwealth-Edison company gave $2,000, and the Harris Trust and Savings bank $1,000. The William Wrigley company contributed $5,000, of which $2,500 was credited to the New York chapter of the Red Cross.

Among other contributions were $107.07 from students of Parker High school, $750 from Hawthorne Works, General Electric company; $500 from the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and $350 from Maurice L. Rothschild.

Contributions should be sent to the offices of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross at 616 South Michigan avenue.

Masked Robbers Take Pay Roll from Couple

Three masked men held up E. J. Smith, president of the Brookline Electro Platers, 6796 South Chicago avenue, and his wife, and robbed them of a $135 pay roll yesterday. The robbers forced Smith's machine to the curb at Langley avenue and Marquette road, as he and Mrs. Smith, who is cashier for the company, were returning from a bank.

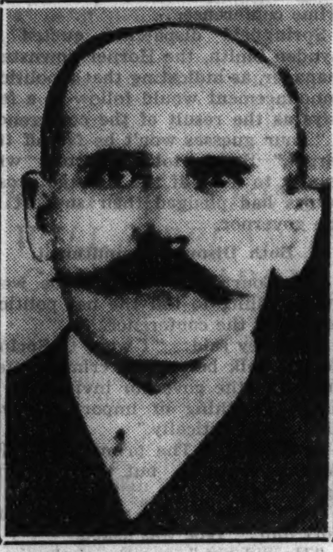
SECOND VICTIM



Peter Payer, tailor, whose murder was admitted by four confessed slayers of Dr. Peacock.

WOMAN, 59, LEAPS TO DEATH FROM 13TH FLOOR ROOM

Mrs. Lila Landis Trower, 59 years old, 184 Walnut street, Elmhurst, leaped to her death last evening from a thirteenth floor room of the Hotel LaSalle. Her body fell in an alley north of the hotel. Pinned to her dress was a slip of paper giving her name and room number.

Police found the window of her hotel room wide open. On a dresser was a letter addressed to two sons, Edwin E. Trower of Elmhurst, and Harold A. Trower of Alma, Mich. The letter philosophically discussed life, death and suicide and closed by saying: "My life work is done. I kept up the fight just to help you boys."

Edwin Trower said his mother left their home yesterday to go on an errand in Elmhurst. He had no further word from her until police informed him of her death. His parents are divorced, he said, and his father, Landis Trower, lives in Alma, Mich.

MOVE TO HONOR AUTHOR OF POEM, 'LADY ELEANOR'

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[U. P.]—A movement was on foot tonight to make Representative John Steven McGroarty [Dem.] of California "honorary poet laureate of the United States of America," because he wrote a poem to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, entitled "The Lady Eleanor."

Representative Joseph P. Monaghan of Montana introduced a resolution to recognize McGroarty's talents in the poem to the first lady and because of other "manifold poems of elegance and beauty." McGroarty now is poet laureate of California.

His poem, "The Lady Eleanor," was read the other night when the 73 club consisting of wives of congressmen who came here first during the 73d congress, gave a dinner.

Two stanzas of the poem are:

The roads that stretch from east to west,
The broad highroads and all the rest,
The roads that go
Where all men know,
Where men have come and gone before,
They know the Lady Eleanor.

They hear her footsteps. And the grass
Of fields and meadows sees her pass
On tireless quests. Where rivers bend
And oceans wait and wide land end;
The miles that wind from shore to shore—
They know the Lady Eleanor.

Mrs. Roosevelt, thanking McGroarty for his poem, said: "I feel a little ashamed to realize how much I am supposed to cover in the way of experience and miles, when I probably don't cover as many of either as I ought to."

Tellers Wear Gas Masks to Sort Money from Flood

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Tellers at the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve bank wore gas masks and rubber gloves to sort $1,300,000 in dirt-encrusted currency, turned in by flooded banks in the fourth federal reserve district. The money will go through the regular redemption and cancellation process as soon as it is dried in ovens and sorted. The United States mint will grind the cancelled bills into pulp for re-use.

THREE MEN INJURED AND AUTOS WRECKED IN STRIKE DISORDER

South Bend, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—A renewal of disorders in connection with a strike at the Bantom Ball Bearing company today resulted in serious injuries to three men and the wrecking of several automobiles.

The violence broke out when pickets sought to prevent workers from entering the plant. Police dispersed the crowd and took the three injured men to a hospital.

The strike was renewed suddenly after labor difficulties at the plant two weeks ago were reported to have been settled. It was charged the company failed to keep an agreement which provided there would be no discrimination against union employés.

Open Inlet Tomorrow on $20,000,000 Sewer

Sanitary district engineers will open a section of the new $20,000,000 west side intercepting sewer tomorrow. The sewer extends along the Chicago river from Fullerton avenue and the north branch south and west to the sewage treatment works in Stickney. The first inlet into the sewer will be opened under the intersection of Michigan boulevard and Wacker drive, said L. M. Johnson, sanitary district engineer.

SLAY PAROLED CONVICT; HOLDUP VICTIM WOUNDED

2 Policemen Kill Gunman with Long Record.

Two paroled convicts and a woman companion finished a robbery tour early today at 33d street and Indiana avenue, where one of the men was shot to death in a gun fight with two policemen. The dead man was identified as Anthony Rossolille, 23 years old, who has a police record starting in 1930.

His companions, held at the Stanton avenue police station, are Stephen Przybyla, 23 years old, 2645 Adams street, and Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, 21 years old, 441 South Oakley boulevard.

Robbery Victim Wounded.

The trio started their night of holdups at a delicatessen store at 7847 Essex avenue, owned by Ralph Rane. Here one of the robbers shot and critically wounded a customer in the place, Sam Bell, 42 years old, 7845 Essex avenue, owner of a cigar store at 25 East Jackson boulevard.

After the shooting the robbers ran from the store without loot and fled in an automobile. Bell was taken to the South Shore hospital, where he was found to have been wounded in the abdomen.

The robbers' next stop was a candy store at 5858 Stony Island avenue, owned by Gust Drulias. Leaving the Mitchell girl outside, the two men invaded the store, took about $40 from Drulias and three customers and fled.

Crashes Into Fire Truck.

Driving north at high speed with Rossolille at the wheel the bandits' car bumped into a fire department truck in front of 3245 Indiana avenue. Fire Lieutenant Ray Daly of Squad 8 ordered them to stop and Rossolille in reply struck Daly in the mouth and tried to swing his car around in the street.

Two policemen, William Davis and Michael Tydings of the Stanton avenue station, hailed the driver and when he pulled out a pistol they both opened fire. Bullets struck Rossolille in the arm and head and he was dead when taken to the Mercy hospital.

Identified in Two Robberies.

Later Rane, the delicatessen store owner, was taken to the police station, where he identified Przybyla as one of the bandits who shot Bell in his store. At the same time Donald J. Becker, 25 years old, 6031 Harper avenue, a University of Chicago student, who was one of the customers robbed in the Stony Island avenue candy store, identified Przybyla as one of the two men who held up that place.

Bureau of identification records showed Przybyla, alias John Carson, was released on Aug. 7, 1934, from Pontiac reformatory. Police said the slain robber also was a paroled convict.

The robbers were driving an automobile stolen last Wednesday from John Sulkowski, 1942 Garfield avenue, who was held up while driving in Douglas Park.

OFFICIALS SWING INTO DRIVE FOR HONEST VOTING

Pending Cases Point Out Evils to Watch.

In an effort to give the voters an honest election and valid count at the primaries on April 14, county and civic officials will swing into their campaign this week to prevent repetition of the frauds which have tainted elections in Cook county in past years. Cases involving dishonest poll officials in previous elections still crowd the dockets of the County and Criminal courts.

JUDGE JARECKI.
[Moffett Photo.]

Charges in these pending cases and evidence taken in others, in which election officials were convicted, were pointed to as evils that must be remedied in the coming primary. Most of the ballot frauds, court records disclosed, occur in the so-called "boss controled wards," such as the Forty-second and Twenty-seventh.

Fear to Serve as Officials.

Investigators for civic organizations which have fought for honest elections declared that in some of these controled wards it has been difficult to get persons to serve as polling place officials. The election officials are torn between the alternatives of committing the frauds demanded by their organizations and facing jail sentences, or defying the organizations and losing all hope of patronage.

One of the first moves to eliminate fraud in the primary will be taken tomorrow and Tuesday, when polling place clerks must appear before the board of election commissioners and make application to remove from the poll lists names of all persons who gave fictitious addresses in registering. All individuals who have protests to make against illegal registrations are also invited to appear.

Reduce Number of Floaters.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, head of the election machinery, and John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board, said that erasure of these names will aid greatly in disqualifying floaters.

"If we can eliminate the floaters," Judge Jarecki said, "we will be doing away with one of the most prevalent means of fraud. These floaters are imported into the wards to swell the ballot count whichever way is desired.

"But there are other frauds we must fight by vigilance also. There is stinging—in which a person votes under a false name which is the name of a duly qualified voter. Then there is stuffing of the ballot box, and deliberate miscalculation of votes.

"One reason for the many vote frauds in the last few years has been the comparative inactivity of one of the two major parties. The theory of our government is built on the existence of two virile parties and the checks of these parties on each other.

Better than Ten Years Ago.

"Since 1932 one party has been dominant and commission of fraud has been easier than it would be were the other party stronger. Still, I do not believe that election frauds in recent years have been as flagrant as they were back ten years ago."

The sharp battle between the Republicans and Democrats forecast in the general election will increase the watchfulness of both parties and act to forestall wholesale vote frauds, observers predicted.

The Chicago Association of Commerce has joined in the campaign for an honest primary following a referendum among its members.

Best Safeguard Defeated.

One factor which would have forestalled election fraud was the permanent registration bill. This was defeated by the state legislature at Springfield. Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago crime commission, estimated last year that passage of the bill would do away with 90 per cent of the election irregularities.

It was Mr. Loesch who directed the first great offensive against vote frauds and violence in Chicago when an aroused public demanded a sweeping inquiry following the events of April 10, 1928, a primary day. On that day Octavius Granady, colored opponent of Morris Eller for the Republican ward committeemanship in the bloody Twentieth ward, was murdered after he had been pursued in his automobile by gunmen. A special grand jury was impaneled and Mr. Loesch acted as special prosecutor.

Fifteen Fined for Violence Plot.

The grand jury indicted fifteen men on charges of conspiracy to commit election violence. The men were tried, found guilty, and fined.

The jurors returned indictments against five policemen and four hoodlums charging them with conspiracy to murder Granady. The defendants were acquitted.

There were comparatively few fraud cases then for several years, but since the Democratic landslide in 1932 such cases have been in the County and Criminal courts almost continuously. Judge Jarecki said his calendar, hitherto full of receivership cases, now is cleared for vote fraud hearings.

Young Man Leads Research.

One of the young men who has been investigating ballot irregularities, particularly in the Forty-second ward, is Kendall I. Lingle of the Ambassador East hotel. Lingle, a recent college graduate, is chairman of the election committee of the Young Republicans and chairman of the election day field work committee of the United Citizens' commission.

"I have found several instances where persons did not want to serve as election officials," Lingle said. "These people knew pressure would be put on them by their organization. If they were caught cheating they would be convicted and sent to jail and if they refused to cheat they would lose caste in the organization and would not get any patronage. I have discovered cases in the Forty-second ward where persons on the precinct election boards were not householders, as the law requires. Of course, some of the Forty-second ward precincts are flophouse districts and there are no householders in them.

Seventy Convictions in City.

Records of the county and criminal courts disclose that within the last two years there have been seventy convictions of polling place officials from ten wards in the ctiy and three convictions in a Chicago Heights precinct. The convictions, by wards, follow:

Ward—	No. convicted.	Ward—	No. convicted.
3d	6	39th	4
4th	7	40th	4
5th	8	42d	8
22d	3	Chgo. Heights	3
24th	7
26th	4
27th	19	Total	73

Those convicted and their sentences and fines, by wards, are:

Third ward—3d precinct, Annie Walters, Napoleon Andrews, Maud Smith, William Pryor and Bertha Holloway, fined $25 each. 58th precinct, Willa G. White, fined $25.

Fourth ward—22d precinct, Louis Matthewson, Patrick A. Foley and Joseph E. Wolf, sentenced to six months each in the county jail. 30th precinct, Vivian Lyon, Nina F. Maynes, Fred Kent and Peter McTaggart, fined $100 each.

Fifth ward—3d precinct, Jessie Cochrane, Irene Earl and Agnes Brooks, fined $15 each. 48th precinct, Irwin Grossman, one year in county jail; William Oliver and Bryan Moake, one day each in county jail [excused from serving]. 62d precinct, Mamie Howard and Agatha Goldsmith, fined $100 each.

Twenty-second ward—80th precinct, G. F. Brihacek, Anton Hone and John J. Cizak, fined $75 each.

Twenty-fourth ward—9th precinct, Ben Morowitz, one year in jail; Simon Mann, 90 days in jail, and Ida Rosenberg, 30 days in jail. 41st precinct, Lina Singer and Max Kohen, 60 days each; Florence Ariew, 30 days, and Martha Rabinovitch, 15 days.

Twenty-sixth ward—18th precinct, Henry J. Fedele, Nick Rose and Nick Collins, one year in jail each; A. J. Berquist, two months in jail.

Twenty-seventh ward—49th precinct, Thomas Eaton, fined $100; Olive Modrow, Margaret Pearl and Hyman Kaplan, fined $50 each. 51st precinct, Joseph V. Oswald, John Young, sentenced to 90 days each in jail. 52d precinct, John A. Bailey, William J. Kelly and Otto W. Benson, sentenced to six months each in jail. 53d precinct, Joseph V. Ruelle, Louis Rohen Rohl, Thomas Keane and John C. Crowley, sentenced to 10 months each in jail; Charles A. Bodine and George W. Wood, sentenced to six months each. 55th precinct, George T. Fribe, three months in jail. 56th precinct, Robert Burns, George Briggs and Joseph O. Murray, six months each.

Thirty-ninth ward—13th precinct, Ben Schwarts, Herman Brown and Harry Schwed, sentenced to 90 days each; Thelma Golden, sentenced to 30 days.

Fortieth ward—2d precinct, Eva V. Storgaard, Esther M. Hill, Minnie Zeidman and Walter E. Gilbert, fined $25 each.

Forty-second ward—40th precinct, John Garbarino, Edward J. Ludwig and Joseph Nichelotti, sentenced to one year each. 52d precinct, Charles Vaoid and James O'Brien, sentenced to two years each; Raymond O. Enger, Franklin E. Taft and Martin P. Fleming, sentenced to six months each.

Chicago Heights — 10th precinct, Frank J. Kirgis, James E. Sheehan and Steve Burns, sentenced to one year each.

In the 36th precinct of the Fourth ward five election officials were found guilty of fraud and sentenced to jail terms, but the Illinois Appellate court reversed the convictions and remanded the cases for retrial.

15 REGISTER FALSELY AT POOL HALL; FOUND BY POSTCARD CHECK

Investigators for the board of election commissioners said yesterday they had discovered that fifteen men registered illegally in the 17th precinct of the 44th ward, all giving their address as 2805 Broadway, a pool hall.

The fraudulent registrations were disclosed when postcards sent to the fifteen men at the Broadway address were returned with the notation "not there." The names of the men were not made public, but were sent to election clerks in the precinct with instructions to recanvass the location.

Mark O'Leary, chief investigator for the election board, announced that of the 469 persons who registered from the 59th precinct of the 27th ward, 216 could not be found at the addresses they gave. Clerks in this precinct were also ordered to make further inquiries.

All election clerks have been ordered to appear before the board tomorrow and Tuesday and make formal application to remove from the poll books names of all persons illegally registered. These applications can be made only on personal knowledge of the clerks, a safeguard against fraudulent disfranchisement of legally qualified voters. Nearly two million postcards were sent out to check the registration lists and about 60,000 of the cards have been returned, indicating the persons to whom they were sent registered illegally.

STATE EMPLOYES CHARGE $200,000 HORNER EXACTION

Sue to Halt Five Officials in 2% Pay Shakedown.

Charges that Illinois departmental heads have raised a campaign fund of $200,000 for Gov. Horner by coercing civil service employés and have discharged others summarily for refusing to contribute 2 per cent of their salaries were made yesterday in an injunction suit filed in the Circuit court.

The bill was filed by the Civil Service Protective association, a nonpolitical organization representing 2,700 state civil service employés. It asks that five state executive officers be restrained from intimidation and it lists specific instances of dismissals for refusing to support the Horner candidacy.

The Five Accused Officials.

Those named as defendants are A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare; Dr. Edward F. Dombroski, managing officer of the Chicago state hospital at Dunning; Walter M. McLaughlin, director of the department of agriculture; Axel C. Ahlman, and John Burke, officials in the grain division of the department of agriculture.

The bill was assigned to Judge Stanley Klarkowski. Attorney Michael F. Ryan, representing the protective association, said he would ask for a hearing on Wednesday.

Civil service employés are specifically barred from engaging in any political activities under rule 10 of the civil service act, according to the bill. This has been wilfully disregarded, it is alleged, by the five officials named in the complaint.

Use of Public Buildings.

The petition requests that these five be barred from holding political meetings in state buildings, and that Horner campaign fund solicitors be restrained from entering any building or room used for official business.

On March 17 and 18, according to the bill, Dr. Dombroski summoned the 350 employés of the Dunning hospital to meetings in the amusement hall, where they were told by a speaker to support Horner, to contribute to the campaign, and to send letters to five friends, urging their support for Horner. These letters, the bill alleges, were ordered left unsealed for inspection by Dombroski.

Demoted to Kitchen Police.

These hospital attendants were ordered to join the Iroquois league, a Horner campaign fund raising organization, and pay an "initiation fee" of $3, according to the bill, and those who refused were dismissed on the grounds of a new "retrenchment policy."

But their positions were taken by unskilled non-civil service employés, the association alleges, many of them unable to speak English, or physically incapable of working. The suit charges that skilled therapists, who refused to be coerced, were demoted to menial tasks such as peeling potatoes.

As a result of their inexperience in handling violent cases, the bill asserts, three of these new employés were injured by patients and are in a hospital.

During January and February, the bill recites, petitions urging Horner for reëlection were given to all the hospital employés to circulate among their friends. Those employés who failed to attend a meeting of the Horner-Knapik Democratic Organization of the Forty-first Ward on Jan. 24, the bill charges, were summarily dismissed.

Since last November, it is alleged, solicitors have taken an estimated $200,000 from all state employés, by demanding 2 per cent of their monthly salaries to reëlect Horner.

Ordered to Write Letters.

In the grain department, the petition relates, employés were instructed to send six "Horner" letters to friends, following a certain form, the letters to be left open for inspection by Ahlman. Ahlman was recently appointed to his job, replacing Joseph Kiele, who refused to help the Horner cause, according to the bill. In his division, Burke is alleged to be busy making collections.

An open letter sent to Gov. Horner by the association, and published in the civil service magazine, is reprinted. It calls the governor's attention to the "coercion" of employés, and challenges him to point to a single instance where he has helped their cause. It also quotes a statement attributed to McLaughlin:

"We've got a lot of good boys who work hard for Horner, waiting to come in here. You fellows have got to make way for 'em, and it won't do you any good to holler or try to get back."

HORNER BACKER DENIES ATTEMPT TO COERCE EMPLOYES OF WPA

A denial that the Thirty-second ward Democratic faction backing the candidacy of Stanley H. Kunz for ward committeeman had attempted to coerce WPA workers into attending meetings for Gov. Horner was issued yesterday. Kunz is supporting the governor for reëlection against Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, regular Democratic candidate.

The charge of coercion was made by Ald. Joseph Rostenkowski [32d], who is also a candidate for ward committeeman, and is backing Dr. Bundesen. Isadore S. Rosin, attorney for Kunz, said the charge apparently was based on a notice of meetings sent to state employés of the Horner ward organization.

"We deny any effort to influence WPA employés," Rosin said. "The charge is an attempt to besmirch Kunz. The notice we sent out was addressed to 'state employés of this organization only,' under the heading of the Horner for governor Democratic organization of the ward, and can not be interpreted as meaning WPA workers."

CRASH VICTIM'S BODY FLOWN HOME.

Sterling, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—The body of Robert Mellam, who was killed yesterday in a crash between two trucks south of this city, was taken back to his home in Omaha, Neb., this afternoon in an ambulance plane.

HORNER AND FOE MOVE FIGHT INTO CITY THIS WEEK

Bundesen Winds Up Tour of Downstate.

BY PERCY WOOD.

All the political fervor engendered by the Horner-Bundesen Democratic race for governor will be transferred from downstate to Chicago this week, both candidates completing their tours of the 101 counties outside Cook over the week-end. Gov. Horner and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen will seek support in the city from now until the primaries on April 14.

Dr. Bundesen, backed by the regular Cook county and state central committee organizations, concluded a 6,000 mile tour downstate at Quincy last night. His schedule for this week has not been completed.

Gov. Horner stays a little longer downstate. He speaks this afternoon at Teutopolis and tomorrow at Effingham and Bloomington.

Horner in City Tuesday.

His first Chicago appearance will be at 4 p. m. Tuesday when he addresses his ward and country town workers in the Sherman hotel. Tuesday evening he begins a round of ward appearances and will also address the Evanston Women's clubs.

As both candidates for governor prepared to move upon Chicago much interest was displayed in a luncheon at Springfield Friday at which State's Attorney Courtney and United States Attorney Igoe were Gov. Horner's guests. Both addressed the governor's crime conference.

Springfield dispatches quoted F. Lynden Smith, the Horner downstate manager, as indicating that a political announcement would follow in a few days as the result of the conference.

"Your guesses won't be far off the target," Smith told reporters who sought to learn if the Chicago prosecutors had pledged their support to the governor.

Both Disown Commitment.

Mr. Courtney and Mr. Igoe were quite willing to tell the net political results of the conference.

Courtney said: "I went to Springfield to talk before the crime conference, and the governor invited me to lunch. Nothing of importance was discussed politically."

Igoe said: "The primary was discussed, of course, but there was no agreement."

"Did the governor ask you to support him?" Igoe was asked.

"He did not," was the reply.

"Did you offer to support him?"

"I did not. My position in this primary is as it has always been. I am absolutely neutral, and I propose to stay that way."

Mr. Igoe is not expected to make any political speeches in the campaign. The organization will not ask him to because of his semi-judicial position.

Bundesen headquarters reported yesterday that county peace officers throughout the state are aroused over the condemnation of jails voiced by State Director of Welfare A. L. Bowen, a Horner appointee. Bowen was quoted recently as telling the prison investigating commission that he would eliminate all county jails, which he called literally lousy, infested with vermin and relics of the horse and buggy age.

The Illinois Sherifs' association on Thursday passed a resolution in Springfield calling upon Bowen to retract his statement and offer a public apology to the sherifs of Illinois. The resolution declared it impossible to receive just treatment from the department of welfare as long as Bowen should be retained as its head.

Employés at the Kankakee state hospital, including those under civil service, are being required to write five letters each, asking support for Gov. Horner from their friends and relatives. The letters, according to word from Kankakee, must be submitted to heads of departments, unsealed, for inspection. Several employés were reported to be resentful, declaring the governor would not receive their support on primary day.

BIG DOWNSTATE SWING TO BROOKS SHOWN IN SURVEY

Oglesby Followers Line Up Behind Candidate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Reports to THE TRIBUNE from its Illinois correspondents yesterday indicated a further concentration of strength in most downstate sections behind Wayland Brooks as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Several correspondents pointed out that new strength has been given Brooks by the followers of John G. Oglesby, former lieutenant governor, who announced his withdrawal as a contestant for the governorship. They reported that, while not all of the Oglesby backing went to Brooks, little if any of it went to Len Small of Kankakee, still listed as Brooks' chief opponent.

Editorial Support for Brooks.

That Brooks was the chief beneficiary from Oglesby's action was believed demonstrated clearly by a Springfield dispatch saying the Illinois State Journal, one of the strongest downstate Republican newspapers, which was Oglesby's chief supporter in the journalistic field, will come out editorially for Brooks today.

"The Illinois State Journal," read the dispatch, "will say tomorrow that Wayland Brooks is the 'logical choice' of Republicans who desire to see a reunion of the Republican party. It will commend Brooks as a representative of 'the younger, virile element of the party' and as being particularly acceptable because he has no factional obligations to pay and no political enemies to punish."

The downstate reports, including analyses of the Republican state-wide primary contests in addition to the governorship, gave Otis F. Glenn of Murphysboro a strong downstate lead over William E. Hull of Peoria, his chief opponent for the United States senatorship.

Hadley Credited with Gains.

They also said Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton was far in the lead over his two Chicago opponents, Ald. B. A. Cronson and T. V. Sullivan, former school board attorney, who downstate has been linked up chiefly with Small.

The reports were not so one-sided on races for other state offices. For the secretary of state nomination they indicated that Mayor John W. Kapp of Springfield, with Brooks backing, is picking up on William J. Stratton of Ingleside, former secretary.

In some sections there were reports that Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest, Brooks candidate for state auditor, has been gaining rapidly, while State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield and Charles W. Vail of Chicago, former clerk of the Illinois Supreme court, were credited with natural strength because of their wide acquaintance downstate.

Hatzenbuhler vs. Clinnin.

For lieutenant governor George Hatzenbuhler of Bloomington was said to be coming up rapidly in a race that hitherto has attracted little attention. The only one of five Chicagoans entered for this nomination mentioned as a serious contender was Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin. While most of the reports indicated that Clarence F. Buck of Monmouth is the favorite for state treasurer, the correspondents said he had done little to advance his candidacy and that there was little activity in his behalf.

Extracts from some of the reports concerning recent developments in these Republican battles follow:

MARION—"Brooks continues to pile up strength. With former followers of Small wavering in view of the former governor's absence from a district that insists on shaking hands with its favorites, Brooks appears definitly out in front."

Rising Tide For Brooks.

EAST ST. LOUIS—"Brooks is on a rising tide of favor in southern Illinois. He has instilled new hope in downstate Republicans and caused worry among wheel horses in the old Len Small machine. Hadley will probably win for attorney general. Bidwill is expected to pull through to beat Searcy for auditor. Stratton is expected to have a slight edge over Kapp for secretary of state."

MOUNT VERNON—"It is generally conceded Brooks will carry Jefferson county, with Small second. Reports indicate Small is losing his hold on the coal miners. Stratton will carry the county. Vail is the best known for auditor, but Searcy is expected to poll a good vote."

MURPHYSBORO—"The biggest development of the campaign has been a frank swing in the Brooks camp for Kapp for secretary of state. Glenn, for senator, continues to enjoy a mounting popularity."

Hatzenbuhler Votes Seen.

HARRISBURG—"Probably Hatzenbuhler will get most of the vote for lieutenant governor. Stratton probably will carry for secretary of state because his name is well known. Bidwill is indicated the strongest for auditor. Hadley is the best known for attorney general. Considerable activity here in his behalf."

DANVILLE—"At a meeting here Brooks had more than three times as many listeners as any other candidate on either side thus far."

BLOOMINGTON—"The withdrawal of Oglesby merely means more votes for Brooks in this territory. Brooks will beat Small by greater majority in Bloomington territory than he would have without Oglesby's withdrawal.

DECATUR—"Brooks and Small continue at the top with Carlstrom in third place. Unless Hull's campaign becomes more effective Glenn should carry the county for United States senator. Both Stratton and Kapp will receive strong support for secretary of state. Vail and Searcy are receiving most mention for auditor."

PEORIA—"Small is given the edge over Brooks by observers."

LA SALLE—"There has been a decided pick-up in Small sentiment."

CHAMPAIGN—"Brooks should carry Champaign county by a big vote."

JACKSONVILLE—"The swing toward Brooks continues and from those who were supporting Oglesby he seems to have gained considerable support."

Close Race Seen in Rockford.

ROCKFORD—"No strength shown here yet for Len Small, leaving Carlstrom chief opponent for Brooks. Vote will be close with possible victory for Brooks by small margin. Glenn assured of victory for senator by large margin in Rockford area. Stratton certain to be victor for secretary of state. Bidwill will win majority for auditor, Buck for treasurer, and Hadley for attorney general."

GALESBURG—"The past week has seen a decided boost in sentiment for Brooks. Small also has gained, principally among the farmers and trade unionists. Carlstrom appears to have been losing strength. Hatzenbuhler appears to be the candidate likely to carry Knox county."

ROCK ISLAND—"On the Republican side the sentiment seems to favor Brooks."

FORMER RELIEF HEAD IN OKLAHOMA DENIES CONSPIRACY CHARGE

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 28.—(AP)—Carl Giles, former state relief administrator, pleaded innocent today to a charge of conspiracy to defraud the federal government in FERA live stock transactions.

Herbert Hyde, attorney for Giles, said that demurrers to the indictment charging Giles and three others with irregularities in handling $313,000 worth of live stock, would be filed before the trial May 25.

Those indicted with Giles are Ray Isom, former FERA clerk, and Dan Hoover and William N. Bigley, Oklahoma City live stock dealers.

BEATTY'S LIONS WILL APPEAR IN CHICAGO APRIL 11

Clyde Beatty's troupe of 40 lions and tigers will be featured in the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus, which opens a three weeks' engagement at the Chicago Stadium April 11.

Beatty's wife, Harriet, will enter a steel cage with a Royal Bengal tiger, a Nubian lion, and an elephant. This is the first time any trainer has ever worked three animals which are natural enemies in one arena, the circus claims. The Beattys are now in winter quarters at Rochester, Ind., preparing their animals for the Chicago opening.

Several new acts have been imported from Europe, among them the Zavatto equestrians and the Zoeppe family of acrobats.

C. J. MUELLER'S RECORD PRAISED BY CHAMBERLIN

The record of Charles J. Mueller, candidate for the Republican nomination for state's attorney, is commended in a letter of Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, which was made public yesterday by Mueller's headquarters.

The communication was in response to a request from Arthur D. Olsen, jeweler at 209 South State street, asking information concerning Mueller, who served nine years as an assistant state's attorney.

Col. Chamberlin's reply quoted from reports on Mueller made by operatives of the commission, included the following phrases: "A skilful assistant"; "never weak in his argument, never insincere, never at a loss for words"; "a fighting type badly needed in prosecuting cases"; "blunt, tenacious and thorough; his cross-examinations are really grilling; has little use for evasions and strikes hard."

"My recollection is that he obtained convictions in the majority of cases in which he was engaged," wrote Col. Chamberlin.

Mary Ann Now 'At Home' with the Jimmie Walkers

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—The newly adopted daughter of former Mayor and Mrs. James J. Walker arrived here from Chicago late Friday night, the parents revealed today. The child, named Mary Ann, is eight weeks old and was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Walker in an Evanston, Ill., institution known as the Cradle. She arrived here in care of a nurse. The greatest secrecy was maintained until the child was home.

5 CHICAGOLAND WOMEN SEEKING CONGRESS SEATS

None Making Appeal for Feminine Vote.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Five Chicagoland women are candidates for congress in the April primaries, but no one of them is making any special appeal for the women's vote.

Nor is there one who claims her career as a housewife as qualification. All are entering as business or professional women, with emphasis on one attribute, efficiency.

Miss Ruth R. McNamara, 7734 Marquette avenue, is an exponent of this theory. With no previous political experience but with the slogan of "business woman for business administration," she is running against Senator James Hamilton Lewis and C. H. Kavanagh of Wilmette for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

16 Years In Business.

Miss McNamara, who is 35 years old, is a financial consultant with offices in the Board of Trade building. She entered the business world 16 years ago, and went to night school for 13 years. She says she is backed by no organization and is financing her own campaign.

"I'm not out just for the woman vote," she said. "I'm campaigning on my business ability."

Mrs. Irene Gorywoda Tomas, candidate for the Republican nomination for representative from the Fourth congressional district, is 34 years old, a widow and the mother of an 11 year old son. She is also a lawyer, an accountant, a real estate agent, a store keeper, and a piano teacher.

"I'm running because I believe our government should be run more like a business, a business where you can't spend more than you earn," she declared. "My mother has had a dry goods store here for 40 years and she knows that."

Harry P. Beam, a Democrat, now is the congressman from the district.

Flowers in Headquarters Window.

A bowl of coral roses and lavender sweet peas, a trailing poinsettia plant, and a large standard placed in a window at 803 South Halsted street yesterday informed passers-by that Florence Tye Jennison, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Eighth district, had opened campaign headquarters.

Miss Jennison, welfare minded, a protégée of the late Jane Addams and 35 years old, is running as an independent Democrat on a platform of "governmental welfare economy."

She believes in shorter hours at present wages, minimum cost of products, effective land use [such as city planning and housing], elastic immigration regulations, and recognition of the Kellogg pact through disarmament. She has the backing of four well known social workers, Mrs. Kenneth Rich of Hull house, Miss Harriet Vittum, Miss Lea D. Taylor, and Miss Amelia Sears.

Wages Energetic Campaign.

Small multi-colored folders distributed throughout the entire Ninth district inform the voters of the beliefs of Mrs. Bertha Baur, 1511 Astor street, candidate for the Republican nomination for congress. The folders list a platform of thirteen principles, but the major one, in Mrs. Baur's estimation, is "a minimum of taxation for government costs only." She has adopted a slogan of "Axes for taxes," and is conducting an intensive precinct campaign on this issue.

Mrs. Baur is national Republican committeewoman for Illinois, but she is campaigning on her record as a business woman and a lawyer. She has lived in the Ninth district for thirty years. Once before she aspired to congress, but was defeated in 1926 by Congressman Fred A. Britten.

Mrs. Emily Reichert, 6842 Dante avenue, is running against five men for the Republican congressional nomination from the Second district. For many years she operated a sightseeing concern. She says she decided to run for congress "just to please my friends."

She is campaigning on the principle of "American citizenship," and speaks at nightly meetings.

REPORTS TREND FOR ROOSEVELT AFTER DISFAVOR

Republican Victory Seen in End, However.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—The outstanding aspect of the political situation at this writing is the material improvement of President Roosevelt's chances of reelection.

That the tide of public sentiment is now running favorably to the President is admitted privately by numerous Republican leaders. Having observed the rising and falling waves of a candidate's popularity in other elections they look for a turning of the tide in favor of the Republicans before next November but at present they are feeling none too cheerful. They frankly concede that Mr. Roosevelt is going to be a hard candidate to beat.

Digest Poll Recalled.

A few months ago the greatest optimism prevailed in the Republican camp. The reports from the Republican pulse takers indicated with remarkable uniformity that the President's popularity was waning fast, that disillusionment with the New Deal was gripping the country. The Literary Digest poll, always uncannily accurate in the past, showed that in all but some ten or 12 states the New Deal policies were disapproved by a majority of the persons canvassed.

The Republican leaders were enormously encouraged. They began to believe that the New Deal was surely doomed, that any of the candidates for the Republican nomination could be relied upon to defeat the President.

During the last month or two, however, this Republican optimism has been oozing away. Regional reports to headquarters on the state of public sentiment have disclosed a far more complacent attitude toward the New Deal than was observed in the early part of last winter. Test polls showed the President weakest in the northeastern states, strongest in the west and south, with an average of about 52 to 55 per cent in his favor.

Believe Business Gain Factor.

Of course, there is no end of speculation on the causes of the phenomenon. The general opinion seems to be that the marked improvement in business is the principal factor in the more favorable attitude being manifested toward the administration. Good times or the advent of better times always exerts a powerful influence in favor of the party in power, whether it be Democratic or Republican. The Republicans have benefited from this influence more often than have the Democrats. In fact for many years the Democrats suffered from the stigma of the "party of hard times."

Now it is the Democrats who are benefiting from the psychology that credits the party in power for good times and blames it for hard times. The Republican contention is that the current improvement in business is due to the natural forces of recuperation that follow every depression, which in the present instance they contend are being retarded by the uncertainties and fears created by the New Deal. But for the Roosevelt policies they assert our recovery would be much farther advanced.

Killing of NRA Helps.

Another stroke of luck for the President, according to the Republican view, was, paradoxically enough, the razing by the Supreme court of those twin pillars of the New Deal—the NRA and the AAA. By defeat in what he set out to accomplish he now stands a better chance than before of winning another term in the White House.

The NRA and the AAA embodied the whole philosophy of the New Deal, including the raising of prices by the creation of scarcity and the regimentation by the government of the occupations and business activities of individuals. Both proved highly unpopular among large groups of our people. Both raised prices to such an extent that consumption decreased, production was diminished, and unemployment increased. Both were factors in the Rhode Island election last August in which the defeat of the Democrats was the first signal of serious reaction against the New Deal.

End of AAA Another Aid.

From the moment, however, that the Supreme court knocked out the NRA business began to improve. Then when the AAA was demolished last January the administration was relieved of an embarrassment which boded the New Deal no good, at least in the eastern part of the country, where the President is politically the weakest. The AAA, to be sure, has been replaced by the soil conservation subsidy to the farmers, based on curtailment of production, but unless it becomes definitly associated before the election with a material increase in the cost of living it will not be the political liability that the defunct AAA became in the east.

In the matter of taxation the President has moved with political shrewdness. He has postponed the public awakening to the true tax burden entailed by the New Deal till after the election. He is proposing no additional direct taxes; only indirect taxes, which people pay without knowing it at the moment. The tax burden to foot the bill for the farm subsidy is to be imposed on the corporations, which it is always popular politics to attack.

Another advantage accruing to the President is the vast number of people benefiting from the stupendous disbursement of government funds in the name of recovery. It is estimated that more than 25 million people, one out of every five persons in the country, are subsisting wholly or in part on government pay, subsidies, relief, or loans. They are naturally influenced to vote for a continuation of the policies from which they are benefiting. Republicans accuse the administration of creating the fear among these beneficiaries that they will find themselves cut off unless they vote for the reëlection of the President.

Although suffering from these handicaps the Republicans are preparing to oppose the reëlection of Mr. Roosevelt with all the vigor and earnestness to which men are roused by what they believe to be a righteous cause. They believe the fate of the country is at stake in this election as never before, at least since the election of Abraham Lincoln.

New Deal Challenged.

The Republican challenge to the New Deal will be based on an assessment of the present state of the union and a warning of what lies in store for our country if Mr. Roosevelt be given another four years with a public indorsement to carry into effect the radical innovations in the accomplishment of which he has so far been balked by the Supreme court.

The Republicans will show that despite the improvement in business there are still more than 9 million persons unemployed, that the budget is still unbalanced without any progress being made to balance it and with a greater deficit in prospect in the next fiscal year than in this one. They will point out that in every country in history an unbalanced budget has always brought in its train the depreciation of the currency, skyrocketing cost of living and ruin for wage earners and others on a fixed income.

Warn Against Danger.

To the fears of what this continued deficit financing portends and to the Roosevelt policies antagonistic to business the Republicans will attribute the failure of industry to expand to the extent Mr. Roosevelt asserts it could if it would. To every one who has a job or a home or a savings deposit or a life insurance policy the Republicans will appeal to halt the New Deal before it is too late.

Once the President gets another term with a Democratic congress to back him up he will proceed, assert the Republicans, to revive the NRA and the AAA and to carry out all the other New Deal projects under the protection either of a Supreme court with a New Deal majority or of laws depriving the court of the power to invalidate acts of congress.

TWO 'LOCUST SWARMS' READY TO TOUR U. S. DURING SUMMER

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The periodical cicada—frequently miscalled the seventeen year locust—will sing his love song through the land this spring agriculture department scientists said today. There are 30 known broods and two will come out of the ground this spring. One has been 13 years in breeding and the other the full 17.

Brood X., last seen and heard in 1919, is "scheduled" to emerge late in May over its usual range, New York state west to Missouri and from Michigan to northern Alabama and Georgia.

Brood XXII., which has been underground thirteen years, is due to appear in Louisiana and Mississippi the last of April or the first of May. Like some other pests, scientists say the females eat up plants while the males make all the noise.

MOST KENTUCKY COUNTY VOTE FAVORS LANDON

Louisville, Ky., March 28.—(AP)—Incomplete reports indicated tonight the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas had received the endorsement of the majority of Republican county conventions held in Kentucky today.

A few counties voted to send uninstructed delegates to district meetings Monday and to the state convention here Tuesday, but the majority of the counties heard from favored the Kansan's nomination.

Congressman John M. Robison predicted at least seven of the state's nine congressional districts would send delegates to the state convention favoring Gov. Landon.

Other party leaders, however, said Kentucky's 22 delegates would go to the national convention at Cleveland uninstructed.

STUDENT TRIES TO END LIFE.

Robert White, 17 years old, a second year student in the Austin High school, attempted to end his life yesterday by inhaling gas in the kitchen of his home, 5015 Maypole avenue. He was revived by a fire department inhalater squad.

FOES OF HORNER GIVE 20 REASONS WHY HE'D LOSE

Call Governor an Easy Opponent for G. O. P.

Twenty "reasons" why Gov. Horner would be defeated in the November election if he were nominated in the primary were listed yesterday in a pamphlet distributed by the Cook county regular Democratic organization. The pamphlet—a political "indictment"—reviews Horner's career as governor and asserts that the Republican party would wreck his chances in the election by raising issues on the unpopular legislation and broken promises of his administration.

"In November there is at stake not only the fate of Illinois democracy," the pamphlet reads, "but also the fate of the nation. The Illinois electoral votes very probably may decide whether or not Franklin D. Roosevelt remain as President. To place at the head of the state ticket a man who would act as dead weight would mean endangering—needlessly so—the chances of President Roosevelt for reelection.

Unanimously Against Horner.

"The Cook county Democratic central committee was unanimous in deciding that the party could not afford to recommend Horner for its candidate for governor, that party welfare required Herman N. Bundesen for its candidate. This same decision was made by the Democratic state central committee. Horner begged to be endorsed this year by the reguar Democratic leaders; the men he now calls 'bosses.' It was only when he was refused that he turned on the party organization."

The reasons for the organization's opposition to Horner are then listed as follows:

1. Horner stands for an unfair sales tax. This tax shifts the burden from the rich to the poor. Less than one-third of the money collected goes to help the unemployed.

Failure to Cut Utility Rates.

2. Horner failed to get utility rates reduced in Chicago and Cook county. The Illinois commerce commission has reduced slightly the rates of small companies in the state, but the big companies have not been really touched.

3. The home rule promise for Chicago was broken. Horner has done everything possible to increase state power, thus further crippling cities.

4. Horner's prison administration has been a "stench and a scandal." Prisoners of wealth and influence and of despicable character were pampered and favored until one of them [Richard Loeb] was finally murdered within the prison walls.

"No Help for Workers."

5. Horner failed to help the workingman. Responsible labor leaders have criticized him. Any legislation of benefit to labor was passed in spite of him rather than because of him.

6. Horner has been willing to injure Chicago taxpayers in order to gain favor downstate. He approved a bill to compel Chicago to levy an additional 30 cents per $100 on property owners before the city could be given any money for relief of its unemployed out of the sales tax, notwithstanding Chicago pays 65 per cent of this tax.

7. Horner "played politics" with roads. He squandered millions of dollars by constructing expensive roads where they were not especially essential, and "invited" contractors to contribute to his slush fund.

8. Horner turned a deaf ear to pleas for real help from financially embarrassed schools in the state. He refused to coöperate with the Chicago school board to obtain money to pay the school teachers and it was necessary for Mayor Kelly and the organization to step into the breach to keep the schools open.

9. State employés have been "politically assessed" for contributions to Horner's campaign fund. Small-salaried employes were threatened with dismissal unless they contributed.

10. He opposed relief for motorists. His opposition prevented large reductions in state automobile license fees that were urged by Mayor Kelly and Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

11. Horner padded state pay rolls. While claiming he was instituting economies, Horner passed out jobs for which no work was required, to build up his own political campaign organization.

12. Horner delayed projects for relief. He was slow and ineffective in getting the federal public works program in operation in Illinois.

Civil Service "Debauched."

13. He "debauched" the civil service. In violation of the law he had notice given to all civil service employés inviting their active and open support of his candidacy.

14 He "balked" the old age pension law. The governor by his desire "to build up a personal dictatorship" nearly wrecked the possibility of old age pension legislation for Illinois.

15. Horner is wholly lacking in executive ability. He does not know how to delegate responsibility to others, with the consequence that during his administration no progressive changes have been made in state government through his efforts.

Attempts to "Boss" Assembly.

16. The governor attempted to "boss" the legislature. Legislators of both parties resented his "unwarranted interference" and as a consequence Illinois was cheated out of much good legislation.

17. Horner favored hypocrisy in liquor control, "curbing the poor man's pleasure." He insisted that neither beer nor liquor of any kind be sold except in restaurants and clubs, and then only with meals.

18. He squandered state money. The governor insisted on lump sum appropriations instead of itemized appropriations, and encouraged extravagance and secret spending of public money.

19. Spite influenced Horner's official acts. One example of this was his attack on the Chicago park consolidation bill.

20. He has been a hindrance to President Roosevelt.

FINLAND TO DEMAND U. S. PAY CLAIMS OF OWNERS OF 13 SHIPS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 28.—At the request of the owners of thirteen Finnish ships, which the American authorities in 1917 and 1918 subjected to alleged "unwaranted and unnecessary detention" in United States ports, the Finnish government has decided to take up the matter with Washington.

The ship owners claim $1,600,000, including accumulated interest, but they informed the cabinet of their willingness to consider a reasonable reduction if the American authorities are prepared to expedite settlement of the dispute.

The shipowners stress they suffered such heavy losses that several went bankrupt. They object that the American government prevents them from taking legal action in American courts and allege that American authorities have produced inadequate reasons for their objections.

The shipowners contend they have evidence that American officials suspected the ships' officers and crews of bolshevik leanings which the owners consider absurd in view of the fact that Finland then was engaged in a desperate fight against Russian bolshevism. They also express regret that the United States has "failed to take cognizance of this obviously just case, especially as Finland has conscientiously carried out her obligations in America."

PASSOVER FEAST TO CUT JEWISH VOTE ON APRIL 14

Ballot Marking Forbidden Under Ancient Law.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Because the April 14 primary election will fall on the closing day of the Feast of the Passover, many Chicagoans of Jewish faith will be unintentionally disfranchised, according to leading rabbis.

Ancient Jewish law forbids any work except that which is absolutely essential to life during the Passover and other periods of special observance, such as the eight-day New Year or Rosh Hashanah celebration each fall. The law is specific about what toil is essential and what is not.

Since the law holds writing nonessential, according to the rabbis, no Jew who abides by it may mark his ballot. The Reform Jews escape this injunction this year because their seven-day observance of the Passover is to end at sundown on April 13, but for Orthodox and Conservative Jews, whose ceremonies continue for eight days, the law is ironclad. For all three groups, the Passover begins on April 6.

Cites Example in 1932.

Rabbi Solomon Goldman of Temple Anshe Emet, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, appraised the situation yesterday.

"Anyone who will take the trouble to study carefully the registrations in the 24th ward on Oct. 1 and Oct 11, 1932, in comparison with other years, can get an idea," he said, "of the effect of the coincidence of the Passover date with the primary.

"The 24th ward is predominately Jewish—orthodox Jewish. The first registration day, Oct. 1, fell on the opening day of Rosh Hashanah, an occasion of deeper significance than the Passover."

On that day, records show, 37 per cent of the October, 1932, registrants entered their names on the books. Ten days later, the remaining 63 per cent registered. It was a day of no religious significance to Jews.

Marked Variation in Figures.

In 1922, when the October registration days were similarly ten days apart but when neither was important on the Jewish calendar, the first day's registrations exceeded the second's by a small margin.

According to Rabbi Goldman, any Jew who would register in Rosh Hashana would vote during the Passover. Rabbi Felix A. Levy, 445 Melrose avenue, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis [reformed], ventured the guess yesterday that the coincidence of the feast day and the primary would tend to keep a large percentage of Chicago's estimated 150,000 Jewish voters from the polls.

Rabbi H. Goldstein, of the large Orthodox Rumanian congregation at 3622 Douglas boulevard, estimated the abstainers' total at 100,000. Rabbi Israel Weisfeld of the Conservative North Shore congregation, surmised that 10,000 to 20,000 would avoid the polls because of the holiday.

Gets Divorce from Crane Tech English Instructor

Gertrude C. Temple, 48 years old, 4245 North Paulina street, was granted a divorce yesterday from Harry W. Temple, 58 years old, an English teacher at Crane Technical High school, on grounds of cruelty, by Judge Philip J. Finnegan of Circuit court. The decree included $750 alimony payable at $15 a week.

U. S. DEVISES PLANS FOR A 'SMALL TOWN' HOUSE COSTING $1,200

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—After months of blueprint drafting, Federal Housing administration officials said today they had devised plans for a "small town" house costing approximately $1,200.

The FHA also is working on plans for homes in the $2,000 to $3,000 price range, but these have not been completed. The studies are being made in an effort to make homes available to low income groups.

Coincidently, a slight drop in building construction last month when compared with January was reported by the labor department. Officials said the $1,200 house would consist of bedroom, bathroom and combination living room-dining room-kitchen.

Senator Costigan Ill; May Be Home for Week

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Dr. George W. Calver, capitol physician, announced today that Senator E. P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.] "is confined to his apartment with a complication resulting from a bad cold and overwork." "He will be unable to return to the senate for at least a week," the physician said.

Secret Service Men Guard John Roosevelt During Play

Boston, Mass., March 28.—(AP)—Two secret service agents guarded John A. Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, when he appeared last night at the Copley theater in Harvard's Hasty Pudding club play. That was learned today. They said it was only a routine precaution.

BORAH MAPPING CAMPAIGN TOUR OF ILLINOIS, OHIO

Decides to Enter Contest in Oregon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah, who has decided to enter the Oregon presidential primary, and is considering entering the field in New Jersey for that state's 32 delegates, today began making preparations for an intensive speechmaking tour of Illinois, where he will oppose Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, in the primaries of April 14.

The Idaho candidate will speak in Milwaukee on April 6 and devote the remainder of the week to Illinois, with Decatur, Rock Island, Peoria, Danville and Springfield on his tentative itinerary. Wisconsin has no preferential primary, but Senator Borah will speak in Milwaukee to make a bid for the state's 24 delegates. A Borah slate is in the field, opposed by an uninstructed delegation which is supposedly favorable to Gov. Landon.

Plans Active Ohio Campaign.

Senator Borah also will conduct an intensive campaign in Ohio, following his Illinois tour, but his plans for that invasion have not been completed. The Ohio primaries, in which the senator will be opposed by a "favorite son" delegation supporting Robert A. Taft, son of the late President, will not be held until May 12.

As Senator Borah's presidential boom continues to grow party leaders continue to speculate on the course he would follow if defeated at the Cleveland convention in June. Gov. Landon, according to all the polls and political experts, is "out in front" as matters now stand, but Senator Borah's attitude will have an important bearing on the November election whether or not he is nominated.

At Chicago recently he reserved the right to "look over" the party's candidate before saying what he would do. The senator has not attacked any of his rivals, but his allegation that the Standard Oil company is seeking to dominate politics has been construed in some quarters as an indirect thrust at Gov. Landon. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, according to Senator Borah's friends, would be more acceptable to him than any of his rivals actively in the field.

Oregon Has Ten Delegates.

Senator Borah announced that he was "filing in the Oregon primary" just two days before the deadline, March 30. The Oregon primary, at which 10 delegates are to be selected, will be held on May 15.

Earlier in the week Senator Borah had declined to enter the California primaries against Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, explaining that his campaign for the important Illinois and Ohio delegations, with a total of 109 votes, would keep him so busy that he would not be able to speak on the Pacific coast.

He does not plan to speak in Oregon, but Republican leaders from that state, including Senators Charles L. McNary and Frederick Steiwer, do not believe a personal campaign is necessary to carry the delegation.

Decides on Jersey Soon.

Senator Borah was undecided after his conference with the New Jersey Republican leaders whether to file for the primaries there. However, his headquarters said the situation looked "very favorable" and that a decision would be reached before the deadline for filing, April 1. The senator spent the entire morning discussing the New Jersey situation with Russell Gates, county clerk at Newark; Judge Henry W. Trimble and John H. Halpin, Borah manager at Newark.

MANX ROOSTERS TAILLESS, TOO

Authentic Descent

Chicago Manxmen last night entertained Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Teare of Ramsey, Isle of Man, where Mr. Teare is editor of the Ramsey Courier, with a reception at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mr. Teare was presented with a tailless cat and a tailless chicken, both of authentic Manx descent raised as a hobby by John J. Keig, a Manxman, on his farm near Lockport. Walter J. Stevenson is president of the Chicago Manx society, hosts at the reception.

FARMER-LABOR GROUP FAVORING NEW 3D PARTY

Cheers Hint of Olson 1940 Boom.

St. Paul, Minn., March 28.—(AP)—The Farmer-Labor party convention today adopted a resolution looking toward formation of a national third party for the 1936 political campaign, and welcomed with noisy acclamation a hint that Gov. Floyd B. Olson might be a presidential candidate in 1940.

The roll call of delegates to the party's state convention showed 368½ votes for the resolution and 250½ against.

William Mahoney, former Farmer-Labor mayor of St. Paul, argued against adoption of the resolution, as did Knud Wefald, railroad and warehouse commissioner, who pleaded that the move be postponed another four years and expressed the "hope in 1940, if God gives Floyd B. Olson health and strength, he will be a candidate for president."

Gov. Olson, who yesterday opened wide the doors for a national third party resolution, said today, privately, that in his opinion the resolution could do no harm since it does not commit the liberals to putting a national ticket in the field this year.

Neither does it authorize formation of such a ticket unless a second convention convenes and ratifies any action a proposed "exploratory conference" may take. The roll call on the resolution showed 368½ votes for the step and 250½ against it.

Veterans Uphold Grace for State's Attorney

The United Republican War Veterans' league through its secretary, Emmett Grady, protested by letter to the members of the Chicago Bar association against the finding of the latter organization's committee on candidates that William J. Grace "lacks the requisite qualifications" for state's attorney. The veterans' league asked the lawyers voting in the bar primary to determine Grace's qualifications for themselves.

SEEK DRUG STORE BURGLAR.

Police searched yesterday for a young burglar who broke into a drug store at 5800 Division street early in the day and drew three pistol shots from Luman Lobdell, the proprietor, aroused from sleep in living quarters above the place.

WORK OF RADIO 'HAM' IN PEACE AND WAR CITED

The amateur radio operator was extolled yesterday as a pioneer in the field and a bulwark of the army in time of war, before 500 "hams" attending the fourth annual convention of the Institute of Radio Service men at the Hotel Sherman.

"In case of war there would be 25,000 amateur operators, familiar with government codes, available for service," said E. A. Roberts of Cleveland, director of the central division of the Amateur Radio Relay league, which has 45,000 members. "The government couldn't engage in a war without the amateurs to send communications on land and sea. We supplied 3,000 trained men within two months during the world war."

Roberts declared that radio today is due to the pioneer work of amateurs who were the first to develop the short wave. During the recent floods the "hams" provided invaluable service, he said.

The league is considering moving its headquarters from West Hartford, Conn., to Chicago, Roberts said.

GLENN ATTACKS SPENDING SPREE OF NEW DEALERS

Declares Tax Load Will Fall on Workers.

Otis F. Glenn, Republican candidate for United States senator, declared yesterday there can be no hope for an improvement in business and employment until public confidence in the government at Washington is restored.

Speaking before publishers and editors of foreign language newspapers at a luncheon in the Hamilton club, the former senator also said the future tax burden required to pay for present extravagances will fall on the working man and his family—"upon the great majority and not upon the wealthy minority."

Attacks National Spending.

"Billions are being squandered by the New Dealers who are trying to give the impression they will 'soak the rich' and make them pay for one of the greatest spending sprees in history," he declared.

"When the New Dealers try to lead the American people to believe that the bulk of the tax burden is to be borne by the wealth of this nation they are not dealing with the facts.

"The excessive taxes now being created will be paid by the masses of the American public, both directly and indirectly, and for generations to come the people will be hampered and tax-burdened unless the New Dealers are stopped in their perilous flight.

Declares People Will Pay.

"The masses of the people will pay for the present disregard for costs and expenditures in doling out billions of dollars as the New Dealers attempt to cover up the promises and falsehoods of their pledges to the electorate in the Democratic platform of 1932.

"These taxes will be paid on everything we purchase. This is evidenced today in the 53 taxes, direct and indirect, now imposed on a loaf of bread."

Glenn will make his final downstate tour this week, speaking at Rockford Tuesday at noon, Wednesday at the Elgin watch works, at St. Charles Wednesday afternoon and in Aurora Wednesday evening.

Hold Youths to Federal Grand Jury for Extortion

Henry Lakoma, 16 years old and Michael Salasa, 18 years old, both of 2214 South California avenue, were held to the federal grand jury yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker in bonds of $1,000 each on charges of sending extortion letters through the mails. The two were trapped Friday by federal agents at the Novak Grocery store, 2813 West Cermak road, when the boys accepted a package which they supposed contained $100 they had demanded to "protect" the place against bombing.

$5,000 FIRE KILLS BIRD.

Happy, a pet canary, was suffocated in his cage in the second floor at 7228 Madison street, Forest Park, yesterday when fire broke out in the kitchen of a bakery. Firemen from Forest Park and Oak Park fought the blaze, which caused $5,000 damage.

TWO NAVAL AVIATORS TRANSPORT MAIL TO ROOSEVELT'S YACHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 28.—[Special.]—Two navy aviators took off from the coast guard station here to give President Roosevelt his first direct contact with Washington since he left on his fishing cruise last Sunday afternoon.

The flyers, Lieut. P. D. Quinn, senior naval aviator, and Lieut. J. M. Duke, junior naval aviator, flew the 182 miles to Nassau and halted in their flight for the night. They will take off tomorrow and proceed to a rendezvous in the neighborhood of Crooked Island.

To meet the mail plane the presidential flotilla will proceed northwesterly from Mariguana Island, where Mr. Roosevelt got his first kettle of fish on the trip. The rendezvous is expected to be made for early morning.

The President approved the plan to meet the plane. A radio message to the temporary White House said: "Potomac and destroyers arrived Marguana Island yesterday afternoon and had more fine fishing. We will proceed to the westward tonight to rendezvous with mail planes tomorrow morning. F. D. R."

The plane will pause beside the presidential yacht while Mr Roosevelt examines his mail. It will return answers to the more pressing messages and carry other mail of the President and the officers and crew of the party.

MISS TABER AND EMIL NEUKRANZ MARRIED HERE

The wedding of Miss Mary Alden Taber and Emil Neukranz of London, Ont., took place yesterday afternoon in the drawing room of the apartment of Miss Taber's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Taber of East Chestnut street.

The Rev. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, read the service, which was followed by a reception for the small group of relatives and close friends who witnessed the ceremony. Miss Taber, who was unattended, wore traveling clothes with a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Neukranz and his bride left on a motor trip through the south, after which they will be at home in London, Ont.

Piccard Anxious to Make New Stratosphere Flight

Minneapolis, Minn., March 28.—(AP)—Jean Piccard, stratosphere scientist, said today he is "willing and eager" to make a night stratosphere flight in this area this summer if the necessary $100,000 can be raised. Prof. Piccard arrived here to teach a course in aeronautics at the University of Minnesota during the spring quarter.

ICKES' PWA DRIVE PERILS MOVE TO LIMIT NEW TAXES

700 Millions Additional Funds Are Sought.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—A drive by supporters of Secretary Ickes in congress to appropriate 700 million dollars for PWA heavy construction, in addition to the 1 billion 500 million dollars requested by President Roosevelt for work relief, today threatened the chief executive's plan to limit expenditures and new taxes.

A determined campaign has developed on Capitol Hill, directed by Senator Hayden of Arizona and Representative Cartwright of Arkansas, to make this large sum available to PWA. Secretary Ickes has given it his tacit approval by remarking that PWA can well use any funds it may get. Thus far the Ickes slum clearance projects have made small progress, though started nearly two years ago.

Take CCC Revolt As Pattern.

Spurred by the success of the house revolt against the president's plan to reduce the CCC, some advocates of the new appropriation for PWA are pointing out to senators and representatives the advantages of bringing new large construction projects to their districts in election year.

Despite the known desire of the White House to limit federal expenditures for such a program this year, the secretary has reiterated frequently in the last few weeks that there is hardly any limit to the sum which can be spent upon such a program.

President Snubs Ickes.

President Roosevelt made clear in his budget message that, he preferred in the future a light construction program of the WPA type rather than continuance of the PWA heavy construction. He went further and ordered eliminated those PWA allotments for projects upon which work had not yet started.

Secretary Ickes was not invited to attend any of the work relief conferences which preceded the preparation of Mr. Roosevelt's budget message on relief, and of the 404 million dollars which the President requested for public works in the regular departmental budgets, less than 100 million will go to agencies under Mr. Ickes' supervision.

CUTS THROAT WITH RAZOR.

William Frye, 75 years old, 2709 Magnolia avenue, was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital yesterday in a serious condition after he cut his throat with a razor, being despondent over the death of his wife last winter.

BARE PRESSURE FOR INQUIRY ON TOWNSEND PLAN

Audit Is Expected to Require Weeks.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Pressure from house members facing primary election opposition from Townsendite candidates was named today as responsible for a premature start of the congressional inquiry into the $200 a month old age pension plan.

Congressional sources close to the house investigating committee made known that the investigators had planned to await completion of a detailed audit now being made of Townsend organization books before starting public hearings.

Figures Will Be Delayed.

The split between Robert E. Clements and Dr. F. E. Townsend, cofounders of the movement, and Clements' subsequent resignation as national secretary, together with the approach of primary elections in many states were reported to have rushed the opening of public hearings, started last Thursday.

The audit, still being made at the instance of the committee, probably will not be completed for two or three weeks. Detailed revelations before the committee of Townsend financial transactions may be delayed until the audit finally is finished.

The committee headed by Representative C. J. Bell [Dem., Mo.] displayed particular interest today in an announcement by Dr. Townsend in Los Angeles that Clements received $50,000 for his share in the Townsend National Weekly when he severed connections with Townsend.

Clements to Resume Stand.

James R. Sullivan, special committee counsel will delve into details of the Townsend Weekly organization and management when Clements resumes his testimony next week.

Committee members explained the Townsend Weekly, put out by the Prosperity Publishing company, is a separate organization from the Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., but was owned in its entirety by Dr. Townsend and Clements.

Clements testified his dividends from the Prosperity Publishing company last year amounted to $6,500.

3 Girl Students at State Normal U. Hurt in Crash

Bloomington, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—Three Illinois State Normal university women students were injured here last night in a collision involving automobiles driven by John Blum and A. L. Sargent. DRIVE THE Sweepstakes WINNER
The Car That Beat Them All!
- Let the facts speak for themselves.

A Graham Supercharger sedan made 26.66 miles per gallon in a test supervised by the American Automobile Association,* winning the sweepstakes championship over 29 other cars of various makes and sizes.
No full sized car in America has a certified economy record equal to that set by the Supercharger.
Not even the smaller cars were able to match Graham performance.
The larger cars, in the Supercharger class, were literally overwhelmed.
The principle of the Supercharger—as brought to the lower price field for the first time by the Graham brothers—is the most revolutionary development of the last 10 years.
It couples unmatched economy with the smoothest and most brilliant performance you've ever known.

GOVERNOR SEES CHANCE TO SAVE HAUPTMANN LIFE

Pardons Court Holds Key to Fate.

11 o'clock Monday morning is a subject for conjecture. Five members of the court once before refused Hauptmann's plea for clemency when they sat as members of the Court of Errors and Appeal.

Should the pardons court delay the execution it was believed the governor might delay Hauptmann's death indefinitly while his investigators attempt to find a solution of the case which will satisfy him.

Two weeks ago the governor asked Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at the trial of Hauptmann, if he had authority to grant a new trial and was informed that the presiding justice cannot entertain such a motion unless made within six months of the time of conviction. He said he had no further powers in the case.

"Bound by the Law."

"Suppose," the governor asked, "that at the last minute a condemned man is shown to be innocent; is there any way in which his case can be opened?"

"I am bound by the law," the judge replied.

"Hauptmann is as guilty today as he was the day he was convicted," said Attorney General Wilentz in a statement today. "Nothing has happened to change that. At that time the New Jersey Court of Error and Appeals said:

"'Our conclusion is that the verdict is not only not contrary to the weight of the evidence but is one in which the evidence inescapably led, and discarding the testimony of witnesses classified as irresponsible the result is the same. From three different and in main unrelated sources the proofs point unerringly to guilt.'

"No Room for Doubt."

"And the court also said:

"'There was much more evidence to establish his guilt. It was a circumstantial case with the evidence pointing to guilt from so many directions as to leave no room for reasonable doubt.'

"Nothing has happened to change those views—those views so ably expressed—not even the attack upon the prosecutor, who is known to everybody as a man of unquestioned character and a public official of ability and the highest standing.

"We dispute the right of the governor to place the prestige and weight of his office behind this latest accusation that 'the case reeks with unfairness, passion, and prejudice.' He usurps the functions of the courts when he attempts as governor to pass upon this phase of the case.

"During the trials not even Hauptmann made any claim of unfairness and defense counsel in his concluding address to the jury said: 'I think we have played along so fairly, so nicely in this trial, that we can continue to go along that way.'

"I understand that the governor may ask my views about a reprieve, and therefore I will withhold them until that time."

In his deathhouse cell tonight, uncertain that he would live more than 72 hours, Hauptmann remained calm and expressed the belief that he would not die in the electric chair.

What Hauptmann expects to happen has not been indicated, since repeated efforts to induce him to talk have failed to make him change his original story that he is innocent and that the ransom money on which he lived for two years and with which he indulged in stock market speculation was left in his charge by Isador Fisch, who returned to Germany after the kidnap murder to die.

To See Wife Monday.

Unless the pardon board stays his execution he will see his wife once more before Tuesday night. Visitors to the deathhouse are barred on Sunday and also on the day of execution, so that his wife will have only Monday to say her goodbys. Then she will be forced to talk to him through a heavy wire screen, 3 feet from his cell. In New Jersey no person is permitted to touch one who is condemned to die.

C. Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's counsel, is ready to argue his appeal before the pardons court Monday, and has declared he has enough new evidence to warant clemency. There has been no hint what this evidence might be, and the fact that Fisher chose to go before the pardons court rather than ask for a new trial was taken to indicate he had little evidence to offer, since a new trial could be granted only upon submission of new and startling evidence.

Mercy Based on Confession.

It was said today that for the court to grant mercy to Hauptmann it would be necessary for him to confess the crime, say he was sorry, and ask for clemency, since pardon and mercy are functions of the tribunal and not trial. No thought was given to the possibility that Hauptmann might appear before the court.

However, should Hauptmann confess the crime to the board, observers believed that body would be in no mood to entertain any plea for mercy.

And, finally, should all decisions be against Hauptmann, and Gov. Hoffman grant a repriece, which he has said he would not do, Col. Mark O. Kimberling, keeper of the prison, will be prepared to carry out the mandate of the court. He said tonight that he might delay the execution for a day or two until he could obtain a legal opinion from Attorney General Wilentz, but that he would disregard the governor's action, since Wilentz is his sole legal adviser.

The delay would not violate the death warant, since the court set the time for execution "during the week of March 30," and the actual time for sending Hauptmann to his death is left to the discretion of the prison keeper.

REPORT CONFESSION

Trenton, N. J., March 28.—(AP)—A purported "confession" of the Lindbergh kidnaping by a former Trenton man was revealed tonight to have been used by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman as a basis for calling the court of pardons to meet Monday to hear Hauptmann's second clemency plea.

The governor is reported to have mailed to the board copies of a statement made to Detective Ellis H. Parker, who has insisted Hauptmann is innocent of the kidnaping.

Prosecution officials who met here to outline their plans to meet this new attack upon the case against Hauptmann, said they placed little value on the statement. Attorney General David T. Wilentz, chief prosecutor of Hauptmann, has been given a copy of the "confession" which was said to have been unsigned and not in affidavit form, but consisted of questions by Parker and answers by the man.

Late tonight Wilentz went to the Mercer county jail where the man is said to be held. The man once was under observation in a mental institution and served a term for perjury. He was quoted as saying he constructed the kidnap ladder, but found it was too short and used a rear stairway to enter the Lindbergh nursery.

Baby's Skull Fractured.

According to his statement he took the child from the crib, leaving the ransom note, and returned to Trenton in an automobile. He is quoted as saying that he kept the child at his home for three days, but the baby fell out of bed and fractured his skull. He added that he took the body to the Hopewell-Mount Rose road, where the Lindbergh baby's body was found, and that no attempt was made to collect ransom.

After Wilentz questioned the man he announced that the prisoner in a statement had said: "I had nothing to do with this crime." Wilentz said the prisoner "tells a story of most brutal treatment and has marks on his body, some of which he showed us." He further quoted the prisoner as saying: "I have never been on the Lindbergh premises. Nothwithstanding my statement to Parker I made it under duress."

BARBER ATTACKED FOR PRICE CUTTING FACES CONTEMPT

Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court yesterday cited Joseph Iannacco, 44 years old, 4102 Osceola avenue, Norwood township, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for violating a price fixing injunction regulating 4,000 city barber shops. Iannacco owns four barber shops on West Madison street, at 1053, 1151½, 1438, and 1507.

Two gunmen seized Iannacco at the rear of his home Thursday night, shot him in the thigh, and beat him severely. Since then the Morton Grove county highway police have kept a detail there to protect him. Police believe the attack occurred because Iannacco cut prices below those fixed in the injunction—25 cents for a shave and 50 cents for a haircut.

Bailey S. Stanton, attorney for the Master Barbers' association, which sought the contempt citation, charged that Iannacco is trying to start a price war. His bill alleged that Iannacco called a meeting of barbers last Sunday and urged them to reduce prices. Since the injunction was issued last April by Judge John P. McGoorty six barbers have been fined for violating its provisions.

DROPS KIDNAPING CHARGE AGAINST DR. G. E. MORDOFF

A charge of kidnaping against Dr. Gordon E. Mordoff, Wilmette physician, was dismissed yesterday by Police Magistrate John J. Peters of Wilmette at the request of Assistant State's Attorney William Rotchford.

The charge was first brought last month by Mrs. Margaret Mann Fletcher, 4508 North Racine avenue, then Miss Mann, who sought to regain custody of her child, Sonny Boy, claimed by Dr. Mordoff as the son of his late wife. After hearings in the Superior court, Judge Rudolph Desort named Mrs. Fletcher the boy's mother and awarded her custody.

Dr. Mordoff said yesterday he was ready to turn Sonny Boy over to Mrs. Fletcher at 1 o'clock this afternoon, as ordered by Judge Desort. Under court order Dr. Mordoff is to have Sonny Boy on Wednesdays and Sundays. The child was cared for in the Mordoff home from the time it was a few weeks old.

SENATE GETS 'IF' BILL TO SHIELD 'ALIEN RADICALS

Act to Free Criminals from Deportation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—With only minor modifications, the senate committee on immigration and naturalization today reported favorably the Kerr-Coolidge alien deportation bill, which Secretary of Labor Perkins has been trying to get through congress for three years. It will give her and two other members of an interdepartmental board discretionary power to harbor radical and even criminal aliens, otherwise deportable, in this country.

The same bill recently was reported favorably by the house committee, with a vigorous minority dissent. Its proponents hope to have it enacted into law at the present session. Pending action by congress on the measure, Secretary Perkins has been holding up the deportation of some 2,800 aliens mandatorily deportable under existing law, contending that they are "hardship cases."

Radicals and Criminals Shielded.

Some are radicals, some have criminal records, and others entered the country illegally. By "hardship cases" Secretary Perkins means that they would be separated from family ties or put to some other inconvenience.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [Dem., N. C.] recently attacked the action of Secretary Perkins in holding up the deportations and denounced the pending bill as a "sham and a mockery" and a subterfuge to shield all kinds of radicals, criminals, and dependents unlawfully in this country.

Secretary Perkins refused to produce information respecting the 2,800 "hardship" cases until Reynolds introduced a senate resolution, whereupon she permitted him to come over and examine the records.

Another Democrat Joins Fight.

Reynolds today said there was no excuse for keeping any of the aliens in this country—either as public charges or as holders of jobs needed by American workmen—and that he would fight the Kerr-Coolidge bill on the senate floor. Senator Richard B. Russell [Dem., Ga.], who calls it the "if bill," also will aid in the fight.

The bill sets forth the various crimes and conditions of entry for which deportation is mandatory under existing law and then provides for deportation in such cases "if the interdepartmental committee finds that the deportation of the alien is in the public interest." The discretion of the executive committee would be substituted not only for the will of congress but for the decisions of the courts as well.

RED CIRCULARS URGE CHURCHES TO ATTACK KLAN

Hit Democrats in Pleas at Jacksonville, Fla.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 28.—[Special.]—Following a parade of hooded and robed klansmen last night, closing a state meeting of that organization, residents of this city were exhorted today not to permit the Klan to repeat here what it no longer could do in Tampa.

Circulars, signed by "Communist Party, Section 2, District 25," were distributed throughout this city. The circulars urged the people here to invoke the aid of churches, lodges, and labor unions to put down the Klan, and to keep in Tampa the trial of alleged klansmen accused of the flogging of three men, one of whom, Joseph Shoemaker, died. The appeal to the public against the Klan charges the three now on trial and eight others soon to face a court at Tampa all are klansmen.

Attacks Klan, Democrats.

"This year the KKK does not dare to meet in Tampa," the circulars read, "for the people of Tampa have the KKK on trial and demand that it be convicted and disbanded.

"So this year the klan is trying to do in Jacksonville what it can no longer get away with in Tampa. This is a challenge to the people of Jacksonville which must not go unanswered. Get your church, club or union to write or wire the prosecution in Tampa to uncover all the facts in the case, to air all the connections of the defendants with big business, the corrupt Democratic machine and the higher ups and to see to it that the trial remains in Tampa where the people will allow no whitewash."

Dispute Over Jurors.

Tampa, Fla., March 28.—[U. P.]—Judge Robert T. Dewell today excused witnesses in the kidnaping trial of three former policemen until Monday. Frequent clashes between defense and prosecution counsel had made it evident selection of a jury would not be completed at today's session.

While interrogation of veniremen continued "provisionally," Special Prosecutor J. Rex Farrior protested the manner in which Pat Whitaker, chief defense counsel, was framing his questions.

Whitaker asked prospective jurors: "Do you believe the defendants innocent until they are proved guilty?"

Farrior objected to the use of the word "believe," contending "belief or opinion would disqualify a juror."

The name of Norman Thomas, twice Socialist party candidate for President, assumed more importance in the disputes of lawyers than C. A. Brown, John R. Bridges, and C. W. Carlisle, the defendants. The defense has been trying to take the case to another city because of what it calls "a campaign of propaganda and vilification in Tampa."

Illinois Drys Nominate H. W. Reed for Governor

Decatur, Ill., March 28.—(AP)—Harmon W. Reed, a retired Chicago business man, was put forward by the unanimous vote of the Illinois Prohibition party today as its candidate for governor.

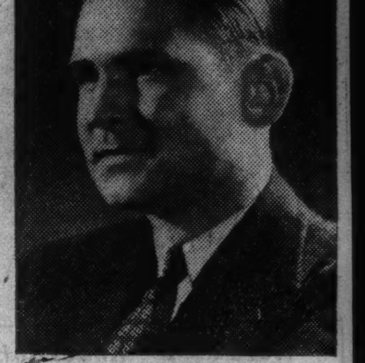
Famous G-Man Corners Dodge Economy
By MELVIN PURVIS, Former Ace of Federal Bureau of Investigation, U. S. Dept. of Justice

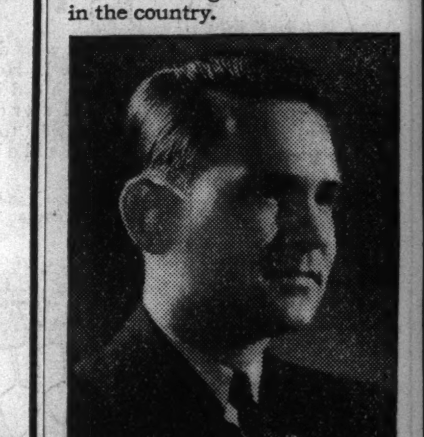
One of the most surprising discoveries I've made . . .



. . . is the way my new 1936 Dodge saves money!

It gives me 19 to 20 miles to the gallon of gas consistently in city driving . . .

. . . and as high as 22 miles out in the country.



At the same time, this Dodge certainly saves on oil. Excepting for regular changes, I've had to add no oil at all.

Thank you, Mr. Purvis! Thousands of Dodge owners in all parts of the country are talking about the amazing economy of this big Dodge "Beauty Winner." Many of them say that Dodge, because of its tremendous savings in gas, oil and upkeep, actually costs less to own than small, lowest-priced, competitive makes.

And that isn't all . . . Dodge gives you safety-steel bodies . . . genuine hydraulic brakes . . . safety-beam headlights . . . the famous Airglide-Ride . . . redistribution of weight evenly to all four wheels . . . Chair-Height seats, and many other features.

And don't forget, Dodge—at new, low prices—now costs only a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars!

STOP RAIDS INTO MONGOLIA NOW, JAPAN IS TOLD

Moscow Claims Tokio Aims to Pick a War.

MOSCOW, March 28.—(AP)—A demand for immediate action to put an end to frontier raids was contained in a note from the government of Outer Mongolia to the Manchukuoan administration. The note was made public here tonight.

The official Russian press intimated a belief that the Japanese are instigating the critical situation along the border of Manchukuo, set up as an independent state by Japan, and the Russian-advised republic of Outer Mongolia.

The Mongolian note was sent to Manchukuo yesterday, after resumption of border fighting which the Mongolians declared resulted from an attempt by Japanese and Manchukuoan troops to occupy a Mongolian frontier post in the Norin lake district.

Surprised at Raids.

Mongolia expressed surprise, in the note, that what it called raiding tactics had been resumed at a moment when the two governments were negotiating for settlement of boundary differences by the medium of a mixed investigating commission.

The purpose of the alleged raids, Outer Mongolia asserted, "cannot be considered as other than to disrupt negotiations and increase tension caused by endless violations of Mongolian territory by Japanese and Manchukuoan forces."

Outer Mongolia has agreed to a mutual assistance pact with soviet Russia, which provides that the huge Red army would be used to repel any invasion of Mongolia by foreign forces. Only one possible foe was indicated—and that is Japan.

Soviet press reports said five Japanese cavalrymen had crossed the deadline of the border between Manchukuo and Russia near Borzinsky, and that only two of them had escaped alive. A soviet border patrol caught them.

Warns Japan.

The Russian government newspaper, Izvestia, declared:

"If Japan really needs peace with soviet Russia, it should not play with the idea that it is sufficient to solve disputes only on the soviet border. It should not instigate the continuation of present conditions on the Mongolian frontier."

Izvestia also claimed that military elements in Japan, hoping to avoid the easing of tension on Russo-Japanese relations, are bringing pressure to bear on the Japanese government.

Izvestia published an official statement, which said:

"The Japanese government understands the necessity for an exact fulfillment of the provisions of the Peiping and Mukden treaties, obliging both sides to respect existing borders.

"The soviet union, for its part, is fulfilling these obligations and its forces not once have violated the Manchukuoan frontier. The border conflicts have been exclusively the result of raids by Japanese and Manchukuoans."

The newspaper blamed the Japanese for delaying the establishment of a mixed commission to investigate the causes of border disputes, saying Russia proposed the setting up of such a commission as long ago as last August.

Evolution of the Bicycle Shown in Loop Exhibit

The history of America on bicycle, from 1816 to 1936, may be seen in the sports department of Marshall Field & Co. all this week in an exhibition of 20 ancient "bicycles." The vehicles range from an 1816 model, which was propelled only when the rider pushed against the ground with his feet, to the streamlined bicycle of today, complete with horn, lights, and speedometer. In between the two extremes are shown a wide variety of "boneshakers"—the high front wheeler of the '90s, tandems, and tricycles.

NAVY CONSIDERS FORTIFICATION OF FAR AWAY GUAM

End of Pact May Alter U. S. Policy.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Close behind the assumption of office by a new naval governor at Guam, the navy high command today studied the question of fortifying that strategic American island station in the far Pacific.

Prompted by the expected termination this year of the treary for maintaining fortifications in the Pacific as they now stand, experts in the navy's planning division have begun preparation of financial and tactical reports concerning the capacity of the island as a potential fortress.

Their conclusions are expected to play an important part in formulation of policy to be pursued by this government after the expiration of the Washington naval treaty next Dec. 31.

Treaty Expires With 1936.

Under that agreement the United States, Great Britain and Japan bound themselves in 1922 to refrain from fortifying certain outlying territories during its life. When the treaty expires this year, due to the action of Japan in denouncing it, each nation will be free to take whatever steps it deems necessary if no new treaty is made.

An important link in the whole question of defense measures in the Pacific, Guam is a relay station on the trans-Atlantic commercial cable between Honolulu and Manila and, more recently, has become a landing stage on the trans-Pacific air route.

It has been under administration of the navy since before the world war and on the island is a naval station, a powerful radio and a complement of approximately 600 sailors and marines and 40 officers. Some 18,000 natives form the main population.

200 Miles from Japanese Isle.

The island is about 1,500 miles east of the Philippines but less than 200 miles southwest of the southernmost island of the Japanese controled Marianne group, said to be undergoing extensive fortifying.

Guam's only defense at present consists of less than half a dozen 5 inch naval guns, mounted before the Washington treaty. Officers say these would be impotent against attack either from sea or air. It has no fueling facilities. The harbor could be made on a par with the world's best.

Officers Fail to Agree.

Opinion within the navy is divided on the practicability of its development as a "Gibraltar of the Pacific."

Others contend the island could be taken by an enemy regardless of any fortifications.

Plan Bold Defense

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Vera Stretz will make a bold bid to escape the electric chair by admitting virtually everything the state has contended in its case of first degree murder.

That the defense will employ this unusual strategy was strongly indicated today as the love slayer of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt strove to recover composure from her first day's ordeal on the witness stand.

The prosecution has intimated Dr. Gebhardt was slain in bed. Vera, it is believed, is ready to admit that. Her story at the resumption of the trial Monday morning is expected to be:

That on the night of last Nov. 12 she went with Gebhardt to his room, in Beekman Towers, 3 Mitchell place, and that they undressed for bed.

That the revolver was in Gebhardt's possession. On Friday she said he had taken the revolver from her months before, when they were merely "dear friends." The details of her testimony to sustain a self-defense plea have not been forecast.

CUBAN PRISON MURDERS LAID TO WARDEN AND AIDS

HAVANA, Cuba, March 28.—(AP)—The prosecutor of the Audience court here presented provisional accusations of murder and homicide today against former Major Pedros A. Castells and 19 prisoners under his command as warden of the Isle of Pines prison. The prosecution asked death penalties.

Castells, who commanded the prison for nearly eight years, was arrested shortly after the flight of former President Gerardo Machado and has been held in Cabana fortress prison since August, 1933.

Revolutionaries charged that he, aided by a number of prisoners with special privileges, had killed or ordered the killing of more than 1,000 prisoners.

CITY AND STATE PLAN ARMY DAY TRIBUTE APRIL 6

Huge Parade to Feature Program Here.

With more than 15,000 members of 100 veterans' and patriotic organizations planning to participate and mayors throughout the state proclaiming the occasion, preparations for the most spectacular observation of Army day, April 6, in the history of Illinois are nearing completion.

Coöperation of military forces in this area with public spirited organizations and hundreds of community leaders from elsewhere in the state in paying respect to achievements of the United States army, is expected to make the commemoration outstanding here. The Chicago Army day committee is headed by Col. Gilbert Fitzpatrick.

Dern Will Review Parade.

Outstanding on the program will be a huge parade downtown beginning at 3 p. m. and proceeding north on Michigan avenue past the public library where it will be reviewed by Secretary of War George H. Dern. An exhibition of aerial maneuvers by the aviation squad of the 33d division will culminate the outdoor exercises.

Special assemblies in observance of the day will be held in city schools and more than 5,000 student members of the junior R. O. T. C. will participate further by marching in the parade.

A dinner in the Palmer house at which the secretary of war will speak before army, navy, government, state, and city officials, will climax the day's activities.

Officers for Parade Listed.

Brig. Gen. S. T. Lawton of the Illinois National Guard will be grand marshal of the parade. Division marshals will include Maj. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. A.; Capt. John E. Reilly, Illinois National Guard; Lieut. Col. D. L. Smith, organized reserve corps; Lieut. Col. W. R. Matheny, patriotic groups; Col. William F. Morrison, Chicago R. O. T. C., and Edward Clanage, American Legion. Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commander of the Sixth corps area, is directing participation of the army.

The regular army, National Guard, reserve officers, American Legion, and junior R. O. T. C. are among groups coöperating with the Military Order of the World War in planning the state tribute.

The annual open house will be observed at Fort Sheridan, according to Brig. Gen. Dana T. Merrill, commandant. Visitors will be received from 9:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

JOHN ERSKINE, WRITER, ASKS MICHIGAN TO PAY $9,854 CRASH DAMAGE

Lansing, Mich., March 28.—(AP)—A bill from John Erskine, author and educator, asking $9,854 for injuries he received Nov. 6 near Brighton, Mich., when the car in which he was riding struck a highway department gravel truck, was considered today by the state's claims committee.

JOHN ERSKINE.

The Columbia university professor's attorneys contend he lost $5,643 through canceled speaking engagements, $3,000 through interruption of his literary output, and that he spent more than $1,000 for hospital and medical services.

EAMES M'VEAGH'S PRIVATE GOODS TO BE AUCTIONED

A set of ivory razors, one for each day of the week, and bearing the monogram "E. MacV." is included in the household furnishings of Eames MacVeagh which will be sold at auction tomorrow at 25 South Wabash avenue.

Only the "Thursday" razor is missing from the lether encased set. MacVeagh made a poverty plea last September in the $2,500 breach of contract suit brought against him by Miss Louise Hagen of New York, mother of his 24 year old son. He has deeded the furnishings of his apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue to his wife, the former Zelle Barthelemy.

Mrs. MacVeagh, in dismantling the apartment, said she and her husband are going to Washington, D. C., to live, where MacVeagh's father, the late Franklin P. MacVeagh, was secretary of the treasury under President Taft. All her silver, crystal, china, and elaborate bric-a-bracs gathered from all over the world are to be sold along with MacVeagh's effects.

Long known as a collector, MacVeagh's home contained articles from every country of the world. Among these are 18 exquisite fans, one with mother of pearl bones, etched in gold; two Venetian Ali Badi, said to be 350 years old; a white and green Hisui jade vase, three Pompeian bronzes, and a 17th century Madonna and Child of terra cotta.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL.

James Nolan, 75 years old, a retired plasterer, became ill in his home at 510 West 46th place yesterday and was taken by the Stockyards police to the county hospital, where he died shortly afterward of a heart attack. Nolan, a widower, is survived by a brother, Michael Nolan.

BUS TOURISTS STRUCK DUMB BY CARLSBAD CAVE

Awed by One of Earth's Great Spectacles.

marked a practical man, looking at the carvings of a river bed that was formed when this part of the world was a shallow extension of the ocean—some 200,000,000 years ago.

To get back to earth, this segment of the mighty bus traveling public was getting mighty tired of "scenery" by the time it reached the middle of the Texas ocean plains. To add to their troubles a duststorm had come up, obscuring the horizon. On the way to Carlsbad they looked with tepid interest upon the vast desert floor. Not a house in sight. A few white faced cattle. "Next tour 91 miles." A storekeeper whose customers had to ride 40 miles. Twisted, dwarf trees and greasewood. Wild verbenas along the roadside and a few white flowers where the desert begins to answer the call of spring.

We came to a place called Red Bluff Dam, a few shacks and a road to nowhere. The Pecos river along here has been impounded at a cost of $3,000,000 and settlers are expected to come in here and make land pay at a cost of $200 an acre.

Too Much Politics and Alkali.

"Too much politics and alkali," was local comment on this. The old cattle town of Eddy, now Carlsbad, shows what irrigation may accomplish in this region, however. Paved, tree-shaded streets, green lawns, alfalfa fields, good stores and hotels. Near here the old Butterfield stage used to run, the gold of the '49er's came this way and the trails of the covered wagons and Indian marauders.

Before this the Indians had it all to themselves. They used to go to worship at the black mouth of the cavern, thinking it the home of devils that must be placated. Before this the "basket makers" lived near the mouth of the cave, long before the time of Christ, and about the time the "Black Sand" man sat by his fire along the banks of the Illinois river.

Before this? Well, we will go into the cave to get an idea of what has been going on in the secret laboratory of nature.

There are persons from 16 states in the group that follows the national park rangers down this long trail out of the sunlight. The head ranger walks with slow, measured tread, like a priest entering a temple. You go two and a half miles of the 32 miles of cavern and chamber before the chief wonders are unfolded. Nobody made any wise cracks about this being a fine place to throw old razor blades.

Cave Discovered by Cowboy.

We passed the entrance to the bats' cavern. It was the flight of bats, coming up like smoke out of the cavern entrance, that led to the discovery of this place, 35 years ago, by Jim White, a cowboy. He explored it for three days, marking his path by torch smudges that still may be seen. Between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 bats live here, flying out at dusk every evening to feed on insects. It is estimated that they bring back 11½ tons of insect meat every night. During the day they hang upside down, and some of them stay that way all winter. Others migrate to return in May.

After two and a half hours we pilgrims came to a great auditorium, where there were seats for thousands. From here on we began to see things. Fossils in limestone, sea shells, snails, pure white cave pearls, berry bushes, a baby hippo, elephants in rows, whales, dragons, fairies, icebergs.

Then we came to a rock that weighs 200,000 tons, that took half an hour to walk around. Most of these forms are living. Nature is not dead, but pulses with force. The flashlight of a ranger placed against a rock lights it with an inner fire.

Drop by Drop Through Ages.

The agency at work here is water. Drop by drop through the ages, these great pillars and spires, these grotesque and delicate plant shapes, have been forming by evaporation. Limestone has been carried in solution and crystalizes as the water evaporates or when its dissolved carbon dioxide gas escapes to the air. This is the explanation for the stalactites and the stalagmites. For the marvelous helictite formations there is no explanation. The colors are iron oxide, mostly tan shades, but tints of rose, green and purple are seen.

We saw the king's palace, glowing in the indirect lighting system. The gleaming white throne, the courtiers, the slave girls, the elephants in their stalls, waiting. Walls of frosted jewels. We passed to the queen's room, a place of vast hanging draperies, glowing with color, delicate frostwork on walls and ceiling, a hidden white chamber, with fairies and flowers. Nearby was a green lake bathroom, with clear water nine feet deep. The rooms are separated by curtains and partitions of gleaming onyx, with a "keyhole" walk connecting them. Next is the papoose's chamber, a little white room set in a thicket of helictite.

By this time the crowd is hungry and tired and awed beyond words. They are led into a lunchroom where something of normality appears. Here is a cafeteria counter, big coffee urn, platters of lunch and tables to sit at. The folks think they have seen enough, but after lunch and rest they are led to the big room and an experience of a lifetime. In cold figures the room is 4,000 feet long and 625 feet wide. The party took the trail here and come upon a polar scene with fields of ice. We see under water lily pads in stone, flocks of solemn penguins, a northern forest in winter, shrines with worshipers in the walls, great cathedrals.

Pass Bottomless Pit Mouth.

We pass by the mouth of the black and "bottomless pit" and come at last to the hall of giants and the rock of ages. The chief giant is a stalagmite of pillar sixty two feet high sixteen feet in diameter.

Now when it is figured that this rock was formed at the rate of one cubic inch every 100 years, something of the nature of evolutionary process begins to dawn. One becomes conscious in this presence of the meaning of 60,000,000 years, and of something that approaches thought in the processes of nature.

A drop at a time, an inch in a hundred years, ceaseless and irresistible. This is how nature works. Can it be that human history is to be measured for results by some such time clock? "A thousand years are but a day in thy sight," the psalmist said.

The rock of ages is 10,000,000 years younger, but has decorations of flowing white, and it is here that the chief priest leads his flock, removes his hat and explains what is going to happen. Man has done something here that nature forgot. That is, a lighting system of 2,000 candle power.

Divided Into 24 Sections.

"You will all sit still on these rocks," the ranger says, "while we give you a little demonstration. The lighting is divided into 24 sections. For thirty seconds you will sit in intense darkness in front of this rock which is 50 million years old. Then the first light will come on a quarter of a mile away. Do not be afraid. We hope you will carry something away from here that you will never forget."

The voice ceased and the room was cast into darkness by the pressing of a button. Complete and overwhelming darkness with 700 feet of rock between you and the sunlight. Complete silence.

Men's Voices Singing Softly.

Then from some far-off chamber came the sound of music. It was men's voices singing softly:

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
"Let me hide myself in thee."

As the last line of the verse was sung:

"Save from wrath and make me pure,"

A switch clicked and a far-off light appeared, lighting one gleaming corridor and spreading softly over the surface of the great rock.

"Could my tears forever flow," came with slightly increasing volume from the invisible choir.

"Simply to thy cross I cling," was in swelling melody, and a nearer light was struck, bringing out the shadows in new areas.

"While I draw this fleeting breath,
"When my eyes shall close in death,
"When I rise to worlds unknown,
"And behold thee on thy throne,
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
"Let me hide myself in thee."

At the last verse the song rising higher and higher, the full indirect flood of light was turned upon the rock. The simple service was over, divine in its surroundings and in its conception. Some heads were still bowed. There were traces of tears and suspicious nose-blowing.

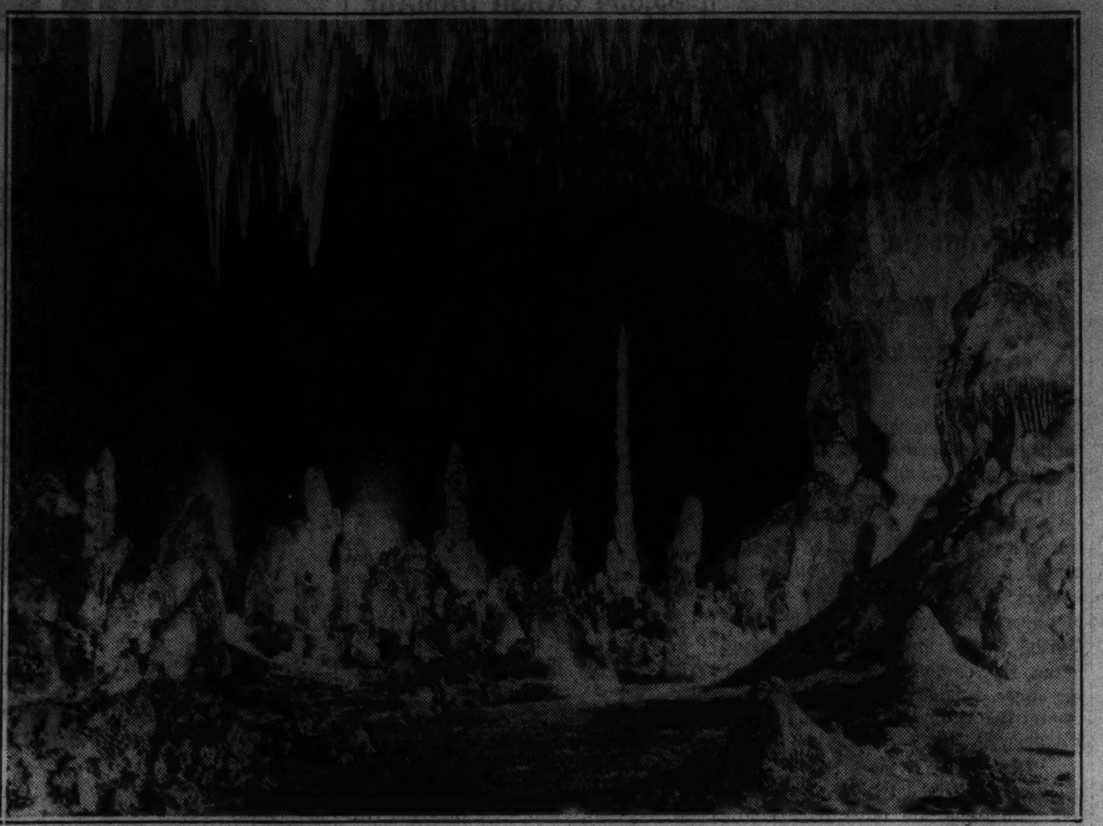
Across Polar Fields and Glaciers.

A drop of water fell somewhere. Caught up by the sun from some morning meadow, swept into a cloud and returned to earth, it had fallen above here and had come down to do its work. Another drop and the course of the United States in human history will have been decided. A few more drops and the next European war will be over. That is the lesson of the cave—that and the Rock of Ages.

After this there was a trek back to the lunch across polar fields and glaciers with yawning crevasses and here the party was divided. Some wanted to walk the five miles back. The minority had had plenty.

They decided to go up by elevator and were reassured that the world still was here when they were put into a cage and sent up 700 feet in 63 seconds. The sunlight and the mesa and the cactus plants looked good. A few minutes later the folks were assembled at White's camp, waiting for a bus and listening to some one singing "Polly Wolly Doodle All the Day" on the radio and getting frightened at a stuffed rattlesnake. It was a relief. Both heights and depths are dangerous to earthbound mentality. They said hardly a word all the way to El Paso.

NATURE'S MASTERPIECE SILENCES CHATTER



Nonchalant, talkative bus passengers en route to California were indifferent about proposal to view Carlsbad cavern in New Mexico, but stood in awe when they sighted its stalagmites and stalactites.

CHURCH BOMBED IN MEXICO; EIGHT CHILDREN HURT

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, March 28.—(AP)— Unidentified bombers today threw explosives, apparently home-made dynamite bombs, into a church in the town of Tepetates, during religious services. The bombs blew off one leg of a nine year old boy and burned seven other children.

Seize 39 Bomb Suspects.

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—(AP)— Thirty-nine men were arrested today on suspicion of participating in the bombing of a communist meeting last night in the Hidalgo theater.

The meeting broke up in panic after the bomb was thrown. One youth was cut by flying glass, but no other injuries were reported. A second bomb, found in the theater, exploded after being taken to police headquarters, causing minor damage.

Mayor Signs Council Order for South Ashland Bridge

A city council order to the department of public works to contract for building a temporary bridge at Ashland avenue and the south branch of the Chicago river was signed yesterday by Mayor Kelly. The council order was passed last Wednesday. Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said every effort would be made to complete all legal obstacles by April 10, the deadline set by the government on which construction must begin or a federal Public Works administration grant of $356,000 for a permanent bridge will be rescinded. The contract for a temporary bridge will go to the Overland Construction company, which entered the low bid of $113,231.

DIG UP 11 SKELETONS IN MOSCOW; SOUVENIRS OF IVAN THE TERRIBLE

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, March 28.—A grisly memento of the blood stained history of Red Square in the days of Ivan the Terrible and other czars famed for their cruelty was unearthed today by subway workers.

Eleven skeletons were unearthed, eight of them standing upright and the others lying over them in a well fifty feet under the old orthodox monastery on a side street just off the square. The well was filled with sand and the position of the skeletons and other circumstances indicated they were persons who had been buried alive.

The skeletons were so old they crumbled to dust at the slightest touch. This, together with the depth underground at which the discovery was made, showed they had been there several centuries. Archeologists and historians will study them in an attempt to identify the period.

Wed 44 Years, Black Eye Is 'Last Straw'; Wife Sues

After 44 years of married life, Mrs. Marie Sick, 69 years old, filed suit for divorce yesterday in Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan against Gus Sick, 71 years old, a farmer who lives on Tower lake, near Wauconda. Mrs. Sick alleged that a black eye her husband gave her Sunday was the "last straw of his cruelty."

Organist Asks Divorce; Charges Cruelty by Wife

Robert Herrick, an organist, filed a divorce suit yesterday on the ground of cruelty against Aida Salvi Herrick, 4875 Magnolia avenue.

LOW FIXED MEDICAL AND SURGICAL FEES

SINCE the horse and buggy days, medical practice has undergone many changes. With these advancements has come, naturally, an increase in medical costs. The average man finds himself less able today to meet medical expense than in former years.

The Civic Medical Center comprises a group of competent specialists, banded together for the purpose of reducing the high cost of medical, surgical and hospital care, thereby aiding families of average means.

Under one roof may be found specialists representing such departments as general medicine; eye, ear, nose and throat; children's diseases; maternity care; urology; major and minor surgery; skin; rectal diseases.

You will welcome the close, sympathetic relationship which each physician maintains with his patients.

A thorough examination in any department, including laboratory tests, $3.00. Ordinary subsequent treatments, $1.00. All X-Rays at low cost. Full mouth X-Ray, $1.50.

It is Folly . . . to Hope for More than you Pay for

For the man who desires to pay less for his car than the cost of La Salle, we have no advice to offer. There are many good and worthy cars in the price range below La Salle. But to the man who wants and prefers the advantages that only a fine car can give—we have a sincere word of warning: Quality gives way to Price—and necessarily so—when you move to the lower ranges. It is folly to hope for more than you pay for! To get La Salle style, quality and performance, you must buy a La Salle. There is no substitute.

HOTEL PEARSON

Traditionally fine!

A coat of paint cannot change the nameplate of a motor car. Nor can a fancy crest give prestige and distinction to a hotel.

Tradition—actually won recognition—has given Hotel Pearson its noteworthy place. It has become the home of cultured Chicagoans—men and women of social and business importance.

Now, its spacious, sunny apartments assume a new individuality through the artistic genius of an outstanding interior architect.

And today, more than ever before, living at Hotel Pearson reaches obtainable heights—and appeals to those who seek and demand the very best.

LEARN HUMAN ELECTRIC WAVES CARRY THOUGHT

Science Finds How Brain Impressions Arrive.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.] — Consciousness is electrical. That is the announcement made at today's session of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. Sensory impressions of the conscious person or animal travel by measurable electric impulses from the nerves to the brain. During unconsciousness the electrical impulses travel from the brain to the nerve ends.

Thus more evidence has been obtained to sustain the theories that man and the beast are electro-chemical devices as well as living organisms—that life and thought probably are manifestations of electrical energy.

Scientists of the physiology department at the University of Illinois sat and watched the stream of consciousness of an animal as it ebbed and flowed. They made minute measurements of the consciousness waves.

Illinois Scientists' Discovery.

The report on all this was presented by Dr. W. E. Burge, Dr. G. C. Wickwire, Dr. O. S. Orth, Dr. H. W. Neild, and Dr. W. P. Elhardt.

When the animal was conscious, a tiny electrical current, two to three millionths of an ampere, was observed in a delicate galvanometer to flow from the nerve ends to the brain cortex.

When the animal was in a state of deep unconsciousness, under ether, the tiny current was seen in the galvanometer to be flowing in the reverse direction, from the brain to the nerve ends.

The scientists reported success in being able to control at will the direction of the flow of the "stream of consciousness." Each time they placed the animal under anæsthesia the stream began flowing from the brain to the nerve ends. When the effect of the anaesthesia wore off the current was seen to reverse itself gradually until, when complete consciousness was regained, it was flowing in the opposite direction from nerve ends to the brain.

Brain Injury and Diabetes.

Injury to inner brain tissues was blamed for a form of diabetes which brings an abnormal excretion of fluids from body cells.

Dr. S. W. Ranson of Northwestern university medical school presented the theory. He said the inner brain tissues apparently controlled some activities of the pituitary gland.

His findings were announced by Dr. Ranson in a symposium on water balance in the human body, attended by physiologists, biological chemists, pharmacologists, and pathologists which closed the annual joint meeting of their four societies.

The disease, known as "diabetes insipidus," is characterized by disturbance of the water balance of the body as shown by abnormal thirst and at the same time abnormal excretion, Dr. Ranson explained.

In experiments with monkeys and cats the Northwestern university scientist and his assistants found that follows destruction of a tiny area in the inner brain which contains the "supra-optic nuclei," a terminal area of a group of nerve fibers.

This nuclei, they found, apparently acts as a control center governing secretion of pitressin. a hormone of the pituitary gland, and when injury occurs either to the nuclei, or the fibers running from it, that part of the pituitary secreting pitressin degenerates.

Talks of Abnormal Thirst.

Thus it appears, Dr. Ranson said, that "this particular part of the brain sends impulses to the posterior pituitary which responds to them by a secretion which restrains the water output of the organism" and when injury occurs this inhibition is removed.

A reason why abnormal thirst occurs in connection with abnormal excretion was furnished in the symposium by Dr. Magnus I. Gregersen of the University of Maryland.

Lowering of the water supply of the body, he said, is reflected quickly in the lowering of the total plasma, or liquid content, of the blood. This in turn causes a decrease in the secretion of saliva in the mouth and thirst naturally results. In two minutes' running three persons showed losses of as much as 23 per cent of the blood plasma.

MR. AND MRS. FREDDIE RICH.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]— In a 2 a. m. elopement to Armonk, N. Y., Freddie Rich, musical director of the Columbia Broadcasting system, and Miss Eula Marlene Mitchell were married by Justice of the Peace Julius A. Raven. The couple aroused Town Clerk John Crowley from bed to issue a license.

The bride gave her age as "over 21" and said she lived at 425 Surf street, Chicago. She said it was her first marriage. Rich gave his age as 38 and said the marriage was his second.

The couple met last July while on a trip to Europe. The marriage was the culmination of an airplane flight made last week to Chicago by Mr. Rich.

They went to New York immediately after the ceremony. Rich said he and his bride would be unable to leave on a honeymoon until June, because of his current contract. They plan a two months' trip to Buenos Aires.

SURGERY SAVES BOY WITH SKULL EXPOSING BRAIN

New York, March 28.—[Special.]— Ten year old Johnny Neill, whose skull was broken open by a hit and run automobile driver on Dec. 11, walked out of Bellevue hospital today with his mother, Mrs. Angela Neill, a living testament to the miracles of modern surgery.

Johnny had been playing near his home when he was injured. The hit and run driver left him lying unconscious on the street, his brain exposed. Rushed to a hospital, doctors expected him to live only a few hours.

For weeks he lay strapped to a bed. A slow drip of a mild form of dakin solution trickled constantly through a tube to his exposed brain, to prevent infection.

On March 5 this so-called "irrigation" was ended. Seven days later Johnny was riding around the hospital in a wheel chair.

A brain covering has formed, but the opening in the lad's skull remains. Doctors believe that within a few years Johnny will have "manufactured" new bone and the opening will be closed.

TRAIN CRASHES INTO BUS; EIGHT DIE; 5 INJURED

Byron, Ga., March 28.—(AP)—A fast pilot train of the Central Georgia railroad crashed into a bus at a crossing in the business section here tonight killing eight persons and injuring five others.

Dr. James B. Kay, who treated the injured before they were taken to a hospital at Macon, 20 miles northeast of here, said apparently seven bodies were taken from the wreckage and another victim died at Macon.

The physician said the best information was that one white woman, a white man, two colored men, three colored women, and a child were killed.

The bus had just made a stop at the depot at Byron and started across the railway crossing fifty feet away when the train struck it, carrying the wreckage several hundred yards down the track.

Twisted steel, glass, and wreckage hampered the work of rescuers.

6 INJURED WHEN TROLLEY RAMS INTO FIRE TRUCK

30 Passengers on Street Car Shaken.

Six persons were injured last night, one critically, when a south bound Wentworth street car rammed into the side of a fire truck of hook and ladder company No. 11 at 33d street and Wentworth avenue. Thirty passengers on the street car were shaken.

The fire truck was speeding to what turned out to be a minor blaze at the intersection when the trolley crashed into it.

Capt. Thomas Shinnick, 37 years old, 8033 Yale avenue, in command of the truck, was the most seriously injured. He was thrown to the street and suffered a possible skull fracture and internal injuries. Maurice Sullivan, 46 years old, of 648 West 87th street, the driver, and Walter Hunter, 48 years old, 1400 Rosemont avenue, motorman of the street car, were severely bruised. These three were taken to Mercy hospital.

Three women passengers on the street car were taken to People's hospital for minor injuries. They are: Mrs. Mabel Digiacomo, 25 years old, 264 West 22d street; Mrs. Loretta Spalle, 31 years old, 254 Alexander street, and Mrs. Violet Lewis, 21 years old, 825 East 52d street.

John Fernberg, 59 years old, 3315 Osgood street, a chauffeur, who was struck by an automobile late last night in front of 3243 Sheffield avenue, died in the John B. Murphy hospital early this morning. Peter Comenick, 21, of 2624 Bosworth avenue, a grocer's clerk, was held by the Town Hall police.

Mrs. Lucille Welsher, 41 years old, 210 East 50th street, colored, died yesterday in the County hospital from injuries incurred last Monday night when she was struck at East 47th and South State streets by an automobile driven by George Kopp, 23 years old, 1927 South May street.

Kopp was not held.

The coroner's office reported 186 deaths from automobile accidents within the city limits from Jan. 1 to 4 p. m. yesterday and 3,411 persons injured. In the same period 222 persons were killed in Cook county.

The convention by unanimous vote adopted a resolution attacking the Democratic national administration.

NEW YORK ANTI-NOISE CAMPAIGN MAY HAVE LEGAL TEETH PUT IN IT

New York, March 28.—(AP)—New York City's voluntary anti-noise campaign, now six months old, tonight headed toward a status of legal compulsion.

Ald. Murray Stand disclosed he will introduce a comprehensive noise abatement ordinance to the board of aldermen Tuesday, to give police effective enforcement powers in curbing automobile horns, radios, steam whistles, vehicle loading noises, peddlers' cries, loud speakers and "noises caused by animals."

Stand's ordinance proposes fining first offenders $1; second offenders within one year, $2; third offenders in the same period, $4; fourth offenders, $10. Inability to pay fines would bring imprisonment.

Stand explained that complaints about unnecessary noise have mounted but that there is no law under which the offenders may be prosecuted.

Mayor F. H. La Guardia promised that the city's employés who remove garbage and ashes will be among the first to bow to the legal dicta, if the ordinance is adopted.

IT'S THE ONLY ONE OF "ALL THREE" WITH ALL THESE ECONOMY FEATURES

EQUAL PRESSURE ALL WHEELS EQUAL

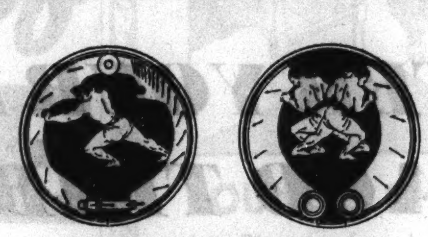
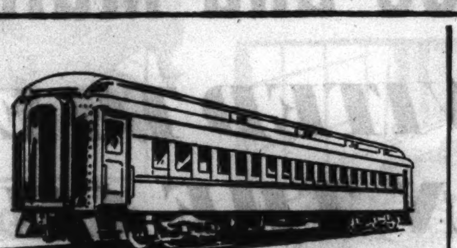
HYDRAULIC BRAKES
The safest brakes made...self-equalizing...always equalized...sure, quick, even-acting.

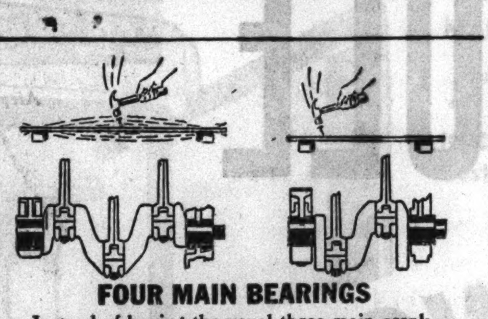


DOUBLE-ACTION BRAKES
Plymouth's 100% Hydraulic brakes do not depend upon jerky, "wrapping" action of the wheels (as in left-hand picture)...but exert equal braking pressure through each brake shoe of each wheel (see right, above). Smooth, sure stops!

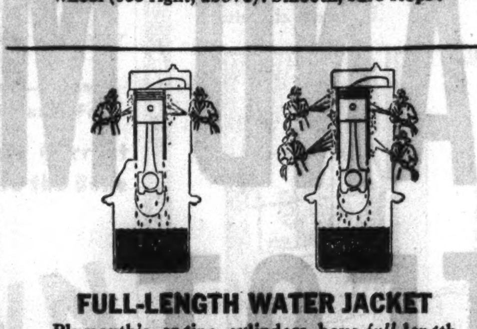


SAFETY-STEEL BODY
Plymouth's body is Safety-Steel like a modern railroad coach. And the beautiful body is bolted horizontally and vertically to car frame...in a unit of tremendous strength. It's the safest construction...and also the quietest.

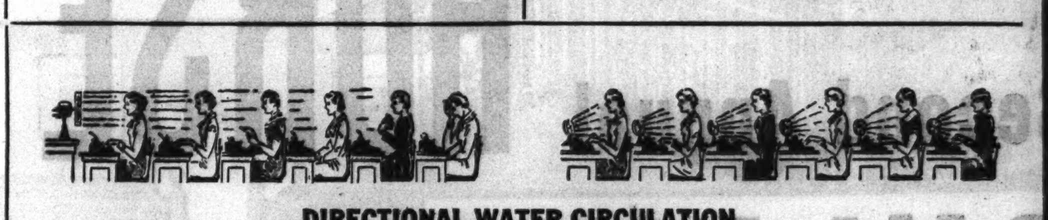
PATENTED FLOATING POWER
A book held as at left illustrates top-heaviness of ordinary engine mounting...which transmits engine vibrations. Picture at right shows how patented Floating Power engine mountings hold engine in balance...dissipating vibration. Plymouth is the only one of "All Three" that has this!



FOUR MAIN BEARINGS
Instead of having the usual three main crankshaft bearings, Plymouth has four. Thus, every Plymouth piston stroke has the support of two big bearings...for smoother operation, longer life. (Like driving a nail in a board solidly supported, or in a board that's not supported.)



FULL-LENGTH WATER JACKET
Plymouth's engine cylinders have full-length water jackets...water all around each cylinder ...instead of the usual half-length jackets. Obviously this means better cooling...and it is one important reason for Plymouth's sensational performance, economy and long life.



DIRECTIONAL WATER CIRCULATION
In the picture above, the girls farthest from the fan aren't getting much benefit of the cooling breeze... illustrating the old-type engine cooling system. Now compare the picture at the right...which illustrates how Plymouth's directional circulation forces cool water at high velocity to all exhaust valve assemblies (which are among the hottest spots in an engine). This improved circulation, combined with full-length water jackets, lowers temperature of crankcase oil as much as 50 degrees—which tremendously improves lubricating efficiency, and also cuts down oil consumption. Naturally, Plymouth owners report phenomenally low oil consumption...and their records also show 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gasoline! And calibrated ignition...another great engineering achievement...is largely responsible for this amazing gas mileage. Plymouth's great six-cylinder engine gets full power from every drop of fuel.

Plymouth is Priced with the Lowest... but it's packed with EXTRA-VALUE FEATURES!

Don't take our Word for it... Compare Value... Drive "All Three" Low-priced Cars... then Decide!

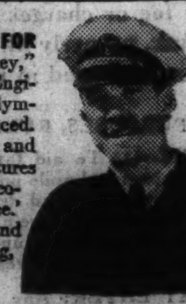
USE THAT LIST of features when you compare "All Three"! You'll find Plymouth is priced within $10 to $15 of the Other Two (actual list prices, four-door sedans, F.O.B. main factory)...and for that small difference Plymouth gives you all this extra value... extra economy ... extra safety.

But that's only part of the story. Get out on the road and drive "All Three." Find out for yourself how much more room Plymouth has. How easily it handles, with no road shock in steering. See how smoothly it takes rough roads—the back seat as comfortable as the front! Watch your gas—and see why Plymouth owners report 18 to 24 miles per gallon!

See how swiftly, smoothly and straight ahead you stop with Plymouth's 100% Hydraulic brakes!—and remember that Plymouth is the only one of "All Three" that gives you 100% Hydraulic brakes and Safety-Steel body... it's the world's safest car in the low-price field today!

Be fair to yourself... don't buy blindfolded! Look at "All Three." Then decide!

Don't buy any car until you drive this beautiful, new Plymouth and compare it ...on features and price... with the others! Telephone or call on any Chrysler, Dodge or De Soto dealer.



"IT'S MORE VALUE FOR about the same money," says ship's Chief Engineer Beattie. "And Plymouth's more advanced. Simpler engineering and many long-life features make it the most economical of 'All Three.' Greater economy and safety sold me a big, new Plymouth."

Farmers! Horse and Mule Owners Everywhere!

YOU ARE INVITED TO ENTER YOUR DRAFT ANIMALS IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S

Second Annual HORSE AND MULE PULLING CONTEST

To be held June 13, 1936, at the Tribune Experimental Farm near Wheaton, Illinois

$500.00 IN CASH PRIZES TO WINNERS! --- NO CHARGES OR ENTRY FEES!

FARMERS! Owners of horses and mules everywhere! On Saturday, June 13, 1936, the Chicago Tribune, in co-operation with the Horse and Mule Association of America, and the University of Illinois, will conduct its second annual Horse and Mule Pulling Contest at the Chicago Tribune Experimental Farm, two miles west of Wheaton, Illinois.

A total of $500.00 in cash prices will be paid to the winners by the Chicago Tribune.

Any owner of a pair of horses or mules weighing more than 2,600 pounds and under 3,300 pounds is eligible to enter one or more teams. You pay nothing. There is no entry fee or charges of any kind. Just send in the entry blank, properly filled out. Read the complete details below and send in the entry blank today.

PURPOSES, RULES AND REGULATIONS

PURPOSES—(1) To aid farmers in recognizing and developing economical horse and mule power through better breeding, feeding, conditioning, training, and driving; (2) To demonstrate the value of proper harnessing, shoeing, and efficient driving, and (3) To foster good will and better understanding between the city and the country—one of the objectives of the Tribune Experimental Farms.

WHO MAY ENTER: Any owner of a pair of horses or mules weighing more than 2,600 pounds and under 3,300 pounds is eligible to compete. There is no charge or entry fee. Any owner may enter as many such teams as he wishes.

HOW TO ENTER: Fill in the entry blank on this page and mail it to the Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

CLOSING DATE: All entries must bear a postmark dated not later than midnight of June 6, 1936.

HOW TEAMS WILL BE TESTED: Teams will be hitched to a doubletree, similar to a hitch on a plow. The pull will be measured by a Dynamometer, a scientific apparatus which records the load while the team moves continuously forward. The distance which the load must be moved in one continuous pull will be 27½ feet.

FEED: Contestants will provide feed for their teams.

COURSE: The pulls will be made over a turf course, 50x200 feet, roped off for the exclusive use of contestants.

JUDGING: The Chicago Tribune will appoint a committee of three judges well qualified by experience to judge pulling contests. Judges will be selected shortly before the day of competition. Contestants agree to accept all decisions of the committee as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be given to tying contestants.

REGULATIONS: The competition will be governed by pulling contest regulations of the Horse and Mule Association of America, as follows:

Animals must be entered by their owners.

Teams may be driven by the owner or by any driver designated by the owner. Each driver shall continue from start to finish, unless excused by the judges.

Each animal will be weighed at the Tribune farm separately, without harness, except halter or bridle.

Any team from which water or feed has been withheld to decrease weight will be disqualified.

Horses—stallion, mare or gelding, purebred, grade or unknown, any age, are eligible.

Mules—any age, either sex, are eligible.

A team will be given three trials, if necessary, to move any load a full distance.

The official pull is a continuous forward movement over a distance of 27½ feet.

The harness, tugs and the cable to the dynamometer must be reasonably tight when the pull starts. Lunging will not be permitted.

Not more than one man shall be permitted to stand at the heads of animals while they are being hitched. He may lead the horses or mules slightly forward until the tugs and cable are taut, but must step clear before the start.

If the animals lunge, the judges shall stop them and order a new start, but the pull shall not be counted as one of the three official trials. If a team persists in lunging, the judges, after a reasonable time, may disqualify them from further competition.

Contestants will be assigned numbers and must be ready to come forward when their numbers are called.

The judges shall determine the load for the first test (1,500 lbs. tractive pull is the ordinary load). After the initial load, the judges may increase the test load in multiples of 25 pounds, as the judges may decide.

$500.00 IN CASH PRIZES!

1st prize	$100
2nd prize	75
3rd prize	50
4th prize	40
5th prize	35
Next 10 prizes, $20 each	200
TOTAL PRIZES	$500

The driver must ride on the seat provided, and lines must be kept taut while team is pulling.

Whipping and shouting are prohibited, but the judges will use their discretion in interpreting shouting. Drivers or helpers will not be permitted to carry whips while the team is pulling.

Any pull interfered with from the sidelines will be declared void and may be taken over.

Contestants must provide harness, which may be of any type of harness or collar, except that weighted collars or special weights of any kind on any part of the animal are prohibited. Bandages, boots or artificial aids of any kind will not be permitted on any animal while pulling.

Hitching with cross tugs is prohibited. Bridles may be of any type, but no change may be made after the contest starts.

SPELLERS GET A WORD RIGHT; JUDGES WRONG

Error Goes Unchallenged on Graders' List.

The word "inadvertently" was inadvertently misspelled as "inadvertantly" on the judges' lists in the championship Cook county school spelling match yesterday. All of the finalists in the contest spelled the word correctly, but they were marked up with an error by the judges, who followed the erroneous spelling on their list.

The judges' error made no difference in the relative ratings of the contestants, since they all knew how ing words taken from current newspapers:

Franklin Park Girl Wins.

Mary Bottorff, 13 years old, 2925 Calwagner boulevard, Franklin Park, of the Franklin Park grammar school, won first place among the 85 contestants from elementary schools of county townships. Her only misspelled word, after it was found that she, like the others, had been right on "inadvertently," was "coercion," which she wrote "coersion."

Frieda M. Mueller, 13 years old, 21 South 6th avenue, La Grange, of St. John's Lutheran school there, won second place. Raymond Miller, 13 years old, 8533 River Grove avenue, River Grove, of the River Grove public school, was third.

Marcella Johnson, 13 years old, of the Wheeling school, won fourth place, and Viola Nelson, 13 years old, of the Norwood Park school, and Virginia Bill, 12 years old, of the Northbrook school, tied for fifth place.

Medals and school banners were presented to the winners by Mr. Puffer in Mayor Kelly's office. Mary Bottorff, the champion, gave more credit to a "feeling" for words than to study for her proficiency.

"It runs in the family," she said. "My father and aunt were expert spellers."

TWO FACE DYER ACT CHARGE.

Tuscola, Ill., March 28.—(AP)—Harry Brown and Alex Toder, both of International Falls, Minn., who were brought back here from Kentucky on a charge of having stolen an auto, were turned over today to federal officers and placed in jail at Danville, Ill., charged with violating the Dyer act.

U. S. ORDER BARS AIR RIDERS FROM PILOTS' CABINS

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Operators of scheduled interstate air lines were given strict order by the bureau of air commerce today to instruct their pilots to remain constantly at the controls while in flight and to bar passengers from the pilot's cabin.

The new regulation was issued as a direct result of the board's inquiry into the Arkansas crash of the American Airlines plane "The Southerner," in which seventeen persons lost their lives.

The order strengthened the factually unsupported belief of some bureau officials that the catastrophe may have resulted from a passenger-pilot struggle, a belief which prompted the following passage in the official report of the crash.

"It is possible that a passenger entered the pilot's compartment and incapacitated the pilot, or maliciously interfered with the controls. This, however, is not substantiated by any of the available evidence."

U. S. COLLECTORS ASSAIL SPECIAL COINS 'RACKET'

Charge Speculators Are Given a "Corner."

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[U. P.]—A charge that congress is lending itself to racketeering was made tonight as thousands of coin collectors protested against legislation which they claim is throwing them into the hands of speculators.

The situation promised to develop into one comparable with the philatelists' tilt with Postmaster General James A. Farley over special stamp issues.

The senate yesterday passed six bills authorzing issuance of commemorative 50 cent pieces in celebration of local historical events. The action intensified a feeling which has disturbed coin collectors for a year.

The attitude of the nation's 12,000 collectors was shown in a letter forwarded to Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, from Frank L. Weil of New York. Weil charged that a practice has developed "of issuing a very limited number and of permitting the entire issue [of each commemorative coin] to fall into the hands of a speculator who promptly asks exorbitant prices.

"There recently was issued a Kentucky coin," Weil wrote, "the entire issue of which, I am advised, was permitted to be bought by one man. The coin originally was intended for sale at about $1. I am told it now is offered by the man who bought up the issue at $75 to $100 per coin. The party who buys the coins from the treasury pays only face value.

"The result is that somebody reaps an unjust profit, and with great quantities of commemorative coins coming out it very easily become another way of distributing a political plum."

Weil said the coin collectors were "infuriated" and coin dealers "up in arms."

Another collector, A. C. Roessler of East Orange, N. J., wrote that "congress just loaned itself to these racketeers."

The commemorative coins authorized by the senate were for the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Swedes in Delaware, the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of Bridgeport, Conn.; the Cleveland Centennial celebration, the 100th anniversary of the statehood of Wisconsin, the 250th anniversary of New Rochelle, N. Y., and the 300th anniversary of Long Island, N. Y.

In each case the bill authorized the issuance of the coin to one official.

5,200 Suits Go in Three-Day Sale at Wieboldt's

Chicago, April 15—One of the biggest three-day sales of men's clothing at a single price staged here in a long time has just been completed by the Wieboldt Stores. This chain of outlying department stores is understood to have sold approximately 5,200 suits in its three-day event. The price was the lowest offered by Wieboldt's in some years, and one of the few under $15 clothing events here this season. Another feature was that customers were given the privilege of a 10-payment plan in purchasing the clothing. Under the plan the down payment necessary was only $1, and Wieboldt's stressed that no carrying charge was being made.

SPRING and YOU

LET US HELP YOU MAKE IT THE SMARTEST ONE OF YOUR LIFE!

Stevens predicts astounding popularity for navy, the becoming, the practical, the always wearable. Navy, not by itself alone, but in contrast to and subtly complemented by fresh, distinctive Spring colors, such as crushed berry and new blue!

This is Spring's thrilling colorful story! The contrast must be well done as Stevens has done it. Stevens crushed-berry and Stevens new blue blend perfectly with Stevens navy!

The Spring silhouette is thrilling, too! Here is a fashion women are anxious to get into! It brings a smile, a chuckle of delight because it has the lightness and gaiety of Spring. Call it what you will . . . Gibson Girl flash-back, Margot influence . . . you still have the soft, broad shoulders, the wasp effect waist, even the swishing petticoat.

Stevens, during the dark, past years, has stuck to its self-appointed task of bringing you individual styles, carefully and painstakingly selected at prices as low as possible for quality.

This page tells that story and it tells the story of our entire stock. Not a garment here is high priced, yet each is exceptionally high class. Each is new in style, beautiful in workmanship. Colors and fabrics have been chosen only after many rejections!

Each of these can be combined with another fashion sketched here or with something in our spirited, complete stocks. From entrance to eaves, we're ready for you! Let us help to make your Easter a success!

TRIBUNE'S HORSE PULLING TEST TO BE HELD JUNE 13

Four Footed Athletes to Compete for $500.

[Additional details of the Chicago Tribune Horse and Mule Pulling contest will be found on page 14, part 1, together with blank to be used by farm and city team owners in entering the competition.]

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

THE TRIBUNE announces today its second annual Horse and Mule Pulling contest to be held in picnickers' grove on the Tribune Experimental farm, two miles west and one mile south of Wheaton, Ill., on Saturday, June 13. Fifteen cash prizes totaling $500 will be paid by this newspaper to the winners. Any farmer or city team owner may compete free of charge with pairs of horses, mules, or combinations of horses and mules weighing more than 2,600 pounds and under 3,300 pounds.

The contest rules have been simplified so that team owners will all compete in the same class instead of having two separate classes, heavy and light, as was the case in the 1935 competition. This makes it possible to practically double individual prizes. Awards this year will range from $100 to $20.

Most Horses on Farms.

The change in the prize list was suggested by Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, who has charge of the technical details of the contest. He says that the vast majority of horses and mules, probably 90 per cent, are medium sized farm chunks standing from 15 to 16½ hands high, and weighing under 1,650 pounds per animal, in working flesh. More than 95 per cent of all horses and mules now in use in the United States are employed on farms, plantations, and ranches.

The announcement is made more than two months in advance of the contest to allow contestants plenty of time to train their teams.

THE TRIBUNE is encouraged to make the horse and mule pulling contest an annual event because last year farmers found it to be a valuable animal athletic project and city people discovered in it a new and thrilling sport. More than 8,000 attended the 1935 competition. Owners of thirty-one teams from six states competed in the first contest.

Contests Purposes.

The principal purposes of the contest are:

1. To aid farmers and city team owners in recognizing and developing economic horse and mule power through better breeding, feeding, conditioning, training, and driving.
2. To demonstrate the value of proper harnessing, shoeing and efficient driving.
3. To encourage good horsemanship.
4. To assist in building good will and to aid in a better understanding between city and country, one of the objectives of the Tribune Experimental farms—one near Wheaton, Ill., and the other near Yorkville, Ill.

The contest will be conducted under the rules and regulations of the Horse and Mule Association of America. The pulling power of the competing animals will be accurately and scientifically measured by a dynamometer, a mechanical apparatus owned by the University of Illinois. E. T. Robbins of the university will be in charge of the machine.

Natural Amphitheater.

The floor of a valley with green hillsides forming a natural amphitheater at the Wheaton farm will be used again, furnishing an ideal place for the contest. The pulls will be made on a heavily sodded course, 50 by 200 feet. Each team competing will be hitched to a doubletree, similar to a hitch on a plow, and must move the load 27½ feet in one continuous pull.

The contest will be free to the contestants and to the public. All team owners need to do to enter and compete for the $500 in prizes is to fill out the coupon or entry blank, appearing elsewhere in this issue, and mail it to the agricultural editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. There is no limit to the number of teams that may be entered by an individual. The entry blank must be mailed not later than June 6, one week before the opening of the contest. Upon receipt of the entry THE TRIBUNE will send to each contestant a copy of the complete rules and regulations and other information concerning the competition.

A. OF C. CHARGES CITY WITH LAXITY IN STREET PAVING

The Association of Commerce yesterday charged Mayor Kelly and the city administration with laxity the last two years in street paving made possible through the city's share of the state motor fuel tax.

Only three of the projects proposed by the city council in 1934 have been submitted to the state highway department for final approval, according to the association, which estimated that if the 16 other projects had been carried out work amounting to $2,500,000 would have been created for unemployment relief. Important thoroughfares listed for construction, but on which no final plans have been submitted, the association said, include State and Franklin streets, and Chicago, North, and Ewing avenues.

During 1934 and 1935 the state, county, and federal governments jointly have carried out much street construction in the city, the association said, but Chicago's share of the motor fuel tax, allotted for street work, lies idle.

START WORK THIS WEEK ON CERMAK ROAD UNDERPASS

Work on elimination of the bottle neck on Cermak road under the New York Central and Rock Island railroad tracks will begin Wednesday, it was announced yesterday by Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the state division of highways. Harger was informed that a $400,000 federal allotment is now available for the project.

The bottle neck will be removed by widening the trafic subway running under the tracks. When the subway was constructed about ten years ago on Cermak road [then 22d street], it was 38 feet wide, the width of the street. When 22d street was widened to 120 feet in 1928 the subway remained only 38 feet wide, creating the bottle neck. The subway is to be widened north and south to the width of the street. There will be four lanes for automobile trafic, two on each side of the street car tracks.

Harger said the work will give employment to 100 men from relief rolls and should be completed next winter.

EASTER BUYING SEASON STARTS HERE TOMORROW

The Easter buying season will start officially tomorrow on State street as stores begin intensive showings of last minute merchandise for the annual style occasion. For the next two weeks the stores will conduct individually their Easter previews, all coöperating under a plan directed by the State street council.

"Easter is a happy time of the year and State street is going to be sure that everybody will greet the day in the newest, the smartest and the gayest of shades," said Walter L. Gregory, president of the council.

WPA, Spare Those Trees! Plea of Cops They Shelter

Three ash trees which have provided shade for the Burnside police station at 9059 Cottage Grove avenue for 15 years may yet continue to serve their useful and decorative purpose. Works Progress administration laborers began digging at their roots Friday in connection with the widening of Cottage Grove avenue, but desisted temporarily on the plea of Sergt. George Wragg. The policeman appealed yesterday to the city forestry department, which will attempt to have the trees replanted in another place near the station.

Suburban Building Increases; Flossmoor Syndicate Plans 50 Homes

CHICAGO FIRM ANNOUNCES 20 FOR RIVERSIDE

Activity Continues Along North Shore.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

HENRY L. NEWHOUSE.
[Riel Photo.]

Home building in Chicago suburbs continues to gather impetus from week to week, with new residential projects, single and in groups, being reported in increasing numbers. Close on the heels of last week's announcement of the spectacular development planned for Ivanhoe comes news of a fifty house project for Flossmoor and a home building program at Riverside which is expected to result in twenty modern residences.

In addition to this unusual activity in the far south side and western suburbs, several new residences are announced for the north shore where individual home building has been most active during the last few months.

Largest Project in Flossmoor.

The largest of the week's announcements is scheduled for Flossmoor, where a syndicate has purchased sites for 50 homes and already has let contracts for the first ten. The architects are Newhouse & Bernham. Henry L. Newhouse of that firm heads the syndicate. Others identified with the project are H. F. Ulrich, secretary, and William J. Linklater, attorney for the group.

On three locations three classes of homes, costing $8,000, $10,000, and $12,000, will be built. The three areas are in the neighborhood of the intersection of Perth avenue and Heather street, Douglas avenue and Flossmoor road, and Central drive and Leavitt avenue.

The project has been approved by the Federal Housing administration and all houses will be financed with FHA insured mortgages through the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation.

Ten Contracts Awarded.

Contracts for the first ten houses were awarded to the Ames Construction company of Chicago with completion set for July 15. The sales office in Flossmoor is in charge of William T. Metzler, mayor of Flossmoor.

The $8,000 homes will have six rooms, the $10,000 ones seven rooms, sleeping porch, and attached garage, and the $12,000 units will have eight rooms, three baths and shower, living and sleeping porches, and attached garage. All classes of houses will have wood burning fireplaces.

The smallest type home will have the larger grounds, covering a quarter acre. The lots for the bigger units will vary from 50 to 87 feet frontage.

All houses will be heated with either gas or oil and equipped with winter air conditioning. Windows will be of plate glass. All grounds will be landscaped with provision made for vegetable gardens in the quarter acre sites. Modified English design will be used.

New Homes for Riverside.

The start of a building program which is expected to total twenty modern homes was announced yesterday for Riverside by the Home Builders company of 100 North La Salle street, of which Richard Smykal is president and Pierre G. Beach, former president of the Evanston Real Estate board, is secretary-treasurer.

Located a little less than half a mile north of the Riverside station, the triangularly shaped block bounded by Akenside, North Delaplaine, and Northwood roads, will be gradually improved with homes. With the exception of three lots the Home Builders company controls the entire block.

Work has started on the first unit in the building program, a six room English type residence for Harold E. Jordan from plans by Claire Hinckley on a 60x144x176x63 lot on Akenside road. It will be winter air conditioned and will cost between $7,000 and $7,500.

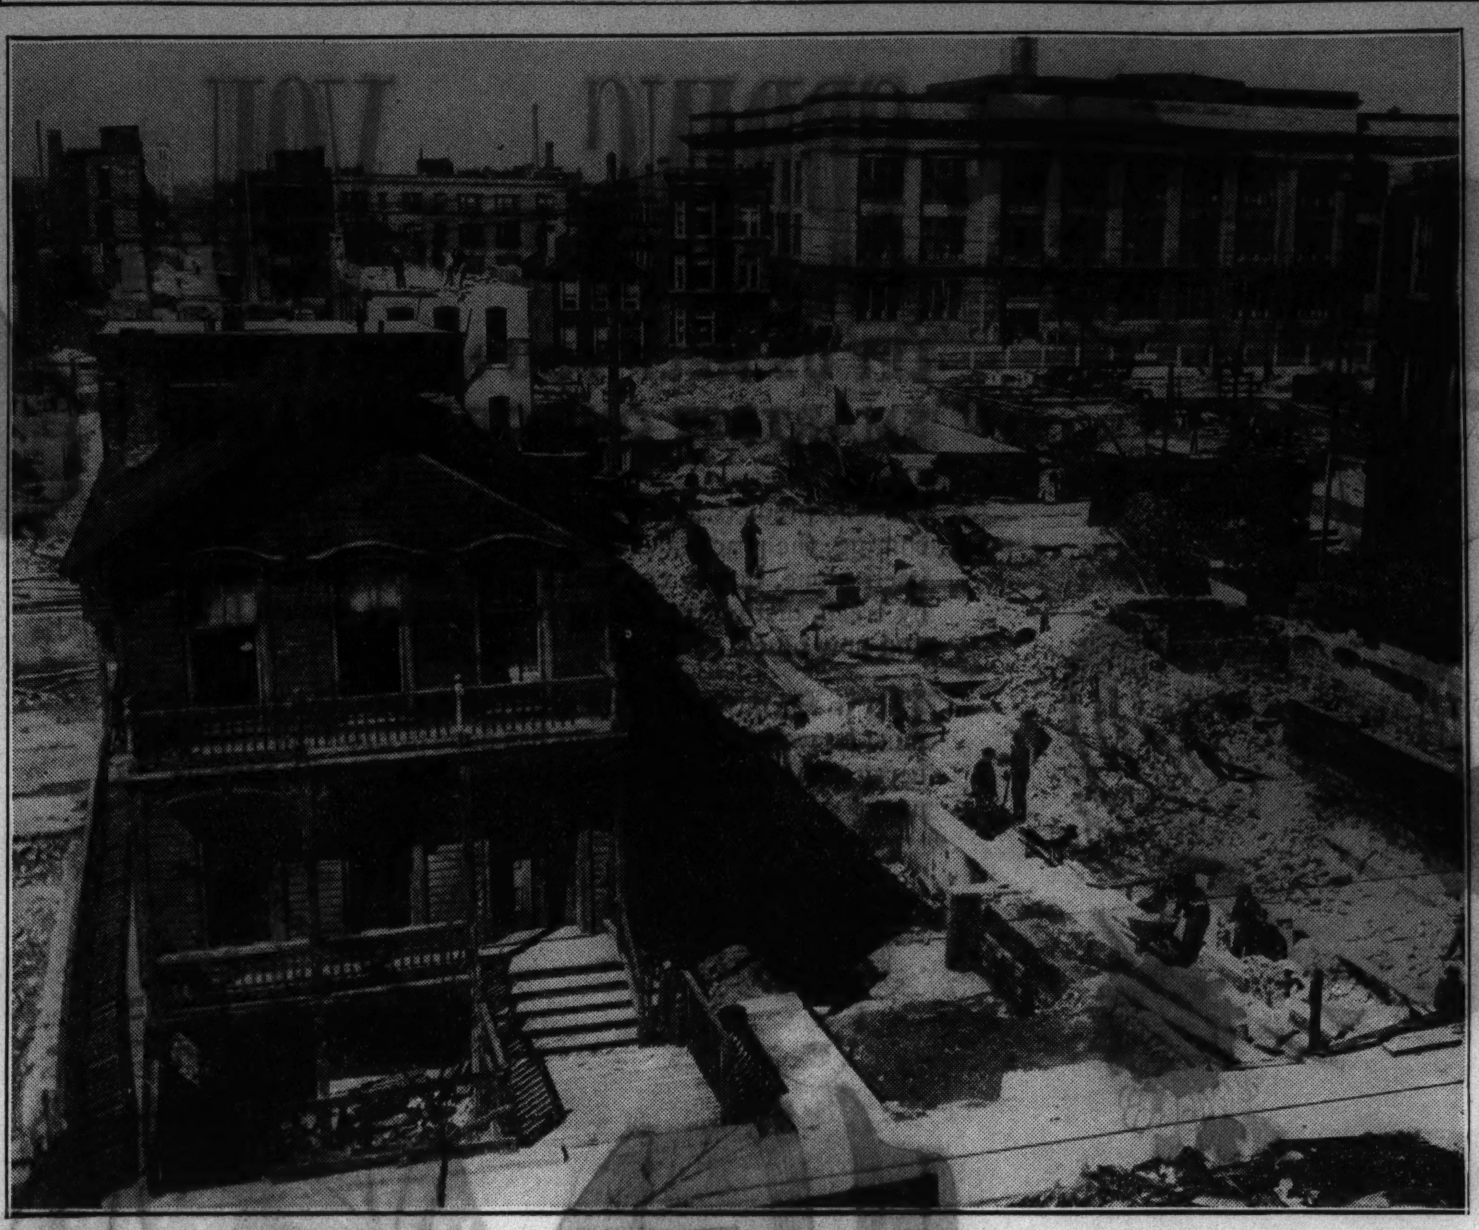
Grand Crossing Postal Station to Be Rebuilt

The old Grand Crossing postal station building, 72x120, at 7430-32 Cottage Grove avenue, has been purchased by an undisclosed buyer from the bondholders' committee of the Washington Park National bank at a reported $35,000. William Jonas of the Illinois National Realty corporation, who negotiated the deal, stated the property will be modernized and rebuilt into stores, with his firm as renting agent.

BROADWAY LEASE.

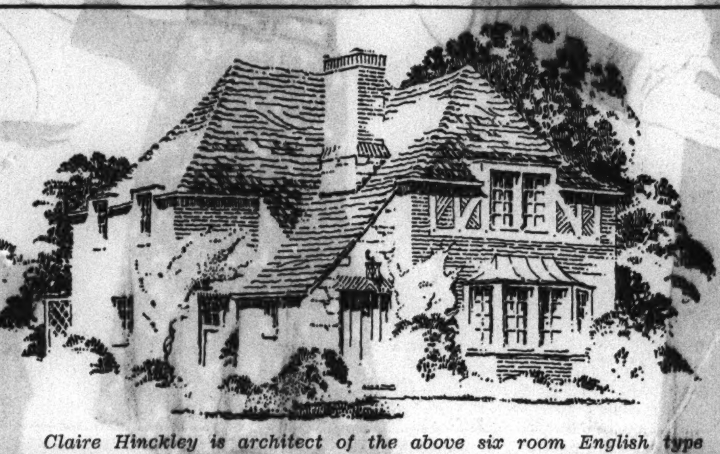
John T. McNamara has leased the building at 5352 Broadway for three years at a reported term rental of $2,900. W. T. Tangney & Co. were brokers.

CLEARING THE WAY FOR A $6,500,000 PWA HOUSING PROJECT



View of WPA wreckers clearing the 21½ acre site on the west side for the $6,500,000 Jane Addams houses and additions to be built by the housing division of the PWA. This picture was taken from South Racine avenue, looking west across Lytle street to the Jacob Riis school, which will not be affected by the demolition around it. The house in the foreground and the buildings to the left of the school are to be wrecked.

NEW RIVERSIDE RESIDENCE



Claire Hinckley is architect of the above six room English type residence, to be erected on the east side of Akenside road, between Delaplaine and Northwood roads, Riverside, by the Home Builders company, 100 North La Salle street. Details are given in another column.

DOVENMUEHLE WILL MOVE TO WESTMINSTER

T. A. BUENGER.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., 80 year old mortgage banking company, which has been at 7 South Dearborn street for the last seven years, yesterday leased the major part of the bank floor of the Westminster building, at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Monroe, for five years. After the installation of an air conditioning system and acoustical treatment of the office space, the new quarters will be occupied on May 1.

Seven large and 27 small windows will be equipped with double sash and sealed against outside noise and dust. The office ceilings will be acoustically treated and floors covered with sound deadeners. An indirect lighting system will be installed.

"In making this move," said T. A. Buenger, president, "Dovenmuehle is returning to the same neighborhood where it was active for a quarter of a century. The company in 1904 leased offices on the top floor of the old Guardian bank building, since torn down, which was directly across from the Westminster building.

Frankenstein & Co., agents for the building, were sole brokers in the lease negotiations.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of March 20 to 26, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 26, with a combined cost of $714,296. For the corresponding week last year there were 19 contracts totaling $137,800. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $6,086,288, compared with $5,015,764 the same period last year.

HIGHLAND PARK, BEVERLY HILLS GET NEW HOMES

Two residential projects partially finaced by FHA loans are reported by the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation. A $16,000 residence, designed by Gilbert P. Hall of Holabird & Root, is nearing completion at 1100 Green Bay road, Highland Park, for Ralph B. Mack, an associate member of the law firm of Deneen, Healy & Lee.

Work has just started on a $10,000 house at 10004 South Irving avenue, in Beverly Hills, from plans by Stanley D. Fairclough.

The Wilson company reports that mortgages totaling $250,000 have been purchased by leading institutional investors and that 93 per cent of all loans made to date by that organization have been through the FHA.

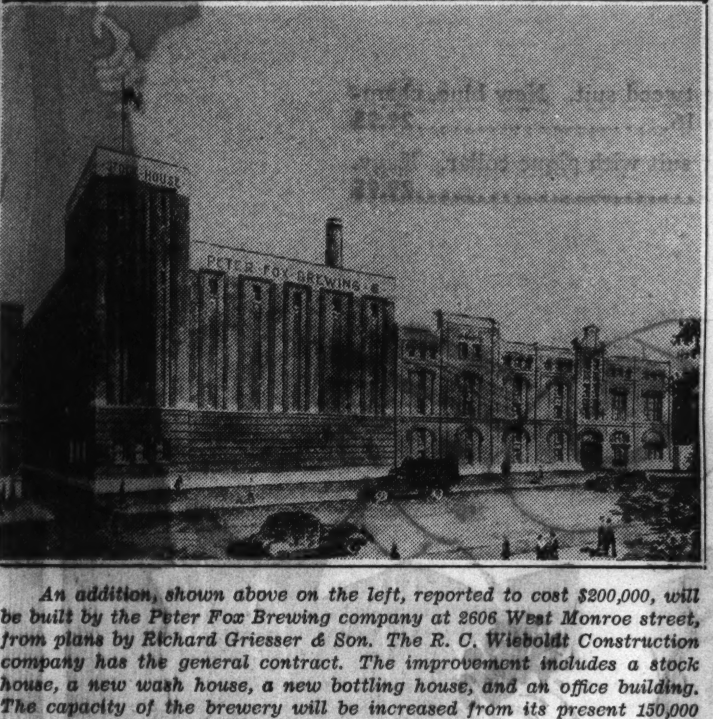
BREWERY EXPANSION



PETER FOX BREWING CO.

An addition, shown above on the left, reported to cost $200,000, will be built by the Peter Fox Brewing company at 2606 West Monroe street, from plans by Richard Griesser & Son. The R. C. Wieboldt Construction company has the general contract. The improvement includes a stock house, a new wash house, a new bottling house, and an office building. The capacity of the brewery will be increased from its present 150,000 to 225,000 barrels annually. Fred R. Springer made this sketch.

CORNER ON NORTH SIDE EXCHANGED FOR 2 PROPERTIES

The southeast corner of Lawrence and Kenmore avenues, improved with a three story building containing nine stores and a 72 room hotel, was sold yesterday by Charles W. and Gertrude J. Moore, to Grace Jones Stewart of Palm Beach, Fla. John T. Wheeler, of John T. Wheeler & Co., represented the buyer and will be agents of the property.

Two properties were given in exchange: the southwest corner of Winona and Winthrop, improved with a fifteen apartment building, and a twelve flat building at the northeast corner of Magnolia and Sunnyside.

The Lawrence-Kenmore corner fronts 143 feet on Lawrence and 100 feet on Kenmore. The property is subject to a $100,000 mortgage at 5 per cent held by the New York Life Insurance company. A. L. Kimball represented Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

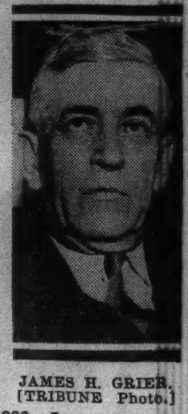
WORKERS BUSY AT THREE PWA HOUSING SITES

1,905 Engaged on Homes for 2,422 Families.



JAMES H. GRIER.

Inspection yesterday of Chicago's three big federal housing projects disclosed 1,905 wreckers, excavators, concrete workers, watchmen and others engaged in varying degrees of activity on the north, west and south side areas where $15,750,000 is to be spent building homes for 2,422 families.

Greatest activity naturally was found on the 21½ acres just south of Vernon park, on the west side, where the $1,500,000 Jane Addams houses and the $5,000,000 additions will be built. Here 1,500 Works Progress administration laborers were plying pick and shovel in a spectacular wrecking job, clearing the site for the Public Works administration's housing division.

Concrete Being Poured.

Already they have torn down 30 per cent of the old homes on the 15 acres to be used by the Jane Addams Houses addition. On the site of the original Jane Addams Houses 125 construction men already are at work pouring concrete and doing other foundation work. In addition there are 200 watchmen employed night and day to prevent vandalism.

According to Maj. James H. Grier, project manager of the Jane Addams Houses, the foundation work probably will be finished in about three weeks. Meanwhile, bids are being taken on the superstructure and will be opened next Tuesday. That means, he predicted, that actual construction work will start about May 1.

It is understood PWA officials believe the first part of the Jane Addams Houses will be ready for tenants the latter part of the year. No one will predict when the $5,000,000 additions, where wreckers are still busy, will be completed.

Homes for 981 Families.

The original Jane Addams Houses will care for 304 families, and the additions 677, making a total of 981 units for the west side project named in honor of the Hull house settlement leader.

At Chicago's second largest PWA housing development, the Diversey project, Diversey parkway and the river, for which $6,000,000 has been allocated, forty men are busy with steam shovels. Already, according to D. R. Kennicott, project manager, excavation has been completed for ten major units of the proposed 31 structures.

Concrete will be poured within two weeks, it was stated. Plans for the superstructures will be finished about April 1 and actual construction is expected to get under way about July 1, with completion set for a year later. Homes for 975 families will be provided.

To Be Ready Next Spring.

Forty men are working at the Trumbull park housing project, in South Chicago, and according to W. B. Ashby, assistant project manager, 100 will be busy this week on excavating work. Chester A. Inman, PWA housing chief for Chicago, predicted the $3,250,000 project will provide homes for 466 families by next spring. He estimated actual work on the superstructures will be under way by the middle of July.

From 25 to 30 per cent of the ground in the three projects will be covered by buildings, the balance being used for lawns, playgrounds and walks.

SPANISH REVOLT LEADER A KILLER AND A CHARMER

Glamorous, Ruthless and a Dangerous Man.

Edmond Taylor, Paris correspondent of The Tribune, was sent to Spain to cover the recent election and the violent outbreaks which followed it. Here is the second of two articles which he completed after leaving Spain. It describes the psychology of the Spanish revolutionist and gives intimate pictures of some of the more prominent leaders in the political strife.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, March 8.—[By Mail.]—We had dined well though not wisely on clams, percebes—goose barnacles, a particularly sinister form of undersea life—and criadillas, a by-product of the national sport which tastes something like sweetbreads, the whole washed down with Spanish claret, headier and "smelling the cork" more than the French kind, and we had what Dr. Johnson would have called good talk.

Now it was time to go to bed. Only a few stragglers like ourselves and the bitter wind of the Castilian night filled the streets as we said good-by.

Offers Tip on Revolution.

"If you ever want to make the revolution in America," said my friend Ramon by way of farewell message, "let me know and I will give you some tips."

"Thank you, Ramon," I said.

"Wait, I'll give you a tip now. Hand grenades are the thing. You make them from bicycle axles, iron pipe, anything. It's easy to make as many as you want, just as good as the military ones, with firing pins and everything. The grenades, they're the only thing the civil guards are afraid of.

"You shoot at the guards with a pistol and maybe you kill one, but the rest shoot back; they aren't afraid. But you toss a bomb at them, maybe it just makes a lot of noise and doesn't hurt anybody, but they run away. Don't forget the grenades when you make your revolution."

Frowns on Machine Guns.

We shook hands on that, but Ramon had walked only a few steps when another thought occurred to him.

"Another thing, don't waste a lot of money on machine guns," he called back. "Machine guns just tie you down; they use up too much ammunition and you've got to have five or six men for each gun. You can't make a revolution like that. You've got to attack all the time."

A couple of civil guards muffled in their long cloaks, wearing their habitual sinister black torpedo-shaped hats, turned their heads and looked at Ramon in a bored way. In Spain you don't arrest people for talking abut revolutions, at least not now.

They did arrest Ramon once, though, during the uprising of October 1934, which according to Ramon would have ended very differently if his friends had listened to him. They arrested him and put him in prison and for several days every one, including Ramon, thought they would line him up against a wall and shoot him. There was a very good reason for shooting him; it was due to Ramon that the Red workers of Madrid had guns to shoot the civil guards with and bombs to blow them up with or at least to make them run.

Protect "Staf Officer."

There were perhaps two or three hundred men in Madrid who knew just what Ramon had been doing and at least half of them were arrested at the same time. Some of them got long prison terms, some of them were beaten half to death by the guards who arrested them. Maybe a few of them were shot. All of these unpleasant things could have been avoided if any of these men, humble privates in the secret army of which Ramon is a staf officer, had told where he got his gun. But none of them said anything and the authorities were never able to pin anything on Ramon so they just put him in prison. There he stayed, technically awaiting trial, until the prison administration thoughtfully let him out to help organize the left victory in the recent elections.

The story of Ramon's career as a revolutionary, his imprisonment, the way he started thinking of his next revolution even before he had gotten out of jail, the easy-going way in which this really dangerous enemy of the state was turned loose to resume his subversive activities, is really the whole story of Spain today. Ramon himself is a typical specimen of a race which despite superficial resemblances is like nothing in the world.

It is a pity that Ramon's real name can't be revealed because he is an intellectual whose works are well and favorably known in learned circles abroad. When he was arrested after the 1934 uprising there were doubtless a number of well meaning liberals in America and elsewhere who considered the imprisonment of such an honorable and worthy citizen a disgraceful act of persecution on the part of the Spanish government.

Honorable and Ruthless.

Ramon is the soul of honor and, according to his own lights, he is a worthy citizen, but he makes no bones about being an enemy of the state.

Ruthlessness is part of his code. He speaks bitterly about the Asturian miners, for instance, because according to him they did not display the real revolutionary spirit in October, 1934. In the first days of the uprising a detachment of mobile troops was rushed into the Asturias from Burgos. Three thousand miners, entrenched in the hills with machine guns and dynamite, were waiting for them at a narrow defile through which they had to pass. They could easily have annihilated the whole detachment and that was their original intention, but when the soldiers got within range the miners said to themselves, "After all they are just workers and peasants in uniform, they are our brothers," and they let them pass.

"I hope that taught the miners a lesson," Ramon says.

Gentle and Charming Man.

In private life Ramon is as gentle and charming a fellow as you could imagine, an unrivaled drinking companion. He is a fanatic in the sense that he considers it a noble action, in fact a duty, to slaughter the enemies of the Marxist ideal, which he has made his own. But he has an intellectual tolerance worthy of the highest tradition of bourgeois liberalism. He will kill you if you get in the way of his revolution, but over a bottle of wine and a good meal he will confront his ideas with yours like any civilized man with perfect courtesy and tolerance, however different they may be.

Ramon is of a bourgeois, not proletarian, origin and the triumph of the workers' revolution in Spain won't augment his share of the world's goods. In Spain the economic motive seldom suffices to explain men and things.

One of the striking things about Ramon, and it is true of most Spanish revolutionaries, is the contrast between his methods and his ideology, rigidly Marxist and pragmatic. There is nothing romantic or utopian about his concept of the worker's state.

Sees Men as Machines.

Like the Russian communists he thinks of men in terms of machines. But that is for the future, when the revolution has triumphed. The actual fight for power, to men such as Ramon, is a glamorous and dangerous game, full of complicated rules and ceremonial, which they talk about the way Hemingway wrote about bullfighting—maybe that is why they look down on bullfighting, an inferior form of the same sport.

Here is an illustration of revolutionary etiquet in Spain, an authentic page from the unwritten history of the October revolution, related by Ramon himself.

"The afternoon the revolution started I had to deliver a message. I was unarmed because of my position in the organization. If I got arrested nothing could be found to show I was playing an active part in the revolt.

"My four bodyguards, however, were armed. We ran into a detachment of civil guards. They covered us with their guns and commanded us to put up our hands. We were revolutionaries, and it would have been a disgrace to raise our hands.

"We keep on walking toward the guards. They prepared to shoot. One of my guards pulled out a grenade, jerked the pin and flipped it at the guards. There was a loud explosion. One guard fell. My friend tossed another grenade. Then he pulled his pistol and shot two of them. The rest ran."

That is how to make a revolution in Spain.

Spaniards carry off their revolutions, like their capes, with an air that is all their own. You naturally think of Carmen's smugglers when you listen to Ramon tell how before the October uprising he ran arms across the border and then moved them from the central arsenals of the party to the comrades' homes.

A Kind of Sport.

It would be a mistake, however, to see only the sporting and picturesque element in Spanish revolutionaries. Up to Oct., 1934, revolution was essentially a kind of sport; it gave you standing to have been in prison, and being condemned to death was something like an aristocratic decoration. The October revolution, however, and its bloody suppression have changed the atmosphere, and it has given the revolutionaries a new kind of grimness. The romantic type of revolutionary has disappeared and there is a new kind of fighting revolutionary leader, colorful in his way, too, but much more businesslike than the old fashioned variety.

Even Largo Caballero, leader of the Socialists, called the Spanish Lenin, belongs to an older and relatively milder type of revolutionary. He was condemned to death after the 1917 revolutionary strike and imprisoned after the Jaca mutiny in Dec., 1930, but it was as responsible leader of a party judged subversive, and not as a fighting captain. He belongs to the same generation as Premier Azana and President Zamora, with whom he often plotted.

A good example of a fighting revolutionary when revolution in Spain was still in the age of chivalry is Luis Quintanilla, friend of Hemingway and Dos Passos and one of Spain's foremost modernist painters. The day Alfonso fled, Quintanilla mobilized a detachment of Socialist militia and occupied the royal palace—to protect the queen and keep the art treasures from being destroyed. It was Quintanilla who hoisted the first republican flag in Madrid, climbing like a human fly up the front of the royal palace to do it.

New Revolutionary Model.

The 1936 model revolutionary hero is very different. It is true there are figures like Aida de la Fuenta, called La Libertaria, a 17 year old girl of good family who joined the Asturian rebels and was shot dead by government troops as she was manning a machine gun single handed behind the last remaining barricade in the streets of Oviedo.

More typical, however, is Gonzales Pena, leader of the Asturian miners, who in addition to other exploits organized the robbery of nearly $2,000,000 from the Oviedo branch of the Bank of Spain, a feat strongly reminiscent of Stalin's early career as a revolutionary. Pena was condemned to death but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and Azana's recent amnesty set him free again.

Another picturesque but thoroughly up to date revolutionary leader is Margarita Nelkin, famous as one of the first woman deputies of the republic and for her dowager's lorgnette. In the October revolt she tried to raise a peasant army in Extremadura and escaped to Moscow when her forces were routed by government troops.

Resemble Anarchists.

The present generation of revolutionary, including my friend Ramon, resembles in many ways the old time Spanish anarchist whose sinister exploits often shocked the world in prewar days. As a matter of fact Ramon began his revolutionary career as an anarchist. When I asked him how he had come to change his faith he said: "Because I discovered that the anarchist leaders were just demagogs."

When I tried to find out what a Spanish revolutionary's idea of demagogy is, I got this enlightening answer:

"They burn churches."

Not that Ramon has any prejudice against burning churches, but he regards it as merely a diversion which shouldn't be allowed to interfere with more serious objectives. Even Lerroux' men, Ramon will tell you contemptuously, used to burn churches; it is no proof of revolutionary spirit.

To understand the present situation in Spain at all you have to turn to the history of the anarchist movement in Spain from its beginnings in Barcelona where it was brought by Bakunin and Lafargue in the 1890's. That seed fell on fertile ground and the anarchist agitation of pre-war days only continued the bloody jacqueries which for centuries had expressed the accumulated hatred of the starved, oppressed Spanish peasant for his landlords.

Violence Acts as Charm.

The combination of utopian idealism and the appeal to individual acts of violence in the anarchist doctrin seemed to have an irresistible charm for the illiterate Spanish workman and peasant. The movement spread like wildfire over the whole country. Barcelona until 1933 remained the capital of anarchism and the steady influx of miserable peasants from poverty stricken Andalusia, legendary home of bandits and smugglers, provided it with an army of cut throats who were absolutely fearless because they had nothing to lose.

One anarchist pistolero, Salvador Segui, has remained famous in history under the name of "Sugar Boy"—he liked his coffee sweet. After terrorizing Barcelona for years he was finally shot down by gunmen hired by the police, the only way they could think of to get rid of such a dangerous character.

The "Sugar Boy" had many comrades, half gangster, half idealist, like himself. Respectable middle class Spaniards still shiver when they recall their exploits; bombing of a religious procession in Barcelona in the early 1900's, a dozen men and women killed and scores wounded; the shooting of the archbishop of Saragossa in 1920, and of Prime Minister Eduardo Dato in 1921. Then there was the young Madrid intellectual and fanatical anarchist, Matio Morales, who heaved a bomb at Alfonso's carriage on his wedding day, missing the king but killing a number of innocent bystanders.

Saragossa Trouble Center.

Anarchism is supposed to be dying in Spain today, but the anarchists had enough of the old spirit left to stage a private revolution of their own in 1933 in which they blew up a railway bridge and carried out many other acts of terrorism reminiscent of their early exploits. Further since Col. Macia, father of the Catalan republic, kicked them out of Barcelona after this movement and they established their headquarters in Saragossa, that provincial capital has become one of the worst trouble centers in Spain.

While there are only a few thousand pure anarchists in Spain there are nearly half a million syndicalists imbued with anarchist ideas, and they still maintain schools where their children are taught the doctrin of integral freedom and universal brotherhood dispensing with law.

Hitherto the anarchists have remained aloof from the socialists and communists. They did not participate in the 1934 uprising and in Barcelona even helped to sabotage it. The suppression of that revolt, however, apparently taught them a lesson and in the last elections the syndicalists turned out to vote for the first time in Spanish history, thus swinging the scales in favor of the left.

"Dawn of a New Day."

This, the communists and socialists hope, is the dawn of a new day. They think that anarchism is disintegrating and dream of canalizing the anarchist idealism and the anarchist genius for individual terrorism and harness them to the cause of Marxist revolution. The spread of literacy, the marxists think, will shake the faith of the workers and peasants in anarchist Utopias and teach them to discipline their hatred against the ruling classes.

Thus, because of his anarchist formation Ramon is again typical of the new revolutionary leader. Like scores of other revolutionary leaders among the socialists and communists Ramon no longer looks forward to a fraternal utopia of free men, but to a collectivistic proletarian state in which justice and individual freedom will be a state monopoly, granted or withheld in the measure that they further the cause.

At the same time he is learning that revolution is something more than a sport and that individual bravado is of no value. Ramon has learned his lesson well.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA HAS OPERATION FOR OSSIFIED EYEBALL

ZURICH, Switzerland, March 28.—(AP)—Dr. Alfred Vogt, who operated on Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, for cataracts of the eyes, said tonight that the operation apparently had been successful but that definite results could not be known for eight days.

De Valera has been confined to bed in Dr. Vogt's clinic, his eyes bandaged, since the operation last Thursday.

The malady from which De Valera is suffering consisted of cataracts so advanced as to ossify the eyeball. Treatment had to be very delicate to avoid damaging the cornea.

AID OF FORMER QUEEN DENIES SHE IS READY TO RETURN TO CAROL

VIENNA, Austria, March 28.—(AP)—Rumors that Princess Helen of Rumania might return to her divorced husband, King Carol, were denied today by a spokesman for the former queen in Florence, Italy.

The rumors, nevertheless, spread widely through diplomatic quarters in Vienna, the center of eastern European gossip.

Informed sources said that since Carol's advisers were anxious about their king's popularity with his people, they were trying to persuade him to exile Mme. Magda Lupescu, his Jewish mistress and the woman who came between him and Helen.

PRIMO DE RIVERA GETS TWO MONTHS IN JAIL; INSULTED POLICE CHIEF

MADRID, March 28.—(AP)—Jose Antonio Primo De Rivera, son of the late Spanish dictator, was sentenced today to two months in jail for "insulting" the chief of police when he was arrested March 14 as authorities sought to crush the Spanish Fascist party.

The government for the present is refusing to grant passports to Spaniards wishing to leave the country. Many Spaniards have left the country since the February election, going to France, Gibraltar, and Portugal. One measure already taken to prevent this exodus was the tightening of restrictions against taking money out of the country.

Free Ex-Mate of Italia Blair.

MADRID, Spain, 28.—[U. P.]—Ricardo Soriano, marquess of Ivanrey and divorced husband of Italia Blair of Chicago, was released today after authorities heard his story denying complicity in the escape of three Fascists to France. The Fascists made their getaway in an airplane Soriano purchased to commute between his home in Biarritz and his properties in Spain. He said the plane was taken from its hangar without his knowledge.

U. S. Oil Company Official Fined for French Flight

STRASBOURG, France, March 28.—(AP)—Henry J. White, European aviation manager for the Socony Vacuum company, was fined 50 francs [about $3.50] and costs today in police court on a charge of flying over French fortifications. His plane, which had been held by officials, was returned to him and he took off for London after paying the fine.

RIVER VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Anthony Druzick, 409 South Fourteenth avenue, Melrose Park, yesterday identified the body of a woman found in the Des Plaines river in Forest Park Friday as that of his mother, Mrs. Josephine Druzick, 50 years old, 104 North Twelfth avenue, Melrose Park.

"No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed." [Constitution of the United States, Article I, Section IX, Paragraph 2.]

If Senator Black of Alabama had more of the curiosity of the historian and less of that of the night rider, he might not cry so loud for congress to restrain the courts from interposing the protection of the constitution against legislative tyrannies. In the troubled days of reconstruction it was the Supreme court, by a series of opinions interpreting the constitutional guarantee given above, which saved Black's ancestors and all other southerners who had supported the confederacy from being barred for life from practice of law in federal courts, and in some states from being barred even from teaching in schools or preaching the gospel. These were incidentally, five to four opinions.

Attainder was the supreme penalty under the English common law, reserved for punishment of treason. It involved not only the death of the offender but the forfeiture of all his property and the corruption of his blood, by which it was meant that his children could not inherit from him or through him.

A bill of attainder was the pronouncement of this penalty by parliament, without recourse to the courts and usually without granting the defendant an opportunity to defend himself. The process was most often used to punish some person who had displeased the king but against whom there was not sufficient evidence to make certain a conviction for treason and pronouncement of attainder in the courts.

An ex post facto law, in the strictest sense, is one which makes an action done before passage of the law a crime, which at the time it was done was not a crime. A law which aggravates a crime, making it greater than when it was committed, or which inflicts greater punishment than was provided by law at the time a crime was committed, or which permits conviction on less or different testimony than was required to prove the offense at the time of commission, is also ex post facto.

Legally the bill of attainder, in which a legislature undertakes to punish a crime, and the ex post facto law are distinct, but historically they have often been used together. Thus Henry VIII., whose bills of attainder were notorious, had parliament, when it attainted the earl of Kildare, an Irish rebel, also pass an ex post facto law declaring guilty of treason all those persons who had in any way aided the earl.

Cardinal Pole angered King Henry by arguing against his divorce from Catherine of Aragon. The cardinal was safe in France, but the king got his revenge by procuring the execution of the cardinal's mother, the countess of Salisbury, under a bill of attainder. James II., driven from England, had the Irish parliament pass a bill of attainder against some 2,000 adherents of William and Mary, but was prevented from carrying out his proscription by the battle of the Boyne.

The use of bills of attainder died out in England about 1700, but the obnoxious practice was revived by several American states during or just following the revolution. Their legislatures confiscated the property of loyalists by ex post facto laws or bills of pains and penalties, which are legally identical with bills of attainder in the light of the constitutional prohibition, but do not inflict the death penalty.

In spite of the fact that some of the Tories so punished, particularly in New York, had led Indian allies of the British in massacring frontier settlers, the framers of the constitution frowned on the means used to punish them. The offense was revolting, but to free men the remedy was even more so. A following section of the constitution prohibits states, as well as congress, from passing bills of attainder or ex post facto laws.

Congress, during the closing days of the civil war, passed an act barring from practice in federal courts any lawyer who was unable to swear that he had never supported, or even submitted to, an insurrectionary government. A. H. Garland, a resident of Arkansas, had followed that state out of the union, had sat in the confederate congress, and at the conclusion of the war had been included in the general pardon granted by the President to persons who took a new oath of loyalty to the United States. Nevertheless, Garland was barred from practice in federal courts by the test oath. He appealed to the Supreme court, which pronounced the test oath law a bill of attainder and unconstitutional.

Missouri included a requirement for an even more drastic test oath in a state constitution adopted in 1865. The oath required a statement that the person taking it should never have so much as expressed sympathy for the confederacy or its adherents, and persons who were unable to take it were barred not only from any public office but from practicing law or exercising the functions of a minister of religion.

A priest of the Roman Catholic church, named Cummings, was indicted for ministering to his flock without having taken the oath. Upon conviction he was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and was ordered to jail until he paid it. His conviction was appealed to the United States Supreme court. The court found that the test oath clause in the Missouri constitution partook of the nature of both a bill of attainder and an ex post facto law and ordered that the Rev. Mr. Cummings be released.

WATER COLORS.

A visitor to the international water color exhibition at the Art institute these days can hardly fail to be struck with the fact that the medium is congenial to American artists. They use it naturally and easily. When they work in water colors they see with a fresh eye and paint confidently, and even boldly. In this show the Americans must stand comparison with highly competent men from abroad. In that competition our painters more than hold their own.

It is curious but undeniable that when American artists work in oils many and probably most of them become self-conscious. They are obsessed with vocabulary and tricks of style. They seem to see through other men's eyes and to paint with other men's brushes. Their canvases are all too often imitations of imitations, and stilted ones at that. Perhaps the moister air of western Europe produces a quality of light which is peculiarly suitable for representation in oils. Perhaps the fact that most of our abler artists have studied oil technique abroad has led them to handle the medium in a fashion suitable to the European atmosphere but not to ours. Whatever the reason may be, the fact is that American oil paintings disclose many symptoms which suggest that our painters suffer from a sense of inferiority in this field. They are not at ease. They lack confidence. They fear that their work will not capture and hold attention and, accordingly, they cultivate eccentricity rather than individuality of expression. They seem to be feeling for a style, but even their experiments, if they can be called experiments, are tiresome because imitative.

In the water color show the American artists display none of these gaucheries and timidities. They know what they want to paint and how to produce the effects they seek. Their work is fresh, vigorous, and enormously competent technically. Composition is bold and colors fresh. Shows of American oil paintings are commonly depressing because much of the product looks prison-made. In contrast these water colors sing.

The TVA is getting worried because Southern railway officials have failed to petition the interstate commerce commission for authority to abandon their eleven mile Vasper-La Follette branch. The tracks will be under water when a TVA dam is completed. As the railway has no submarine engines and cars its officials might be jailed for breaking the law forbidding it to abandon a line without permission. They are unaccustomed to the rigors of prison life and the TVA desires to save them from it, if possible.

Accordingly, the interstate commerce commission has been asked by TVA to instruct the Southern railway to make the necessary prayer for an abandonment permit. The petition avers that the TVA has fairly warned the Southern railway on divers occasions that the liberty of its officers is in jeopardy, but that through apparent failure to recognize the gravity of the situation no action has been taken. Just where the interstate commerce commission is going to find the necessary prod in the railway act is something for that august body to puzzle out.

Of course, it would be very nice—for the TVA—if the Southern railway were to file the application. The necessary abandonment certificate doubtless would be produced with alacrity. Then the railway could proceed at its own expense to pull up the rails. Unfortunately, the president of the road apparently is convinced that he has some rights in the matter. Perhaps he may be pardoned for his inability to see clearly why he should be asked to destroy his own property at his own expense. He may have an old-fashioned theory that the road should be compensated for government appropriation of its property instead of filing a prayer for permission to assume the expense of getting it out of the path of the government's juggernaut.

Editorial of the Day

SIX CANDIDATES.

[New York Sun.]

The members of the National Puzzlers league, in national convention assembled at Camden, N. J., listened to the proposals of new words to be in the language. One member offered "ismer," to mean a person given to an ism, and "poorich," to mean an individual neither rich nor poor. Another member offered "ismerist," to mean one who advocates an ism with hypnotic effect; "oompah," to mean the noise that comes out of here or there; and "unspry," which means the opposite of "spry." This latter member also incorrectly informed his hearers that the dictionaries discriminate against "zag" by mentioning only one-half of the partnership word "zigzag." In the latest Webster both halves of the word are separately entered and separately defined. A zig is a departure at an angle from a zag, and a zag a similar departure from a zig, leaving the bystander just where he was.

As for "oompah," that word is not in Webster's latest, but it has been in the language for a number of years, having made what was probably its first appearance in print in that immortal line, "When you hear that oompah-oompah in the band." Even then it must have been old in the spoken tongue, for there is no better phonetic expression for what the village band has been doing for many, many years. The words "ismer" and "ismerist" are probably not needed in the language, but the crossword puzzle maker has special grounds for asking that "unspry" be admitted. The proposed word has four consonants in succession, begins with one uncommon vowel and ends in another. As for individuals neither poor nor rich, what more is needed than to continue to call them taxpayers?

SABOTAGING RECOVERY AS A NATIONAL POLICY

BY JOHN SPARGO.

The third anniversary of the inauguration of President Roosevelt was the occasion of an interesting debate in the senate of the United States. The protagonists were the always eloquent Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, Republican, and the habitually pompous Senator Joseph P. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

The newspaper reports of the debate were interesting and illuminating. To serious students of politics the verbatim report in the Congressional Record takes its place among the important source material the meaning and significance of which they seek to determine. As one of the students, albeit a humble and obscure one, the greater part of whose life has been devoted to the study of politics and political movements, I regard the debate as of greater interest and importance than the scant attention given to it by the press would indicate.

Senator Dickinson seized the opportunity afforded by the anniversary to attack the record of the Roosevelt administration. It was a partisan attack, of course, and there was no pretense that it was anything else. That was in full consonance with the rules of the senate and its common practice. It was a good campaign speech. That is the only comment I care to make upon it.

Senator Robinson took up the cudgel in defense of his party and the Roosevelt administration. I am not an ardent admirer of the spluttering gentleman from Little Rock, Arkansas. He is in my judgment as little and inconsequential a figure as any in the senate at this time when that body is distinguished by the number of little and inconsequential figures it holds. But his speech in reply to Senator Dickinson can be described as a good campaign speech. If it all seems like a sorry travesty on the purposes and functions of the senate, at least it can be said in defense of the performance that it was less harmful to the nation than much that goes on in that body.

In a sharp interchange of thrust and counter-thrust between the two disputants Senator Robinson attempted—not without some success, I think—to embarrass Senator Dickinson by challenging him to state whether he was willing to contend that conditions throughout the country were as bad that day, March 4, 1936, as they were on March 4, 1933. A negative reply to that question, the Democratic leader contended, would be a justification and vindication of President Roosevelt's administration.

For so skilful and practiced a debater as Senator Dickinson is, the challenge, instead of being an embarrassment, should have been a golden opportunity to deliver a smashing blow. The senator from Arkansas laid himself and his party at the mercy of his and the party's critics. I am fully aware of the difficulties of rough and tumble extemporaneous debate. It is very easy for me or any one else to think out in leisurely deliberation the things that might have been said with advantage and to persuade one's self that he would have said them in extemporaneous response to the challenge. I do not criticize Senator Dickinson, but I do desire to point out that there was a reply to Senator Robinson's challenge that ought to have been made and was not. Every Republican in the land ought to be prepared to make that answer. Here it is, in outline:

It was a trick such as a petty police court lawyer might use to demand that a comparison be made with conditions as they were on March 4, 1933. Everybody knows that conditions on that date were the result not of Republican policy, nor even results which existed in spite of that policy. On the contrary, conditions on March 4, 1933, were what they were by reason of four months of systematic and shameful sabotage by the President elect and by the Democratic congress, sabotage in which Senator Robinson had a conspicuous and influential share. In that period between election day November 8, 1932, and March 4, 1933, when Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated, conditions in this country had become very much worse, very much more dangerous, very much more difficult to remedy. They had been made so by sabotage, directed against every sincere and promising effort at recovery, by Mr. Roosevelt and by his advisers and associates. That sabotage has continued through three years. Amid the maze of contradictions and confusion which we call the "policy" of this administration there is only one continued purpose, consistently followed, to which the word "policy" can be applied. And that purpose is the sabotaging of every serious effort and impulse toward economic recovery, no matter from whence emanating. The frustration by privileged and protected sabotage of every effort toward economic recovery put forward by the people of this nation has been the real policy of the Roosevelt administration.

Every thoughtful student of economic and political science knows that the situation of the country in the early autumn of 1932, serious as it was, did not improve with the election of Mr. Roosevelt but instead grew markedly worse and more discouraging and dangerous. The true and just comparison which a Democrat could fairly challenge a Republican to make is between conditions under President Hoover in the summer of 1932 and conditions today under President Roosevelt. That challenge Senator Robinson dare not make. Even on the day immediately preceding the election of 1932 conditions were vastly better, vastly less dangerous, alike to ourselves and to the nations with which we have relations, than they are today. Of course, a presidential election is always a disturbing factor. The uncertainty inseparable from such a contest always operates as a retarding and depressing influence. Yet it is a fact that, notwithstanding the campaign, the situation and the outlook in September, 1932, were better than at any time since then, both objectively and subjectively considered. Any just comparison of conditions and outlook under President Hoover at that time with the conditions and outlook under President Roosevelt today shows an enormous balance in favor of the Republican President's administration.

From the opening of the seventy-second congress in early December, 1932, to its adjournment in mid-April, 1933, I followed and charted the struggle of the Republican President of the United States against the obstructive tactics of the Democratic congress and, even more important, against the reckless and dangerous policies of that body, which was overwhelmingly controled by the Democrats. Every student of that period knows that President Hoover, by his courage and his resourcefulness, saved the nation from incalculable harm at the hands of as rapacious a horde of pork barrel raiders as ever was assembled. I could demonstrate beyond the possibility of successful challenge that the bottom of the depression was reached coincidently with the winding up of the session of congress. As soon as congress adjourned there was apparent throughout the country a feeling of relief and gratitude. Hope and confidence were reborn. The leaders of industry and business turned from a fear that had passed to face the future with courage.

HIVES AND GIANT HIVES.

We may know all about beehives, but there is another variety that appears on the skin or mucous surfaces that can itch and swell and become as annoying as a bee sting. The name—hives—probably comes from the heaped up character of the swelling.

Physicians refer to the conditions as urticaria [hives] and angioneurotic edema [giant hives]. Both arise from the same general cause and the symptom of swelling comes on because the body is peculiarly sensitive to some substance which in turn may be responsible for bronchial asthma, hay fever, eczema, etc. Sometimes hives will precede an attack of asthma. Again, a patient will complain that during an acute attack he feels as though the swelling occurs first in the bronchial tubes, bringing on shortness of breath with a wheezy sound that can be heard across the room.

Many varieties of food can initiate the reaction. A child 10 years old, who had suffered from attacks for a number of years, gave the history that when 6 years of age whenever he ate an egg or anything containing eggs his ears and the entire face would become swollen, markedly distorting the features. He also observed that walnuts in his diet would bring on a marked itching in the throat.

A youth of 18 was free from any form of hives except when he indulged in buckwheat cakes. A mother, aged 35, found that her lips and tongue would swell and the roof of the mouth would itch intensely whenever she ate bananas, tomatoes, or celery.

Another case, a man aged 35, noted that cantaloupe, bananas, and spinach would cause hives to break out in various parts of the body, with marked swelling of the tongue. A girl, aged 17, complained of periodical swelling of the eyes and lips. The joints of the fingers and of the palms of the hands were also involved. All skin tests were negative in her case with the single exception of wheat. A few injections of a wheat extract sufficiently desensitized this patient so that the omission of wheat from the diet freed her from all symptoms.

Foods may not be responsible at all and many instances are known in which dandruff from animals, drugs, bacteria, or pollens from plants have been found to be the causative factors. The case is cited of a woman aged 32 who suffered periodical attacks for several years. Face, neck, chest, back, and arms were all affected and very severe itching accompanied each illness. Skin tests were entirely negative until hemolytic streptococci from the colon were used. Under the administration of a vaccine made from this organism the symptoms disappeared entirely. An English observer has reported that absorption from infected teeth or sinuses is often found to be responsible.

There are probably other factors that influence the appearance of hives, and Osler calls attention to the part played by heredity. He cites one family in which the condition was reported to have existed for five generations.

Some authorities believe that one of the underlying characteristics is a deficiency of calcium in the blood. A considerable number of tested patients showed a low level of this mineral and marked improvement followed an increase. To bring this about calcium lactate or calcium gluconate was added to the diet.

Treatment consists in finding the particular substance to which the patient is reacting. At the outset it is well to empty the stomach and the intestinal tract, using some rapidly acting saline cathartic. All food should be restricted at least for the first day, although sugar, salt, and gelatin may be used. Inasmuch as the most common offenders are wheat, eggs, milk, chocolate, cabbage, oranges, and potatoes, these foods should be eliminated entirely. A careful food diary must be kept, so that the particular article which is followed by the appearance of hives may be omitted thereafter.

TWITCHING EYE.

C. L. writes: I have had a very annoying twitch in my right eye for the last two weeks. Can you tell me the cause and how to get rid of it?

REPLY.

This is no doubt a nervous tic, and is usually due to fatigue. You are probably overtired.

The condition may arise because of some visual defect, in which case the eyes should be examined.

WASSERMANN TESTS.

Mr. O. writes: About three years ago, on submitting to the Wassermann and Kahn tests, the result was two and one-half plus. I took the prescribed course of treatments until last June. Three tests taken within the last 15 months have all been negative.

Do you believe that I can have children without fear of their inheriting any physical defects because of my infection?

REPLY.

Probably. But a test of the spinal fluid should be made.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—German naval yards are working day and night to build up the German navy to the level of 420,000 tons, which is permitted the reich under the Anglo-German naval pact. Building activities extend to all categories of war vessels, including capital ships, cruisers, an aircraft carrier, destroyers, submarines, special speed boats armed with torpedo tubes, and other smaller craft.

Newspapers and billboards call upon the nation's youth to serve in the navy. Skilled mechanics are promised rapid promotion. Special efforts are made to fill up the naval officers' corps to the required strength.

For this reason the old battleship Schlesien and the two cruisers, Emden and Karlsruhe, were converted into training ships for naval cadets. In addition, the sailing ship Gorch Fock is used as a cadet ship since the admiralty contends that future naval officers must first get a thorough training on a sailing vessel.

Germany has two battleships under construction at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven. Plans for new battleships have been completed and it is expected that the keels of these vessels will be laid in the near future.

Each battleship now under construction displaces 26,000 tons, and may be regarded as a reply to the French battleships Dunkerque and Strasbourg, which are of the same size as the German ships. The German battleships each will be armed with nine 11 inch guns mounted in three triple turrets and twelve 6 inch guns.

Contrary to other navies, the German admiralty adheres to the relatively small caliber of 11 inches for its heavy guns. The capital ships of the British and the United States navies carry guns up to 16 inches. The 11 inch guns are reported to be highly efficient, firing four rounds a minute instead of two rounds fired by the 16 inch guns. The German guns have a range of about 20 miles.

It can be safely assumed that the new battleships will have a high speed due to the comparatively low weight of their heavy artillery. It is expected the vessels will run at least as fast as the new French battleships; that is to say, 30 knots.

After their completion the German navy, together with the three pocket battleships, will have a fast squadron of capital ships, mounting together thirty-six 11 inch guns. The slowest vessel of this squadron has a speed of 27 knots. No other navy will have a squadron to match the German one, according to the Nazis. The three British battle cruisers, heavily armed and running at high speed, are rapidly nearing the age limit.

Germany is building two 10,000 ton cruisers, each armed with eight 8 inch guns, and 16 destroyers which were forbidden her under the Versailles treaty. Each destroyer displaces 1,625 tons, and is armed with five 5 inch guns and eight 21 inch torpedo tubes.

Interesting developments may be expected in the construction of U-boats. A flotilla of twenty submarines, each of which displaces 250 tons, is almost completed. These submarines are mainly for coastal defense and are armed with one machine gun and 3 torpedo tubes. The flotilla bears the name of Otto Weddigen, German naval hero, who sank three British cruisers off the mouth of the Thames at the beginning of the world war.

The flotilla is to be placed under the command of a "fuehrer of U-boats." Six other submarines displacing 500 tons each and two of 750 tons are under construction. Under the Anglo-German treaty the reich is entitled to 45 per cent of the size of the British submarine fleet or to about 50 U-boats of medium size.

A special clause of the treaty provides that Germany can build up to 100 per cent of the English submarines, but in this case she must deduct the tonnage exceeding 45 per cent from other categories.

Germany has completed five speed boats and is building another ten of this category. Each boat is armed with a machine gun and two 20 inch torpedo tubes. They are reported to have a very high speed and are believed by experts to be useful vessels in coastal defense.

Three dispatch boats, the Grille, Saar, and Tsingtau, were recently placed in commission. The vessels displace from 2,000 to 2,700 tons, have a speed of 16 to 20 knots and are armed with three 4 inch guns, anti-aircraft guns, and machine guns.

What is described as being an entirely new type of war vessel is a 600 ton craft of high speed. Germany is building ten of them. In the naval manuals they are listed as "F1—F10." They are armed with two 4 inch guns, anti-aircraft guns, and machine guns. Experts assert that these vessels, owing to their high speed, will be very useful in combating submarines, mine layers, and other smaller craft.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, March 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a judgment note which was filed for judgment March, 1931. It was signed by a husband and wife. A few months later the man died. The woman has two pieces of property. One is a vacant lot and the other a two flat building. On the building there was a $4,000 mortgage. The expiration of the mortgage was Feb. 1, 1936. 1. Could mortgage be renewed with this judgment note against it? 2. How long will this judgment be good against the property? If she refuses to give another judgment note when this judgment is void [3], what procedure could be taken? The lawyer who filed judgment is now dead. What should be done in this case?

E. W.

1. Yes. The ordinary extension agreement is in effect merely an agreement to keep alive an existing lien.

2. The lien continues for seven years, but can be extended by serving new court process.

3. Service new process. You can take the matter up with the sheriff's office. An alternative course would be to have a levy and sale to subject the property to the judgment.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PERSONAL SERVICES.

Wilmette, Ill., March 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a son claim any money from the estate for seven years of service keeping both homes in good shape and taking care of his mother before her death? He is single. None of the other children offered to help. 2. Some of the children borrowed money from the parents with the understanding it should be paid back or it should come out of their share of the estate. Can the other children demand that they pay it back?

J. S.

1. It is ordinarily presumed that such personal services between close relatives are gratuitous, but if you could show circumstances implying an agreement to pay, you would be entitled to collect.

2. Yes, on proper proof.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WITNESS TO WILL.

Benson, Ill., March 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise me if a disinterested party assumes any liability by supplying his name as a witness to a will or testament?

W. S.

Only that he can be expected to testify after the death of the testator.

BROOKS AND SMALL AS VOTE-GETTERS.

Chicago, March 24.—As an independent Republican I have been standing on the side lines watching the primary battle for governor; interested not in the success of any candidate but only in that of the party.

There are a number of good men in the battle, one or two not so good. One candidate, realizing the situation, has just withdrawn from the race; others, with not as good a chance, are still splitting up the vote.

We Republicans with no personal axes to grind want to see a good man nominated; one who can be elected and at the same time be a help rather than a hindrance in the even more important matter of carrying the state for the national ticket.

The primary seems to have simmered down to a race between Brooks and Small. Accordingly, although we may have had others whom we personally favored, if we're going to have any real voice in naming our candidate it now becomes necessary, as I see it, for us to choose between these two. Which will make the better candidate and, if elected, the better governor? This last is a matter of opinion, the first a matter of record. In 1932 Brooks, comparatively unknown, running for state treasurer, polled 1,497,931 votes; Small, running on the same ticket the third time for governor, polled 1,364,043 votes.

G. H. VAN CLEVE.

THE SUPREME COURT AND THE NEGRO.

Chicago, March 23.—THE TRIBUNE's editorial of this date, "The Supreme Court and the Negro," is highly commendable. It is true that the Supreme court of the United States is the last refuge of the Negro when his constitutional rights are violated in any of the states. It is especially true and a matter of indisputable history that the one article of the constitution designed primarily for the protection of his rights has been permitted by the Supreme court to be monopolized by an entirely different "person"—the corporation.

Mr. Justice Miller, speaking for the Supreme court in the so-called slaughter house cases in 1873, declared that the "main purpose [of the 14th amendment] to establish the citizenship of the Negro can admit of no doubt." This continued to be the opinion of the country and of the court until 1885. In that year ex-Senator Conkling of New York, who had returned to the practice of the law after failing of reëlection to the senate in 1881, appeared as attorney for the defendant in a case entitled San Mateo County v. Southern Pacific Railroad Company. In his argument he stated he had been a member of the committee of fifteen on reconstruction; that the framers of that amendment knew that in law the word "person" included corporations, and intended to include them. But neither congress nor the state legislatures that adopted the 14th amendment intended that.

While the court did not pass upon Conkling's point then, the following year Chief Justice Waite in a similar case, Santa Clara County v. Southern Pacific Railroad Company, shut off argument on the question whether the word "person" applied to corporations by saying: "We are all of the opinion that it does." From this time on the doorway to the 14th amendment was closed to a crack for the Negro, the natural person, and at the same time thrown wide open to the artificial person, the corporation. This constituted what Historian Beard declares "a revolution in constitutional law."

Previously the court had held that a corporation was not a citizen under the comity clause of article 4 giving equal rights to all citizens, and then by a fiction it held that as a corporation was composed of citizens it would presume they were all citizens of the state of incorporation and therefore the corporation could sue in the federal courts as if it were a citizen or person. Hence that part of section 1 of the 14th amendment reading, "nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws," has become to corporations a haven in time of need.

The word "person" is used in the constitution thirty-four times and in thirty-three times there is no possible meaning to be attached to the word other than that of a natural person. In the 14th amendment the word "person" is used five times and in four it can mean only "a natural person," and not a juristic person. No wonder that Beard calls it a "cabalistic word." It is at least a chameleon word as interpreted by the court.

A plainer case of judicial legislation cannot be found in the annals of the court. This interpretation has deluged the court with such a volume of cases, twenty to one as compared with Negro cases, that the court itself has cried out against the inundation.

Only a constitutional amendment can relieve the court from this pressure of business and from the inevitable misunderstanding and consequent censure of the court when in cases involving social and economic issues it decides contrary to the prevailing current of feeling. Such an amendment has been proposed in both houses of congress. If it should become a part of the constitution it would take the court out of the anomalous position it now occupies. For it would throw back the corporations upon the states that created them or upon the states in which they are licensed to do business.

Who can doubt but that the sovereign states of the Union, for their own welfare if for no other reason, would do justice by these artificial creations which have so much disturbed the political life of our people? They were never contemplated by the Declaration of Independence or by the constitution of the United States and are mentioned in neither document.

EDWARD T. LEE,
Dean, the John Marshall Law School.

Chicago, March 24.—I wish to thank THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and I am sure there are thousands of my people who will do the same, for the wonderful editorial yesterday on "The Supreme Court and the Negro."

S. T. RODGERS.

Sterling, Ill., March 23.—"The Supreme Court and the Negro," the editorial in Monday's TRIBUNE, should appeal to every constitutionalist and especially to every Christian. God bless the Supreme court and true Christian practice.

L. B. T.

Peoria, Ill., March 23.—I wish to congratulate THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its editorial "The Supreme Court and the Negro." It is my conception of a great editorial and a lesson for all.

DEBITS AND CREDITS.

Chicago, March 23.—I often wonder if the precinct workers for the Democratic party know what it cost them to work at the polls the last few years. Let's see what the record shows.

The workers were paid about $5 for each day at the polls. There were two primaries and two election days. This totaled $20 for the two years. These workers were home owners, automobile owners, and almost all were heads of families. They did their best to elect our present congressmen, state legislators and local officials. What congress has done in the way of increasing taxes cannot be estimated. But let's see what our state legislature and local officials did to increase taxes.

First, the sales tax. Second, a 1 cent increase in gasoline tax. Third, an increase in real estate taxes.

The average family spends about $20 per week for food on which the sales tax amounts to 60 cents a week or $62.40 for the two years.

The average car owner uses 608 gallons of gas per year on which the additional tax was 1 cent per gallon. This means an increase in tax of $12.15 for the last two years.

The average property tax bill of $75 was increased about 15 per cent in 1934, and an increase of 15 per cent in 1935 is certain. This means an increase of $24.18 for the years of 1934 and 1935.

The total increase in taxes for the two years amounts to $199.48. Subtracting the $20 the worker earned, leaves the cost to him of $179.48 to elect these tax gouging officials.

Possibly the worker gets some consolation in the belief that he prevented the election of officials who would have doubled this increase.

DANIEL J. MCGRATH.

FLOOD RELIEF.

Chicago, March 19.—I sincerely hope the school children's pennies will not be collected for the flood victims in the east and put in one man's pocket, as was the case when we had the Mississippi floods. I hope some one will see to it the Red Cross gets it this time.

70,000 ON DOLE IN NEWFOUNDLAND OUT OF 300,000

Leaders See Dangers to Youth of Country.

BY S. L. SHEPPARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., March 28.—Seventy thousand, or nearly 25 per cent, of Newfoundland's 300,000 population, are on the dole—with apparently beneficial effects on their physical health, but, it is feared, disastrous effects on their psychological health.

The rations received by those on relief are designed to counteract a tendency to beri beri among the inhabitants, and seem to be accomplishing this purpose. But more than one Newfoundland leader is shaking his head and predicting that the younger members of the present "dole generation" will grow up with distorted ideas of living lives, not of luxury, perhaps, but of idleness.

Where Is Money to Come From?

In view of the increasing tendency to live off the state the question arises, "Who will furnish the money when every one gets on the dole?"

The 70,000 on relief do not include, it is pointed out, the large number of permanent poor. And seafaring countries such as Newfoundland always have with them large numbers of destitute widows and orphans as a result of the perilous occupation of husbands and fathers—open sea fishing.

Newfoundland, which itself became a ward of Great Britain in 1930 as a result of financial disease, has been divided into districts for the administration of relief. Designated stores contract with the department of public health and welfare to supply groceries at stipulated prices. All the stores must stock, and all dole recipients must buy, a special whole wheat flour, milled in England, as a beri beri precaution.

21 Pounds Each Month.

Each adult must take at least 21 pounds [at 3 cents a pound] of this flour each month. He cannot substitute other groceries for flour.

The amount of the order depends on the number of persons in the family. One person gets a $2 order each month; two persons get $4; three, $5.85; four, $7.70; five, $9.50, and so on.

After he has bought his required quantity of flour, the "doler" may buy up to the amount of his order any of a number of other commodities.

No Money for Fuel.

No arrangements are made for fuel, as this can be obtained from the nearby forests. Virtually every one owns his own home, so there is no issue for rent.

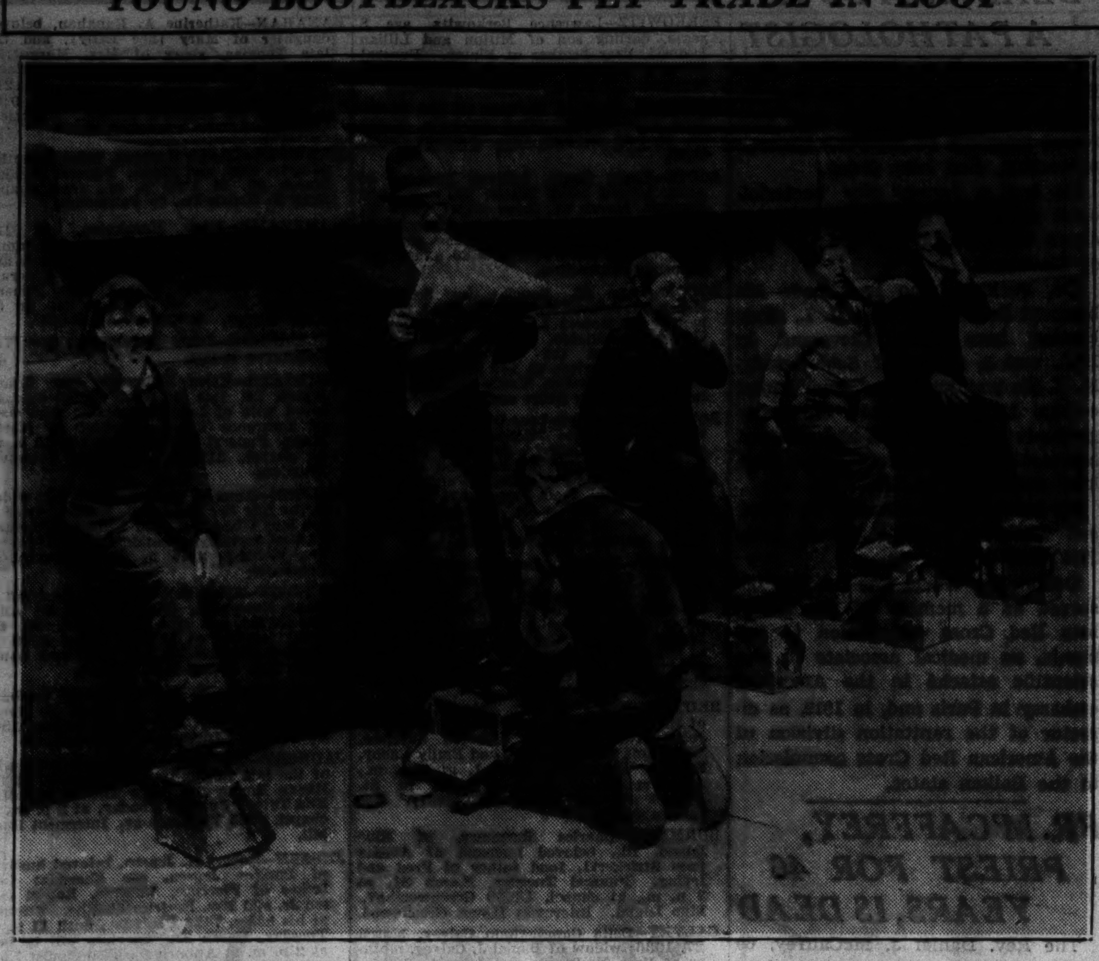
A "doler" who earns a few dollars must spend them for clothing, books, shoes, and other articles than food. Otherwise that amount will be deducted from his monthly order.

Medical care is provided free night or day upon application to the district relief officer. Drugs are also free upon the doctor's prescription.

SLAYING HELD JUSTIFIED.

Washington, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—Coroner C. P. Scudder of Washington today received a verdict of justifiable homicide in the shooting of John Stewart, Pike county farmer, by Policeman Prent Harris Thursday night.

YOUNG BOOTBLACKS PLY TRADE IN LOOP



These young shoeshiners hawk their service every Saturday morning near Clark street entrance of the county building, occasionally earning a nickel. The boys (left to right) are Patsy Fabino, 13, of 1063 Polk street; John Romano, 13; Tom Romano, 12, and John Fontano, 13, all of 1057 Polk street; and John Laino, 13, of 819 Sholto street.

PART OF DETROIT SHORTAGE MADE GOOD BY BANK

$241,950 Handed Over to City Fund.

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—[U.P.]—The National Bank of Detroit tonight made good $241,950 of the $349,000 city trust fund shortage, but contended the remainder was legally transferred to another city account to cover up defalcations by the late Harry M. Tyler, assistant city budget director.

Liability of the bank for a check of $106,792 allegedly withdrawn from the trust fund by Tyler to settle up receivership of the estate of Alex F. Lewis, welfare embezzler, will be determined some time in the future.

City's Claim Not Jeopardized.

The city does not jeopardize its chances of collecting this amount by acceptance of the admitted liabilities, Walter S. McLucas, president of the bank, said today as he handed City Treasurer Albert E. Cobo a deposit slip.

No new developments were reported, meantime, in the investigation of other phases of the defalcation.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Tyler, which is regarded more as an investigation by Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea to learn why he was not called into the case than to determine whether Tyler killed himself or was murdered, was in adjournment until Monday.

Called Suicide by Police.

Police pronounced Tyler a suicide when they found his body, a bullet wound through the head and a pistol in his hand, two weeks ago.

No action has been taken by a federal grand jury which heard presentation of evidence against James J. O'Shea, former vice president of the bank, who is charged with "knowingly and wilfully aiding and abetting one Harry M. Tyler in defalcations from a federal reserve bank." O'Shea, unable to raise $40,000 bonds, is being held in federal detention prison at Milan.

Votes for 14 Presidents; Learns He's Not Citizen

Tuscola, Ill., March 28.—(AP)—Having voted for fourteen Presidents, Peter P. Hammer, 78, today was applying for United States citizenship. He did not learn until a few days ago, when he applied for an old age pension, that he was not a citizen.

ESTATE IS $5,000 SHORT; EXECUTOR TO COUNTY JAIL

Gordon E. Eskersen, 48 years old, 3322 East avenue, Berwyn, an auditor, was committed to the county jail for an indefinite period yesterday by George A. Rooney, assistant to the judge of the Probate court, for withholding $5,000 from the heirs of a $10,000 estate of which he has been executor. Eskersen was arrested by deputy sherifs last Tuesday, after a search since last November, when relatives, who were heirs with him to the estate of an aunt, complained.

SURVEYOR DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

August Armbrecht, 52 years old, 7127 South Talman avenue, a surveyor, was stricken with a heart attack yesterday in 73d street near Wood street. He died while being taken to Holy Cross hospital.

ITALIANS BOMB KING'S POSITION; LOSE TWO PLANES

4,000 Explosives Dropped in Attack on Ethiopians.

ADDIS ABABA, March 28.—[U. P.]—Ethiopian sources claimed today that more than 4,000 bombs had been dropped in the region of Quoram where Emperor Haile Selassie is operating near Lake Ashangi.

A communique said two Italian airplanes had been shot down at Lake Ashangi, and that the emperor himself was believed to have accounted for one of them.

It was believed more than 30 Ethiopians were killed when Italian planes attacked Goba in the province of Bale with bombs and machine guns. One entire village was demolished.

Italians Claim New Victory.

ROME, March 28.—(AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander of the Italian forces in East Africa, reported today:

"On the western sector of the northern front troops are completing occupation of the Wolkait region. Yesterday they entered the formidable Bircutan position which with Kafta already in our possession assures domination of the whole region.

"There is intense aerial activity on both fronts."

[Dispatches from Asmara, Eritrea, said the Italians had occupied Sakota and Debarech, giving Italy control of the flow of caravan commerce between Addis Ababa and the Lake Tsana and Gojjam regions.]

One hundred and twenty bombers roared over the Littorio airport in Italy's annual air force show today while Premier Mussolini presented medals of valor to the families of aviators who have fallen in the Ethiopian war. Il Duce was accompanied by Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary and Fulvio Suvich, Italian undersecretary for foreign affairs.

Fly 20,000 Hours in War.

ROME, March 28.—[Havas].—Gen. Giuseppe Valle, undersecretary of state for air, told the Italian senate today that Italian aviators in East Africa had flown a total of 20,000 hours since the war with Ethiopia started. Two thousand tons of explosives have been dropped on Ethiopian towns and military bases and Italian aviators have fired 300,000 machine gun bullets in "strafing" attacks, he said. Gen. Valle declared that 10,000 trained pilots are now at Italy's disposal.

DEATH IN HAWAII OF JOHN F. ROSS REPORTED HERE

The death Monday in Honolulu of John Franklin Ross, of Wausau, Wis., a former Chicagoan, was announced here yesterday. Friends of the family said they were informed burial would be in Wausau, but that funeral arrangements awaited the arrival from Florida of Mrs. Albert T. Evans, 1420 Lake Shore drive, a sister. Besides Mrs. Evans Mr. Ross is survived by his widow, a daughter, and a second sister, Mrs. Matthew McCollough, also of Wausau. Mr. Ross owned extensive lumber and paper interests in the United States and Canada.

CHARGE LOSER AT POKER GOES BACK TO HOLD UP GAME

Harry Schulman, 30 years old, 2451 North avenue, lost $3 last night in a poker game with three other men at 1441 North Talman avenue. Then he quit the game, saying: "Well, boys, I'm leaving, but I'll be back."

Soon afterward three gunmen with handkerchiefs over their faces entered the room and robbed the three remaining players. Samuel Kople, 2307 Potomac avenue, lost $8; Morris Heller, 1308 North Damen avenue, $37, and Abraham Fischer, 1511 North Talman avenue, $15. During the holdup one of the robbers' masks slipped, and Kople and Heller said they recognized their ex-partner in the poker game, Mr. Schulman.

They notified the West North avenue police, and Sergt. Walter Garrison and his squad seized Schulman near Oakley and Potomac avenues. He denied taking part in the robbery, but Kople and Heller signed complaints charging him with robbery.

FIVE INJURED WHEN STREET CARS COLLIDE

Five persons were slightly injured last night when an eastbound Lake Park avenue street car smashed into a northbound Cottage Grove avenue car at 47th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Donald Logan, 42 years old, 13812 Emerald avenue, motorman of the Lake Park avenue car, told Hyde Park police the accident was caused by a faulty switch.

The injured, all of whom were riding on the northbound car, are Miss Ruby Hollingsworth, 43 years old, and Miss Joan Crawford, 42, both of 4011 Lake Park avenue; Mrs. Patrick Noonan, 1323 West 78th street; Ivan Olson, 29, of 314 West 88th street, conductor of the car, and Miss L. Cushman, 44 years old, 802 East 49th street. All were taken to the Chicago hospital.

Famous Kentucky Hotel of Past Victim of River

Maysville, Ky., March 28.—(AP)—The old St. James hotel collapsed here tonight, injuring one person while 50 others escaped unharmed. The three story hotel, fronting directly on the Ohio river and flooded during the last week, sagged without warning and the entire east side fell away. The St. James was the pride of the Ohio river 75 years ago, catering to the river trafic, with palatial paddle wheel steamers tying up at its own wharf.

Woman Injured by Leap from Her Burning Room

Mrs. Effie Adams, 50 years old, 1444 East 66th place, was critically injured early today when she leaped from a second floor window of her home after finding that the mattress of her bed was on fire. Police said she probably fell asleep while smoking a cigaret. She was taken to the Illinois Central hospital, where physicians said she had suffered burns and other injuries which might prove fatal.

Robbers Use Youth as Shield in Store Holdup

Alex Pawlowski, owner of a grocery store at 501 West 123d street, ran for his pistol last night when three gunmen entered the store and demanded his money. He fired one shot at the men, who then seized Arthur Scheper, 17 years old, 509 West 123d street, a clerk in the store, and used him as a shield as they backed out of the store. The bandits put Scheper in their automobile and carried him a block before releasing him.

LEAPS TO DEATH AS BLONDE LOVE MATE TAKES NAP

Champagne Bottles Tell of "Farewell" Party.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Louis Feldstein, who was under indictment for attempted grand larceny, charged with accepting $750 from a lawyer on the pretense that he could get him an appointment as an assistant district attorney, committed suicide today by leaping from a window on the fourteenth floor of the Park Central hotel. His body landed on a two-story extension of the hotel.

Arrested last Friday, Feldstein was at liberty in $3,500 bail. His trial had been set for next Thursday.

An attractive blonde woman was found in the room which Feldstein had occupied at the Park Central hotel.

Tells of Five Year Romance.

Awakened by police, after Feldstein, fully clothed, had leaped to his death, the woman, identified only as Beatrice Palmer, about 30 years old, told police that she was Feldstein's sweetheart, and had been for five years. Feldstein, she said, was divorced.

In the room were two empty champagne bottles. The woman said she and Feldstein drank the champagne last night.

The arrest of Feldstein provoked a bitter row between Commissioner of Accounts Paul Blanshard and District Attorney William C. Dodge. Commissioner Blanshard was present when Feldstein was taken into custody.

Publicity Stunt Is Charged.

The arrest, Blanshard said, was the result of an investigation conducted by his office. District Attorney Dodge charged that Commissioner Blanshard was merely "trying to grab off a lot of publicity."

On Monday of this week the prosecutor took his feud with Commissioner Blanshard to the Supreme court and obtained a temporary stay on a subpena served by Commissioner Blanshard on District Attorney Dodge's confidential secretary, Miss Florence Krellberg.

PRIVATE FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR DR. D. P. ABBOTT

Private funeral services were held yesterday for Dr. Donald Putnam Abbott, 5600 Kimbark avenue, widely known specialist in internal medicine, who died Thursday of pneumonia, in the Presbyterian hospital. Memorial services will be held later. Dr. Abbott was 51 years old.

Born in Brookline, Mass., a descendant of John Putnam, who came to Salem, Mass., in 1640, Dr. Abbott was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1907 and from Rush Medical college in 1910. He began his practice here the same year and later studied abroad in Vienna and Berlin. He was associate clinical professor of medicine at Rush for many years. He was on the staf of the Presbyterian hospital.

Dr. Abbott was a captain in the medical corps during the war and was stationed at a base hospital with the A. E. F. He was a member of the American Medical association, the Chicago Medical society, the Chicago Institute of Medicine, the Society of Internal Medicine, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Nu Sigma Nu fraternities, and of the University and the Quadrangle clubs. His offices were at 55 East Washington street.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Marion Dummer Abbott, and four children, Marion, Donald, Marjorie and Ruth.

"Capt." Albin, Tuscola Oil Magnate, Dies at Age of 65

Tuscola, Ill., March 28.—[Special]—A. C. Albin, 65 years old, known as "Captain" Albin, of Newman, died this morning. He was known for his success in the oil fields of Kentucky. After years of searching and buying oil leases, he "struck it rich" and came back to Douglas county with $800,000 which he invested in land and oil leases. He was a benefactor to many people.

Miss Laura B. Cristman, Teacher for Years, Dies

Miss Laura B. Cristman, for many years a public school teacher here, died yesterday at her home, 6454 Minerva avenue, after a short illness. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chapel at 7509 Stony Island avenue with cremation at Rosehill cemetery.

HOW TO BREAK YOURSELF OF CONSTIPATION

DO AS DOCTORS DO

Use this pleasant treatment to correct Constipation . . . and relieve Liver and Gall Bladder troubles

CERTAINLY you can have no sounder advice than this. When you need a laxative—DO AS DOCTORS DO—and take no chances. For doctors, of all people, should know what to take—and—

Over 50,000 doctors use or recommend Pluto Water for Constipation—and for relief from Liver and Gall Bladder troubles. Dr. V. N. of Michigan states: "I have used and prescribed Pluto Water for 40 years." Dr. E. L. S. of Ohio says: "I have found the use of Pluto Water in Gall Bladder cases to have remarkable results."

Relief in 1 Hour

With Pluto Water you do not have to dope yourself at night. There is no long period of waiting. No painful griping.

Simply mix 1/5 of a glass of Pluto Water with 4/5 of a glass of hot water. You'll find this mixture pleasant. Gentle. And, because of Pluto's "double action," quick and thorough in results.

For Pluto not only gives a complete bowel flush—but it also acts to stimulate the Liver and Gall Bladder to free-flowing action. That is why in 1 hour, or less, you feel and look like a new person.

Your head clears. Your energy returns. Your appetite improves.

Try This Doctors' Way

Pluto Water is bottled at the famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. It is a non-habit-forming saline mineral water. Sure! Quick! Gentle! Safe! Two hundred million bottles have already been used, largely on doctors' advice. Get Pluto from your druggist—either in the 25c size or the large 50c size which contains three times the quantity. In 1 hour, or less, your Constipation will be relieved, and you'll feel worlds better.

J. BENNETT GORDON, G. O. P. RESEARCH AID FOR 15 YEARS, DEAD

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—J. Bennett Gordon, 60, former newspaper man and for the last 15 years research director of the Republican national committee, died at his home here today. He had been ill for more than a month after an attack of influenza. That caused him to withdraw from his committee post.

Gordon's first newspaper job was with the Richmond, Ind., Item. He left that to become editor of the Indianapolis Sun. Later he worked for the Milwaukee Sentinel, the Sioux City, Ia., Tribune, and the Philadelphia Times. He was on the staf of the Washington Times just before he became associated with the Republican committee in 1921.

His body started today for Richmond, Ind., his birthplace, for funeral services and burial. His widow, the former Jessie Landwehr of Richmond, Ind., survives him.

DR. JOHN M'HUGH OF GARFIELD PARK HOSPITAL IS DEAD

Dr. John A. McHugh, 62 years old, 1932 South Avers avenue, died yesterday at the Garfield Park Community hospital after a short illness. He had been a member of the hospital staf since 1920.

Dr. McHugh was born in Brooklyn, April 7, 1873. The family later moved to Chicago, and in 1901 he graduated from the Harvey Medical college. Dr. McHugh served his internship at the hospital of St. Anthony de Padua. At one time he was on the staf of this hospital and the County hospital.

In addition to his profession Dr. McHugh was interested in literature and music. He published several poems and also composed the words and music of a number of popular songs, according to members of the family.

Surviving him are his widow, the former Agnes Allie, and eight children, Thomas, Ruth, Bertrand, Perlette, Agnes, Dorothy, Douglas, and Mary.

F. T. M'ENERY, 68, DIES IN OFFICE OF HEART ATTACK

Francis T. M. McEnery, 618 Buckingham place, president of the McEnery Paper company, died of heart disease yesterday in his office at 176 West Adams street. He was 68 years old.

His secretary, Miss Juliet Kellough, 2061 Home avenue, told the Central police her employer had been ill for several years. When he collapsed at his desk shortly after lunch she called a physician, who pronounced him dead.

Two daughters, Mrs. Betty Frances Smith of Carpentersville, Kane county, and Miss Ruth McEnery of Pinehurst, N. C., survive. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon in the chapel at 6659 South Halsted street.

DOUBLE THE COLD

uses less current than ever!

BY ALL means see the wonderful new 1936 General Electric Refrigerators. Prepare yourself for a pleasant shock—for the 1936 models set a record for economy that you will find hard to beat.

The "ageless" sealed-in-steel mechanism, long famous for its economy and trouble-free performance, now gives DOUBLE THE COLD and uses less current than ever before. That's something. It means you are getting twice as much performance for about half the operating cost. And your pocketbook likes that kind of economy.

Every PRACTICAL Modern Convenience Feature

No trick "gadgets" to get out of order

General Electric was first to introduce sealed-in-steel mechanism, all-steel cabinets, stainless steel super-freezer, sliding shelves, rounded interior corners, and a host of other features that mean longer life and greater convenience.

And now General Electric is first to introduce refrigerators that give you DOUBLE THE COLD and use less current.

The new 1936 G-E models have temperature control, defrosting switch, interior lighting, foot-pedal door opener, vegetable compartment, et cetera. All practical and useful.

Sealed-in-Steel Since 1927

Both G-E Monitor Top and G-E Flatop Refrigerators carry 5 years performance protection on the sealed-in-steel mechanism.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tampa, Fla., March 28.—Charley Root this afternoon couldn't pick up where Fabian [Mike] Kowalik left off, and as a consequence the Cincinnati Reds licked the Cubs, 7 to 3. It was the fourth straight whipping the champions have taken at the hands of National league opposition, and again plunked them back to a .500 standing against major league competition.

While the failure of Root was the determining factor in the contest, there was no inspiration for cheers in the Cub attack, a matter of five hits, all of which were blooperish except a lusty triple by Stan Hack. On the other hand, the Reds made fourteen hits, including homers by Kiki Cuyler and Bill Myers. Myers also got a double and Hub Walker had two doubles. Kampouris' triple and a double by Campbell also were damaging.

Some consolation was to be found in the fact that the Cubs employed a miscellaneous lineup in order to save up for their battle with the New York Yankees tomorrow.

Galan Coasts Around.

The champs got a cheap run in the first inning. Galan and Herman walked on eight pitches. Galan finished the trip around on two grounders to Myers.

After wasting a double by Walker in the first inning, the Reds tied the score in their second session. Riggs singled and Goodman flied to Gill. McQuinn forced Riggs and scored on Myers' double to center. Nelson fanned.

Galan led off the third with a single to left, his first hit in 15 times at bat. Herman fanned, but Klein put Galan on third with a single to center. O'Dea again drove in Galan with an out, this time putting Augie across with a fly to Goodman. Gill singled to right, but Cavarretta flied to Goodman.

Kiki Blasts One.

With two out in the home third, Cuyler socked a 460 foot homer and the score again was tied.

Hack launched the fourth with a triple to right center, paused while English popped to Myers, and scored on Kowalik's fly.

Fatso Brennan took over the Cincinnati pitching in the fifth. He fanned Herman, made Klein tap to McQuinn, made Gill foul to Riggs after O'Dea had singled.

The Cubs held the Reds short of third base despite some grief in the fifth, Kowalik's last inning. Walker led off with his second double, but was run down on Cuyler's grounder to Herman. Cuyler reached second and Campbell first on Herman's fumble. Then Riggs lined into a double play, English to Herman.

Reds Pick on Charley.

The Reds leaned on Root in the seventh. With one down Kampouris tripled to right center and scored the tying run on Herman's wild relay. Walker singled and stopped at second on Cuyler's single. Campbell's grounder skidded past Herman for a double, Walker and Cuyler scoring. Riggs singled to center, scoring Campbell, and took second on the throw in. Goodman flied to Galan and McQuinn fanned.

Myers completed the Reds' scoring with a homer with which he led off the eighth.

Glenn Cunningham to Run in St. Louis Indoor Relays

St. Louis, Mo., March 28.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, world record holder for the mile run both indoors and out, will race in the St. Louis indoor relays here April 4.

Badger Boxer Wins National College Title

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Charlottesville, Va., March 28.—The National Collegiate Athletic association tonight chose its eight champions who will lead the boxing forces of American colleges and universities to the Olympic trials May 7 and 8 in Chicago. Eight boys won the highest university honors and these eight—ask their opponents and the 4,000 spectators who tonight packed the University of Virginia's gymnasium from rafters to floor—are worthy of encounter with any boxing team in the nation.

The eight titles were evenly divided between the north and the south. Syracuse, long one of the principal factors in eastern intercollegiate boxing, captured two championships. Duke university of Durham, N. C., led by Danny Farrar, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves and International champion, took two more titles. Wisconsin, by virtue of Bob Fadner's brilliant battle in the featherweight class, brought one title back to Big Ten territory. The other championships were won by Western Maryland, Penn State, and West Virginia.

Olympic Trials Next.

An Olympic year was needed to bring out the best of the university boxers. This was the incentive for this two day battle of gloves for the men from 28 colleges and universities. They now are waiting the beginning of the United States Olympic tournament which will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and which will be climaxed by the eight Olympic title matches on May 20 in Chicago Stadium.

These eight men form a tremendously powerful team. They will be backed by 24 others, eight of them tonight's defeated finalists, the others to be named by the national collegiate committee of which Hugo Bezdek, of Penn State, a member of the Olympic committee, is chairman.

Golden Gloves champions, qualifiers in the National A. A. U. tournament next month in Cleveland, and representatives of the army and navy will learn that these lads here tonight know how to use their fists. Moreover, all displayed courage and aggressiveness which will help make America's Olympic team one of the greatest of all time and which will encourage Head Coach John Behr when he begins drills for the Berlin invasion in August.

Danny Farrar Wins.

Danny Farrar ranks as he did two years ago as one of the finest amateur welterweights in the country. Danny is the same old Danny. He has a left hook which carries dynamite, a right to ward off attack. Never has he fought better than tonight. After whipping Art McGivern of Syracuse in the semi-finals Farrar unleashed his complete attack against Sam Donato of Penn State.

Donato never had been beaten until tonight, but he learned about left hooks from Danny. Twice in the first round Donato went to the floor for eight counts and at the bell ending the first round Farrar staggered him with another left which flashed only six inches but which carried the kick of a Missouri mule.

After this there was no doubt of the outcome and although Farrar coasted in the second round he forced the battle at the end and again had the Penn State boy on the run.

Farrar has a splendid teammate in Duke's light heavyweight national collegiate champion, Ray Matulewicz. He gave Max Novich of North Carolina a trimming in three rounds, finishing with the speed of a whirlwind and Novich was almost helpless on the ropes at the end. In the semi-finals Matulewicz stopped Carl Inman of Mississippi State.

Fadner Wins for Wisconsin.

Give a lot of credit to Bob Fadner of Wisconsin. This clever youngster will make Ted Kara of Cleveland look to his laurels if they meet May 7 in Chicago. Tonight Fadner trounced Denver Welch of West Virginia with a steadily pressing attack just as in the afternoon he had hammered out a decision over Elmer Kelly of Loyola of New Orleans. This Kelly person went to the finals of last year's national A. A. U. tournament in St. Louis.

We saw one of the greatest amateur heavyweight fights of all time tonight between tall, black haired Tom Pontecorvo of Western Maryland, and chunky Jim Brown of Syracuse. Pontecorvo, superbly conditioned, laced the slower moving Brown for the title and when these giants crashed together we only could wish they had been fighting for Chicago in the recent Golden Gloves engagement with New York.

Mickey Brutto, an unheralded 115 pounder from West Virginia, was the surprise of the tournament. He whipped Russ Criswell, of Penn State, who for the last three years has been eastern intercollegiate champion. Criswell was on the floor for a count of three in the first round. The bout was refereed by Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world.

Meanwell Sees Bouts.

In tonight's crowd also were Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, former director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, and Glenn Thistlethwaite, who finished a five year span as football coach in 1932 at the same institution and now is head coach at the University of Richmond.

Frank Goodman, of Penn State, whipped John Mastrella, of Syracuse, for the lightweight title. Both are fast, clever boxers, and their very speed made the match seem uninter-

NOW SHAMROCKS CAN TRY FOR ONE

Capt. L. R. Ireland of the Chicago Shamrocks is about to clear the ball from near the Chicago goal as the Shamrocks avert a possible score by Fort Hamilton last night in low goal division of national indoor polo tournament at 124th field artillery armory. Goal posts can be seen at right. Left to right are Capt. Ireland, Capt. R. L. Dulaney of Fort Hamilton, and Lieut. C. M. Schuh of the Shamrocks. The Shamrocks won, 9½ to 7½.

EAST AND WEST DIVIDE INDOOR POLO BATTLES

East and west divided honors last night in the National Indoor Polo tournament at the 124th Field Artillery armory. The Shamrocks of Chicago defeated Fort Hamilton of Brooklyn in the Sherman cup class for teams of less than six goals rating, while Squadron C of Brooklyn came back to whip the Cleveland Riding club in the junior division for trios of six to twelve goals rating.

After the Shamrocks had defeated Fort Hamilton, 9½ to 7½, Squadron C put the east on even terms by beating Cleveland, 10 to 8½.

Cleveland Trails Early.

Apparently outclassed, the Cleveland trio of Nelson Newcomb, George Waibel and Ernest Stahli trailed Squadron C's combination of Capt. Milton Kornblum, Cal Pflug and John Pflug, by 3½ points at the end of the second chukker. It was midway in this period before the Cleveland team scored its first goal. Meanwhile, Squadron C scored with regularity, Capt. Kornblum driving in five of his six goals in the first two chukkers, and Jack Pflug shooting the other two.

The Cleveland attack began to function following the intermission, Waibel and Newcomb leading the rally in the last two chukkers. A goal by Waibel during this attack put Cleveland within a point of the lead, but a foul called against him near gong time set the team back a half point and clinched the contest for the eastern title winners.

Resume Battles Wednesday.

The teams that met last night will continue the national title battles Wednesday night at the Washington park armory, when the New York Athletic club and Cleveland Riding club senior teams begin a best two out of three game series.

Track Athletes Set Ten Records in Texas Relays

Austin, Tex., March 28.—(AP)—Despite a stiff wind, ten records were smashed today in the Texas relays, the nation's first outdoor meet of the Olympic year. College athletes set seven of the marks and high schools three.

The University of Texas Longhorns lowered the relays record of 1:27 in the half-mile relay to 1:25.6, but failed to equal the world record of 1:24.8. The Longhorns also bettered the previous mark for the quarter-mile relay by two-tenths of a second with a time of 41.5 seconds.

Baptists Set Mark.

The medley relay record of 3:35.2, established in 1928 by the Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg, Kas., was broken by the Oklahoma Baptists, with 3:33.

Kansas State took one-tenth of a second off the old record in the mile team race, timed at 4:28.4. The Emporia, Kas., Teachers lowered the record for the distance medley to 10:22.5.

New marks in field events were set in the shot put and the pole vault. Francis of the University of Nebraska hurled the shot 51 feet 9¾ inches, breaking the record of 51 feet 2½ inches set by Rhea of Nebraska in 1931.

Roy Sets Vault Record.

Billy Roy of Loyola of the South cleared the bar in the pole vault at 13 feet 9⅞ inches to better the record of 13 feet 8½ inches made by Warne of Northwestern in 1930.

Glen [Slats] Hardin, formerly of Louisiana State, showed excellent form in winning a special 400 meter hurdle race in which he holds the world record. Hardin defeated Alex Cox, former captain of the University of Texas track team, in 54.9 seconds.

Weather was fair despite a southwest cross wind.

The summaries:

SHOT PUT—Won by Francis, Nebraska; Dryer, Kansas State Teachers [Emporia], second; Erwin, T. C. U., third. Distance—51 feet 9¾ inches [new relay record].

PEACOCK BEATS OWENS IN FIFTY YARD EXHIBITION

Cleveland, O., March 28.—(AP)—Eulace Peacock, Temple university dash star, defeated Jesse Owens of Ohio State university by less than a foot in a 50 yard exhibition race tonight. The time was 5.4 seconds, two-tenths of a second slower than Owens' meet record.

Dave Politzer of Western Reserve university was third and Bob Lewis of Ohio State, fourth as the Philadelphia star outdistanced his Buckeye rival for the fourth straight time.

Peacock's other victories over Owens came in longer sprints late last season after the Ohio State track captain had gone through a hard campaign, breaking three world's record marks in the broad jump, hurdles, and 220 yard dash, and tying the accredited 100 yard dash record in one day.

Each won his qualifying heat tonight in 5.4 seconds. Five timers agreed in clocking Peacock first and Owens a very close second.

Triple Play Features Coast League Opening

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—[Special.]—One two hit game in which Johnny Chambers of Sacramento, beat Portland, 2 to 0, at Sacramento, and one four hit game, with Wee Ludolph defeating Seattle, 6 to 1, at Oakland, and a triple play at Sacramento featured the opening of the 24 week Coast league baseball season today.

The triple play developed when Shortstop Sid Stringfellow, Second Baseman Morehouse, and First Baseman Jim Grilk retired the side for Portland in the first inning. Pitcher Chambers permitted no hit after the third inning.

San Francisco, 1935 champions, beat the Missions, 3 to 1, with Tony Boroja hitting a home run in the fifth inning.

Los Angeles won a free hitting game from San Diego, baby club of the league, 7 to 5, here.

LEAFS WIN, 3-1, IN FIRST GAME WITH AMERICANS

TORONTO, Ont., March 28.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs tonight defeated the New York Americans, 3 to 1, to take the first of a two out of three game series in the semi-finals of the National Hocky league Stanley cup playoffs.

The Americans, after a scoreless first period, went into the lead 31 seconds after the second period opened when Eddie Wiseman scored unassisted, but the Leafs came back with a third period surge that netted their three goals, Buzz Boll scoring the first after taking a pass from King Clancy and the third unassisted. Harvey Jackson tallied the second, also on a pass from Clancy.

A crowd of 13,000 saw the stubborn Americans defense crumble in the third period. The Leafs, conquerors of the Boston Bruins in the first round of the playoffs, found the hard hitting New York barricade too much for them in the first two periods, but assisted by penalties they finally sifted through in the last chapter.

The second game of the series will be played Tuesday in New York when the Leafs will receive an opportunity to qualify for the Stanley cup finals. Should a third game be necessary, it will be played here Thursday.

Picard Beats Mangrum in Golf Playoff

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28.—(AP)—Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., completed five rounds of consistent scoring over one of the world's most testing golf courses by firing a 72 today to defeat Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh by five strokes in a playoff for the north and south open championship.

For the five rounds of the tournament and playoff Picard scored 71, 72, 73, 72, 72, and thus was even par for 90 holes over the remodeled No. 2 course here. Mangrum matched Picard's 72 hole total of 288 with scores of 73, 68, 75, 72, but took a 77 in the playoff for the gold medal and $1,000 which went to the winner. Second place money in the $4,000 tournament was $600.

Picard Takes Lead.

From the first hole, at which he played a spectacular shot to the green from behind a clump of pines where his sliced drive had ended, Picard was always in the lead in the playoff. Mangrum lashed his tee shot straight down the middle, but his second was wide and he took a 5 while the Hershey professional got his 4.

Three one-putt greens in succession followed for Picard and he finished out the nine holes with a 33, while Mangrum, who was two over par at the eighth and one over at the ninth, had a 39 and was six strokes behind.

Three putts on the eleventh and a trapped second of the twelfth cost Mangrum two more strokes and it appeared "in the bag" for Picard, but the Pittsburgh pro kept trying and picked up two shots at the fourteenth with a 3 to Picard's 5.

Picard Has Trouble.

Then on the sixteenth Picard made his worst error, hooking into the woods from the tee. Except for a break of luck he might have lost two strokes or more. His second shot, played with a wood, hit a tree in the middle and bounded into a trap guarding the seventh hole. Had it caromed as far into the woods anything might have happened. As it was Picard came out for a 5 and lost only one stroke. He dropped another at the seventh, where he was bunkered, but got it back on the eighteenth when Mangrum took a 5.

North Carolina Offers Coaching Job to Wolf

Fort Worth, Tex., March 28.—(AP)—Raymond Wolf, Texas Christian university's athletic director and veteran line coach, confirmed reports today that he had been approached by officials of the University of North Carolina in connection with the head football coaching post. It was left vacant recently when Carl Snavely became coach at Cornell.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 28.—A home run by Bud Hafey ruined his former White Sox pals today in the opener of the 13 game spring tour with Pittsburgh's Pirates. The young man, serving as a pinch hitter, knocked the ball over the fence in the ninth inning to tie the score and the deadlock remained until the twelfth when Vernon Kennedy succumbed before another assault which fastened down a 4 to 3 victory for the National leaguers.

The Sox, probably because they hadn't seen any real pitching for a week, didn't put on much of a hitting demonstration. They broke loose on only one occasion, this flurry coming in the fourth when with two Chicagoans on base Luke Sewell slammed one of Old Man Waite Hoyt's pitches out of the park. That cluster of three would have been sufficient if Kennedy had been able to dodge either a blast which netted two Pirate runs in the eighth or the damaging Hafey homer in the ninth.

Whitehead Is Ready.

Prior to Kennedy's appearance the Pirates had been made to look more or less impotent by John Henderson Whitehead, who proved that so far as he is concerned the regular season can open immediately. He exhibited his wares during the first five innings and the National leaguers nicked him for only three hits, one a scratch affair. But Kennedy, trying to get by mainly on speed, was different. He was the unhappy victim of nine hits in seven innings and the total would have been greater if his mates hadn't shown unusual skill in spearing line drives.

Merely as an experiment Manager Jimmy Dykes installed George Washington in right field and moved Mike Kreevich into center. The main idea of this, aside from the suspicion that Washington might do some hitting, was to get a definite line on his ailing throwing arm. He didn't have a chance to throw, so Dykes learned nothing. Neither did Washington figure with his bat. He was up four times with runners on base and failed in each instance. Once he hit into a double play with two on and none out while Bill Swift was pitching in the seventh.

That Deciding Run.

The run that concluded the day's activities came after Kennedy had disposed of two men in the twelfth. With one out, Paul Waner walked. Fred Schulte, the former American leaguer, who had compiled three hits, flied to Kreevich. This brought up the highly skilled Arky Vaughan, who had done considerable damage with a double in the eighth. This time he lined a single to right, Waner sprinting to third. An instant later Gus Suhr handcuffed Mule Haas with a drive along the first base line and the hit moved Waner home with the deciding tally.

The blast that seperated Hoyt and his Pirate pals from three runs in the fourth inning began with a single to center by Appling. Jensen flagged a liner by Hayes. Dykes contributed a single to left. Sewell leaned against Hoyt's first pitch and drove it over the left field wall, scoring Appling and Dykes ahead of him. Whitehead was disposed of on a fly to P. Waner, after which Radcliff and Kreevich delivered singles. The inning was con-

YANKEES SHUT OUT BEES WITH FOUR HITS, 5-0

New York Pounds Benge in 7th and 8th.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 28.—(AP)—Behind the combined four hit pitching of Irving [Bump] Hadley and Pat Malone, the New York Yankees shut out the Boston Bees, 5 to 0, today for their fourth straight decision over the National league club and their sixth victory in ten exhibition games.

Hadley, pitching the first five innings, allowed two of the hits. The other two came off Malone in the last four innings. The Yankees pounded Danny MacFayden and Ray Benge for 11 safeties, but did not score until the seventh and eight innings, when they bunched six of their hits with Benge on the mound. Arndt Jorgens led the Yankee attack with a pair of doubles and a single.

DEVINE WINS 4 MAT BOUTS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

The Inter-Fraternity club of Chicago, led by Pat Devine, former Indiana wrestler in the 134 pound class, paced the field in the Olympic semifinal wrestling trials held at Lawson Y. M. C. A. last night.

Devine won four matches through the semi-finals and finals by falls. His victims in the two final matches were George Faris, University of Chicago, and Antonacci, an Inter-Fraternity teammate. Antonacci was awarded second place and Faris third.

THEY'RE OUT FOR A. A. U. SWIM TITLES

Adolf Kiefer (left), Chicago schoolboy swim star, who holds every world men's backstroke record, is expected to retain his titles in the National A. A. U. swimming meet which opens at the Lake Shore A. C. Wednesday and continues through Saturday. Margie Smith (right), University of Chicago, is expected to give Eleanor Holm Jarrett chief competition in the backstroke. She finished second in the 100 yard event last year, forcing Mrs. Jarrett to a new record.

Pirates Beat Sox, 4 to 3, in Twelve Innings

cluded with Haas' grounder on which Kreevich was forced at second.

Jensen opened the Pirates' first inning by doubling to left and being nipped when he attempted to stretch the hit into a triple. Then the National leaguers didn't get another man on base against Whitehead until P. Waner singled with one out in the fourth. Schulte also singled, the ball caroming off Dykes' glove. Kreevich took care of a fly off Vaughan's dangerous bat. A pass to Suhr filled the bases. Whitehead had no trouble escaping from this situation. Sewell picked up Traynor's gentle tap and stepped on the plate to force P. Waner.

When Kennedy went to work in the sixth, the Pirates came up with their fourth hit. Schulte singled to center with two out. Kennedy then induced the dangerous Mr. Vaughan to roll easily to Haas.

The Sox fixed up a scoring plan against Swift in the seventh, but weren't able to carry it through. The inning opened with a pass to Kreevich. Haas slapped a single into left. This gave Washington a chance to do something of consequence, but he banged into a double play, leaving Kreevich on third. Appling then hit one solidly, but it sailed on a line into Young's hands.

Pass Starts Trouble.

The Pirate half of the seventh brought two singles off Kennedy. For a starter Suhr fouled to Grube. Brubaker, who took Traynor's place, singled to left. Young flied to Washington. Padden dropped a Texas league single in short right just out of Hayes' reach and Brubaker took third. Swift rolled into a forceout to finish the inning.

The trouble that had Kennedy tottering slightly in the eighth got under way when P. Waner walked with one out. Schulte singled to center for his third hit. Vaughan hit the left field wall for two bases, P. Waner scoring and Schulte stopping at third. Suhr slammed a wicked liner to right center, but Kreevich sprinted back and staged a hair raising catch. Schulte scored on the play. Kennedy kept himself in hot water by walking Brubaker, but momentary relief came when Hayes grabbed Young's liner. Then Hafey tied it up in the ninth with his homer over the left field barrier.

Blanton and Bush Today.

The Sox had a close call in the eleventh. Young tripled to left center with one out. Dickshot was rushed forth to bat for Finney. He slapped a slow roller along the first base line and was tagged by Kennedy, who recovered the tap. Young remained at third while this was going on. Lucas batted for Swift and flied to Kreevich. Lucas then held the Sox to one hit in the twelfth and a moment later his fellow workers put on the finishing touch against Kennedy.

The second of the thirteen game series will be staged here tomorrow, with Monty Stratton and Les Tietje billed to handle the Sox pitching. The Pirate performers will be Cy Blanton and Guy Bush.

Cubs Recall '32 Series; Will Bear Down on Yanks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tampa, Fla., March 28.—Recalling certain embarrassing matters that transpired during the 1932 world series, Manager Grimm has decided to bear down against the New York Yankees. He ordered rest periods today for himself, Gabby Hartnett, Bill Jurges, and Frank Demaree. Jurges had started every exhibition game this year and when he asked to be a bit tardy for practice that he might see Mrs. Jurges off for Chicago, the Boss excused him and sent forth Capt. English to play shortstop.

◆

Larry French, who recently has lacked much in approximating the physical condition that was his when he reported at Catalina on Feb. 21, will start against the Yanks. Bill Lee, who has been pitching brilliantly, will finish.

Open A. A. U. Swim Meet on Wednesday

America's Olympic swimming prospects will take to the water at the Lake Shore Athletic club this week in the annual quest for A. A. U. senior indoor championships.

Nearly all the hopes of the United States for triumphs over stars of the rest of the world will join in the four day event which opens Wednesday. Entries have been filed by each defending champion and by most of their foremost foes of previous meets.

The carnival, marking the first time the men's and women's title events have been held at the same time in the same pool, will amount to the season's only possibility for an American Olympic preview.

With few exceptions the meet shapes up as an opportunity for further glory for the defending champion group. Katherine Rawls of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Eleanor Kight Wingard of Cincinnati, who divided the swimming titles between them in the Lake Shore pool a year ago, appear certain to repeat.

In the men's group Jack Medica of the University of Washington, Adolph Kiefer, Chicago's schoolboy back stroke marvel; Peter Fick and Leonard Spence of New York appear just as sure to retain their titles.

Kiefer has established himself in a class apart as far as the backstroke is concerned. He holds, or has bettered, every record for that style and is improving all the time. If Kiefer slips, Danny Zehr, schoolboy star of the 1932 Olympics; Al Vande Weghe of Newark, N. J., and Taylor Drysdale, former University of Michigan star, will be ready to fight for the honors at 150 yards.

U. OF CALIFORNIA TRACKMEN LOSE TO OLYMPIC CLUB

Berkeley, Cal., March 28.—(AP)—Scoring easy victories in ten of the fifteen events, track and field athletes of the Olympic club opened their season here today with a 75½ to 55½ triumph over University of California.

Norman Bright, red-headed school teacher, was the only double winner. The husky holder of the American two-mile record won the mile race in 4:17.5 and the two mile event over Les Voorhees of California in 9:44.

Ben Eastman, holder of four world's running records and coholder of a fifth title, competed only in the 880 yard run, winning by 20 yards from Dick Brace of the Bears in 1:55.4.

Benny Leonard Plans to Be Wrestling Referee

New York, March 28.—[U. P.]—Benny Leonard, one of the greatest of all lightweight champions, is going to be a wrestling referee. Leonard announced today that he would leave tomorrow for New England where he will referee five bouts next week, beginning Monday in Quincy, Mass.

George Washington Nine Defeats Ohio State, 10-7

Alexandria, Va., March 28.—(AP)—George Washington university pounded three Ohio State pitchers for a 10 to 7 victory today. Bob Williams' home run with Price on base in the seventh broke a 6 to 6 deadlock.

MEDICA WINS 3D SWIM TITLE; NEW MARK BY KASLEY

Michigan Star Breaks Breast Stroke Record.

New Haven, Conn., March 28.—(AP)—Jack Medica, from the University of Washington, won the 440 yard free style race in the National Collegiate A. A. swimming meet tonight. The dark haired Seattle speedster captured the 1,500 meter and 220 yard free style events yesterday and thus became a triple N. C. A. A. champion for the third time in three years.

Medica led throughout and triumphed over Jim Gilhula of Southern California, who was second, by eight yards. Medica's time was 4:44.6, nearly two seconds slower than the intercollegiate mark he recorded last year at Cambridge, Mass.

The field tonight was exactly the same as that which competed last year.

Kasley Breaks Record.

A short time before this event, Jim Kasley, Michigan's great star, turned in a mark of 2:25 for the 200 yard breast stroke, which bettered the existing world's record of 2:25.2 made by J. Cartonnet of France last May. Kasley did even better in his afternoon heat, hanging up a time of 2:22.5.

Medica, still suffering slightly from a cold, set a furious pace from the start and gradually drew away from all but Gilhula who clung close for the first 200 yards. Medica indicated by the victory he was ready to play a prominent part in the United States Olympic swimming team's battle against Japan at Berlin next summer.

Keeps Diving Title.

Capt. Frank Fehsenfeld of Michigan held on to his three meter board diving title by compiling 146.22 points. Jim Patterson of Ohio State gave the champion a hard battle for the crown, scoring 145.28. Ted Diefendorf of Michigan was third with 139.54.

A powerful Iowa 400 yard relay team composed of Jacobsmeyer, Christians, Walters, and Sieg stood off a challenge by Yale to win the event and succeeed Michigan as N. C. A. A. champion. Iowa's time was 3:35.5.

The summaries:

THREE METER HIGH BOARD DIVING—Won by Fehsenfeld, Michigan, 146.22; Patterson, Ohio State, 145.28, second; Diefendorf, Michigan, 139.54, third; Grady, Michigan, 139.50, fourth; Johnston, Michigan, 139.06, fifth; Kallman, Ohio State, 119.44, sixth.

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Hutter, Harvard; Walters, Iowa, second; Macionis, Yale, third; Cooke, Yale, fourth; Reilly, Rutgers, fifth; J. Brown, Chicago, sixth. Time, :52.9.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Kasley, Michigan; Degnan, Wesleyan, second; Heilpern, Ohio, third; Horschke, Northwestern, fourth; Gorman, Western Reserve, fifth; Jacoby, Lehigh, sixth. Time, 2:25.

400 yard relay—Won by Iowa [Jacobsmeyer, Christians, Walters, Sieg]; Yale, second; Harvard, third; Illinois, fourth; Michigan, fifth; Brown, sixth. Time, 3:35.5.

440 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Medica, Washington; Gilhula, Southern California, second; Jacobsmeyer, Iowa, third; Barnard, Michigan, fourth; Hoyt, Yale, fifth; Woodford, Ohio, sixth. Time, 4:44.6.

Carroll Wins, 22-19, to Keep K. of C. Title

Coming from behind in the closing minutes of play, Carroll defeated Loyola-Hyde Park, 22 to 19, to retain its championship in the Knights of Columbus basketball league last night at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

Held without a basket for the first ten minutes of the second half, and trailing by seven points, Carroll spurted when Eddie Kolar put on a personal drive that didn't end until he had his team a point in front. Then his brother Otto finished the job with another basket that cinched the game with fifty seconds to play.

Loyola's defense and Williams' long shooting kept Carroll in check until the last two minutes when E. Kolar's basket tied the score.

It marked the seventh successive year that the west section has won the title.

St. Cyr Wins, 21 to 20.

Two baskets in the last 15 seconds by Joe Desiderato gave St. Cyr of the west division, a 21 to 20 victory over Quigley, and third place. With the south side team leading 13 to 6 at the half and ahead 5 points with two minutes to play, the St. Cyr cause appeared hopeless, but Guagliardo made two free throws, then Desiderato finished the job.

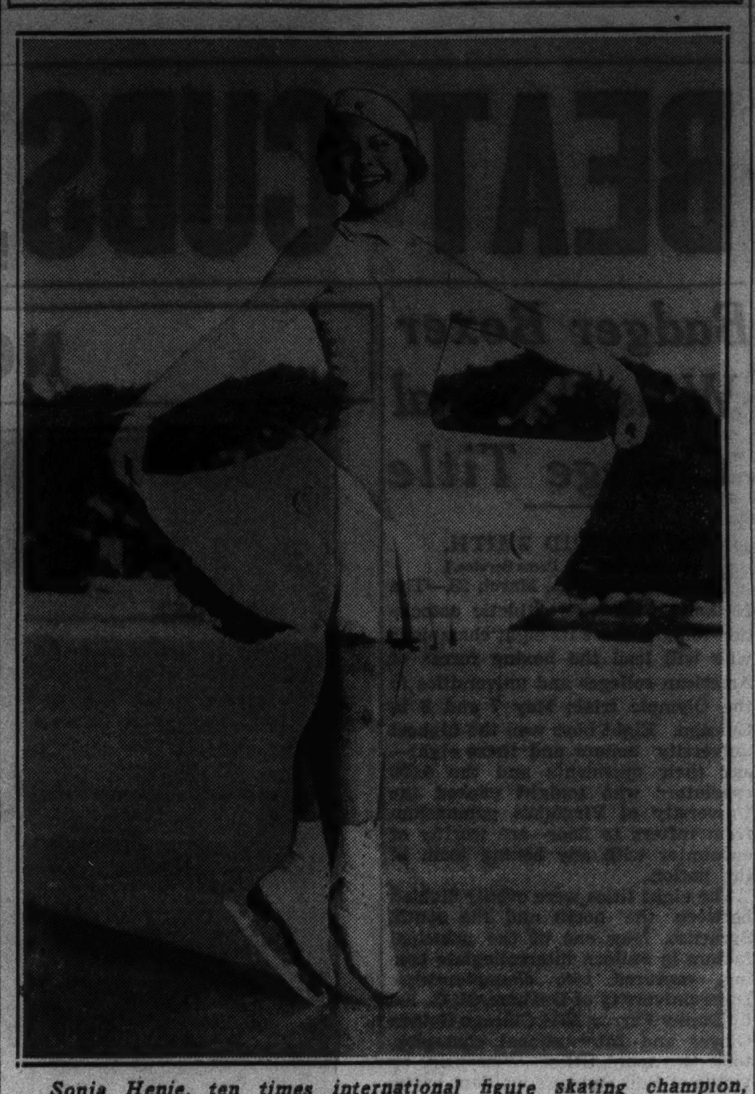
FEET TO TWINKLE AT STADIUM



Sonja Henie, ten times international figure skating champion, heads a cast of stars who will appear in the ice carnival which opens at the Stadium on Thursday and continues through Sunday night. The beautiful Norwegian skater will present three numbers on the program, including a sample of her Olympic routine.

Societies Plan Welcome for Sonja Henie

Miss Sonja Henie, ten times international champion, and a cast of international figure skate stars will open the first of five ice carnival performances at the Chicago Stadium this week before a turnout which will include loop first nighters as well as sports enthusiasts.

It will be Norwegian night, too, with many societies turning out to welcome Norway's queen of the ice. The European star from Oslo, who is making her first professional tour of the United States, has been playing to sellout houses at the Madison Square Garden in New York, and at Boston, Philadelphia, and New Haven. She will appear Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Stadium. There will be a special children's matinée Saturday.

Dress Rehersal Wednesday.

Miss Henie will arrive in Chicago on Wednesday morning and will be welcomed by a committee appointed from Scandinavian societies, headed by Walter Olson, Chicago manufacturer. A dress rehersal with the full cast of skating stars will be held on Wednesday, and several of the headliners of the Minneapolis and St. Paul ice carnivals now in progress will arrive Thursday in time for rehersals before the opening performance in the evening.

Will Demonstrate Olympic Routine.

Miss Henie's three numbers on the Stadium program will include a sample of her Olympic routine, in which she will skate many of the school and free figures which won her the three crowns at Oslo in 1928, Lake Placid in 1932, and Garmen-Partenkirchen in February, as well as her Dying Swan number.

Jack Dunn, 19 year old British youth, a Cambridge university student and runner-up in the men's division of figure skating in the Olympic games, will make his first Chicago appearance as a featured member of Miss Henie's supporting cast. The British champion is a star in acrobatic leaps and spins.

Frankfort Beats Fort Wayne, 50-24, for Indiana Title

Indianapolis, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—Led by its center, Ralph Montgomery, Frankfort tonight won the Indiana High School Athletic association basketball championship by defeating Central of Fort Wayne, 50 to 24. The unusually high score clinched for Frankfort its third state title and ended a remarkable season of only one defeat. Frankfort was runner-up in 1924, champion in 1925, and again champion in 1929.

Frankfort this afternoon eliminated Anderson, 1935 champion. Both Frankfort and Anderson are members of the North Central conference, members of which have won seven of the last eleven Indiana state titles.

Frankfort was superior both for height and weight and repeatedly controled the tipoff. Fort Wayne attempted by frequent substitution to maintain an unceasing drive and frequently captured rebounds.

Central of Fort Wayne defeated Central of Evansville, 36 to 31, in the first semi-finals game. At half time Fort Wayne was leading, 25 to 15.

NOTRE DAME TO HONOR ROCKNE'S MEMORY TODAY

Notre Dame, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—Notre Dame men in South Bend and on the campus will observe the anniversary of Knute Rockne's death here tomorrow in a joint ceremony at Rockne's grave.

The Notre Dame club of the St. Joseph valley will attend an 8 o'clock mass to be said by the Rev. John F. Farley, C. S. C., 1900 football captain, in Dillon hall, site of the shrine to St. Olaf, patron of Rockne's native Norway.

The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame; Elmer F. Layden, athletic director and Tom Conley, captain of Rockne's last team in 1930, will speak at the breakfast which will follow the mass.

Members of the alumni group and the Monogram club, composed of monogram winning athletes, will place a wreath on Rockne's grave after the breakfast. Rockne was killed March 31, 1931, in a plane crash.

DENVER WINS Y. M. C. A. TITLE OAK PARK 4TH

Peoria, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—Denver, Colo., tonight defeated Wilmerding, Pa., 47 to 45, to win the national Y. M. C. A. basketball championship here. The victory also enabled Denver to enter the final Olympic trials in New York next week.

Kansas City, Mo., took third place by beating Oak Park, 39 to 28. The Oak Park quintet put up a hard battle, but the victors easily pulled away. Peoria whipped Corbin, Ky., 61 to 35, in another game today.

SUKEFORTH NAMED MANAGER.

Clearwater, Fla., March 28.—[U. P.]—Clyde Sukeforth, former National league catching star, today was named manager of the Leaksville club of the Bi-State league. Leaksville is a farm for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

NORTH CENTRAL WINS LITTLE 19 TRACK TITLE

Scores 52 Points; DeKalb Is Second.

Table of Points

North Central	52	Bradley	14
De Kalb	29½	Carbondale	6
Ill. Wesleyan	24	Wheaton	5
Elmhurst	17

Co-Captain Lloyd Seibert of North Central scored 14 points in the Little 19 conference indoor track meet at Naperville last night to lead the Cardinals to their fourth consecutive title. Seibert won the 60 yard low hurdles and the pole vault and placed second in the broad jump. He broke his own record in the pole vault, which he set in 1935 at 13 feet even by 5¼ inches. North Central's point total was 52.

DeKalb was second with 29½ points and Illinois Wesleyan third with 24.

Slanec of Illinois Wesleyan added 3½ inches to the shot put record set by Newberg of St. Viator in 1934, and Miller of Illinois Normal cut 1 second off his own 440 yard mark.

North Central took six of the 12 first places, five in individual competition and one in the 8/11ths mile relay in accounting for its 52 point total.

C. Y. O. BOXERS ARRIVE TODAY FROM HAWAII

A combination sightseeing and invasion trip of 7,000 miles, which brought them to Honolulu, Hawaii, where they fought a picked team of Hawaii amateurs March 19 and 20, will come to an end today for 12 C. Y. O. boxers with their arrival this morning at the Union station on their return leg of the across the continent and across the Pacific tour.

The C. Y. O. party, led by T. F. O'Connell, Paddy Kane, Adam Walton, and the Rev. James C. Carroll, is scheduled to reach the city at 9:15 this morning. A reception committee headed by members of the C. Y. O. staf had made arrangements to welcome the victorious warriors.

In their intersectional meet with the Honolulu boxers the C. Y. O. won, 12 to 4. This was the fifth year in a row that a team of boxers representing the Chicago C. Y. O. had won an intersectional match. The bouts were held in the Civic auditorium of Honolulu on March 19 and 20.

The twelve boys who made the trip follow:

YOUTHFUL PILOT CLAIMS RECORD FOR SEAPLANE

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 28.—(AP)—Henry W. Borntrager, Pittsburgh youth who has just reached his 18th birthday, today claimed a new international speed record for seaplanes under 1,500 pounds gross weight.

He flew from Miami to Daytona Beach carrying Edward H. Stafford as a passenger in his tiny open-cockpit seaplane, making the approximately 250 mile trip in 2 hours 35 minutes, or approximately 100 miles an hour.

He said the record he broke was held by a Frenchman at 76 miles an hour. Certificates of Miami and local witnesses and a baragraph record of the flight will be submitted to the National Aeronautical association in Washington and international officials in Paris.

BOBBY JONES' 64 BREAKS AUGUSTA COURSE RECORD

Gets Nine Birdies in Drill for Masters' Tourney.

Augusta, Ga., March 28.—(AP)—Using the original of his famous putter, "Calamity Jane," with a scoring touch such as he has rarely experienced, even at the height of his career, Bobby Jones cracked the Augusta national course record today with a 64, 8 under par.

Needing a birdie 3 on the last hole to better the mark which he shared with the club pro, Ed Dudley, Jones fired a magnificent iron shot to the green, hole high and a yard from the cup, then sank the putt for his ninth birdie and a new practice record. Bob set a course mark of 65 two years ago. He and Dudley have duplicated it.

Dawson Plays in Foursome.

Only a handful of spectators saw the retired world champion of golf go on a scoring spree in a friendly foursome, the other members of which were Dudley, Albert [Scotty] Campbell, the Seattle amateur, and Johnny Dawson of Chicago. They were rewarded by fireworks such as Jones seldom has produced since his retirement in 1930 after registering his celebrated "grand slam."

As a forerunner to his third annual return to the competitive scene in the Augusta national tournament, which starts here next Thursday, Jones' performance verified reports that he now is playing better golf than at any time in the last six years. He appears now as a distinct threat for the professional brigade already foregathering at the course which Jones himself designed.

He'd Like to Have Saved Round.

Jones voiced a somewhat general sentiment when he remarked, "it was fun to see 'em drop the way they did today, but I'd like to have saved that round for the tournament next week."

The Jones who took the court apart today, under favorable conditions and with everything clicking, looked more like the world champion of 1930 than the Atlanta lawyer who has been a genial host at Augusta in each of the last two years, but a decidedly erratic golfer. He has recaptured confidence, apparently, along with his putting touch.

"He's playing his best golf since he retired, without any question," said Dudley. "He has been consistently under 70 here this spring, playing just as well as he did today, except that not so many putts dropped. Bob is ripe for a comeback. He will be much in the running in the tournament."

Over Par on Only One Hole.

Playing the course in "reverse"—starting on the last nine, Jones found "Calamity Jane" so useful that he required only 25 putts. He was out in 32 and back in the same figure. With nine birdies on his card, he was over par on only one hole, the 190 yard fourth, where he hooked his tee shot badly, chipped back nicely, but missed a 7 foot putt.

He had eleven single putt greens. He sank a 15 footer on the 13th, 20 footers on the 10th and 15th, and a 25 footer on the 5th to save a par 4 after misplaying three consecutive shots. When he failed to drop a 10 footer on the 8th for a birdie, his chances for a new course record appeared slim, but he came through with a spectacular birdie 3 on the 9th and last hole.

Needs No Concessions.

There were no conceded putts, aside from the few within inches of the cup. It wasn't necessary to concede Jones anything, inasmuch as his first putt dropped on all except seven holes.

The former world champion has regained his putting touch with the club that originally figured in his rise to golfing fame. It was a gift when he was a youngster of 10. The last time he used it in competition was in winning the 1926 open championship at Scioto, Columbus.

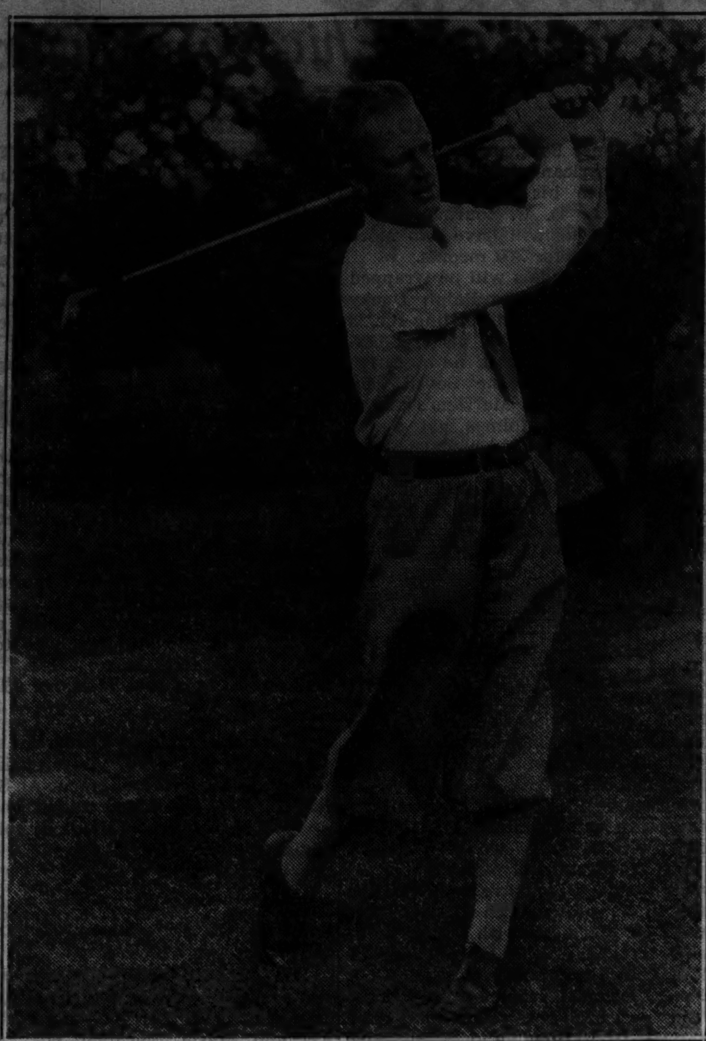
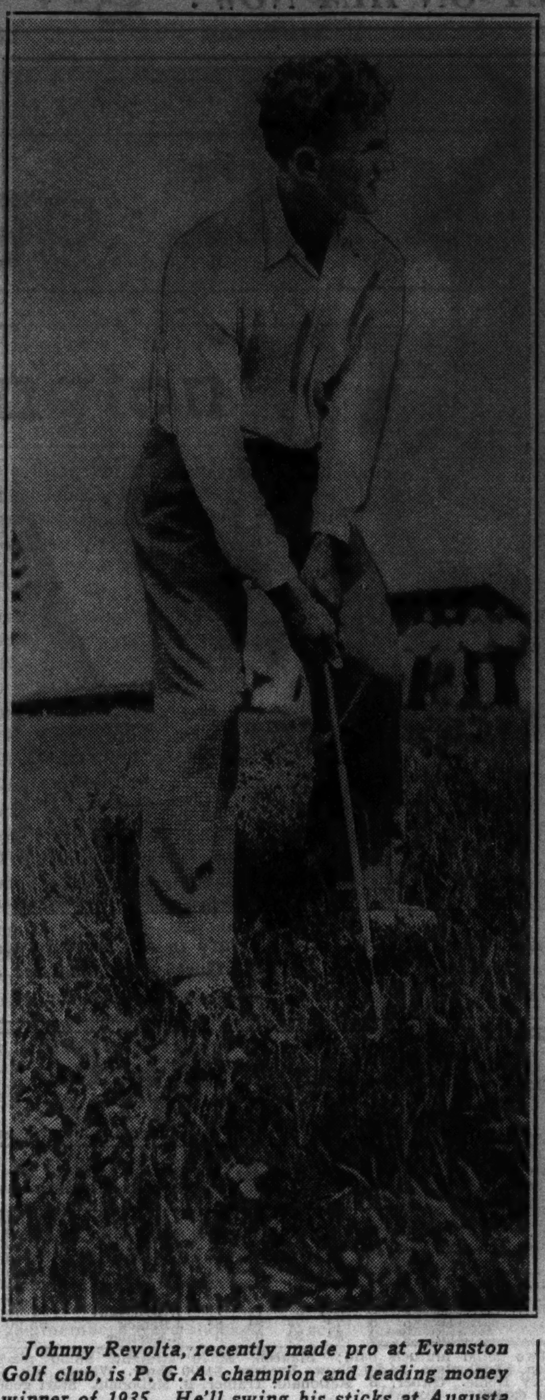
IT'S JONES AGAINST THE FIELD AGAIN ON THURSDAY



Golf's greatest stars gather at Augusta, Ga., Thursday to open the third annual masters' tournament at the Augusta National Golf club. Here is Craig Wood, Deal (N. J.) professional, who finished second in the last two masters' tournaments and will be out to break the jinx in this meet, which is rapidly taking rank in importance with the national open and P. G. A. events.

The masters' tournament brings Bobby Jones, co-designer of the Augusta course, into competition again. Jones, despite disappointing finishes in other years, believes his touch has returned.



Johnny Revolta, recently made pro at Evanston Golf club, is P. G. A. champion and leading money winner of 1935. He'll swing his sticks at Augusta and must be reckoned with.

Horton Smith of Oak Park won the masters' tournament in 1934 with a total of 284, four under par, and in his present form will make the field step to keep him in subjection.

The masters' tournament also brings into competition for the first time this year W. Lawson Little, San Francisco, present United States and British amateur champion.

Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., won the tournament last year when he sank a spoon shot for a two on the par five 15th to overhaul Wood. He's sure he can repeat this year.

New York, March 28.—(AP)—The Lawrenceville school polo team retained its national interscholastic indoor polo championship tonight by defeating Culver Military academy of Indiana, 9 to 3½, at Squadron A armory. Only the two teams were entered in the event.

Table Tennis Tips

[This is the fifteenth of a series of weekly articles on table tennis by Coleman Clark; former national champion, twice western champion, and authority on this sport. Readers are invited to send contributions and address questions to the conductor of this column, care The Chicago Tribune, Tribune Square, Chicago.]

BY COLEMAN CLARK.

Play the game according to the latest rules of the United States Table Tennis association. Use the best equipment you can afford. Adopt the "tennis grip" and avoid the "penholder" grip. First, perfect the "push" or half-volley shot, standing close to the table. Then learn the defensive chop shot which is made by hitting down sharply on the ball. Next, develop a topspin drive which is made by stroking up on the ball. Now turn your attention to the drop shot which barely clears the net, and the difficult backhand flick, generally executed over the table and on the half-volley.

Don't overlook change of pace and placement shots. Footwork is important. Keep on your toes. In forehand strokes keep your left foot foremost; in backhand your right. In competition never change a winning game, but if you are losing always risk a change of tactics or strategy.

See the Best.

Much can be learned from observing the experts. An unparalleled opportunity to see the world's outstanding exponents of table tennis in action presents itself when Viktor Barna, five times world's singles champion, Sandor Glancz, Arthur Haydon, English champion, Ruth Hughes Aarons of New York, newly crowned world's ladies' titleholder, and leading Chicago stars will be seen in a series of exhibitions in Chicagoland. The dates are April 26 at Loyola university gym, April 28 at Main High school, Des Plaines, Ill., and April 29 at Ridge Park fieldhouse on the south side. Reserved seats for these various showings go on sale Wednesday at Von Lengerke & Antoine's, 33 South Wabash avenue.

I. A. C. Tourney.

One of the most important tournaments of the west, the middle western meet now in progress at the Illinois Athletic club, 112 South Michigan avenue, winds up today. Semifinal matches will be played this afternoon and finals tonight at 8 p. m. All local experts and many ranking players from midwestern states are competing. The public is invited.

A tournament for west side residents will be held on April 1 at the Stay and Play club, 168 West Monroe street.

More than 100 players took part in Fernwood Table Tennis club [101st and Wallace avenue] tournament. Winners: men's singles, L. Mundo; women's singles, Genevieve Swierkos; boys' singles, W. B. Palacio; girls' singles, Anne Feld; men's doubles, R. Livingston and E. Eenigenberg; mixed doublese, Genevieve Swierkos and Harold Hansen; boys' doubles, Ed. Wyatt and Byron Thorpe.

Black and White Ball Shows Spin.

A movie short entitled "Table Tennis" will be released shortly by M-G-M. This columnist happened to be chosen the principal in this subject. The important news lies in the fact that at last the motion picture industry has opened its eyes to the enormous popularity of the game and recognized the need for an instructive, complete film on the sport.

Clearly illustrated will be the fundamentals of the game, such as the grips, service, the strokes, footwork and the fascinating element of spin which is part of the pastime. Slow motion shots were made of a specially designed black and white ball to show what actually happens when the spinning sphere comes into contact with a rubber racket. You will plainly see the reason why you fail to return certain spin shots over the net, why some soar far and high beyond the table, and why others veer off the table at outlandish angles. Better still, you will be shown how to cope with these spin shots. This is the first picture we know of where the actual spin of a rapidly revolving ball has been made visible.

In addition there are several normal and slow motion views of fast singles and doubles competitions and a wide variety of trick shots.

CITY BADMINTON TOURNEY WILL CLOSE TODAY

Semi-final and final rounds of the third annual city badminton tournament will be resumed this afternoon at the Maywood armory, Greenwood avenue and Madison street, Maywood. The semi-finals are slated for 2 o'clock and the finals for 8.

In the men's singles Henry Reynolds of the Lawson Y. M. C. A. will meet Jack Riday of the Winnetka club and Horace Williams of Winnetka opposes Henry Sistrunk of Lawson. Sistrunk is the favorite to win the title.

The women's singles will pair Miss Billie Traxel of the Lawson club and Wilma Wildes of the First Presbyterian church. In the other semifinal contest Miss Ruth Haas, Lawson club, opposes Miss Dawn Lannon, representing the Chicago Badminton club.

Jack Riday and Horace Williams of Winnetka pair to meet their teammates, Jack Bartlett and Edward Fargo, in the doubles. The other match will bring together M. Thomas and B. Anderson, Winnetka, against S. Pesking and H. Reynolds, Lawson.

ADD NOVICE EVENT TONIGHT TO AUTO CARD

A special event for novice drivers will be an added attraction tonight on the automobile racing program at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

The novice competitors have been chosen from approximately 50 pilots who have been put through a course of driving instruction under the supervision of the track staf.

The "first starters'" race will be included in a program of 10 events which embraces a 70 lap sweepstakes, a subfeature for drivers who do not qualify for the main event, and six handicap events.

Duke Nalon, south side driver, will report tonight in a new car of the same make as those driven by Ronnie Householder and Harry MacQuinn. The racing starts at 8:30 o'clock, following an hour of time trials. An entry of forty drivers is expected on tonight's card.

Hawks Lose in Stanley Cup Play Review of Week's Sports

Chicago's Blackhawks were eased out of the race for the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's professional hocky championship, last week in the first round of the playoffs which succeeded the regular National league schedule.

Although the eight teams play through a full schedule of 48 games in the regular season, six of the eight go into the playoffs in which their previous records mean nothing at all beyond determining who their opponents will be in the first round. When the season ended last Sunday night Detroit was in first place in the American division, followed by the Boston Bruins and the Blackhawks. The Montreal Maroons led the Canadian division with Toronto second, New York's Americans third. Only the Montreal Canadiens and the New York Rangers failed to enter the playoffs.

The Hawks opened their third place series at New York Tuesday and went down to defeat, 3 to 0. With total goals in two games deciding the series they went into the last game at the Stadium on Thursday night with a three goal disadvantage. They won the second game, 5 to 4, but the Americans' previous victory enabled them to take the series, 7 goals to 5, to advance to the second round.

Meanwhile Boston took a three goal lead over Toronto in the second place series, blanking the Leafs at Boston. Despite this handicap the Leafs put on a second period scoring spree in the second game at Toronto, scored six goals, eventually won the game, 8 to 3, the series, 8 to 6.

In the first place playoff Detroit battled Montreal through two hours and 56 minutes of scoreless hocky to establish a new record. Then after 30 seconds more the Wings pushed in a goal, won the first game of their five game series, 1 to 0. Thursday night they had less trouble, scoring three goals in the third period to win, 3 to 0, to take a two game lead over the Maroons.

Toronto and the Americans opened their second round series last night, while Detroit and the Maroons will play their third game tonight. The winners of the two series will meet for the championship.

Chicago Golden Gloves Team Ties New York.

Since 1928, when the intercity Golden Gloves competition was started, neither Chicago nor New York has been able to win a match in its opponent's ring. Four times Chicago had won in Chicago; three times New York had won in New York; once the teams tied in Chicago.

Chances of Chicago's breaking the established routine appeared slim when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S team went into Madison Square Garden last Monday night. New York won the first bout, Chicago the second. Through the next two bouts they alternated. Then when New York won two more in a row it seemed certain that the contest would follow precedent. But Chicago's team rallied, gained an even break, eight victories to eight. A crowd of 19,400 packed Madison Square Garden, paid $46,804 to see the ninth annual intercity amateur boxing competition.

Cubs and Sox Move Closer to Home.

Nearer and nearer home came Chicago's two major league baseball clubs last week, the Cubs meeting major league competition on their swing across the south, the White Sox moving eastward by easier stages both in travel and in class of the opposition they met.

The Cubs opened the week by blanking New York's Giants, 7 to 0, and followed it up with another victory, 8 to 4, on Monday. The Giants, however, took the last three games, won the spring series, 4 games to 2. The Cubs then turned to the Tigers on Friday, won 5 to 4.

The Sox, after losing to Los Angeles, 17 to 9, on Sunday, moved into Yuma, Phoenix, Bisbee, El Paso, won four games in a row against mediocre pickup teams with a total of 80 runs in four games.

Dean Holdout Act Comes to Usual Conclusion.

The holdout act of Dizzy Dean, St. Louis Cardinal ace pitcher, which has taken the place of the annual holdout act of Babe Ruth, since the retirement of the home run slugger, came to the expected conclusion last Sunday when Dean signed a one year contract at a salary somewhere between $20,000 and $25,000. This was $15,000 to $20,000 below the $40,000 he had demanded. His brother Paul, who was abetting Dizzy's act by holding out likewise, immediately announced that he would sign. He flew from Dallas to Bradenton on Monday, signed his contract Tuesday.

One other holdout, Hank Greenberg, Detroit first baseman, signed his contract Thursday.

◆

Johnny Revolta, national professional golf champion and highest money winner among the pros in 1935 when he won prize money of $9,543, signed a two year contract with the Evanston Golf club last Sunday. He will take up his duties on April 15. Revolta has been pro at the Tripoli club in Milwaukee.

◆

De La Salle High school of Chicago won the National Catholic basketball championship last Sunday, beating St. Mary's of Anderson, Ind., 45 to 29, in the finals at Loyola university gymnasium.

◆

De Paul university's basketball team advanced to the final round of Olympic trials by defeating Minnesota in two straight games in the interdistrict playoffs last week. De Paul won the first game Thursday night, 36 to 30; the second, 33 to 27, Friday.

BADGERS BEAT N. U., IOWA IN INDOOR TRACK

Hawkeyes 2d; Heg Sets 440 Record.

Madison, Wis., March 28.—[Special.]—The University of Wisconsin track team, which finished second in the Big Ten meet two weeks ago, closed its indoor season in the field house this afternoon by scoring 51 points to defeat Iowa and Northwestern.

The Hawkeyes gathered 35 points and the Wildcats 22.

Badgers Win Five Events.

Undefeated in dual and triangular competition this season, the Badgers scored in every event, won five first places, and gathered nine points in each of the two mile and pole vault events.

Heg of Northwestern set a new fieldhouse record in the 440 when he ran the distance in 50.5 seconds. The former mark of 50.7 seconds was set by Bill Henke of Wisconsin in 1931.

Fenske is Double Winner.

Charles Fenske, Wisconsin's star sophomore distance runner, was the only double winner in the meet. He won the mile in 4:25.5 and came back to lead Cooke, a teammate, to the tape in the two mile run in 9:52.7. The summaries:

60 YARD DASH—Won by Janicki [W.], Delaney [N.], second; Millett [N.], third; Skinner [I.], fourth. Time, 6.4 seconds.

440 YARD DASH—Won by Heg [N.]; Crowell [W.], second; Matteson [I.], and Skinner [I.], tied for third. Time, 50.5 seconds.

MILE RELAY—Won by Iowa [Wapoles, Briggs, Matteson, Skinner]; Wisconsin, second; Northwestern, third. Time, 3:30.9.

Three Tie for Golf Lead at French Lick

French Lick, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—A three way tie at 151 involving Chick Evans of the Edgewater Golf club, Gus Moreland of Peoria, former trans-Mississippi champion, and John E. Lohman of Olympia Fields paved the way for a tight finish tomorrow in the final round for the midwest medal play championship at the French Lick Springs course.

Jack Foland of the Gary Country club, who lives in Crown Point, Ind., finished three strokes behind the leaders and is a possibility to win the Taggart trophy. He qualified in last year's national open.

The next three men are F. Flegel, G. Hansen and F. Smyrock, all unattached players from Chicago. Don Armstrong of Aurora had 158.

LOUISIANA DERBY TODAY IS WINDUP AT FAIR GROUNDS

Rushaway Choice to Win in Field of 12.

New Orleans, La., March 28.—(AP)—An even dozen thoroughbreds were nominated today to compete in the $5,000 Louisiana Derby which concludes the Fair Grounds racing meet here tomorrow. Prospects of excellent weather and a fast track were expected to take the biggest crowd of the season through the turnstiles.

Handicappers and form players have picked Rushaway, 3 year old black son of Haste-Roseway, to win. The A. G. Tarn entry displayed his speed here a week ago today when he outclassed his field and came within a fifth of a second of the track record for a mile and a sixteenth. The Derby is at a mile and an eighth.

Sets Tropical Record.

Rushaway set a mile record at Tropical park during the present meeting when he ran the distance in 1:36 3-5.

Understand is considered the real dark horse of the Derby. Understand ran a fine race in the Arkansas Derby at Hot Springs last Saturday, finishing second after he was forced to race wide when Wee Lad broke his leg and piled up on the track.

Local fans were pinning their hopes on Lolschen and Flag Cadet, the B. Hernandez entry.

Professor May Do It.

Professor Paul and Reunited are two other horses that were expected to be up close. C. Mojena, leading jocky at the Fair Grounds this winter, has the mount on Professor Paul.

The following 3 year olds will go to the post:

Horse.	Jocky.	PP.	Wt.	Odds.
*Rushaway	[J. Longden]	1	116	8-5
Reunited	[G. Smith]	2	116	5-1
*Miss Bam	[R. Tilden]	3	111	8-5
Lovely Spy	[H. Duncan]	4	111	20-1
Palm Island	[H. Manifold]	5	116	8-1
†Lolschen	[S. Young]	6	111	5-1
Carvola	[No boy]	7	109	20-1
‡Understand	[H. Louman]	8	111	3-1
‡Lame Duck	[T. P. Martin]	9	114	3-1
†Flag Cadet	[L. Turner]	10	114	5-1
Professor Paul	[C. Mojena]	11	119	4-1
No Retreat	[H. Osborne]	12	111	30-1

Indigo Wins Carolina Cup Steeplechase

Camden, S. C., March 28.—(AP)—Indigo, the 2 to 1 favorite, fought off the challenge of Oliver C. in the stretch to win the seventh running of the Carolina Cup race by a nose today before 10,000 steeplechase enthusiasts who filled every vantage point about the Springdale course.

Brought along easily by Charles R. White, the big gelding from John L. Schiff's Northwood stables took the lead after the ninth of the eighteen jumps and held it to the finish line. Mrs. G. H. Bostwick's Fugitive was an early leader, but dropped to third as Indigo and Oliver C. fought for first place.

Indigo Nears Record.

The time of 5 minutes 42 seconds was four-fifths of a second slower than the record that Paul Mellon's Drinmore Lad set last year for the three miles over timber. The track was fairly fast despite heavy rains last night.

It was the second steeplechase association victory for Indigo this month, the Schiff entry having also captured the Sandhills cup at Southern Pines, N. C.

Running of the first heat of the Kershaw steeplechase, two miles over brush, with eleven of the eighteen entries in the race starting, was replete with thrills. Macroom, Mrs. Marion Somerville's gelding, unseated his rider, Carroll K. Bassett, half way through the race when a length in the lead. T. H. Somerville's Syriac, the favorite with Aughrim Boy, went down at the fourth jump from the finish and Aughrim Boy swept on to victory with Ever Pat at his heels. Day Past, owned by Alvin Untermeyer, New York, broke his neck at the first barrier with N. Coe up. Only six finished.

Hertz Horse Wins.

Equally hot competition brought the second division around in the identical time of 3 minutes 58.2 seconds, with Reighstone, chestnut gelding of Mrs. John D. Hertz, the winner.

Pontoon, owned by M. B. Metcalf Jr., New York, spurted sensationally to win the Palmetto steeplechase, two miles over timber, coming from behind at the end of the back stretch to win by a length and half from R. K. Mellon's Escape 3d.

Dorothy Round Wins Final Match of Herga Tourney

HARROW, England, March 28.—(AP)—Dorothy Round, one of England's foremost tennis players, launched her comeback campaign today by defeating Mary Heeley, 6-3, 5-7, 8-6, in the final of the Herga tournament.

MUCHO GUSTO got away fast, displayed good speed, but was doing his best to win. ZAY slipped through on inside and closed with a rush. BELOW ZERO, slow to get into her stride, came around field in stretch and finished fast. REBEKAH was practically left but went after field, got to the front middle of turn, then tired. EPIBEAU followed pace for half a mile. OLD REB was outrun.

Time, 1:11 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Dusty Dawn, $7.70 straight, $4.50 place, $3.00 show; Earl Porter, $10.30 place, $3.40 show; Great Haste, $2.40 show. Winner, b. g., 5, by Golden Broom-Hasty Chick. Owner, Mrs. Louise J. Hickman. Trainer, W. G. Sparks. Start good. Won easily; place same.

DUSTY DAWN broke very fast, was sent to the front and, rated along, drew away easily in run through stretch. EARL PORTER, under light weight, was keen contender and ran a smart race. GREAT HASTE lacked speed and was hard ridden all the way. KIEVEX, away slowly, trailed field to middle of turn and closed ground very fast. GROG could not keep up. DON CREOLE quit badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Three year olds and up. Purse $2,500, added. Net value to winner, $1,840; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125.

*Mrs. E. Denemark entry. †Mrs. T. Stevenson-E. F. Seagram entry.

Time, 1:52. Two dollar mutuels paid: Chasar, $9.80 straight, $2.90 place; show, out; Tempestuous, $2.30 place; show, out; Biography, show, out. Winner, ch. g., 5, by Crusader-La Belle Helene. Owner, Mrs. Emil Denemark. Trainer, B. S. Mitchell. Start good. Won driving; place same.

CHASAR, rated along in early part, began to move up in run down back stretch, caught leader in stretch, took lead but was doing his best to win. TEMPESTUOUS was probably best but was ridden with poor judgment. He got away fast and was eased back going into first turn and appeared beaten going into last half mile, but came again at finish and was going fastest of all. BIOGRAPHY raced CHANCE PLAY into defeat and then tired. CORINTO came with a rush. CHANCE PLAY had plenty of speed for a mile. MAERIEL was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Three year olds and up. Purse $900. Net value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25.

U. S. TO ACT IF STATES FAIL IN HORSE DOPE WAR

Law Drafted to Prohibit Interstate Shipment.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—America's half billion dollar race horse business is under the close scrutiny of the federal government in connection with the nation-wide drive against the use of narcotics to stimulate or depress the running ability of the animals.

As the "ponies" were about to go to the barriers in many spring meets Harry J. Anslinger, chief of the federal bureau of narcotics, announced that the state racing commissions would have one more opportunity to "clean up their own back yards," but that if they failed drastic federal action would follow.

Have Law Ready.

The tentative draft of a law already has been prepared by the treasury to prohibit the interstate shipment of drugged horses for racing purposes and to deny track licenses to persons guilty of this practice. The draft is regulatory in nature, based on the principle of the securities act, to prevent frauds against the public. The proposed law will be held in abeyance and will be introduced only if the state commissions fail to eliminate the "hopping" of horses.

Anslinger is determined to see that doping is successfully outlawed. He said today that while the narcotic bureau does not have the agents actually to patrol the tracks, except in emergency cases, the federal government will prosecute under the Harrison anti-narcotic law all cases of importance reported by the state commissions.

The state commissions, following a meeting of the National Association of State Racing commissions in Florida in January, pledged a clean-up campaign against the horse "fixers." This drive was begun three years ago when the practice of injecting narcotics into racehorses, thoroughbred and otherwise, to increase their speed was widespread.

Anslinger expressed the opinion today that "doping had been reduced greatly in all states which have racing commissions, although no such progress has been made in the United States as in Canada, where racing has been placed on a remarkably pure basis from this standpoint."

Laud New York, Florida.

The principal racing states are New York, Florida, Kentucky, Maryland, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Washington, West Virginia, Texas, and Louisiana. In the opinion of federal officials the most effective racing regulations are in New York and Florida, although other states were described as doing an "excellent job" in their clean-up operations.

Anslinger and Dr. H. J. Wollner, consulting chemist to Secretary Morgenthau, were observers at the Florida race commission meeting. They particularly approved a plan to set up a national committee on which would be represented the horsemen, state commissions, and the federal government. This organization, now in the process of formation, will continue studies of the narcotic situation.

Tests on All Winners.

Another important decision, heartily approved by Anslinger, was the determination to make saliva tests of all winners. By the saliva test it can be determined whether a horse has been drugged. Heretofore it has been the customary practice to test only two winners out of the conventional seven races.

Anslinger also saw a serious and growing evil in the doping of favorites or even money horses to prevent their winning races. Gangs, betting against the favorites, are held to be depressing horses with narcotics. Careful inquiries and laboratory investigations are being made by the state commissions and the federal authorities to determine what narcotics are being used.

Perfect Games Earn Medals for Two Chicago Bowlers

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

When Elmer Baumgarten, secretary of the American Bowling congress gets back to his Milwaukee office from the A. B. C. tournament at Indianapolis, he will have two more requests to fill for 300 medals.

One of the medals will be wrapped up and dispatched to Ralph Ducky Holmes, who has been bowling for 28 years and just achieved his first perfect game. He reached the objective of all bowlers in the South End Traveling league at Marzano's alleys. The 300 helped Holmes get a 710 series. The other gold medal will go to Bill Lenzen, one of the busiest bowlers in Chicago and one of the best as well. He put together 12 strikes while shooting with the Boyle Motor Products in the Randolph league.

Outside of his 300 Lenzen was not particularly hot, for he totaled a mere 692. All his teammates joined in the spirit of the occasion with the results that the Boyle Motor Products piled up a 1936 league record series of 3,337 on games of 1,112, 1,125 and 1,100. Against such wild shooting the league leading Mineralites were helpless and for the first time in years they had to submit to the loss of three games. However, the Mineralites are safely entrenched in first place with 54 games won and 21 lost.

Bill Heerman and Matty Faetz Sr. will enter the final five games of the old timers' match with Harry Steers and Bill Wernicke with a lead of 94 pins tonight at the Bryn Mawr alleys, 1543 Bryn Mawr avenue. . . . Tom Crocombe reports that 600 entries have been received for the third annual Iron, Steel, and Automotive Industries tournament at the Woodlawn alleys next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Entries close Tuesday. . . . South Shop won the championship of the Peoples Gas Club league with 59 games won and 19 lost. Harold Heckendorf took the individual title with an average of 184. . . . The Gas-Fe team, leaders of the Adams-Wabash league, beat the Honolulu team, which traveled 9,000 miles to compete in the A. B. C. meet at Indianapolis, by 11 pins in a three game exhibition. . . . The Odd Fellows National Bowling association will revive its tournament at the Windy City alleys after a lapse of four years, Secretary E. J. Dolejs, 2533 North Kimball avenue, announces. . . . Lee Johns' 722 total leads the singles in the sixth annual Acacia national tournament at Cinderella alleys. L. Heeter and H. Huebner top the doubles with 1,301.

On South Side Alleys.

A double-header will be rolled, starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, in the All-Star Individual league at White City. Joe Wilman is leading with 341 points. . . . Spud Hartman collected a 652 series in the Bruck-Wiesner Junior league. Other leaders were Bill Callahan, 647; Bill Walters, 616; Fred Vogel, 616, and Otto Hartwig, 616. . . . Al Denst helped himself to a 715 count in the Bruck Major league. He was followed by Leo Rollick, 694; Frank Spencer, 687; Dom Devito, 685; Al Georainis, 671; Bill Buckley, 670, and Justin Plunge, 670.

On North Side Alleys.

Fuller Press clinched first place in the Gold Coast Major league by winning two from Gold Coast while the A. J. Williams Jewelers were taking the odd game from the second place Budweisers. Pete Petersen, who is trying to overtake Paul Marian for the individual lead, boosted his average to 208 with a 693 series that helped Edelweiss to a 3,031 series and two victories over Triangle Shirts. . . . A new high game in the Chicago Junior Traveling league fell to the Neumann Tailors when they blasted out 1,083. Raab Clothiers missed second high game by getting 1,052. Another season record was Charles Nachman's 279 game. Stanley Wosnicki, only left-handed backup bowler in the league, had three 158 games in his series.

North End League.

The Michelobs were high in the North End Traveling league with a 3,094 series, but they lost two games to the Schamberger Schlitz squad which had 3,064. High series went to Roy Achenbach of the Michelobs with 682. Harry Kaad of the Schambergers had 664, Leo Krisch of the leading Birk Brothers, 673, Bill Velasko of the Reed Butterscotch, 648, and Joe Gratz of the Milfords, who took three games from Fox De Luxe for their ninth in a row, collected 660.

About the Women.

After pursuing Bess Fender for several weeks, Edith Kirg has regained the lead in the Crocombe All-Star league at the Woodlawn alleys, where another set of matches will be rolled tonight. The pairings:

Bess Fender vs. Edith Kirg; May Davison vs. Nellie Rynberk; Fritzi Trettin vs. Dorothy Burmeister; Dorothy Morross vs. Tess Morris; Alberta Burton vs. Carrie Enders; Ann Burke vs. Agnes Piteika; Agnes Crocombe vs. Mae Stone; Cecelia Leary vs. Mabel Cummings.

The West Ridge league witnessed some of the best women's shooting of the week with Betty Kliene getting 632 and Marie Wermich, 602. Kay West was close up with 591 and Esther Hess had 580. . . . Elizabeth Rottinger's 560 topped the Monte Cristo-Lorel Rug league. Then came Mae Sbertoli, 539; Emma Uhlmann, 539; Tillie Berlinger, 538, and Theresa Hirschmann, 533. . . . Feminine leaders in the Loraine Mixed league were Marie Ehrman, 558; Catherine Donovan, 517, and Ollie Tuttle, 506. . . . In the Samuelson Major league Martha Bendick knocked off 596, followed by Marie Ledene, 556; Elsie Berlinger, 545; Wilma Wright, 536; Emma Heldt, 525, and Isabel Van Der Muelen, 517. . . .

At the rate entries are pouring in Jack Samuelson feels the goal of 100 teams and $1,500 in prize money is assured for the fourth annual Century of Progress handicap tournament to be held April 18, 19, 25, and 26, and May 2 and 3 at Samuelson's Arcade. The event again is attracting many out of town entries. . . . Dorothy Geib, who started bowling last September, shot 500, her highest series of her brief career, in the Pioneer Junior league. She was topped by Frances Thompson, 511; May Bansbach, 511; Josephine Gess, 508; Thelma François, 507; Hazel Terreberry, 502, and tied by Myrtle Gramm, 500. . . . In the Pioneer Senior league Mary Bjurstrom was high with 552. Next were Isabel Wirth, 547; May Weinman, 537; Ann Franke, 537; Lillian Olsen, 536; Mary Martin, 526, and Cora Summers, 526. . . . Theresa Jicka led the Bruck-Wiesner league with 565, with Agnes Crocombe, 537, second, and Theresa Reardon, 527, third. . . . In the Woodlawn league Helen Cullen registered 593, followed by Sara Evans, 567; Mildred Long, 552, and Mabel Wilson, 540.

Carrie Enders had the pins tumbling for her, for she collected 634 in the Bruck Major league. Jessie Townsend, 597, was next.

Lewis, Burman Matched for Stadium Card

John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, and Clarence Burman, the Baltimore red head protégé of Jack Dempsey, will meet in a ten round nontitle bout at Chicago Stadium the first week in April, it was announced yesterday by co-Matchmaker James C. Mullen. Burman was given the bout on the strength of impressive victories here over Buddy Knox, Billy Treest and Hank Bath. Red and his handlers returned home yesterday. They are due back Tuesday.

The champion, who was among the 10,000 who saw Burman knock out Buddy Knox at the Stadium Friday, will remain in town until after the contest. He is expected to open drills tomorrow afternoon under the supervision of Larry Amadee, assistant trainer for Joe Louis. The date of the contest will be announced at the Illinois boxing commission meeting at that time. Indications are that the show will be held April 6 or 7.

Boxing shows will be held tomorrow and Friday and a wrestling show will be presented Tuesday at Marigold Gardens. Tomorrow's card will be headed by a ten round return bout between Frank Sagilio and Scotty McLean, and the show Friday is topped by a featherweight elimination involving Everett Rightmire, Illinois' leading challenger, and Mike Belloise, New York's No. 1 contender. Both of these shows are being promoted jointly by Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun.

Tuesday's program will bring together Gus Sonnenberg, former heavyweight wrestling champion, and Pat Murphy in the windup. It is being offered under the auspices of Emil Van Der Leenden. A second mat card is scheduled at Arcadia Gardens Wednesday. Ali Baba, who has scored six victories in as many Chicago appearances, will oppose Nango Singh in the main event.

The impending Sagilio-McLean encounter resulted from the disputed decision Scotty won in their first meeting at Peoria March 16. On that occasion McLean won the match on a foul in the eighth round. Jack Hurley, manager of Sagilio, expressed the opinion that this action by Referee James Kennelly was unfair to his boy. He says Frankie knocked out McLean with a blow to the belt line. The controversy will be aired at the meeting of the Illinois boxing commission tomorrow afternoon. All principals have been summoned to appear at that time.

Flicker Keeps Folks Awake, but He's Useful

BY BOB BECKER.

One of the most skilful telegraphers that ever wore a feather is due to come into Chicagoland about this time of the year. All suburbanites are not in favor of this fellow, who can send out messages in a combination code that will wake a neighborhood. This telegrapher, who has a late Chicagoland March arrival date, is the golden winged woodpecker or flicker—a bird that comes up from the south with so much pep and such a loud voice in addition to the rat-tat-tat of its private telegraph that it always is a boost to spring.

When we think of the ways messages are sent through the woods by various primitive methods we call to mind the talking drums of the savages. We saw these novel instruments used for communication in the wilds of Brazil. The flicker has a system of broadcasting similar to these drums of jungle.

The trouble with the flicker is his haphazard system of choosing a sounding instrument for his rolling tattoo. Like as not he will sit on top of a house at daybreak and start sending messages by hammering on a metal piece on the roof so loudly that no one in the neighborhood can sleep. However, there is no malice in the woodpecker's actions. It's spring and this rolling tattoo from a housetop or the hollow part of a tree is the flicker's way of telling the "gang" that he is on the job. It's doubtless also a method of impressing a lady flicker near by.

The flicker takes a nesting box quite readily. Such a box should be 16 inches or more deep with a floor cavity about seven inches square. The entrance [close to the top] should be 2½ inches in diameter. And don't forget to put ground cork or saw dust and chips inside the box so the birds will have nesting material. Inasmuch as the flicker wages a war against insects it is considered a good bird neighbor. Many landowners encourage the presence of this bird.

Bird fans will find several suggestions on how to build nesting boxes for flickers as well as wrens, martins, and bluebirds in the Tribune handbook "Birds and Birdhouses." This handbook contains a table giving complete dimensions on all kinds of bird houses. It also has many illustrations of model birdhouses which one can make at home with wood such as one would have in the basement. "Birds and Birdhouses" also tells the bird fan how to utilize large gourds for attractive nesting boxes. The handbook is sold by the Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn street, Chicago, for 25 cents; by mail 30 cents.

DETROIT PAIR BOWLS 1,320 IN A. B. C. TOURNEY

Milan, Kruzick Take First Place.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—New leaders appeared tonight in the American Bowling congress tournament here as Michigan, Wisconsin, and New York bowlers went into action. Roy Milan and Gus Kruzick, Detroit, took the doubles lead with 1,320, while Ross Wiggins and Bernie Soch, Sheboygan, Wis., rolled up 1,300 to take third place in the event.

Bill Shaul, Syracuse veteran, pounded out games of 248, 205, and 257 to take second place in the singles with 710.

Open First Round in Peel Soccer Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The first round of soccer matches for the Peter Peel challenge cup opens today with eight games. Proceeds of challenge cup play go for the benefit of injured soccer players. The cup has been in competition for 27 years. Twenty-four clubs have accepted invitations to compete. Teams exempt from the first round include Sparta, Schwaben, Vikings, Olympia, Rangers, Kickers, Wilsons, and Slavia. Winners in the first round will meet the exempt clubs in the second round.

Two games stand out on today's schedule. The Maccabees meet Ravenswood at Kuppenheimer stadium, while the Viennas battle the Italians at 5500 Fullerton avenue. The Maccabees are favorites to reach the second round since the addition of Matus, former Sparta player, and the return of Billy Ogilvie.

The International league opens its spring schedule in all divisions. The most promising matches include the Schwaben-Hansa game at Schwaben field, Roscoe street and California avenue, and the contest between the Kickers and the Wilsons at Elston and Kedzie avenues. Today's schedule:

PEEL CUP.

Hitler's "No!"

Georges, a Frenchman of Alsace, fired both barrels of a shotgun into his radio loudspeaker last week when he could no longer endure such daily Hitlerisms as the following:

"I want to show the world that peace in Europe can be established as firmly as I informed the powers . . . that the German people will not accept the impossible terms."

"To those who say we must make a new gesture of peace I say 'Don't you insult 66,000,000 people.'"

"Look at our powerful army, our new strong air fleet, our navy, and you will have an idea how we work."

"I stretch out my hand to France. Germany needs no more fame on the battlefield."

Up and down Germany last week, Adolf Hitler delivered himself of these sentiments. It was his way of saying "No" to the offer of Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium for a compromise in the crisis caused by Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland on March 7.

Above all, Hitler was campaigning for today's national election. This will give the German people a chance to say "Yes" in approval of his discard of the Versailles and Locarno treaties. The ballots do not permit citizens to say "No." The pretext for the election is a new reichstag. Of 1,035 names on the ballot 600 will be seated by the Nazi government. [See main news section.]

Hitler also said "No" in the note his special diplomat, Joachim von Ribbentrop, handed to Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, in London last Tuesday. The note rejected the four power plan as "new discrimination" chiefly on two proposals: [1] That British and Italian troops occupy a new 12½ mile demilitarized frontier while a new treaty is negotiated, and [2] that Germany submit to the world court its charge that the French-Russian treaty had already violated the Locarno treaty. Hitler promised that on Tuesday, after the election, he would follow Eden's suggestion and make counter proposals.

The league of nations council adjourned indefinitly before Von Ribbentrop could appear before it. The sum of the council's 10 day session was a condemnation of Germany as a treaty breaker.

The French government was angry with Eden because he, reflecting the British pro-German sentiment, had not made the four power offer Germany's last chance. Russia, Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania also were displeased. Karl Radek, Moscow press authority, said Russia would rely on its 1,300,000 man army as its principal guarantee of security.

France indicated that it was unwilling to negotiate further with Germany. The April elections are the next worry for the French politicians.

Before parliament on Thursday, Eden hedged on Britain's offer to France if Germany refused the proposals. The offer was to reaffirm the Locarno mutual assistance clause in case of German attack. He sought to quiet British fears of military alliance by denying British-French military consultations would necessarily mean a political obligation. He said the British government would keep its Locarno agreement with France, but would remain the judge of when assistance should be given. He warned France that it must preserve an open mind toward Germany. He called on Germany to promise no frontier fortifications.

Commentators declared that diplomatic repairs of the Rhineland treaty breach were a long way off.

Italy.

Speaking in the shadow of Julius Cæsar's statue in Rome, Premier Benito Mussolini last Monday celebrated Fascist Italy's seventeenth anniversary by declaring that "war is surely coming" and that large industries would have to labor "exclusively or almost so" for armament.

Then he announced the following drastic reforms: [1] Suppression of the chamber of deputies, chosen sectionally, and creation of a "chamber of Fascists and corporations," chosen from industrial, agricultural and commercial guilds; [2] national control of large private industries; [3] concentration of every activity on Italy's economic independence; [4] raising of workers to equal rights and duties with capitalists.

This new evidence of state socialism supplements the government's monopoly of foreign trade, banking, and, to an extent, agriculture.

Ethiopia.

Mussolini, during his speech in Rome Monday, declared the league of nations trade penalties would never bend Italy. Meanwhile the league of nations committee of 13 met in London and heard Italian and Ethiopian replies to the league's peace conference appeal made three weeks ago.

Ethiopia demanded immediate withdrawal of the Italian army. It also protested Italy's use of poison gas. Mussolini cried that the victories in Ethiopia were just beginning. Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, president of the committee, adjourned the meeting after telling the combatants to be ready to cease fighting when negotiations began.

A report on Friday that Mussolini had invited de Madariaga to Rome to talk peace terms was denied yesterday. In addition to his demands for Ethiopian territory, made when he accepted the appeal, Mussolini was said to have imposed three conditions for a truce: [1] Lifting of trade penalties, [2] reversal of the league's indictment of Italy as aggressor, and [3] noninterference of the league in Italy's demand for a zone of influence in East Africa. London observers branded them "fantastic." Italian circles said negotiations could not be hurried.

In Ethiopia a squadron of Italian planes carried on the heaviest bombing of the war at Jigjiga, 50 miles northeast of Harrar, for three days beginning Sunday.

Naval Treaty.

The United States, Great Britain, and France last week at London signed a naval treaty originally intended to renew the Washington naval limitations treaty of 1922 and the London treaty of 1930. Actually it did neither.

Missing from the new treaty, effective from Jan. 1, 1937, to Dec. 31, 1942, were Japan and Italy. The new conference began last December. Japanese delegates walked out in January when the United States and Great Britain refused Japan naval equality. Italy saw the conference through. But Mussolini refused to sign because of the presence and apparent mutual assistance of British and French fleets in the Mediterranean. Also he regarded the league of nations trade embargo against Italy a menace. France protested an invitation to Germany. But Germany and Britain, which last June agreed to a German navy 35 per cent as large as Britain's, are negotiating a separate treaty.

The new treaty accented size and slighted numbers. It provided for [1] annual exchange of details on building programs; [2] limit of capital ships to 35,000 tons and 14 inch guns; [3] 16 inch guns for capital ships if nonsigners used them; [4] no construction of ships from 8,000 to 17,500 tons and a six year holiday on 10,000 ton cruisers; [5] reduction of aircraft carriers from 27,500 to 23,000 tons with 6.1 guns; [6] limit of submarines to 2,000 tons with 5.1 guns; [7] "escape" clauses permitting scrapping of restrictions if nonsigners do not accept or exceed the limits; and [8] a hope for a future naval disarmament.

A battleship building holiday endured for fourteen years under the Washington treaty, but, as Norman H. Davis, Roosevelt's "roving ambassador," said during the ceremonies Wednesday, the treaty "was badly damaged." He referred to last year's general rearmament revival.

Japan.

Until last week Premier Koki Hirota, who rebuilt the Japanese government, shattered by army rebellion a month ago, had made no strong declaration of policy. Then, however, he said:

"While I am premier there will be no war." This policy had displeased the Japanese militarists when Hirota was foreign minister under Premier Okada.

Progress had been reported Tuesday in reaching a basis of arbitration of border disputes between Russian controled Outer Mongolia and Japanese controled Manchukuo. Then on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday Russia reported four new border fights and charged a Japanese invasion. Russia and Japan each sent the other a strong note. Eiji Amau, Tokio foreign office spokesman, said soviet soldiers had the habit of firing on any persons near the border. "Japan must prepare for soviet aggression," asserted Amau.

Communist troops assembled at the Chinese frontier of Inner Mongolia. A Japanese military official in Peiping said, "The Japanese army will take the most effective steps necessary to deal with the communists if they invade Hopei and Chahar provinces." An invasion of 5,000 communist troops in Shansi province caused mobilization of 40,000 Chinese nationalist government and provincial troops to rout them.

General Count Juichi Terauchi is the new Japanese minister of war. Last week nine generals were retired and 30 officers were demoted. They were held partially responsible for the army rebellion in February. One retirement was that of Shigeru Honjo, the emperor's chief aide-de-camp and hero of the Manchurian conflict.

Black Inquisition.

Senatorial inquisitors, of which Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] is the whip, continued last week to "crack down" on newspapers and individuals.

On Monday the Black committee, ostensibly investigating lobbying, seized the telegrams of the Wichita [Kas.] Beacon. Subpenas were served on both the Postal Telegraph and the Western Union companies for the nonpress messages of the paper. Another individual, victim of the inquisition, John Henry Kirby, a Texas Democrat and foe of the New Deal, hit back Monday. He wired Senator Black an emphatic warning not to read his family and private business telegrams, which the committee seized along with others. The action against the Wichita paper was stoutly denounced by Elisha Hanson, general counsel of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

On Tuesday another Texan, J. H. Allison, vice president of the Wichita Falls [Tex.] Times, hit back at the inquisitors. In a blistering letter to Black he likened the telegram seizures to the ruthlessness of Dictators Stalin of Russia and Hitler of Germany. The Black committee had obtained all of the telegrams sent by the Texas paper.

The Black committee received a real setback Wednesday. It became known that a precedent exists which proves the seizure of private telegrams by the inquisitors to be unlawful. In April, 1935, the attorney general sought to obtain private telegrams for a criminal investigation. The federal communications commission refused the request on the opinion of its general counsel, Paul D. Spearman. He held such seizures would exceed the lawful powers of the commission.

The inquisitors defended themselves Thursday. In the District of Columbia Supreme court the committee filed an answer to W. R. Hearst's suit for an injunction to restrain telegraphic snooping. A similar answer was filed by the communications commission. The answers alleged that the bill of complaint failed to show any threatened or real injury to the plaintif. At the same time Senator Sherman Minton [Dem., Ind.], member of the Black committee, made a violent attack on Hearst on the senate floor.

President.

Leaving New Deal headaches behind, President Roosevelt was off to Florida Sunday for his annual spring fishing cruise. He had a full program en route. At Winter Park, Fla., Monday he stopped off to receive an honorary degree from Rollins college. In his speech of acceptance Mr. Roosevelt took a slap at "group interests," which, he said, were intent on their selfish affairs rather than the national welfare.

At West Palm Beach the same day Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, recently relieved of his command for criticizing the New Deal, boarded the special train. After his short conference with Mr. Roosevelt it was announced that "Gen. Hagood will take a three months' leave of absence and his future assignment will be determined in the meantime." Later in the week the general arrived in Chicago "on personal business."

Monday evening at Fort Lauderdale the President boarded the United States navy destroyer Monaghan. Under forced draft the destroyer steamed Monday night and Tuesday toward the ocean rendezvous with the presidential yacht Potomac.

Deep sea fishing tackle in order, the President boarded the yacht Wednesday morning. After fishing off Great Inagua Island in the Bahamas, the President tried his luck Friday off the Caicos bank. The party then preceded to Mangriana Island.

He announced he will remain aboard the Potomac unless the weather becomes rough. The Potomac, a small craft, was formerly a department of commerce cutter. It was reconditioned at a cost of $160,000.

The President's fishing companions are his son, James, and his uncle, Frederic Delano.

Temporary White House headquarters were established in Miami in charge of Assistant Secretary McIntyre. He kept in daily radio communication with the presidential party.

Congress.

Congress wrestled with two New Deal bugaboos last week. They were the new tax program and the President's request for a new 1 billion 500 million dollar works relief fund.

The house ways and means subcommittee considering the tax program decided on Monday to levy a tax of about 90 per cent on impounded or unpaid processing taxes and agreed on all major phases of the proposed new corporation tax. The committee, however, dropped plans to include excise or processing taxes in the schedule. It had been expected that excise taxes would raise 221 million dollars annually as part of the 792 million dollar total requested by the President to finance the bonus and New Deal undertakings.

The house Friday passed a bill imposing stringent regulations on paid lobbyists. The measure would require them to make complete statements of their activities, the compensation they receive, the names of their employers, and the purposes for which they have spent money while lobbying. Republicans fought to include government lobbyists under the bill's provisions. They were defeated.

House Spectacle.

For the second year in succession the Parker family of Tennessee attracted the attention of the house Monday. Last year Everett Parker with his wife and four children were seated in the house gallery. Mrs. Parker nursed her 3 month old baby. House members were shocked. A sergeant at arms hustled the family to the corridors.

On Monday Representative Aubert C. Dunn [Dem., Miss.] recalled the Parker family to the attention of the house. He pictured the Parkers as starving in a cheap boarding house room not half a mile from the capitol, and delivered a scorching criticism of Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

Representative Henry E. Stubbs, Democrat from California, jumped to his feet. "I'm going to pass the plate!" he shouted. Stubbs walked up and down the ailes. Members showered him with dollar bills. Speaker Byrns, a Tennesseean, blinked misty eyes. Finally he ordered the collection stopped.

Capital Notes.

Expenditures of the New Deal passed the 20 billion dollar mark on Monday. In the previous week New Deal spending increased to $28,600,000 a day or $200,000 a minute. Approximately two dollars were spent for every one taken in by the treasury. The public debt reached an all time record peak of 31 billion 441 million dollars. When the New Deal administration took office March 4, 1933, the public debt was 20 billion 936 millions.

Wallace's Farmer, an Iowa farm journal formerly owned by the secretary of agriculture, carries his name on the masthead as "on leave of absence." Friday, in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, Wallace's Farmer and four other farm journals were ordered to pay damages of $37,000 for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in restraint of trade. The judgment was awarded to the Indiana Farmers' Guide Publishing company of Huntington, Ind. The company charged the defendants with operating an advertising monopoly.

Secretary Wallace was the target in Washington Friday of an attack by Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.]. He branded as untrue and "barefaced covering up" Secretary Wallace's excuse that a huge staf and six months' time would be required to list large payments to farmers under the AAA. Such a list was requested by Taber in a resolution he introduced recently.

Sonny Boy.

In a half a dozen hearings from Feb. 13 to last Monday, Judge Rudolph Desort of the Superior court listened to conflicting stories of the parentage of Sonny Boy, a brown haired, violet eyed lad of 3.

The claim of Margaret Mann, 24, was that on May 19, 1932, she bore the boy at the St. Vincent's orphanage in Chicago. She supported her claim with a birth certificate and the testimony of hospital attendants who identified scars and birthmarks on the child's body. She refused, however, to name Sonny Boy's father, who since has married. Miss Mann's mother would not allow the baby in her home so it was boarded with Mrs. Madge Mordoff. For a year Miss Mann, working as a maid, paid $5 a week for the baby's keep. Then, she said, Mrs. Mordoff offered to board it free. Miss Mann said she agreed, stipulating she wanted the baby back by its 4th birthday.

The story of Dr. Gordon Mordoff of Wilmette was that the baby was born to Mrs. Mordoff on Sept. 2, 1932, in Minneapolis. He was not present at the birth, but knew the baby was his because Mrs. Mordoff had expected one. The doctor named the child Gordon Mordoff III.

On Feb. 10 of this year Mrs. Mordoff died at the age of 52. When Miss Mann heard of the death she immediately claimed Sonny Boy. Dr. Mordoff refused her claim, and she charged him with kidnaping. The baby was given to her for a day, but was returned to Dr. Mordoff's custody when Judge Desort ruled that the child was a ward of his court because Mrs. Mordoff had sued for separate maintenance before him last summer asking custody of her children, including Mary Margaret Mordoff, 17, whom Dr. Mordoff said was adopted.

Mrs. Mary Fairchild and John Quinn, sister and brother of Mrs. Mordoff, testified that in September, 1932, Mrs. Mordoff sought to adopt a baby, and that "Sonny Boy" was not hers. Mrs. Fairchild even said Gordon II., age 21, was not the doctor's son. She was fined $25 for calling Mary Margaret a liar after the daughter testified that though her father hated her, she believed in his claim to "Sonny Boy."

Until nine days ago Miss Mann had concealed the name of a fiancé. When she was cornered in cross-examination designed to show with whom she was living, her attorney revealed that she had secretly married Ray Alfred Fletcher, a chromium plater, on March 14. At this, Miss Mann, now Mrs. Fletcher, wept and fainted.

Last Monday night Judge Desort ruled that Mrs. Fletcher was the mother. The kidnaping charge against Dr. Mordoff was dropped yesterday. He will give "Sonny Boy" to Mrs. Fletcher today. Judge Desort had held up his decision on the child's custody until the fitness of its new home was investigated. By court order Dr. Mordoff and his daughter may have the boy two days each week.

City Notes.

Police department accident records last week verified the prediction of trafic engineers that the motor toll would decline after eastern standard time replaced central time on March 1. From sunset at 5:52 to 6:52 p. m. central time in the first 21 days of March, 1935, accidents caused five fatalities and 61 injuries. For the same hour and same period in 1936 [an hour before sunset under eastern time], there was one fatality and 38 injuries. Likewise, from 6:22 to 7:22, the first hour of darkness in 1935, there were five fatal and 65 nonfatal accidents to two fatal and 41 injurious accidents in that hour in 1936. As expected the accident toll in the early morning rose, but not enough to offset the afternoon gain. The morning period increased seven but the afternoon decreased 27.

Chicago's eligible voters numbered 1,644,198, the most in the city's history, after the canvass and revision of the 2,002,757 listed after the registration two weeks ago for the April primaries. The canvass and revision removed 360,063 names.

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, announced that victims of hit and run drivers had averaged 80 a month since last September. Judge John Gutknecht of the Trafic court suggested that the city council offer rewards to aid in capturing hit-run motorists. He referred to the case of Mrs. Filas Smolinski, 44 years old, a scrubwoman. Alighting from a street car Tuesday night, Mrs. Smolinski was hit and seriously injured by a sedan in which rode two men. They tied a cloth around her head and told her they would take her to a hospital. Later they pushed her out of the car. Mrs. Smolinski crawled about until a railroad towerman found her. She was in a desolate factory district.

Oak Park's water department mystery has turned from gallons to dollars. The disappearance daily of about 1,500,000 gallons of water purchased by Oak Park from Chicago was cleared up last December when it was discovered that the mains leaked. Village President James A. Howe last week announced that a special audit showed $5,000 missing from the water department. Wiley Imhoff, discharged on March 10, after 28 years of managing the water department, cannot be found. Howe would like to question Imhoff, but not Dudley C. Meyers. The latter resigned as commissioner of public works during the gallon mystery. He had served the village 32 years. In Milwaukee, however, Meyers said he probably owes Oak Park about $2,600 and will "straighten things out." He said both he and Imhoff had drawn I. O. U.'s.

News-Names

It became known on Tuesday that Ethel Barrymore, actress, was in the United hospital, Port Chester, N. Y., suffering from a broken shoulder. She had been an invalid for several weeks with a wrenched knee, then a week ago Friday, she attempted a few steps and fell in her bedroom.

President of the Illinois Central system since 1926, L. A. Downs last Monday celebrated his 40th anniversary with the railroad. He began his career with the Vandalia railroad in 1895 after graduating from Purdue university. He started work with the I. C. engineering department in 1896.

Eighty-one years old last Tuesday, Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, spent his birthday making an inspection tour of the flood devastated areas of Pittsburgh.

Hauptmann

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's hope to escape execution next Tuesday for the Lindbergh baby kidnap murder waned yesterday. [See main news section.]

On Friday his chances had appeared brighter. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, whose reopening of the case several months ago made sensational news, declared in Trenton Friday that "the whole case reeks with passion and prejudice."

He said he would gladly grant a second reprieve. The governor added that he was "more firmly convinced than ever that Hauptmann was not given a fair trial in line with what we consider to be American standards of justice."

His statement was a reply to Prosecutor Anthony Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county, who said he was "sick and tired" of the governor's activities in the case and suggested a legislative inquiry.

The governor on Thursday received a report from Arch W. Loney, WPA engineer and wood expert. Loney said he believed parts of the kidnap ladder did not come from the attic of the Hauptmann home, as testified by the state's ace witness, Arthur Koehler, government wood expert at the trial. On Friday the governor expressed confidence in Loney.

CURED IN A FLASH.

Crippled 15 years with arthritis, Miss Adeline Stover, 40, of Keyport, N. J., was able to walk last week. No credit could be claimed by medical science. Miss Stover ascribed her recovery to "a miracle." She told friends that a bolt of lightning struck outside her window. Immediately afterward she was able to walk.

FINANCE-SPORTS

Reviews of the week in finance and general business and also of sports are to be found in the finance and sports sections.

Politics

Criticism of the New Deal gained momentum throughout the country last week. In Washington Sunday Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, sounded the week's keynote. He said that "no more convincing evidence of the tragic failure of the Roosevelt administration has yet been given than that contained in the President's message to congress on March 18. After three years of reckless expenditure of public funds he reports that 5,300,000 families, practically one-sixth of the entire population of the country, still are dependent in whole or in part upon federal aid."

In Chicago on Wednesday Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, characterized the New Deal policy as one of "Borrow, boom, and bust!" He said reports were current in Washington that the Democratic party, in a "death bed repentance," may banish brain trust professors to the cellar and champion Jeffersonian Democracy—as a campaign antidote for the rising temperature of anti-New Deal sentiment.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said in Topeka Tuesday that his chief concern is harmony within the party. Concerning the pledging of a slate of delegates to him in California, the governor said he would "neither approve nor repudiate any delegate in any state" who chose to run as a Landon-for-President candidate. At his press conference on Thursday, Gov. Landon proved himself adept at dodging leading questions. He was willing to discuss fishing, 3.2 beer, and state problems, but when the question "What are you fishing for, governor?" was asked he replied: "Catfish, boys, catfish."

Senator Borah of Idaho, another candidate for the Republican nomination, announced Monday in Washington that he would return to the middle west in about a week to resume his campaign. He will speak in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Ohio.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend and his old age pension organization were sources of much news during the week. On Sunday Dr. Townsend announced he would support Senator Borah for the presidency. On Tuesday his right hand man, R. E. Clements, announced his resignation. He said:

"Differences in what I consider fundamental policies of both organization and methods of gaining the enactment of the Townsend plan into law have arisen between Dr. Townsend and myself."

The biggest Townsend news of the week came from the opening sessions of a congressional investigation into the Townsend movement. At the first session, Thursday, it was testified that the dimes and quarters of aged members of the Townsend Old Age Pension clubs made some of the organizers of the movement rich men. One state director, Edward Margett of San Francisco, received an income of between $1,800 and $2,000 a month as his percentage of the contributions of members in his district.

Mr. Clements, who has been called "the brains of the Townsend plan," was the principal witness before the committee of eight congressmen.

Clements admitted on Friday that he reserved for himself $12,385 in salary and dividends in 1935. This sum came from the contributions of the aged Townsend club members, who have paid in nearly a million dollars since the inception of the movement in January, 1934. Special counsel for the committee immediately challenged the Clements figure, saying that Clements received expenses of from $7,500 to $10,000 in 1935 and that he would receive $25,000 for his stock in the Townsend weekly.

Wayland Brooks, outstanding candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Illinois, continued his campaign swing through the state last week. His speeches were devoted almost exclusively to pointed criticism of the New Deal.

In Chicago yesterday Herbert Hoover outlined the four major problems he believes the G. O. P. must meet in the coming campaign. They are: 1. To demonstrate the failure of the New Deal in leading the country to ultimate disaster. 2. To offer a courageous, constructive program. 3. To choose the best qualified man for President. 4. For every Republican to get behind their candidates and elect them. The former President will speak in Fort Wayne, Ind., next Saturday. [See main news section.]

The race between Gov. Henry Horner and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen for the Democratic nomination for governor continued warm. The governor continued to assail Mayor Kelly, picturing him as a political boss who seeks to dictate to the entire state and is attempting to use the Democratic party for selfish ends.

Mayor Kelly, actively campaigning for Dr. Bundesen in Cook county, made many speeches during the week in Chicago. He referred to the Horner forces as a "vicious organization with lots of money behind it." He said Gov. Horner was calling him a boss "because the governor couldn't be a boss himself."

The race was enlivened Friday by the indorsement of Horner by Martin J. O'Brien, member of the Democratic county central committee which put Dr. Bundesen into the race. The bolting of O'Brien from the regular organization caused talk of reading him out of the party. Committeemen recalled that last summer Gov. Horner appointed O'Brien to the lucrative post of public administrator of Cook county, a fee office.

Flying

Fred Tucker, Iowa City farmer and foe of low flying airplanes, last week stopped all planes from landing at the municipal airport adjoining his farm. He did it by erecting a 24 foot pole on his property in line with the center of the north-south runway of the airport. United Air Lines ordered its field landings discontinued indefinitly as the pole constituted a hazard. Tucker contended that low flying planes frightened his cattle. Last fall Tucker won a court injunction prohibiting planes from flying less than 30 feet over Tucker's property. At the same time Tucker was enjoined from erecting poles more than 25 feet high on his land.

Nineteen persons, including a German prince and princess, were killed in two airplane crashes Thursday. Fourteen of the victims, among whom were Prince Adolf Schaumburg-Lippe and Princess Elisabeth Schaumburg-Lippe, died when a huge tri-motored plane crashed with them between the volcanoes of Popocatepetl and Ixtacchiuatl, near Amecameca, Mexico, and caught fire. Ten of the victims were German tourists, the others members of the plane's crew.

In the second crash four men and a woman were killed at Lyndhurst, England, Thursday night. The wrecked plane was a passenger air liner. Bad weather was blamed.

The week's death toll from airplane crashes reached 23 Friday when the bodies of four prominent Phoenix, Ariz., business men were found in the wreckage of the plane in which they had been flying from Douglas to Phoenix. The plane had been overdue at Phoenix for two days. American and Mexican army flyers were ordered to search for it Friday. Tommy Rhodes, son of a ranch owner of Oracle, Ariz., found the wreck on his father's ranch. The victims were Paul O'Neal, pilot and president of the Copperclad Airways; Harold A. Marks, attorney and a director of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce; John Powles, secretary of the Phoenix Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Paul Swasey, drug store executive.

The United States senate on Tuesday appropriated $4,500 to permit the weather bureau to send not more than ten employés a year to technical schools to study advanced meteorology. At recent hearings held by the commerce subcommittee on safety in aviation, such legislation was urged by Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transportation association.

Prof. G. T. R. Hill, professor of engineering at London university, predicted on Sunday that "in the reasonably near future" airplanes will span the Atlantic in a few hours via the "tropopoanse" level of the stratosphere. He said airplanes cruising at 275 miles an hour and capable of carrying four passengers with 800 horsepower could cross the ocean at an altitude of about 35,000 feet in five hours or less.

Officials of Transcontinental and Western Air Lines announced Friday an expansion program which will include a new air line between Dayton, O., and Chicago beginning about Sept. 1. Dayton is to become a regular port of call on TWA's primary east-west route.

Education

The University of Michigan interfraternity council took disciplinary action against the Lambda chapter of Beta Theta Pi fraternity Tuesday. The fraternity was ordered to close its house from April 1 to Sept. 1 for engaging in certain "hell week" practices considered contrary to the best interests of Michigan fraternities. "Hell week" is the period devoted to initiations of new fraternity members. The chapter, oldest Greek letter group on the campus, was one of eight ordered before the council for investigation. No disciplinary action was taken against the others.

Prof. E. T. Hiller of the University of Illinois last week advised bachelors who want to escape matrimony to spend leap year on the farm. In the cities, the sociologist said, there are two unmarried women for every unmarried man. The professor offered his advice in reporting on a survey of "organization in population." He said the report showed that women seek urban and men rural habitations.

Unhappy Landing.

Private Edward Halleck, attached to the army air corps base at Scott field, Belleville, Ill., recently went on leave to visit his best girl in Sparta, Wis. He told her he was a lieutenant and a daring flyer. On his way back to duty he bought a uniform of an aviation officer in the National Guard. For the next three weeks he had fun in Chicago, impressing chance acquaintances. Tuesday he realized he had overstayed his leave. He went out to 83d street and Cicero avenue and hailed a passing motorist who took him to a police station, where he said his plane had crashed in a swamp.

Failing to find a trace of the plane, police began to doubt, and Halleck finally confessed. "I wanted my girl to see my name in the paper," he said. Friday Private Halleck stripped of his officer's uniform, was back at Scott field awaiting court martial. They have only observation balloons at Scott field.

LET DOWN.

Samuel P. Cranage, retired lumber man of Bay City, Mich., found what appeared to be five 65 year old government debentures in the files of an estate to which he is heir and executor. Excitedly he notified the government of his find. The debentures, if genuine, represented $55,147,000, which Mr. Cranage hoped to collect. Secret service agents informed Mr. Cranage, however, that his vast fortune was worth nothing. The mystery of how the documents came into the possession of Cranage's ancestors remained unsolved.

VILLAGE STYLIST.

Men of Framingham Center, Mass., who want to know what the well dressed man is wearing at the moment, need only to go to the village railroad crossing and interview the watchman, Arthur Adams Pratt. His hobby is fashionable clothes. "What I wear is the very latest," he said. At work, however, he wears a cap instead of his fedora and carries a stop sign instead of his walking stick.

GREAT EASTERN

The French line's Normandie is the world's largest, heaviest and fastest liner. On June 3, 1935, it completed its 2,900 mile maiden voyage from Bishop Rock, England, to Ambrose Light, New York, in 4 days 3 hours and 5 minutes. On Sept. 30 the Normandie made the eastbound trip in 3 days 23 hours.

These "Atlantic ferry" records will be at stake when the Cunard-White Star line's new ship Queen Mary puts to sea from Southampton for New York on May 27. Neither the Queen Mary's length nor weight surpasses the Normandie's, but it has 16 turbines capable of 200,000 horsepower, compared to the Normandie's 160,000, and the British ship has the largest propellers [20 feet in diameter] ever made. It is predicted that the Queen Mary can maintain an average speed of 34 knots or about 39 miles an hour. The Normandie averaged 29.6 knots on its maiden trip.

Not only will the 1,018 foot, 80,773 ton Queen Mary be matched with the 1,029½ foot, 82,799 ton Normandie from the standpoint of power. It is a test of rival schools of naval architecture. The Normandie has a blunt prow below the waterline and tapers to stern like the streamlining of the Graf Zeppelin. The Queen Mary, in contrast, follows the traditional style with a knifelike prow and rounded stern.

Built in Clydebank, Scotland, the Queen Mary last week blundered 14 miles down the Clyde river to the sea. It required five hours, and great perseverance on the part of Capt. Sir Edgar T. Britten. While 1,000,000 persons watched, tugs hauled the ship along until the wind blew it crosswise of the river. Stern and bow hung on mud banks. Had the tide gone out at that point, the strain would have "hogged" the keel amidships and $30,000,000 and three years' labor would have gone for nothing. In 20 minutes the Queen Mary was clear and the peril was past.

The building of the Queen Mary began in 1930, but the depression forced the Cunard line [later merged with White Star] to halt the expensive work. Building was resumed in April, 1934, after the British government loaned the company $15,000,000. The Normandie was more expensive, having cost the French government some $59,000,000 with little hope of a profit on the investment. The great liner's lifetime is estimated at 15 years.

The Queen Mary will make speed trials during April in preparation for its first official run, which—record or no—will be about six times faster than the first Atlantic crossing of a steamship. This was the Savannah in 1819. It took 26 days and used sails most of the way. The record sailing voyage of the James Baines in 1830 took only 12 days 6 hours.

The map above shows previous records and other early marks.

Medicine

"Q" Quirks.

Biologists have found increasing reason to believe that the human body is animated by electricity. But except for the measurements of electrical impulses given off by heart and brain, the causes and results of bioelectricity have remained as indefinite as electricity itself.

Last week the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reported progress in the measurement of "Q." This quality represents the manner in which the body tissues conduct an electrical current. "Q" shows the relation between stored energy and released energy in the tissues. Heat causes the release.

Dr. J. Warren Horton invented an instrument which measures "Q" in the internal tissues through electrodes in contact with the skin's surface. One dial shows stored energy, the other shows lost energy.

Tests showed a "Q" range of 20 to 160 between sick and well persons. The variation was 60-90 for 26 healthy nurses. Thyroid gland deficiencies, causing a low energy output in the body, displayed a "Q" of 120 or higher. "Q" rises with muscular exercise, drops below normal for some time after and then slowly returns to normal.

Dr. Horton believes his "Q" meter, when its relation to metabolism [construction and destruction of tissue] is better understood, will be of great aid in medical diagnoses of disease.

On Vitamins.

A vitamin-conscious public has brought a reaction of late among medical authorities. Some have declared that vitamins improperly used can do more harm than good. Two weeks ago Dr. Elmer V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university told Brooklyn physicians that vitamin A, of which he was co-discoverer, is not a direct cold preventive. Last week the accent was again on more vitamins.

Dr. Henry C. Sherman, Columbia university and Carnegie institution researcher, spoke in Washington. From his experiments with rats, Dr. Sherman saw the possibility of extending the average human life from 70 years to 77 by adding small amounts of four essentials to the diet adequate for normal health. These essentials were vitamin A, which does promote growth; vitamin G, known as a pellagra preventive; calcium, and protein. Rats lived longer when given additional amounts of these essentials.

Dr. Sherman said that lengthening of the average life span heretofore has been largely accomplished by lowering early death rates. He said the average adult life is no longer. Diet improvements, he explained, would delay the lower vitality of old age and thus lengthen "the period of prime."

Epidemics.

Dr. Frank J. Jirka, Illinois director of public health at Springfield, last week reported a new seasonal high for scarlet fever. The 1,067 cases reported for the 10 days ending last Tuesday brought Illinois' total since Jan. 1 to 9,176 cases. Chicago reported 319 new cases. Peoria was high downstate with 43. The total for 1935 was 11,562.

Whooping cough's 335 new cases brought the year's total to 3,309. The total in 1935 was 2,634. There were 19 new cases of smallpox, largely in Cook and Will counties. Dr. Jirka said meningitis, with 18 new cases, was running parallel to last year. He fears an increase of infantile paralysis this summer.

Foreign Notes

A week's diplomatic conversation at Rome between Italy, Austria, and Hungary ended Monday in the signing of a new coöperative treaty enlarging upon the agreements made in 1934. It was reported that the three nations had agreed not to support trade penalties against Germany if France demanded them. The three power treaty provides mainly for friendly consultations. The agreement was seen as an act to impress the Balkan and little ententes with the unity of Italy, Austria, and Hungary. There was a possibility the accord would be extended to include other countries, especially Czechoslovakia, although Hungary is not enthusiastic because of border disputes.

"This is a warning to all British recruiting agents." So read a card placed on the blood stained body of retired Vice Admiral Henry Somerville, 73 years old, who was slain Monday night in his lonely residence at Castletownsend, County Cork, Irish Free State. The card added: "This British agent has sent fifty-two Irish boys into the British army in the last few months. He will send no more."

The De Valera government conducted an intensive all week hunt for the slayers. The department of justice at Dublin sent out detectives who are experts on political crimes and armed civic guards. The crime generally was deplored by officials antagonistic to the British government.

The admiral was a brother of Miss Edith Somerville, authoress who, with a cousin, Violet Martin, wrote the Somerville and Ross stories of Irish life.

Some 60,000 squatters, impatient at the Spanish government's delay in the program of breaking up big estates, last week took over large farm lands in Badajoz, Spain. The workers abandoned the lands peacefully, however, upon the order of Miguel Granados, Badajoz governor. They were told the estates would later be divided legally. Two persons were killed in fresh clashes between Fascists and communists in the province of Ciudadreal. At Oviedo Dr. Alfredo Martinez, former liberal minister of war, was gravely wounded by a man identified as a leftist. As the censorship lifted in Asturias the death of Lieut. Alonso Nart of Spain's Foreign Legion came to light. He was said to have been shot in a duel by the brother of a man whom he had brutally tortured during the Asturias revolt in 1934.

Col. François de la Roque, Paris chief of the Fascist Croix de Feu [Cross of Fire], was motoring at midnight on a lonely road to attend a secret drill of his corps for a threatened "march on Paris." There was a volley of pistol shots. This attempted assassination, at first unmentioned, was revealed last week. De la Roque has threatened the march if Socialists or communists menace Paris. Presumably the ambush was laid by communists.

The Nazi terms of "Aryan" and "non-Aryan" to distinguish between the German "race" and races the Nazis do not regard as Germans will be dropped from Germany's vocabulary, it was announced in Berlin. Instead the concept of "German or related blood" will be used. One newspaper said the term "Aryan" is based on the "confusion of a nationality and a race." Scientists previously have pointed out the German use was a misconception, since an "Aryan" is a member of the Caucasian race whose ancestors came from the Iranian plateau or India.

SMELT RUN.

Residents of East Jordan, Mich., and vicinity were jubilant last week. The annual smelt run had begun. Each year the slender food fish start up stream with the first warm rains to spawn. The run is a signal for gala festivals in the river towns of northwestern Michigan. The fish swarm into the rivers at night. Aided by electric flood lights and flares, fishermen catch the smelts in long nets.

Science

Color Detector.

When Paris designers show a new color style eager American clothiers will be able to reproduce the exact shade within a few minutes after receiving a telephone or cable message. This possibility was offered last week by Howard Ketcham, New York color engineer. Ketcham's invention, contained in a small traveling bag, "reduces more than 30,000 shades of colors to an exact formula which can be reproduced and seen without any special technical knowledge." The duplication is accomplished by selection of from two to four of 84 standard, numbered color discs nearest the shade to be matched. These are rotated behind the sample at 3,500 revolutions per minute. The standard discs are adjusted to overlap one another until, while spinning, they match the sample's color. The disc numbers and the proportion of the complete circle they occupy determine the formula to be used on a color analyzer to reproduce the sample.

Dust Light.

Dr. L. J. Butolph, researcher of the General Electric company at Cleveland, demonstrated before the New York Electrical society an electric light that uses glowing dust. This produces a white light twice as brilliant as the ordinary electric light or a green light 200 times brighter than any previous green light, said Dr. Butolph. The key to the invention is the artificial creation of dusts which surpass the fluorescence [glow] of many natural rock dusts when exposed to invisible ultra-violet rays. The synthetic dust coats the inside of a foot-long, inch-wide vacuum tube. The dust is energized by mercury and argon vaporized by the electric current.

Floods

Removal of trees, logs and underbrush from forests throughout the east by the civilian conservation corps was blamed last week by Mayor William N. McNair of Pittsburgh as an underlying cause of the recent disastrous floods. The death toll on Thursday stood at 201 and property damage was estimated at 225 million dollars.

Mayor McNair charged that activities of the CCC had deprived the eastern watershed of a vast natural sponge which would have absorbed the excess water until much of it had entered the ground.

As flood waters began to recede early in the week from the devastated areas in the east, the danger zone shifted to towns and cities along the Ohio river, many of which were inundated. [See main news section.]

Relief of thousands of homeless families in the stricken areas continued to be a staggering problem throughout the week. The greatest burden fell upon the Red Cross. Chicago's contributions toward the $3,000,000 national Red Cross flood relief fund rose during the week to more than half of the $225,000 quota set for the city.

In Washington representatives from 15 flood stricken states sponsored a bill, introduced in the house on Wednesday, calling for a joint congressional committee to draft an emergency and permanent flood relief program.

Crime

The mystery murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, who was beaten and shot to death Jan. 2, was solved with dramatic suddenness Friday night. Four young robbers committed the crime, which netted them $20. Two of the gang made complete confessions. The prisoners are Robert Goethe, 19; Durland Nash, 19; Emil Reck, 19; and Michael Livingston, 17. Yesterday they reënacted the crime. [See main news section.]

The once "terrible" Tommy Touhy of the Chicago Touhy gang sat trembling in a wheel chair in the federal court at Minneapolis last week. He heard a jury declare him guilty of the $78,000 Milwaukee mail robbery. Next day, Tuesday, Judge Gunnar H. Nordye, who presided at the trial, sentenced Touhy to serve 23 years in Leavenworth prison. He granted a five day stay for preparation of an appeal. The appeal will be taken, Touhy's lawyer announced, but the one time big shot gangster, now tubercular, will be in prison when it is heard.

Alex [Old Peg] Rohda, 59, wooden legged ex-convict, has spent twenty-nine of the last forty years in penitentiaries. Thursday in Chicago he robbed a blind woman. Witnesses chased him. One of them cried out that he was the lowest of thieves. Old Peg halted. Shamefacedly he surrendered. He gave police a revolver he carried in a secret compartment of his wooden leg, then asked to be sent back to prison.

After deliberating 36 hours over the guilt or innocence of David A. Lamson, former Stanford university publishing house executive, accused of murdering his wife, Allene, a jury at San José, Cal., Wednesday failed to agree and was discharged. It was the third trial of Lamson on the same charge. The first jury convicted him and recommended the death sentence. Lamson won a Supreme court reversal. A second jury, standing 10 to 2 for conviction, was discharged.

During the selection of a jury Tuesday in a Tampa, Fla., court, circulars were quietly distributed. "This is the first time in Florida history that the Ku Klux Klan has been brought to trial," the circulars read. "The K. K. K. has a long record of assault and murder of workers in Tampa and all over Florida." The circular was signed "Communist Party." In Jacksonville, Friday, klansmen staged a fiery cross parade. The Tampa case was that of three suspended Tampa policemen charged with the abduction, flogging, and tarring of three Tampa labor organizers. One of the flogging victims, Joseph Shoemaker, died of his injuries. Because of the circulars defense counsel attempted to get a change of venue but on Wednesday Judge Robert T. Dewell ordered the case to proceed.

A petit jury of six men was accepted by the state Friday, but the defense challenged and excused one venireman. The defendants are specifically charged in this case with the kidnaping and flogging of E. F. Poulnot, one of the three victims.

Irving Weitzman, south side bakery owner, was found not guilty of murder Wednesday by a jury in the Criminal court. It was Weitzman's second trial on the charge that he killed Eli Daiches, advertising man, who was slain in gangland style at 53d street and the outer drive on March 3, 1934. A year ago Weitzman was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment. The state Supreme court reversed the verdict and ordered a new trial.

Mrs. Dorothea Livermore Longcope was exonerated in Santa Barbara, Cal., Wednesday when she was arraigned on a charge of shooting her son, Jesse Livermore Jr. The shooting occurred during a drunken quarrel last Thanksgiving. The case was dismissed after young Livermore assumed blame.

Swift justice was given four ex-convicts who came to Chicago after their release from Leavenworth prison three months ago and engaged in a series of liquor store holdups. They were indicted at 11 a. m. Wednesday. A few minutes later they were tried. All pleaded guilty. Acting Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington sentenced each to serve one year to life. The prisoners, Alfred Pscherer of Omaha, Edward Barron of Bellingham, Wash., James Kelly of Rochester, N. Y., and David Brennan, Dunkirk, N. Y., were locked in prison Thursday.

Blonde Vera Stretz, 31, art student, calmly admitted on the witness stand in New York General Sessions court Friday that she fired four bullets into the body of her lover, Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, German importer. A few minutes later her testimony was interrupted by her weeping as she told of her love for Gebhardt.

Her attorney, Samuel Liebowitz, conducting his 120th murder defense case, announced before calling the defendant to the stand that her story would take two days. He indicated her self-defense plea would be based on an alleged "unnatural assault" by Gebhardt.

To forestall this line of defense the prosecution on Thursday called two policemen who testified that Miss Stretz had stated immediately after her arrest that there was "no assault."

Ferdinand W. Scherer, 63, former cashier in the office of the United States District court, pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of embezzling $3,500 of the funds of his office. Federal Judge Fred L. Wham denied a motion for probation and sentenced Scherer to serve eighteen months at the federal penal farm, Milan, Mich.

Labor

The dispute between the International Mercantile Marine company and members of the International Union of Operating Engineers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, remained active last week. On Monday the labor relations board at Washington issued an order for an election among the company's engineers. The ballot will settle, it is believed, the struggle between conservatives and left wingers for control of the three engineers' unions. The other two are the United Licensed Officers of the U. S. A., and the National Marine Engineers' Beneficial association.

Elevator operators of the 30 story apartment at 25 Central Park West, New York, went on strike Wednesday. Sixty-four employés walked out, crippling service in the building. The strike was repudiated by James J. Bambrick, head of the Building Service Employés union. Discharge of six employés brought on the strike. The building is the home of many business and stage celebrities.

State's attorney's police arrested 17 members of the Chicago Cigar, Tobacco and Cigaret Salesmen and Drivers' union Monday. They were picketing the establishments of tobacco jobbers against which they are striking for wage increases. The picketers were held for investigation.

Mrs. Florence Struthers, who identified herself as majority stockholder of the Strutwear Knitting company, Minneapolis, testified Wednesday that she believed the American Federation of Labor "is not legally an organization." Mrs. Struthers appeared as a witness in the company's suit for an injunction to restrain picketing at its plant, closed by labor troubles since last August.

Norman Thomas, national Socialist leader and twice that party's presidential candidate was freed Monday in Brooklyn on a charge of disorderly conduct. The charge was filed when he picketed a Brooklyn department store last February. Thomas said he would bring suit for false arrest.

The homes of six workers who refused to join a strike Wednesday at the Friehofer Baking company, Philadelphia, were attacked shortly after the walkout. The door of one house was smashed. Paint and acid were thrown through the window of another. Empty milk bottles were hurled at the remaining four. The strikers demanded union recognition and wage increases.

FLYING DUCAT.

Officials of the Portland, Ore., traction company were mildly alarmed Wednesday when they discovered that members of the Kubat family were using a homing pigeon to enable three members of the family to ride the street cars with one pass. When young Urban Kubat goes to work he takes the homing pigeon with him. When he arrives he fastens the family street car pass on the bird and a few minutes later the pigeon is home. Urban's father repeats the performance. Then Mrs. Kubat uses the pass during the day. Traction officials said reluctantly there is no rule prohibiting the practice.

Deaths

Abbott, Dr. Donald Putnam, 52, clinical professor of medicine at Rush Medical college, Chicago, Friday.

Asche, Oscar, 65, British actor and dramatic author, Marlow, England, Monday.

Bogan, William J., 65, superintendent of Chicago schools, Chicago, Tuesday. He had been superintendent since 1928 and a member of the school system for 43 years.

Bowering, Sir Frederick, British shipping magnate and former lord mayor of Liverpool, Liverpool, Tuesday.

Chetwyn, Viscount Godfrey John Boyle, 73, pioneer developer of west Texas, San Antonio, Tex., Sunday.

Cleaver, Sir Frederick, 60, former Ulster leader and once director of American Red Cross relief work in Ireland, Belfast, Ireland, Sunday.

Dale, George H., 64, former mayor of Muncie, Ind., and a bitter foe of the Ku Klux Klan when it was powerful in Indiana, Muncie, Friday.

Fisher, the Rev. Dr. Lewis Beals, 78, former president of Lombard college, Galesburg, former dean of University of Chicago divinity school, Chicago, Sunday.

Flaherty, Frank B., 67, New York, Sunday. He was one time right hand man of James Gordon Bennett, famous publisher of the old New York Herald.

Fortin, Eugene, 55, known for more than 30 years as "Gene" to members of the Chicago club, for which he was doorman, Chicago, Tuesday.

Goodman, William Owen, 88, retired lumber man and philanthropist, Chicago, Sunday. He built the Goodman theater in memory of his son, Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, who died in war service.

Harris, Dr. Malcolm La Salle, 73, internationally known surgeon, Wauwatosa, Wis., Sunday. He was a former president of the American Medical association.

Heisen, Lieut.-Col. Horace N., 43, commanding officer at Moffett field, army air base at Sunnyvale, Cal., San Francisco, Monday.

Judy, Ambrose B., 99, former philosopher and civil war veteran, Potomac, Ill., Sunday. He founded the Girls' Home and Industrial school at Potomac.

Kelly, William P., 52, controler for the International Harvester company, Highland Park, Ill., Sunday.

Roulette, Capt. Pinckney S., 74, veteran great lakes shipmaster and operator, Chicago, Sunday. He began his career on the lakes at the age of 12 and became a captain at 20.

Vasquez, Gen. Horacio, 75, former president of the Dominican Republic and often a central figure in the stormy politics of that country, Ciudad Trujillo, Wednesday.

WELL OILED.

Residents of Oklahoma City on Tuesday voted to allow oil well drilling in a thickly populated residential area. Wednesday oil well drilling crews started a "black gold rush" in the midst of houses, apartments, and bungalows. At the same time an oil company prepared to erect a 100 foot derrick directly opposite the state capitol. The special oil election ended a long controversy between Gov. E. W. Marland and the oil interests.

FRENCH BOOST DISCOUNT RATE TO GUARD GOLD

Dollars in Demand in World Markets.

In an effort to prevent an outflow of gold, regents of the Bank of France yesterday met in extraordinary session and boosted the discount rate from 3½ to 5 per cent as the franc continued to sink well below the level against the dollar at which gold shipments from Paris to New York become profitable.

Yesterday's increase in the discount rate was the first since last Nov. 25, when the Laval government had to fight inflation threats. The latest move to protect the franc again reflects inflationary possibilities as reports are current that the government may decide on devaluation after the April 26 elections. Uneasiness over the German situation also is a factor in the weakness in the franc.

Dollars in Heavy Demand.

Dollars were much in demand yesterday in world exchange markets for conversion purposes. British pounds also were being bought, but not in sufficient quantity to offset the strength in the dollar. In London the transfer of French balances from pounds to dollars was heavy enough to raise the dollar against pound sterling.

The urgency of the French central bank's action is indicated by the fact that any change in the bank rate is ordinarily announced on Thursdays, the regents rarely assembling on Saturday. The 30 day loan rate was given a similar boost, and the rate for loans on stocks was raised from 5 to 6 per cent.

Prices of rentes and government securities slipped slightly in Paris, but it was believed the bank's action would improve the market over the weekend. Government 3 per cent bonds, quoted at 85 a year ago and at 68.40 the day before the German army moved in to the Rhineland, sank to 65.35 yesterday.

Predict Gold Withdrawals.

Financial quarters in Paris were predicting gold withdrawals from the Bank of France. The outward movement of capital was gaining momentum, they said, and they blamed not only the German menace and internal political dissention in France but also the Wall street attraction.

In early trading at New York the franc dropped to its lowest level since last October at 6.58¼ cents. Shortly after the action of the Bank of France became known the franc began rising on buying attributed to a single source. Brokers said the rise was characteristic of official support, possibly with the coöperation of the British equalization or American stabilization funds.

The franc closed at 6.58⅜ cents, a net loss of ⅝ point. Its movement pushed the value of the dollar to 100.76 cents against francs, compared with 100.66 cents Friday and 99.19 cents a month ago.

Guilders Fall to New Low.

The Dutch guilders declined to a new 1936 low of 67.60 cents, but rallied with support in the franc and closed at 67.65 cents, a net loss of 26 points. This price was near the level which makes gold shipments from the Netherlands to New York profitable. Swiss francs declined 2 points to 32.59 cents, but remained above the export point. Italian lire again hit a new 1936 low at 7.94 cents, off 1 point, and German marks slumped 14 points to 40.08 cents.

The pound sterling lost ⅛ cent to $4.94½ in New York, after closing in London at $4.94⅝, compared with the overnight New York rate of $4.94⅝.

So far as could be learned there were no arrangements made for transfer of gold to New York. This was attributed to two reasons: First, the lack of fast ships until next Wednesday, and, second, the German elections scheduled for today. Bankers were restrained over the possibilities hinging on these elections.

Expected to Be Erratic.

French elections will be held on April 26 and May 3, and, in the meantime the franc is expected to move erratically. Actual devaluation is not expected prior to the elections, but reports, not confirmed, were to the effect that the government would place an embargo on gold shipments.

Such action would be virtually a sign of abandonment of the gold standard and would automatically reduce the value of the franc against other gold currencies.

If France were to leave gold, other members of her bloc would be expected to follow. These members are Switzerland and Holland. This would lead, experts say, to a general movement for stabilization of currencies among principal nations.

The present is the third crisis that has effected the franc in a little over a year. In May, 1935, distrust of the position of the gold bloc set up by Belgium's devaluation the previous month caused a run on the franc that lasted until June 20, and brought to this country more than $500,000,000 of gold. The Bank of France at that time was compelled to advance its rate in successive jumps from 2½ per cent on May 24, to 6 per cent on May 29.

Dip in French Bank's Stock Alarms Paris

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 28.—With the fear of devaluation steadily growing in this country and a new offensive against the franc getting under way in foreign money centers, alarm in financial circles here over the steady decline of the stock of the Bank of France on the bourse reached a high peak this week.

This decline alarms French financial circles because the stock of the Bank of France—a private enterprise operated for profit—should benefit like other common stocks from devaluation fears. Furthermore, the bank's usual substantial dividend hardly varied during the depression years, and the profits, after touching a low point in 1933, have been slowly improving.

Big Break Since 1930.

By every ordinary standard the Bank of France stock should be a good investment, devaluation or no devaluation. Yet the shares have declined on the bourse from a high of 26,400 francs and a low of 17,820 francs in 1930 to a high of 9,600 francs and a low of 7,725 francs during the first quarter of 1936. At the end of this week shares were quoted at within a few points of the year's low.

In banking circles the explanation offered for this phenomenon is this:

A victory by the radical Popular front in the coming elections is generally expected, and one of the points of the Popular front program is to convert the Bank of France from a private corporation supervised by the state into a real state bank—in other words, nationalize it.

Weighs on Market Value.

Private owners of the bank stock naturally are far from pleased at this prospect and it seems reasonable enough to suppose that this fear of expropriation by the state or at least state interference in big doses is weighing on the market value of the stock.

Whatever the cause of the decline it is chiefly interesting for its possible consequences. The Bank of France is the pillar of French finance and economy. It is the heart and brain of the nation's business—the heart because the Bank of France has a virtual monopoly on credit, the life blood of business, and the brain because of the bank's directorate and the big stockholders are the rulers of French business.

INDUSTRY INDEX DIPS FOR WEEK, DUE TO FLOODS

New York, March 28.—(AP)—The month old upswing in industrial production was interrupted this week by the effects of the recent floods. The Associated Press index of industrial activity at 81.3 compares with 82.8 a week ago and 75.5 in the same week last year.

Most seriously affected by the flood conditions were electric power generators, railroad carloadings, and steel manufacturing.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics, and with 1926 equal to 100, follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Composite	81.3	82.8	75.5
Automobile	82.5	81.0	86.6
Steel mill	72.1	80.5	61.9
Cotton mfg.	101.1	101.0	87.3
Electric power	*101.9	104.1	97.3

KEESHIN GETS B. & O. CONTRACT FOR DOOR DELIVERY SERVICE

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—The Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines today received a contract from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for store-door pickup and delivery service in the principal areas served by the railroad. The contract covers Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, upper New York, the District of Columbia, and parts of Maryland, Virginia, and Kentucky.

The Baltimore and Ohio has become the first of the larger roads to coöperate with localized trucking companies. Through subcontracts its business in many communities will be placed with local truckers by the Keeshin lines. The contract, effective on Wednesday, will be carried out by the Keeshin Cartage company, a subsidiary of Keeshin Transcontinental.

The Keeshin line, which was formed by John Hertz, a partner of Lehman Brothers, and J. L. Keeshin of Chicago, has, since its formation, acquired what are considered key trucking concerns in various parts of the country. Besides its localized service it has inaugurated also transcontinental truck caravans, the first put into operation in this country. The company reports that recent acquisitions have widened its operation to thirty-two states.

INSTALLMENT SALES ESTIMATED AT FIVE BILLION

New York, March 28.—(AP)—The credit management division of the National Retail Dry Goods association estimated today that a 5 billion dollar retail installment sales volume this year would be a "reasonable expectation." At the same time, however, the organization warned against too large a growth in that type of sales volume.

J. Anton Hagios, manager of the division, declared the 1936 percentage of installment sales to total sales might exceed the 1929 aggregate when 13 per cent, or about $6,370,000,000 of the $49,000,000,000 in total retail sales, passed to the consumer on the deferred payment plan.

It was said that should the ratio of installment sales to total retail sales continue to increase during the next few years as an outgrowth of the present trend in installment granting, an increasing outstanding installment debt will be created, which may present a weighty problem to stores in the event of another business slump.

RAIL EARNINGS RUN FAR ABOVE TOTAL YEAR AGO

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Reports received so far indicated today that railroad earnings for February and for the first 2 months of the year were substantially ahead of the same period a year ago.

The first 57 roads reporting turned in increases of 20.4 per cent in gross and 30.0 per cent in net operating income for February over the same month in 1935. Improvement in the first two months was 15.3 per cent in gross and 38.9 per cent in net operating income.

Three Oil Companies Boost Gasoline Prices in Texas

Dallas, Tex., March 28.—(AP)—Three major oil companies advanced the price of gasoline on three grades here today. The Texas, Sinclair, and Magnolia companies posted a schedule of 20 cents for treated gasoline, 18 for standard grade, and 15 for third grade. Other companies were still retailing for 19, 17, and 13 cents a gallon, but were expected to meet the advances.

SHOULD ALL STOCKS BE SOLD NOW?

Stocks have advanced remarkably during the past year. Many are up from 150% to 200%. Such profits are rarely achieved, but should they be accepted? Or will still greater gains accrue to those who hold for higher prices?

Have stocks now reached a point where effective resistance will be encountered? Will such resistance be followed by a sharp break in prices? Will the issues you hold soon be quoted at much lower levels?

If you do not know the answers to these important questions you are simply gambling in the market and probably will experience huge losses.

Simply send us your name and address and we will give you our answer to these questions in a straightforward manner. We may be wrong this time, but our advice has been surprisingly accurate for many years. At least, it costs nothing to obtain copies of our current Stock Market Bulletins. B. & O. Adopts 2 Cent Fare; Rejects Delay

Baltimore, Md., March 28.—(AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad announced today that, if necessary, it would stand alone in the east in reducing passenger fare from 3.6 to 2 cents a mile to win back business from buses and automobiles and to gain a new patronage.

DANIEL WILLARD.

Daniel Willard, president, who waged a five year fight for the reduced fares as a means of rejuvenating railway passenger business, said, regardless of the position of other lines, his road was moving to put the new rates into effect by June 2.

Others Want Delay.

His statement followed a decision of other eastern railroads in Washington yesterday to ask the interstate commerce commission to suspend the effective date of the fares. These roads would propose new compromise rates to be tried out as an experiment.

Willard said the B. & O. would not join in the request of these lines. A memorandum from his office said:

"So far as the Baltimore and Ohio is concerned it will not interfere with what the other railroads decide to do in this respect. However, it is now preparing tarifs on the basis of the fares ordered by the commission, and expects to put them into effect not later than June 2, the date specified by the commission."

In Effect Elsewhere.

These fares in general are the same as those already in effect in western and southern sections. They were approved by the I. C. C. last month, providing in addition to the passenger rate cut, reduction from an average of 4 to 3 cents a mile in the Pullman rate and elimination of the surcharge.

At hearings before the commission, the B. & O., fighting stubbornly for the reductions argued roads elsewhere had found similar cuts beneficial. Aligned against the fare reductions were such lines as the New York Central, Pennsylvania, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

WEEK'S RETAIL ADVERTISING 6.1% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Retail advertising totaling 17,646,579 lines in newspapers of 65 major cities in the United States in the week ended March 21 was 6.1 per cent more than 16,625,164 lines used in the corresponding week of 1935, Advertising Age reported yesterday.

The gain would have been substantially larger had normal weather conditions prevailed, the publication said. Floods seriously cut into business in several of the reporting cities.

To March 21, retail advertising was 1.9 per cent ahead of last year, 177,801,346 lines having been placed, compared with 174,505,321 at the same time in 1935.

STOCK PRICES MIXED IN YEAR'S QUIETEST TRADE

Many Drop at Start, but Close Firm.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Stocks closed irregular today in the quietest trading session of the year. Only 656,780 shares were sold in the two hours. Last Saturday's aggregate was 840,000 shares.

Except for the decline in gold currencies, resulting in an emergency increase in the French bank rate, there was no spot news of market importance and the lackadaisical operations appeared for the most part to reflect little more than evening operations. No pronounced interest was apparent in any group and few gains amounted to more than a point or so. The opening was generally weaker and for a few minutes it looked as though a continuation of yesterday's selling movement was the order of the day.

Many Lose at Start.

Western Union sold off a point on the first few transactions. Allied Chemical dropped $2 a share, and losses of major fractions showed up against a sizable array of other issues whose performances are watched as indications of the market's changing moods. After the first few minutes, however, the list steadied and for the most of the remainder of the session, the slow moving tape had slight changes to make in the board quotations anywhere. Buying picked up a little toward the last, enabling most groups to round out the day on a promising note.

Scattered issues to rise a point or more included Atlantic Refining, Liggett and Myers, Scott Paper, Westinghouse, Midland Steel, Phillip Morris, and U. S. Smelting.

Farm implements perked up in the late trading, Case finishing with a net gain of nearly three points. Deere bettered its rating by a dollar a share. International Harvester was the laggard of the group, closing fractionally below yesterday's final figure.

Douglas Gains 2 Points.

Some demand also appeared for the airplanes, particularly for Douglas which advanced 2 points, and Wright which rose a point.

Rails held steady after wabbling a little at the outset and the utilities did little more than mark time. United Gas Improvement slipped a small fraction on light dealings following its 1935 report showing a decline in earnings. American Telephone was among the few group leaders unable to qualify for a plus sign. It closed a half point lower.

What little special interest the day's activities provided for board room loungers came from issues usually grouped under the more or less loose heading of specialties.

TRADE MEASURED BY CHECKS SHOWS SHARP DECLINE

Business transacted by checks fell sharply last week, partly the reflection of suspension of business throughout flood areas of the east. Debits to individual deposit account fell to $7,718,488,000 from $10,209,696,000 a week earlier. In the corresponding period last year the total was $7,057,930,000.

In the Chicago reserve bank area a decrease was shown also, although the drop was not as severe. Volume here amounted to $1,049,298,000, against $1,223,055,000 in the previous week and $1,036,466,000 last year. Debits in the city of Chicago fell below the preceding year for the first time in several months, standing at $619,852,000, against $632,290,000.

Bank clearings in Chicago for the week totaled $272,200,000, compared with $285,900,000 a week ago and $252,100,000 a year ago.

National Tube to Start Work on Pipe Line Friday

Lorain, O., March 28.—(AP)—The National Tube company received orders today to start work next Friday on a three million dollar pipe line for the Columbia Gas and Electric company to carry gas from Muncie, Ind., to Detroit. Earl Brown, general superintendent of the Lorain mills, said at least half of the 200 miles of 22 inch pipe would be made here. The rest probably will be made in McKeesport, Pa., he said.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Business Speeds Ahead—Flood Loss Is Influence—Jobs Increase in Some Industries—Corporation Earnings Rise—New Deal Gets More Blows—Stocks Decline.

Business moved forward at an accelerated pace last week as the industrial east, watching flood waters abate, launched reconstruction work. Manufacturers of paints, glass, lumber, machinery, structural steel, drugs, chemicals, and retail merchandise felt the effects of increased demand as rehabilitation went forward.

Steel output climbed back more than 8 points to 58½ per cent of plant capacity as normal finishing capacity was restored in the Pittsburgh and Wheeling districts, hard hit by floods. Railroad car loadings declined because of service interruptions and a drop in coal trafic. Automobile production passed the 100,000 car mark. Power output dipped and bank clearings increased.

Easter demand bolstered retail sales while wholesale activity was intensified by replacement buying of merchants whose stocks were made worthless by floods.

Windfall.

Machinery builders and machine tool makers regarded the floods as an unexpected "windfall." Many industrialists, viewing equipment which had been on the borderline of usefulness, decided it was not worth reconditioning.

Business also gained momentum in states outside the flood areas. Retail trade is expected to be the largest in five years and has become so heavy that delivery problems constitute the most trying obstacle to sales.

Warmer weather brought a decided decline in production of both hard and soft coal. Uncertainty about a new wage agreement caused anthracite producers to delay the usual spring price cut to April 15.

Business Week reported the piano industry has been operating at capacity following the introduction of a new and smaller type piano.

Pipe fabricators were encouraged by a 44,000 ton order placed by the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line—the largest pipe order in five years. The project will cost $18,000,000 and will bring natural gas from Indiana to Detroit.

Jobs.

Employment gains were made by 48 of 90 industries during February, the locomotive group topping the list with an 18 per cent increase. Apparel factories added workers, the machine tool trade again increased its total, and the farm implement industry had the largest employment since March, 1930.

Earnings.

Good news for stockholders appeared in earnings statements of many leading corporations. Borg-Warner shareholders were told first quarter business is running ahead of last year. Stewart-Warner tripled its profits in 1935. Butler Brothers expects to cut its loss substantially during the first half of this year. Sears, Roebuck and company announced 1935 profits and sales were the best since 1929. Earnings of the General Motors Acceptance corporation increased sharply last year.

Bendix Aviation's 1935 earnings were the highest since 1929. Brunswick-Balke-Collender company reported a small profit for last year, against a loss in 1934. American Radiator doubled its 1934 net earnings. Continental Oil had the best record since 1929, Anaconda Copper enjoyed a sharp increase. Union Carbide reported a gain.

Securities.

Unsettled European affairs, eastern flood damage, and favorable corporate earnings reports resulted in mixed trends on securities markets. Trading on the New York Stock exchange fell to the lowest level of any week this year and prices eased in nearly all sections of the list. However, wide gains were registered by some individual performers.

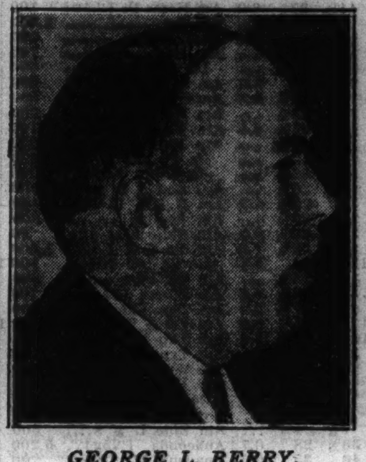
Automotive shares advanced sharply and farm implements and chemicals moved forward. Late in the week, however, the market slipped back as traders took to the sidelines awaiting some definite indication of the trend.

Fluctuations in the bond market were narrow and prices about steady. United States government obligations were outstanding for their strength, which pushed several issues to new highs since issuance.

Protests.

Business was again articulate in denouncing New Deal intrusion in the field of private enterprise and assailing legislative policies which have retarded activity.

George L. Berry, federal coördinator for industrial coöperation, informed President Roosevelt that the policy of government in business is wholly destructive. The charge was made in a report of the committee on government competition with private enterprise, which, after setting forth exceptional circumstances under which the government was justified in entering private industry, concluded that the government's duty is to protect economic functions of its citizens and not supplant them.



GEORGE L. BERRY.

Exchange.

Leading foreign currencies turned heavy at about the time it appeared diplomats had the German Rhineland controversy under control. The Bank of France showed a striking gain in discounted bills as private banks gathered cash as a safeguard against possible demands. The franc slid below the gold point, making possible the shipment of gold to the United States for the first time since January. Reports were circulated in both this country and France that the French government was contemplating an embargo on gold exports. As a protective move the Bank of France boosted its discount rate to 5 per cent.

Margins.

New margin rules of the federal reserve board, permitting loans up to 45 per cent of the market value of securities, applicable to banks as well as brokers, were favorably received in financial quarters because they will do away with most of the complex and involved elements of the present sliding scale schedule.

Fares.

Eastern railroad presidents, seeking to agree on a compromise passenger fare to be suggested to the interstate commerce commission in place of the basic fare of 2 cents for coaches and 3 cents for Pullmans, recently ordered by the commission, met last week, agreed on a substitute proposal, and adjourned to meet again this week. The carriers want an "experimental" period, of probably six months, with a rate somewhere between the new basic tarif of 2 cents and the old 3.6 cent charge. The I. C. C. rate order was country-wide in scope, but its chief effect would fall on the eastern carriers because experimental low rates already are in operation in the west and south. With the exception of the Baltimore and Ohio, eastern lines have presented a united front against any reduction. The B. & O. decided yesterday to put a 2 cent basic rate into effect.

The present basic rate of 3.6 cents per mile dates from 1920 when it was advanced from 3 cents following enactment of the transportation act of 1920. Under the fair return clause

SEVERAL HIGH COURT RULINGS DUE TOMORROW

May Reveal Position on Utility Act.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The Supreme court was believed tonight by government attorneys to have decided whether to pass on the constitutionality of the New Deal's public utility holding company act. The nine justices had this case before them at their regular Saturday afternoon conference.

However, no announcement was in prospect before Monday, at least, when the court returns from a two weeks' recess devoted to preparing opinions in cases previously argued.

Other Rulings Possible.

At that time the justices also may announce decisions on the constitutionality of the Guffey coal control and 1933 security acts. However, many familiar with court procedure believed these rulings would be delayed because of the short time that has elapsed since arguments were completed.

All told, twenty-five cases have been argued and perhaps more than half may be decided Monday. It was generally believed those disposed of would include the government's antitrust suit against the Sugar institute, an organization of refiners set up to regulate trade practices in the industry. A New York court held most of its activities tended to restrain competition and create a monopoly.

Opposed by Government.

If the justices agree to pass on the validity of the holding company act, that would constitute a defeat for the government. The department of justice opposed review of the case appealed by Burco, Inc., of Baltimore, urging instead that the court await appeal of a case brought by the government against the Electric Bond and Share company. Should the justices decide with the government a decision on the act's constitutionality would be deferred until next fall.

Arguments on the Guffey act to regulate prices, wages, and hours in the soft coal industry were completed on March 12, the day after those on the securities act. The Guffey act was challenged in two cases brought by James Walter Carter, West Virginia and Virginia coal producer, and by nineteen Kentucky operators. The western Kentucky federal district court upheld the act in its entirety. The District of Columbia Supreme court upheld price fixing, but ruled that provisions regulating wages and hours were unconstitutional.

SALES OF AUTOS CLIMB SHARPLY; NEAR 1929 PEAK

Companies Issue Reports on March Business.

A sharp increase in automobile sales so far this month, in many instances reaching the largest volume since the 1929 peak, is shown in reports of various motor concerns issued yesterday.

Cadillac and La Salle retail sales in the first twenty days of March were 149 per cent over the same period last year. They also were the largest for this period since 1929, according to Nichols Dreystadt, manager of the Cadillac Motor Car company. A gain of 36 per cent was shown in comparison with the first twenty days of February.

Buick Motor Sales Increase.

Retail sales by the Buick Motor Car company in the second ten days of March totaled 4,632 units, officials announced. This compares with 3,237 in the first ten days of the month and 1,783 in the corresponding period last year.

General Motors corporation, according to William S. Knudsen, vice president, will produce 928,000 cars and trucks in the first six months of 1936. April production, he said, will approximate 171,000 units.

Studebaker retail deliveries of trucks and cars totaled 3,803 units in the first twenty days of March, compared with 2,298 in the same period last year, an increase of 65 per cent, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president.

Lincoln-Zephyr deliveries during the ten days ending March 20 reached the highest level this year, with a total of 424 units.

Hudson Sales Rise Sharply.

Sales of Hudson-Terraplane automobiles in Chicago increased 55 per cent over 1935 in the last two weeks, W. E. Butler, president of Butler Motors, Inc., Chicago distributor, announced yesterday. In the week ended March 22, retail deliveries amounted to 105 cars, compared with 119 new car registrations for all of Cook county in the entire month of February, Butler said.

More than 400 second hand cars have been moved by Hudson-Terraplane dealers in Chicago in the last two weeks as the result of an intensive advertising and selling campaign launched March 14, he said.

STRIKE, FLOODS CUT PROFITS OF CONTAINER CORP.

First quarter operations of the Container Corporation of America will show smaller earnings than in the first three months of 1935, Walter P. Paepcke, president, said yesterday. This was contrary to earlier estimates, the poorer showing being traceable in large measure to the shutdown of the Cincinnati plant by a strike on March 10 and flood conditions in the east.

Paepcke said present indications are that the three months to March 31 will produce net profit of approximately $150,000, or 22 cents a share. This compares with $207,810, or 31 cents a share, in the first quarter last year, and $411,690, or 61 cents a share, in the final quarter of 1935.

COTTON PRICES ADVANCE AS SELLING PRESSURE EASES

Selling pressure on the cotton markets lifted yesterday and, while trade was light, futures in Chicago closed 2 to 7 points higher. Other markets were up 2 to 9 points. [A point is equal to 1-100 cent.] Continued heavy rains in the more eastern sections of the belt are beginning to attract the attention of the trade, as it is feared field work may be delayed.

Spot cotton closed 5 points higher, with New Orleans 11.80 cents; Houston and New York, 11.70 cents, and Galveston, 11.60 cents per pound. Prices follow:

BUTTER RALLIES AFTER DROP TO NEW SEASON LOW

March butter contracts declined ⅜ cent early yesterday to 28¾ cents per pound, a new low for the season as the result of scattered liquidation, but rallied later to close ⅛ cent higher at 29⅛ cents. Spot butter was as much as 1 cent per pound lower in the face of further buying attributed to the government for relief purposes. It was reported purchases of butter here the last week by the government were more than 300,000 pounds. Sales of futures yesterday were 59 cars.

Heavy receipts of fresh eggs, over 168,000 cases being received here during the last week, or 20,000 cases more than in the same period last year, had a depressing effect on futures on the Mercantile exchange and the October contract closed ⅛ cent lower at 21⅛ cents per dozen. Sales were 34 cars. Prices follow:

BUSINESS SPEEDS AHEAD, AIDED BY FLOOD AREA NEED

Employment Total Rises in Some Industries.

of the law, since repealed, the railroads demanded general increases in freight rates. They had not intended to change passenger fares but when the United States railroad labor board authorized an increase of $618,000,000 in wages annually, the carriers asked for higher passenger rates also.

In 1922 a cut in freight rates was ordered, but passenger fares were untouched. Railway passenger revenues reached their peak in 1923, but declined in each successive year until 1934, as a result of motor vehicle competition.

Travel.

This did not mean the public was traveling less. The interstate commerce commission estimated in 1923 intercity passenger miles of travel by motor vehicles was 74 per cent of railroad passenger miles. Three years later auto trafic was 300 per cent of rail trafic, and by 1929 intercity railway passenger travel amounted to 31,000,000,000 passenger miles, while motor vehicle trafic was 208,000,000,000.

Some western and southern railroads started experimenting with reduced passenger fares in 1927. In December, 1933, southern lines, with some exceptions, eliminated Pullman surcharges and reduced basic rates to 1.5 cents in coaches and 3 cents in Pullmans, with a 2 cent Pullman return rate. Several western lines offered a coach rate of 2.5 cents and a Pullman rate of 3 cents, with return Pullman rates of 2.5 and 2 cents.

The public response was immediate and had much to do with the commission's latest fare reduction order.

Labor Act.

New Dealers received another definite setback at the hands of the court when Federal Judge John P. Barnes [Chicago] on Tuesday held the national labor relations act unconstitutional. Ruling on a suit brought by the Bendix Products corporation the court held the law was a violation of the fifth and tenth amendments to the constitution and indicated he would issue an injunction restraining the federal labor relations board from interfering with the business of the company.

The suit is one of many filed in federal courts throughout the country questioning legality of the labor act. Injunctions have been granted in a number of instances against interference with the plaintiffs' business, but Judge Barnes' ruling was more sweeping than opinions previously passed down from the bench.

Housing.

Two days later Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan [Chicago] dismissed eight separate condemnation proceedings filed by the Public Works administration, assuring abandonment of the contemplated $7,000,000 south side housing project planned for Negro families. This will be the second federal housing project abandoned in the Chicago area, the other being the $12,500,000 Blackhawk Park apartments on the north side. Government counsel offered no opposition to the dismissal because of previous court rulings that the federal court cannot condemn land for private housing purposes.

SEC.

In Philadelphia the United States Circuit Court of Appeals enjoined the Securities and Exchange commission from making public the salaries of officers and employés of the National Biscuit company, P. Lorillard company and Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., or "revealing other confidential information," pending a hearing on a suit attacking the legality of the SEC act.

Utilities.

Government attorneys in Washington urged the Supreme court to refrain from passing on the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act until the government's case against the Electric Bond and Share system can be appealed. Federal counsel contended the suit now before the court, brought by Burco, Inc., against the American States Public Service company, had "been presented after collaboration and the litigation was not truly adversary."

Snooping.

New snooping channels for the harassment of business, with the federal trade commission turned into a police court, were predicted by the Chicago Association of Commerce if the Wheeler bill now pending in the senate is passed. [See Washington: Review section.] In urging the Illinois delegation in congress to vote against the measure the association pointed out that amendments to the federal trade commission act proposed in the bill would make every individual, partnership or other commercial group engaged in interstate commerce subject to commission investigation.

GRAINS FIRMER AS AGGRESSIVE BUYING APPEARS

May Wheat Rallies After Dip to New Low.

Grain markets developed a much firmer undertone yesterday. While May wheat dipped at the start to 95⅞ cents per bushel, a new low on the current downturn, aggressive buying credited to houses with northwestern connections absorbed offerings and the close was about at the top with net gains of ⅝ to ¾ cent. Minneapolis, which led the decline on Friday, showed strength yesterday, with the May delivery recovering the greater part of the 2 cent loss incurred on the preceding day.

Some uneasiness was apparent in trade comment on the political and financial situation in France, but the strength in wheat yesterday was attributed chiefly to a strong technical position which had developed due to the rapid decline in prices recently. The short interest is said to have expanded.

Canada May Change Policy.

The Canadian wheat board yesterday posted a statement on the bulletin board of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in which attention was called to the fact that for some time cash interests had depended on the board to give them all or a substantial part of the wheat futures required to permit them to change over their hedges from a nearby into a more deferred delivery month. The statement suggested that traders should consider if it was desirable for them to continue to depend on the board for all or a particular part of this spread.

The statement was construed by Chicago traders as suggesting the government agency was not inclined to continue indefinitly the policy of selling or buying futures in amounts to suit cash interests, in view of the known desire to get out of the market as rapidly as possible. Winnipeg futures closed unchanged from Friday.

More Dry Weather Reports.

Dry weather reports continue to be received from the southwestern section of the wheat belt, with the forecast indicating the dry area in Kansas would receive little or no moisture over the week-end.

Closing prices on the May delivery of leading grains, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .96⅝	$ .96	$ .97¾
Corn	.60	.59¼	.59
Oats	.25⅝	.25⅝	.25⅝
Rye	.52¼	.51⅝	.55⅝

Outside interest in the corn market showed evidence of expanding yesterday. Commission and cash houses were on the buying side and closing prices showed gains of nearly a cent, with May corn leading. A better shipping demand had some effect on sentiment.

Rye advanced sharply, with the July delivery gaining over 1 cent per bushel, the first upturn witnessed since March 13. Oats closed a small fraction higher.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS SAG AS TRADE SHRINKS

Trading in Chicago bank stocks turned quiet during the last week and shares sagged from highs of the last ten days. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company closed at 166 bid, 168 asked, a loss of 6 points for the week. First National, ex dividend of $1, was down 2 at 297 bid, 300 asked, despite strength earlier in the week.

Northern Trust company sold off 15 points to 215 bid, 225 asked. Harris Trust and Savings shares were unchanged. Merchandise Bank and Trust company moved up 25 to close at 215 bid, 225 asked.

Federal Electric Company Meeting Postponed Again

The annual meeting of the Federal Electric company in New York was postponed again yesterday until next Saturday, pending a court decision in a suit concerning control of the company.

Bankers from Fourteen States to Attend Conference Here

R. V. FLEMING.

Fourteen midwest states will be represented at the conference on banking service to be held at the Stevens hotel next Thursday and Friday, according to advance registrations received by the local bankers' committees in charge of arrangements. The conference will be held under the auspices of the American Bankers' association as a part of a program of nation-wide banking development initiated by Robert V. Fleming, president of the organization.

Among the features of the conference will be an address at the opening session by Fleming on "A Nation-wide Program of Banking Development."

At a dinner meeting on the evening of April 3, James M. Barker, vice president-treasurer of Sears, Roebuck & Co., will speak on "Emotional Causes and Economic Effects."

The conference will be called to order the morning of April 2 by Howard W. Fenton, general chairman of the Chicago committee and president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, after which Fleming will preside.

Other speakers at the general sessions include Harold Amberg, vice president of the First National bank, who will discuss "Federal Reserve Board Rules and Regulations," and Felix M. McWhirter, president of the Peoples State bank of Indianapolis, who will talk on "Bank Crime Protection."

Harry A. Brinkman, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, will be speaker at the Thursday afternoon session. He will talk on "Bank Earnings—Positive and Negative."

In addition to general sessions, departmental forums will be held the evening of April 2 on the following subjects: bank protection and insurance, constructive customer relations, facilitating farm credit. The afternoon of April 3 forums will be held on advertising and publicity, commercial banking and savings.

PACKERS, FARMS VIE FOR PLAINER CATTLE CLASSES

FeederDemandActive; Hogs, Lambs Rise.

Brisk competition between packers and farmers last week lifted prices of plainer grades of steers and hefers to the highest relative position in the market in many years. Packers, buying in the lower price brackets to hold down live costs, had to bid against country interests in the market for thin stock suitable to run on grass this summer.

At the close of the week only a small margin separated the common to medium grades from the good to choice. Most action was in steers selling down from $8.25 and the hefers below $7.50, both kinds finishing mostly 25 cents above the final sales of the preceding week, whereas the better grades of steers closed weak to 25 cents lower. Practically all butcher stock closed unevenly higher.

Prices for Calves Climb.

A runaway market developed for calves, prices rising $1.50 to $1.75. The top at $11 was the highest since Feb. 20.

The advance in the market for lower priced cattle, coupled with the smaller proportion of these in the receipts, raised the beef steer average for the six days to $8.75, equal to the highest since week ending Feb. 8.

Total cattle receipts at 39,000 were largest since the middle of January, and while live cost mounted there was practically no change in the sluggish condition of the wholesale trade for beef. Beef carcasses closed about steady with a week ago and $1.00 to $3.00 per hundred pounds lower than a year ago yesterday.

Lamb Market Under Pressure.

The lamb market was under pressure of the second heaviest receipts since the week ending Feb. 1, but prices maintained a strong position, with the six day average at $10.10, up 10 cents and highest in six weeks. Top grades reached $10.50, and most of the 95 to 105 pound heavy stock sold at $9.75 to $10.25. Broad eastern demand was a feature of the trade. Shipments from Chicago during the six days, at 15,200, were second largest since April, 1935.

Strong local support of the hog market and the urgent demand for lard stock raised the week's hog average 20 cents to $10.50, highest since the week ended Feb. 22, in the face of small eastern buying.

While light new crop hogs lost 15 to 25 cents in five days, heavy "lard hogs" advanced 5 to 20 cents.

COMMODITY PRICES ERRATIC LAST WEEK; GRAINS LIQUIDATED

Liquidation was under way in the grain markets last week, the May deliveries of wheat, corn, and rye selling at the lowest levels since early in December, while May oats sold at a new low for the season. May wheat in the Winnipeg and Minneapolis markets also dropped to a new low since trading started. March butter felt the effect of a seasonal increase in production and declined sharply into new low ground for the season.

The trend of other commodities was erratic, with sugar advancing to a new high for the season while both lard and hogs showed substantial recoveries from the recent low point. Coffee eased on scattered selling, while cotton advanced.

Closing prices on a representative list of commodities for the last two weeks, with the high and low levels for the season, compare as follow:

BRITISH-GERMAN TRADE DISTURBED BY POLITICAL RIFT

Relations Satisfactory Since 1934.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Influential British and German business men are watching the course of international political negotiations with particular anxiety. Since 1934 Anglo-German trading and financial relations have been "correct."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, has regarded London as the one external financial center where the German system could obtain assistance and he has been particularly careful to avoid controversy of any sort, particularly public controversy, with London business circles.

Payment for current British exports to Germany is provided under the payments agreement of November, 1934. This requires that at least 55 per cent of the proceeds of German exports to Britain be set aside to meet the claims of British exporters.

Delays Are Eliminated.

Since the agreement became effective, little or nothing has been heard of delays in commercial payments due from Germany, and the German debt committee presided over by Lord Plender has been able to distribute percentages of payments on arrears.

The Bank of England facilitated the conclusion of a payments agreement with a credit of $3,750,000. It has been asserted that the bank has privately advanced further sums.

As Dr. Paul Einzig asserts in his recent book, "Bankers, Statesmen, and Economists," the Bank of England support led to the extension of new commercial credits to Germany in 1935. Such credits, conceded to be outside the standstill arrangement between London banks and their pre-1931 creditors, have been fairly numerous.

Hope for Long Term Loans.

Undoubtedly, through 1935, powerful London financiers were looking forward to a time when German long term borrowing in London would be resumed and short term lenders thus would obtain repayment or added security for loans at present conceded to be at relatively lucrative rates of interest.

Schacht, on his side, may be assumed not to have given up such hopes—even of stories of German emissaries at present attempting to negotiate loans be dismissed as unfounded—and on the London side, although the assessment of Germany's future credit worthiness at the end of 1935 was much lower than at the beginning, the resumption of freer Anglo-German financial relations is viewed by many as one of the chief long term objectives.

That would mean new lending from London and simultaneously the possibility of reclaiming considerable gold debts under total or partial moratorium.

Accordingly, London financiers view with much apprehension any permanent political rift between the two countries.

BUILDING SHOWS GAIN OF 86.8 PCT. OVER YEAR AGO

Residential Construction Nearly Tripled.

Building construction throughout the country during February showed an increase of 86.8 per cent in estimated cost over the same month of the preceding year, according to Secretary of Labor Perkins yesterday.

This gain was shared by all types of building, but the greatest improvement was in residential construction, which registered an increase of 189.5 per cent over February, 1935.

Commercial Building Gains.

For new nonresidential construction the increase over the corresponding month of last year was 70.6 per cent and the value of permits issued for additions, alterations, and repairs to existing structures showed a gain of 26.7 per cent.

Comparison of February building permits with the preceding month of January shows a slight falling off in dollar value of projects, as well as number of projects. There were 18.7 per cent less permits with an estimated cost 1.4 per cent lower.

Chicago makes a poor showing in the federal list of American cities' building activity for February, being fourteenth in the list.

Figures for Fourteen Cities.

Following are the first fourteen cities and the estimated cost of buildings for which permits were issued during last month:

New York	$11,488,000

MANY INDUSTRIES JOIN FIGHT ON STEEL PRICE BILL

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Asserting that the Wheeler steel basing point would bring widespread industrial dislocation, with unemployment to thousands of workers, the cement, sugar, mining, scrap iron, and other important industries have joined with the steel industry in opposing the measure, the American Iron and Steel institute announced today.

Outlining the position of the steel industry with respect to the bill, the institute said that substitution of f. o. b. or other price plans for the basing point system would "deprive buyers of steel of the advantage of obtaining supplies from any steel mill in the country at no penalty in price, and would place them at the mercy of local producers."

Sale of Richfield Oil Postponed to April 30

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—[Special.]—Postponement to April 30 of Tuesday's scheduled sale of the properties of the Richfield Oil company of California and Pan American Petroleum corporation was ordered today by United States District Judge Edwin L. James. The order was issued when Richfield attorneys reported that a reorganization plan being formulated by the Harry F. Sinclair and Cities Service interests was not complete.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Trading in bonds on the New York Stock exchange came almost to a standstill during the two hour session today. Pivotal issue drifted aimlessly and, with few exceptions, net price changes were confined to fractions. Trading dwindled to $5,358,000, the smallest since Oct. 26, last year, and compared with sales of $6,041,000 last Saturday. The volume for the week ended today was the smallest of the year to date.

United States government loans were again subjected to profit taking and yielded 1-32 to 6-32 point in moderate volume for a Saturday. The treasury 2¾s, 2⅞s, and 3⅛s showed the widest declines.

N. Y. Railway Bonds Rise.

The only bright spot developed in the bonds of New York Railway company, which rose 3½ points following the ruling of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals denying the contentions of preferred stockholders who had appealed from the District court's approval of the company's reorganization plan under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

Secondary rail liens were a shade easier in light dealings, while industrial and public utility loans were steady to firm. Foreign bonds also moved narrowly. German 7s and Colombia 6s were higher, and Australia 5s and Poland 6s were lower.

Several Issues Are Firmer.

Corporate issues finishing fractionally higher included Anaconda 4½s, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, Bethlehem Steel 4¼s, New York Central 4s, and Third Avenue adjustment 5s. Parmelee Transportation 6s and Remington Rand 4¼s with warants rose more than 2 each.

Low Priced Stocks.

Before trading was suspended in the common stock of the old Middle West Utilities company the issue was selling far in excess of the value of the equity it represented in the new company. Its attraction was based entirely on the fact that it was selling for only a few cents a share. Another recent market freak was Pierce Oil common stock which brought a price of $1.50 a share before it was stricken from the market and declared worthless.

These two examples illustrate the speculative attraction which "cheap" stocks have for many individuals. The artificial market value which these two issues enjoyed was a matter of common knowledge and the information was available to any prospective buyer who took the trouble to investigate.

* *

Tales of the impressive profits reaped by others through the purchase of low price shares that subsequently scaled the market heights cause many uninitiated speculators to buy blindly in the low price bracket.

A person desiring to speculate may be justified in purchasing a low price stock if investigation shows that the stock has possibilities of appreciation because of the company's prospects or because the price has been unduly depressed by market conditions. The issue should be frankly faced. It is the individual's problem to decide if he can afford to risk his capital in such speculations.

For the investor who does not wish to incur greater risk than necessary it is folly to buy indiscriminately on a price basis alone.

* *

A person with limited capital can get a larger number of shares of a stock quoted at $1 a share than of an issue selling at $20 a share. He is not necessarily benefited thereby. Price should never be the sole determining reason for making a purchase either of a low or relatively high priced issue. The relation of the market price to the intrinsic value of the security is the primary consideration.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was dull today, but the undertone was steady, with final prices 2 to 5 points higher on scattered covering, promoted by the steadiness of lard and grains. Sales were only 8 contracts. Bleachable spot was nominal. May closed at 9.69c per lb; July, 9.73c; September, 9.58c; October, 9.31c.

STOCK ISSUES PROMINENT IN WEEK'S FINANCE

Dairy Products Will Sell 62 Million of Bonds.

Stock issues predominate in the security offerings scheduled this week. The largest flotation, however, is that of National Dairy Products corporation for $62,545,500 of 3¾ per cent debentures due in 1951. Proceeds, together with treasury funds, will be used to retire $65,839,500 of outstanding 5¼ per cent debentures about June 5 for approximately $67,650,086.

Common stock holders of National Dairy will have the right to purchase $500 of debentures for each fifty shares of stock, and present debenture holders have the right to buy new liens before the offering is made publicly by underwriters headed by Goldman, Sachs & Co. Common stock purchase warrants will be attached to the new debentures, and proceeds from their exercise will be used to retire debentures.

Largest Stock Issue.

Atlantic Refining company has the largest stock issue—148,000 shares of $100 par cumulative convertible preferred shares. The coupon rate has not been announced. About $14,000,000 of proceeds will be reserved for redemption of a like amount of 5 per cent debentures, due July 1, 1937. Also 2,664,000 full and fractional warants to subscribe to preferred stock will be issued pro rata to common shareholders. Edward B. Smith & Co. will be principal underwriter.

A foreign issue breaking into the list is $6,500,000 of 19 year 4½ per cent bonds of the City of Oslo, Norway. Proceeds will refund $6,080,000 of 6 per cent bonds of 1955. Underwriters are Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Brown Harriman & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., Blyth & Co., and White, Weld & Co.

Melville Shoe corporation has 22,287 shares of $100 par 4½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred and 33,430 shares of no par common stock scheduled for tomorrow. E. A. Pierce & Co. and Cassatt & Co. are underwriters.

Carewe Issue Planned.

Edwin Carewe Productions, Inc., seeks to issue 40,000 shares of $25 par preferred and 80,000 shares of 25 cent par common. Half of the common is to be offered to officials and the remainder held for redemption of the preferred.

United States Casualty company seeks to issue 500,000 shares of $2 common stock or Friday.

Standard Utilities, Inc., will market 2,000,000 shares of 50 cent par common at net asset value plus 8 per cent. This is expected to be slightly less than $1 a share. John Nickerson & Co. is principal underwriter.

An issue of 96,000 no par common of Marlowe Products, Inc., will be sold at $10 a share, possibly tomorrow, with Sey & White principal underwriters.

Frederick Stearns & Co., Detroit, has 13,250 shares of $100 par 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock to be offered in exchange for 7 per cent preferred. Watling, Lerchen & Hayes are underwriting.

LARD TRADING IS LIGHT, BUT UNDERTONE IS FIRM

Trade in lard futures yesterday was relatively light but the market showed a firm undertone and closed 2½ cents lower to 2½ cents higher. The rally in grain had some effect, and the trade is inclined to look forward to continued light receipts of hogs, which will result in a small output of lard. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed nominally unchanged.

Cash lard closed at $11.22, loose and leaf $10.75, and clear bellies $15.12 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

CHICAGO STOCKS TURN UPWARD IN WEEK-END TRADE

Volume Light, but Larger than Year Ago.

Chicago stocks closed a week of irregularity and slightly lower prices with a firmer tone yesterday. Trading continued light last week, with volume of 349,000 shares, only a little larger than the 328,000 share turnover in the preceding week. A year ago, however, trading totaled only 85,000 shares.

Buying contiuued selective last week, with 24 issues reversing the general curent to sell at the new 1936 high prices, compared with 22 at new tops the previous week. The list last week showed 67 advances, 82 declines, and 28 issues unchanged. This compares with the upward trend of the preceding week, when 91 issues advanced, 52 declined, and 36 were unchanged.

Bendix Makes New High.

More than 20,000 shares of Bendix Aviation changed hands during the week as the issue made new highs on a 2⅞ point rise in the wake of a favorable earnings report. Of the gain, 1⅜ was chalked up yesterday as the issue hit 27½ in a 4,600 share turnover, which was almost one-fifth of the day's total volume of 26,000 shares. By contrast, other motor shares were lower, Houdaille B skidding 2¼ points during the week.

Other issues to make new highs yesterday were McQuay-Norris, up ⅞, and St. Louis National Stockyards, up 2. Trailing Bendix as market leaders were Cord, Asbestos Manufacturing, Cities Service, Loudon Packing, Butler Brothers, and Pines Winterfront. Changes were fractional for all of this group.

Day's Movements Narrow.

The entire list moved in a narrow range yesterday as 38 issues advanced, 30 declined, and 25 were unchanged.

Among stocks moving upward sharply last week, in contrast with generally narrow price changes, was Sangamo Electric, which jumped 9 points during the week to a two year high of 55. Sivyer Steel hopped 5⅞ to a mark of 27½. Its low this year was 15¼. Masonite hit the 100 mark on a 6 point rise and compared with a 1936 low of 62½. Abbott Laboratories rose 4 to 110. Chicago Yellow Cab was up 2¼, and Continental Steel advanced 1½. General Household Utilities jumped from 4⅛ to 5½. Midland United issues showed sudden strength.

8TH DISTRICT DEMOCRATIC RIFT WIDENS

STARTS COURT BATTLE TO GET NAME ON BALLOT

Barred Candidate Appeals Ruling.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Decisions of the board of election ommissioners on objections to nomnating petitions of candidates for vard committeeman have engendered bitter feeling in some of the ward aces on the north and northwest ides.

In two of the lake shore wards the Democratic committeemen have no pposition due to the board's actions. Aid and comfort also was given by he board to Eden T. Brekke, Repubican committeeman of the 36th ward. His strongest opponent was thrown out, leaving Brekke with only one ompetitor, Arthur M. Romme, who as indorsed Len Small for governor.

Goes to Court.

Mr. Brekke is Cook county manaer of H. Wallace Caldwell's camaign for the Republican nomination or governor. The petition held invalid by the board was that of Leonrd C. M. Johnson, who is leading the Brook's campaign in the ward. Mr. ohnson's name won't appear on the allot unless he is successful in a nandamus action to compel its inlusion.

"I want to state," said Mr. Johnon, "that while the action of the oard without a fair, impartial and ull hearing on the matter smacks of he Spanish Inquisition or of foreign lictators. Never in my experience have I witnessed such an arbitrary, utocratic or despotic demeanor as hat exhibited by the board.

Battle Just Begun.

"As far as I am concerned, the battle has just begun. I have been besieged by voters asking me if we re living in the Middle ages or in a lespotic country where the right of uffrage is denied and the will of the nonarch is absolute.

"The objector in behalf of Brekke lid not offer any evidence to sustain his purported objection to my petiion nor did the board ask or compel him to do so. Objections to Brekke's petition were substantiated by affilavits and other evidence which the board ignored."

On the Democratic side the board knocked out the petitions of Joseph C. Meier, Horner candidate in the 42d ward against Committeeman William J. Connors, and of Joseph P. O'Keefe, Horner candidate in the 44th ward against Committeeman Raymond W. Moore.

In the 44th ward it is reported that Deputy Sherif Hugh J. Falvey, who is said to be related by marriage to Chairman Alexander J. McKay of the election board, boasted that the board would knock out the O'Keefe petition. On behalf of Mr. O'Keefe and Mr. Meier, Horner headquarters has announced it will press mandamus proceedings to get their names on the ballot.

Petition Refused.

Renewal this year of the fight between Republican Committeeman Charles E. Peace of the 42d ward and Marvin J. Bas, an attorney, was banned when the board rejected the Bas petition. Mr. Peace, who is with Brooks, will have no difficulty in winning against his remaining opponent, Ross P. Ceffallio, according to reports.

Besides Mr. McKay, a recent appointee, the election board consists of Harry A. Lipsky and Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, the only Republican member. They are appointed by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and are paid $6,000 a year.

FORTY-FOURTH WARD

Brooks forces in the 44th ward have been augmented by the indorsement given him by Committeeman Robert W. Dunn and his regular Republican organization. Also working for Mr. Brooks is Herbert W. Auw, who is opposing Mr. Dunn for the committeeship.

The Dunn organization indorsement was made after meetings had been thrown open to all candidates—Mr. Caldwell spoke at a recent one—and after a canvass of Republican voters in the ward. In a secret ballot the 59 precinct captains voted as follows: Brooks, 56; Small, 2, and Caldwell, 1.

Father Was Alderman.

Mr. Dunn is an attorney and a master in chancery of the Superior court. His father, the late Winfield P. Dunn, was alderman of the ward from 1901 to 1910.

Auw, also an attorney, has lived in the ward 43 years. He was secretary of the Thomas O. Wallace organization in the ward for 30 years. Two years ago Mr. Auw lost for committeeman by only 543 votes, Mr. Dunn, the winner, being backed by the Brundage and Deneen groups.

THIRTY-THIRD WARD

An old fight between Republican Committeeman John T. Dempsey and John J. Kaleth is being waged again in this ward. Two years ago Mr. Dempsey won by 2,763 votes. In 1933 Mr. Kaleth also lost out in an aldermanic race.

Mr. Dempsey, an active Republican, is one of the chief younger aids in the Brooks headquarters. Since leaving Northwestern university law

Tea Time for Leyden Students in Oriental Operetta

The land of lovely gardens where tea time is the hour of hospitality—the land where palaces are vivid with red pillars and green tile. Of this atmosphere is the setting drawn for "Miss Cherryblossom," an operetta in which a fair Japanese maid sings her way to love. Miss Vivian Stoner (center) will take the part of the lady of Japan when the operetta is given by students in the music department of the Leyden Community High school at Franklin Park on Friday and Saturday evenings in the school auditorium. At the left is Peter Simon as Togo and pouring Miss Cherryblossom's tea is Ray Witort, who will take the role of Koke M'o. Leroy A. Stark is the director of the operetta.

SHRINE HOSPITAL PATIENTS JOIN CAMP FIRE GIRLS

Ten patients at the Shriner's hospital for crippled children, 2211 North Park avenue, have joined the Camp Fire girls and are participating in craft activities.

Marion Watkins, Wanda Likins, Betty June Mraz, Clara Frank, Rachel Reed, Shirley Shannon, Iona Poulos, Floy Lee Mootria, Ellen Trott and Helen Boucher, president, are the members of the Lewa Camp Fire group who are working under Mrs. Marion Moe, guardian.

Other girls who have been Lewa members while they were at the hospital have joined Camp Fire groups when they returned home.

Because they cannot participate in camp activities, members of the Lewa group are working for honors in handicraft, home craft, health craft, citizenship and patriotism.

The Crutch and Cast club provides many of the necessities for them. The Lewa girls are encouraged to create original designs in hammered brass work, basket weaving, cord weaving, pottery painting, decorating, chip carving on wood panels and in making toys and household articles.

Albany Park B'nai B'rith to Have Sport Program

A sports program will entertain the Albany Park B'nai B'rith at the Masonic temple, 4860 North Kedzie avenue, on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

COLLEGE CHORISTERS TO SING AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TODAY

The North Central College Men's Glee club, under the direction of Prof. Hermanus Baer, assisted by the Women's Glee club of the college, will appear tonight before the Sunday Evening club at its weekly meeting in Orchestra hall. Dr. Bernard Clausen of the First Baptist church of Pittsburgh will be the speaker.

PROF. HERMANUS BAER.

The Men's Glee club will sing two numbers by Bach, "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee" and "Come Thou, O Come." The mixed chorus of 60 voices will be heard in three numbers, "Gloria Patri," "O Morn of Beauty," and "The Cherubim Song."

Mrs. Hermanus Baer will be accompanist.

Choir Concert.

The Pilgrim choir of the Jefferson Park Congregational church, Giddings street and Milwaukee avenue, will give a concert at 8 o'clock tonight.

COUNTY HIGHWAY REPAIRING WILL COST $6,500,000

Work on seven road construction projects in the northwest metropolitan area, a portion of a county-wide improvement program, will be started this week, according to Maj. George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways. The work throughout the county, partly supported by Public Works administration funds, will cost 6½ million dollars.

Three contracts have been awarded for work on Palatine road. All specify bituminous surface and will be laid by the Rock Road Construction company. The sections to be improved are from the Northwest highway to Buffalo Grove, from Buffalo Grove to Milwaukee avenue, and in Palatine from Ela to Cedar streets. The total cost will be $200,318.28. The same type of pavement will be used on Schaumberg road from Springsguth to Meacham roads.

Two contracts have been awarded for Pulaski road. One, amounting to $122,482.95, is for two strips of concrete 14 feet 11 inches wide to be laid between Belmont avenue and Irving Park boulevard by the Central West Construction company. The second contract, for $147,809.42, specifies the same type of paving on Pulaski road from Irving Park boulevard to Argyle avenue. The contractor is the Municipal Paving company.

The Iroquois Construction company was awarded an $87,995.68 contract for concrete paving on Montrose avenue between Central and Milwaukee avenues.

DR. JOSHUA ODEN WILL SPEAK ON PALASTINE TOUR THIS EVENING

Dr. Joshua Oden, pastor of the Irving Park Swedish Lutheran church, will speak on his travels in Palestine and a visit to Bethlehem at the fireside program of the First Lutheran church, 3500 Fullerton avenue, at 5 o'clock this evening.

DR. JOSHUA ODEN.

Following Dr. Oden's appearance will be a music program directed by Franklin F. Horstmeier, church organist. To be presented are the Chicago Male octet and the three church choirs of one hundred voices.

Elmer Siegel Auxiliary to Have Party April 19

A buffet supper and card party will be held by the Elmer Siegel auxiliary, affiliated with the Daughters of Zion Infant Home and Day nursery, California avenue and Hirsch street, on Sunday evening, April 19, at 5 o'clock, at the home.

LITTLE THEATER OF IRVING PARK TO REVIVE PLAY

Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women," the first play produced by the Irving Park little theater, 4116 North Keeler avenue, when it was organized, will be given again Tuesday and Thursday evenings in celebration of the group's second birthday.

Two girls who played in the original cast will assist Mrs. Dorthy Reid in producing the play and are understudying all girls' rôles.

Peggy Patterson will play the part of Marmee. Grace Vaugn and Mildred Murgatroyd will alternate as Meg; Jo will be played by Dorothy Lohff and Beth by Harriet Sewart. Lenore Kehm and Audrey Cooper will alternate in the rôle of Amy. Minnie Lou Black will be Hannah. The men in the play are Billy Reid as Laurie, Cecil Emery as Mr. Lawrence and Lawrence Cole as Mr. March.

The theater was started two years ago by Mrs. Dorothy Reid because children of the community had no dramatic facilities. The first meeting was held in Feb. 1934 and the first play was given in March.

Since that time a little theater studio, completely equipped for sound and lighting effects has been built. About 30 children are being trained now and in two years 100 Irving Park children have been in 15 plays which have been produced. Most of the plays are written by William T. Reid to suit the children's possibilities.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FOR the second time in 15 years official recognation by the country of his birth, Sweden, has been accorded to John Brunner of 627 Dartmouth place, Evanston, consulting engineer for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation. In 1920, in recognition of his service to science, Mr. Brunner was knighted by the Swedish Royal Order of North Star. Most recently he has been awarded the John Ericsson gold medal of Stockholm for his "distinguished achievements in science and engineering." Mr. Brunner's principal experimental and research work has been a project to increase the strength and durability of steel rail. He has lived in Evanston since 1902.

JOHN BRUNNER.

THE wide awake tourist bureau of the chamber of commerce of Laredo, Tex., bulletins us with a pleasing touch of civic pride that: "Mr. Louis C. H. Groeger, 3615 Addison, of Chicago, was a visitor in Laredo yesterday while making arrangements for an automobile trip to the interior of Mexico. While in 'The Gateway to Mexico'," the bulletin continues, "he called at the tourist bureau for the latest highway information and to arrange his immigration and customs papers and chart the itinerary of his trip. He plans to spend 10 days in Mexico visiting Monterey, Saltillo, and other interesting points before returning to Chicago." To which we add our thanks to the Laredo tourist bureau and our hope that Mr. Groeger has a nice trip.

Miss Vera Jean Kniskern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Kniskern of 1611 Ridge avenue, Evanston, has been awarded a scholarship to Mills college, Mills, Cal. The first member of this year's graduating class of Evanston High school to receive a scholarship, Miss Kniskern has a four year scholastic average well above 90. She is news editor of the Evanstonian, school paper.

OUR TOWN extends congratulations and best wishes to Mrs. Louise L. Watts, 3570 Cortland street, who recently observed her 88th birthday. Mrs. Watts, whose husband, John Watts, died several years ago, lives with her daughter, Miss Maud A. Watts. Two other daughters, Miss Cora B. Watts and Mrs. Grace A. Wilson, live, respectively, in Wilmette and Los Angeles. There is also a son, Bert L. Watts, of 3030 North Albany avenue.

Miss Dolly Bohan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bohan of 612 Courtland avenue, Park Ridge, a student at Rockford college, has been presented with a student award for her interpretation of the rôle of Joan in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," this year's freshman class play.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rygel of 811 Foxdale avenue, Winnetka, have returned from a cruise to Latin America. En route home they visited in Babson Park, Fla., with Mr. and Mrs. William Higley, former Chicagoans.

BRIDGE CONTEST SERIES TO OPEN AT RIVER PARK

A series of duplicate bridge contests will be started this week by the River Park Community Bridge club which meets every Wednesday evening at the fieldhouse, 5100 North Francisco avenue.

Each contest will be completed in one evening and prizes will be awarded. On alternate Wednesdays there will be instruction in the Culbertson system of contract bridge by Walter Dennis.

The club is a non-profit community organization and any resident of the city may apply for membership. Officers are Lytton Taylor, president; Cal W. Anderson, first vice president; Mrs. Eleanor Rutherford, second vice president; Mrs. Addie Anderson, secretary, and G. F. Ord, treasurer.

PARTY TO SEEK 3 NOMINATIONS IN HOUSE RACE

Horner Aides Reveal Write-In Plan.

BY PERCY WOOD.

A "write-in" candidacy which will insure the nomination of three Democratic candidates for the Illinois house in the Eighth senatorial district is occupying the minds of Horner strategists in Lake, Boone and McHenry counties this week-end. This plan is a direct result of a mixup between members of the senatorial committee who were originally divided between the nomination of one or two candidates.

As matters now stand the outlook is for three Democrats to be matched against two Republicans next November—five men fighting for three seats at Springfield. This situation is matched in only two other districts in the state, Rockford and La Salle. An interesting chain of circumstances preceded the decision in the Eighth.

G. O. P. Seeks Two Seats.

The district is now reperesnted in the house by two Republicans, Richard J. Lyons, Libertyville, and Williams M. Carroll, Woodstock, and by one Democrat, Thomas A. Bolger of McHenry, a follower of Gov. Horner. Carroll is not running again, having filed for state's attorney.

The Republican senatorial committee decided to attempt returning two men and voted to nominate two. Lyons is expected to lead the ticket. For second place Charles H. Francis of Woodstock, former house member, and Nick Keller of Waukegan appear to be running a close race. Other candidates include Rudolph W. Dvorak, the mayor of Fox River Grove and assistant operating director of the Chicago crime commission.

Dvorak's administration of his village has been highly successful, says his chief at the commission, Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin. It has no debt and the budget is balanced. When made known these facts appear to have caused much favorable comment in the Eighth district. However, he is running against men experienced in the politics of the district.

Fight Among Democrats.

The Democratic senatorial committee became embroiled when two committeemen friendly to Bolger, Edward O'Brien of Belvidere and Paul Doherty of Crystal Lake, decided that only one candidate should be nominated, while the third member, Emmett Moroney of Highland Park, insisted that two be nominated.

Moroney argued that since his county, Lake, cast 11,687 Democratic votes in the 1934 primary, whereas the combined vote of the other two counties was only 5,083, that by virtue of this 6,000 majority he held the balance of power and could decide how many candidates would be nominated, independent of his committee mates. The matter was taken to Attorney General Kerner, who gave an opinion interpreted as upholding Moroney's contention.

Meanwhile Henry F. Wallenwein, justice of the peace in Waukegan, had filed for representative. He and Bolger still are the only certified candidates on the Democratic ticket. However, the three county clerks in the district who order the ballots printed have decided that it shall instruct the voters to vote for "either one, two, or three candidates."

Candidate Not Named.

Since there are only two filed and Wallenwein is supporting Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Gov. Horner's opponent, the Hornerites have decided, they say, to give Bolger a Horner running mate.

This can be done only by writing in a name of a third candidate. No decision had been made late in the week as to who this might be, but the Horner people say it will be decided in time to give the name full publicity.

The house situation in this district has eclipsed the senate race in which Ray Paddock of Round Lake, the Republican incumbent, appears to be in the lead for renomination over his two opponents, Raymond G. Zack, former city attorney of North Chicago and now a resident of Waukegan, and Albert E. Nordstrom, Waukegan druggist.

On the Democratic side Leo Dailey, Waukegan real estate man, is being given the edge over Archie J. MacLeod of Mundelein.

Race in Seventh District.

Reports throughout the Seventh district, adjoining the Eighth on the south, were that Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vriest [Rep., Winnetka] is expected to lead the Republican ticket on April 14, with her colleague, Representative Frank E. Foster of Harvey probably in second place. Both Mrs. Van der Vries and Foster are campaigning nightly, pledging, among other things, that they will continue their fight for permanent registration and honest elections if returned to Springfield. The records of both have been marked "creditable" by the Legislative Voters' league.

A third candidate who may run well in the western part of this ambling "shoestring" district is Vernon W. Reich of Forest Park, who is expected to poll a large vote in Proviso township.

There are more ructions on the

MRS. BAUR LEADS RIVALS IN NINTH DISTRICT RACE

Bases Drive on Slogan, "Axes for Taxes."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Out of the welter of complex politics in Cook county one of the most lively and diverting campaigns has emerged in the Ninth congressional district on the north side. Here Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committeewoman, is seeking the Republican nomination for congress, and the politicians hold she is leading the field of five other entries. Michael H. Wolf and Albert Daggitt Confelt are most active opponents of Mrs. Baur and the last week has seen a warming up of the campaign.

Mrs. Baur whirled through the district last week with a new slogan: "Axes for Taxes." To make this battle cry visible as well as audible she is issuing ax shaped lapel pins.

The pivotal point, she declares, is "to arouse public awareness to the danger of spending other people's money." Her own opinion on the subject is stated in her platform of thirteen "I believe's," contained in the Easter egg colored folders which she issued this week.

Lesson in Economics.

In this, her fifth belief is—"In a minimum of taxation for government costs only; that government spending should be kept strictly within the government income."

"Every housewife and business man knows you cannot spend more than you earn without coming to ruin," she told one audience last week. "Taxes have mounted to that point where they have become unbearable. Not the visible taxes, but the invisible ones are making living a burden to the man or woman of small income.

"When a man earning $25 a week has to give one dollar out of four toward taxes it is too big a percentage to be just. If I am to go to congress, I am going prepared with some axes to cut the taxes."

Mr. Wolf, who lives in the 43d ward and has lived in the same precinct 26 years is speaking nightly. He is identified with Arthur F. Albert, former alderman, who is running for committeeman against James B. Waller, incumbent.

Prosperity on Crutches.

The committeeman of the four wards in the district have indorsed Mrs. Baur—they are Charles Peace [42d], Mr. Waller [43d], Robert W. Dunn [44th], Judge Oscar F. Nelson [46th], and she is getting the support of their organizations.

Mr. Wolf, a retired live stock and grain man, in his speeches says the issue against the New Deal is a simple one. "The real issue," he says, is 'Live Within Our Income.'"

"Prosperity goes on crutches when the crops go wrong," he says, "and the New Deal has said 'kill off the crops, the live stock, farm products and we'll be in gloryland.' No wonder people are seeing red when a raw bunch of college nitwits experiment disastrously with the source of city folks' prosperity."

Mr. Confelt is with Herbert W. Auw, who is running for committeeman of the Forty-fourth ward against Committeeman Dunn. For years Mr. Confelt was in the Tom Wallace ward organization. In his meetings he is stressing the tarif.

Why Meat Prices Rise.

"The tremendous increase in meat imports," he says, "is because American pork supplies have been reduced about 50 per cent by government hog killing and cattle slaughtering, which boosted prices to double the old figure."

In the Democratic primaries, Congressman James McAndrews is opposed by Harry J. Busch, ex-Republican, who is campaigning for Gov. Horner.

In the Tenth district which stretches north and embraces north shore suburbs and Lake county, the congressional campaign is languid, due to the fact that Congressman Ralph E. Church, Republican, is accounted by the political lights to have a walkaway. His two Republican rivals are Severin H. Hanson of Waukegan and John Fay Harris of Lake Forest. This is the only Cook county district carried by the G. O. P. two years ago.

Of the twelve Republican candidates in the Seventh district the leading contenders, according to the politicians, appear to be James C. Moreland, former alderman; M. A. Michaelson, former congressman; Meyer Fink, and George F. Scheck. The committeemen of this vast district, which sprawls into no fewer than seventeen wards in addition to some towns, are split up over candidates. Moreland is given an edge by the prognosticators at Republican county headquarters, but it's a race.

Scores Abundant Life.

Moreland, in a speech before the Thirty-eighth ward organization last night, summarized his arguments as follows:

"The New Deal is a fake, and the President is bent on a dictatorship. The 'more abundant life' is akin to Russian communism, and is an appeal to those who believe the government owes them a living without any effort on their part."

Mr. Michaelson a few days ago got out a booklet holding unemployment is the overshadowing problem with 12,600,000 unemployed.

"A result of New Deal policy," he says, "is that our stores are filled with goods made everywhere but in America, with goods made in Japan, China, Russia, and elsewhere. The labor employed to make them was not decent American living wage labor, but cheap foreign slave labor paid in wages as low as six cents a day."

IN RUSSIAN ROLE

Miss Marge Berge, 1023 North Harding avenue, will have a Russian role in the Mummer production "Clear All Wires," which will receive its Chicago premiere on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings at the Chicago Woman's club theater under the direction of Sherman Marks.

CHILDREN TO PLAY "LITTLE WOMEN"

This is a scene from "Little Women," a play adapted from the novel by Louisa May Alcott, which will be presented on Tuesday and Thursday evenings by the Irving Park Little theater in celebration of the second birthday of the organization of the children's players. Members in the cast are (from left to right) Mildred Murgatroyd, Cecil Emery, Harriet Stewart, Audrey Cooper, Billy Reid, and Peggy Patterson.

SELLS TICKETS

Miss Gertrude Kalas, 5708 Manton avenue, is on the ticket committee for the annual card party of the Notre Dame council of the Ladies of Isabella, which will be held Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Jefferson park fieldhouse.

27 LEGION POSTS PROMOTE YOUTH RALLY FOR MAY 24

Expect 4,000 to Join in Convocation.

Twenty-seven posts and auxiliaries of the American Legion, comprising the Ninth Illinois district, are preparing for the open air convention and parade of youth organizations under their sponsorship to be held May 24.

Chairman Joseph L. O'Brien, Ninth district junior vice commander, said that 10,000 men, women and children had responded to his invitation to take part in the dramatic demonstrations. The idea of the assembly was conceived by Joseph Bernhard, Ninth district commander.

It is anticipated that 4,000 children in uniform will take part in the parade. Groups will include Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cubs and Brownies, school trafic patrols, Legion junior baseball teams, junior auxiliary units, squadrons of Sons of the American Legion, winners of legion awards, school bands and R. O. T. C. units.

The Ninth district covers the territory bounded by Western avenue on the east, Devon avenue on the north, Lake street on the south, and runs diagonally northwest to Barrington along the Northwest highway. It boasts more children's organizations per post than any other Legion district.

The convention parade will form near Cicero avenue on Irving Park boulevard and march west to Portage Park where all units will form before a grandstand for a patriotic program.

All expense incident to the demonstration is being borne by Legionnaires, each contributing one dollar and signing a roster of boosters.

Veterans who served in Siberia will hold their annual reunion in conjunction with the annual reception and dance arranged for May 2, at North West hall, North and Western avenues. Reservations may be made through Paul F. Vicker, commander of Siberian post.

"Home coming night" for all A. E. F. members of Battery A, will be held Thursday by the 122d Field Artillery post, No. 236, of the American Legion.

The first social affair of the auxiliary, a card party, will be held Tuesday night in the ballroom of the armory, 234 East Chicago avenue, under the direction of Mrs. Hattie Richter, chairman of the ways and means committee. Proceeds will be used for service work.

Mayor Kelly will speak Wednesday night at the monthly meeting of the Cook County council in the city council chambers.

Choir at St. Stephans to Sing Cantata Today

The choir of St. Stephan's church, 1651 North Karlov avenue, will present "Calvary," a cantata by Ernest Sheppard, at the vesper services this afternoon. The services will be open to all residents of the community.

PLANS PARTY

Miss Peggy Anderson will act as hostess at the April Fool party to be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock by the Irving Park Junior Woman's club in the Independence park bungalow, 3900 Hamlin avenue. Miss Kathryn Gager will assist Miss Anderson.

CITY RECREATION NEEDS STUDIED BY NEW GROUPS

Dr. Philip L. Seman, chairman of the Chicago recreation commission, has announced formation of nine committees to study the city's future recreation requirements and to further coöperation of existing agencies now studying specific phases of Chicago's future.

The committees include a number of north and northwest side residents. Among them are Dr. Arthur J. Todd, of Northwestern university and chairman of the committee on Chicago recreation study, and Miss Lea D. Taylor, head resident of the Chicago Commons, chairman of the committee on wider use of schools, and member of committees on government and civic coördination, and housing area relationships.

Additional committee members are Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic association; Walter J. Cummings, athletic sports committee; Rufus C. Dawes, finance and budget committee; William F. Dummer, housing area relationship, police, and wider use of schools committee; Dr. Robert B. Harshe, member of the recreation commission; Dr. William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, executive, and housing area relationships committee; Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union league, executive, and wider use of schools committees, and Dr. M. J. O'Connell, president DePaul university, chairman of the police institute committee, and member of the recreation study committee.

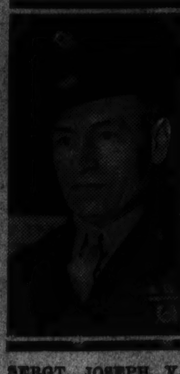
ROOSEVELT HIGH DRILL TEAM 3D IN CITY CONTEST

Tilden Retains Title; Sullivan Second.

Roosevelt High school, winner of second place last year in the annual R. O. T. C. drill competition between squads, finished third, one point behind Sullivan's new unit, leading 11 north and northwest side schools which won five of the first seven places at the contest last Saturday at the 131st Infantry armory. Tilden Tech of the south side won the title for the second consecutive year. Sergt. Joseph V. Ackerman instructed the Roosevelt squad.



SERGT. JOSEPH V. ACKERMAN.

The schools finishing in the first seven positions and their scores were as follows: Tilden, 888; Sullivan, 865; Roosevelt, 864; Fenger, 857; Steinmetz, new unit, 838; Schurz, 814, and Lane, 811. Senn finished in a tie for tenth place with Phillips High school of the south side, both totaling 788 points.

Mayor Presents Trophy.

Mayor Kelly, who presented the championship trophy, a mounted silver shield; Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commander of the Sixth Corps area; James B. McCahey, president of the board of education; Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools, and former head of the Chicago R. O. T. C., and Col. William F. Morrison, in charge of the R. O. T. C. here, were present at the competition.

The unselfishness of the cadets in devoting extra hours to their drill was praised by Mayor Kelly, who also commended the high caliber of work. Mr. McCahey congratulated all the squads which competed.

Judges included Maj. Paul O. Franson, professor of military science and tactics at Morgan Park Military academy; Maj. Paul J. Dowling, Illinois reserve division, and Maj. Lloyd D. Brown, and Maj. Eugene C. Slappey, Illinois National Guard.

Win by 23 Points.

The squads were scored on a basis of neatness, manual of arms and drill. The winning squad led by 23 points. Gold medals were presented for first place, silver to Sullivan for second, and bronze to Roosevelt.

Following the first ten, other teams and their scores were: Lake View, 784; Calumet, 782; Amundsen, 781; Foreman, 776; Harrison, 769; Bowen, 763; Marshall, 754; Waller, 747; Hyde Park, 746; Von Steuben, 746; Englewood, 742; Austin, 737; Harper, 730; Kelly, 730; McKinley, 730.

Members of Squads.

Cadet Corporal Philip Bodinet commanded the Roosevelt squad of Quentin Christman, Harvey Flayer, Theodore Gaillard, Alvin Kamins, James Moran, Wallace Nygren, Edd Rich, and Robert Treskow. The alternate corporal was Alan Swanson, and the alternate cadets Jack Nixon and Earl Touff.

Sullivan's squad was commanded by Cadet Corporal Hobart Scott. The members were James Hadden, Robert Maleran, George Folkes, Sidney Cohen, William Foster, William Kinkabe, Charles Rissmann, and Louis Michaels. Bernard Katz was alternate corporal, and Clinton McMillian alternate cadet.

SULLIVAN'S EXPERT DRILL SQUAD

Runnerup in the city squad drill contest in its second semester of existence is the record of Sullivan High school R. O. T. C., an achievement of which it has a right to be proud. Competing against 26 units, 18 of whom have had military training for five years or more, its drill squad scored 865 points out of a possible 1,000 to carry off second place honors and silver medals at the meet last Saturday at the 131st Infantry armory. The squad (left to right) is as follows: Cadet Corporal Hobart Scott, commander, and Cadets Robert Malmgren, William Foster, Clarence Cohn, George Fawkes, William Kinkade, Charles Rissman, Lewis Michiels, and James Hadden.

—Schurz—

Promotion of Cadet Major Frederick Brockman, commander of the Schurz High school R. O. T. C., to cadet lieutenant colonel heads the list of promotions announced in the unit by Sergt. M. J. Mooney, instructor, in preparation for regimental reviews. Other cadets to be advanced will be named soon.

Advancements were made as follows: Cadet Captain James Rasmussen to major executive, Cadet Captain Robert Sandberg, major first battalion; Cadet Captain John Bunting, major second battalion; Cadet First Lieutenant Richard Platt, captain and adjutant.

Cadet Lieutenants Warren Beman, captain and plans and training officer; James Wilke, captain and supply officer; Edmund Berent, John Wiss, Delmar Oaks, and Harold Paradise, company captains; Robert Ziebell, and Robert Huebner, executive officers; Robert Schulte and Robert Stein, first lieutenants and battalion adjutants; Paul Nagle, first lieutenant and range officer, and Cadet First Sergeants Alfred Steibler and Fred Soldowisch to line lieutenants.

—Roosevelt—

Sixteen Roosevelt High school R. O. T. C. cadets have been promoted by Sergt. Joseph V. Ackerman, instructor. The list includes three first sergeants, two battalion color sergeants and 11 sergeants.

Former Cadet Sergeant Eugene Offerdahl and Cadet Corporals Philip Bodinet and Alan Swanson are now acting first sergeants while Cadet Sergeant George Rubey and Cadet Corporal Roland Gilchrist have been elevated to battalion color sergeants.

Corporals promoted to sergeants are Arthur Bywell, Harry Diehl, Charles Durkee, Fred Gaier, Charles Katz, Erwin Landow, Arthur Schlenkert, Gilbert Sicher, Anthony Vita, Robert Zander, and Theodore Zukowski.

Two hundred and ten members of the unit and 68 bandsmen will represent Roosevelt in the annual Army day parade downtown April 6.

Von Steuben

The first annual spring military ball given by the Von Steuben High school R. O. T. C. will be held April 24 in the Mediterranean room of the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 North Lake Shore drive, according to Cadet Major Seymour Kritzberg, general chairman.

VON STEUBEN SCHOOL SYMPHONIC CHOIR TO BROADCAST PROGRAM

Clare John Thomas, of the Von Steuben High school music department, is director of the student symphonic choir invited to sing at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon over the National Broadcasting company's network.

CLARE JOHN THOMAS.

Selections to be presented are Tschaikovsky's "Nightingale," Pearsale's "When Allen a Dale Went Hunting," and Ravenscroft's "Tomorrow the Fox Will Come to Town." The choir will present a similar program April 24 at the Calvary Methodist church, Keeler avenue and Jackson boulevard. Gretchaninoff's, "Oh, Gladsome Light," will be an added feature.

The Sunday Evening club has invited the group to sing at Orchestra hall May 17. In addition to his work with the symphonic choir, Mr. Thomas is rehersing sixty boys and girls for the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Gondoliers," to be given at the school early in May.

Steinmetz High Pupils Collect Books for Vets

Patients of the Cook County, Edward Hines Memorial, and other veteran hospitals will receive books collected by Steinmetz High school pupils with the aid of the American Red Cross. Miss Helen Papenbrook is sponsor of the Steinmetz chapter of the society.

—Steinmetz—

Members of the Steinmetz High school R. O. T. C. drill squad which took fifth place in competition against 27 units last Saturday will be promoted. Sergt. Carl Christoffersen, military instructor, coached the squad.

Cadet Corporal Kermit Andrew, who commanded the group, will be advanced to cadet sergeant as will his alternate, Cadet Corporal Leo Munson.

Cadet Privates Raymond Borglund, Warren Bless, William Cichanski, William Hall, Robert Kohl, Edward Winger, Jack Unverferth, Ralph Hale, Irving Wiszo-Waty, Allen Robertson and Jack Robinson will be made cadet corporals.

BOWES' ARROW SHOT; MAY FALL TO EARTH SOON

Critic Sees Decline of Amateur Hours.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Observations, predictions, anecdotes and plain comment:

MAGDA NEELD.

Along with the signs of spring come signs that the amateur hours are beginning to fade. Another six months or perhaps a year may see their windup on the networks though they may last indefinitly on single stations where genuine amateurs are used and where the shows, for that reason, have maintained a certain amount of vitality, naturalness and interest.

The evidence: Fan mail shows a decrease in the mention of Maj. Bowes; fewer persons talk about his Sunday night show on Monday morning [as they did for many months] and listener surveys reveal a decreasing number of sets tuned to amateur hours everywhere.

Maj. Bowes has shot his arrow into the air and one of these days it will fall to earth though no one may say [when or] where!

It seems an auspicious time for Paul Whiteman to hold auditions among professionals who have been much neglected throughout the last year. And there is a startling measure of interest hereabouts in his forthcoming local talent quest.

The Singing Dressmaker.

Down under the Southern Cross—more specifically round about Sydney, Australia—they know Magda Neeld, Jack Hylton's young soprano, as the singing dress maker. Miss Neeld earned the money for acquiring her musical education while running a frock shop. Now 24, Miss Neeld was "discovered" just 18 months ago by Gustav Slapoffski, who years ago conducted for the late Nellie Melba, famous Australian prima donna. He persuaded her to join Sir Benjamin Fuller's traveling opera company and go to London.

In London while she was visiting an acquaintance a talent scout, who happened in one day to pass a little time with the same person, chanced to hear the Neeld notes coming from the bath.

"Nice voice," she observed. "Whose is it?"

A few minutes later Miss Neeld was introduced and a few minutes later than that she was on her way to meet Jack Hylton. He used her in his latest picture "She Shall Have Music" and a few weeks later she was on her way to Chicago and a radio career. And now she has her eyes turned in the direction of Hollywood.

Benny Fields Not Up to Ballyhoo.

Ballyhooed as the outstanding singing newcomer of the season Benny Fields doesn't quite measure up to the promises. Voice is a little like Bing Crosby's with the microphone mannerisms of Harry Richman. Great for night clubs—particularly around 3 a. m., but not entirely suited for radio. He's on Ziegfeld Follies of the Air and I for one would like to see James Melton back on it.

Dowling and Goodman.

Overheard in the studios during the Eddie Dowling-Benny Goodman hour:

"He ran for congress, you know," one customer confided.

"Who, Benny Goodman?"

"No, Eddie Dowling. Benny's at the Congress [hotel] now!"

Dowling did make a bid for the United States senatorship from Rhode Island.

"But I'm glad I lost," he explained when questioned along this line. "As a comedian I would have been a rank amateur by comparison with some of those senators."

Lohr Goes for Stamps.

All the stamp hounds around Radio City are doing a little quiet resenting these days. Maj. Lennox Lohr, the new president, like President Roosevelt and the late King George, is a philatelist, too, and he watches all the incoming mail, they say, particularly stuff from abroad, with a practiced eye.

Fields and Veloz Part.

Shep Fields' orchestra and Veloz and Yolanda have parted company. Fields is returning east to play at the Hotel Pierre roof in New York and Veloz and spouse are staying in Hollywood. The Veloz admirers claimed Fields owed his success to the dance team. That is as silly as to argue that the dancers owed their success to their orchestras.

Wynn Tells Them Long.

Ed Wynn's stories on his new series have been longer than when he was Fire Chief. Sponsor's agency is said to be responsible for the new policy and Ed is said to resent the interference.

De Marco on Rhythm.

Antonio De Marco, the dancer at the Blackstone's Mayfair room, whence Al Kavelin's music is aired over W-G-N, thinks that all this talk that swing music will soon dominate the airlanes and public dance places to the exclusion of more melodic music is a lot of tish tosh.

De Marco insists that the tango is much more likely to capture the fancy of the public. He says the dancers of the nation are much more tango conscious than orchestra leaders are.

And we have his word for it that the tango did not originate in Buenos Aires, but was evolved in Spain out of an older dance form more than 150 years ago. Then the Argentine took it across the Atlantic and thereupon traveling South Americans brought it back to Paris where it underwent some further revision. And thanks to Irene Castle [Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin] we finally got it from France. Well we thank you, Mrs. McLaughlin.

CINDERELLA AND PALS

Rosemary Dillon, "Broadway Cinderella," and her two co-principals of the sketch by that name, Ben Gage (left) and Eddie Dean. The sketch is heard each week day morning at 11:45 a. m. except Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

EDDY, ZIMBALIST, MARTINELLI ON NETWORKS TODAY

Nelson Eddy, baritone, as guest soloist with the Ford Symphony orchestra at 9 tonight over WBBM-CBS, will sing Strickle's "Open Road." Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Prophet," Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea," McDowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes," Taylor's "Captain Stratton's Fancy," Youmans' "Without a Song," and Sullivan's "The Lost Chord."

Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan Opera tenor, will present Mario Fiorella, Chicago baritone, under the name of Conrad Mayo, as a guest star of Mat Clemens on the Melody Master program over WMAQ—NBC at 11 tonight.

Appearing with Martinelli here last year in "Pagliacci" Fiorella gave such a fine performance that Martinelli induced him to go to New York and continue his musical studies.

Old English songs by John Goss and the London Singers, and violin solos by Efrem Zimbalist will be heard on the Magic Key broadcast over WENR-NBC at 2 p. m. today.

The Magic Key also will present Ina Claire, Brian Aherne, Osgood Perkins, Charles Coburn, and other stage stars in a special performance of the well known screen scene of Sheridan's "School for Scandal." In return for their performances, contributed free, the Radio Corporation of America will make a substantial cash donation to the Actors' Fund of America.

Wayne King to Play in W-G-N's Studios Today

Music of the soft velvety type which made him famous with millions of listeners on his W-G-N sustaining programs will be offered by Wayne King on his broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual system at 4:30 today. Wayne will play today's program from W-G-N's studios, having just completed several days' work with his orchestra at the Civic exposition at St. Louis. For the next three weeks King will be heard from Chicago.

Bob Hanon to Be Guest on W-G-N House Party

Bob Hanon, featured singer with Harry Sosnik's orchestra at the Stevens hotel, is the guest star this week on the Friendly Neighbor's House party program, broadcast every week day at 10:00 a. m. over W-G-N. Bob is a native Chicagoan, and since joining Sosnik's orchestra has become popular as a guest star on major sponsored programs.

U. S. DANCE TUNES LOSE OUT.

American dance records are losing their popularity in Germany to records of the classics. Germans are buying more folk song records, too.

VARIETY MARKS W-G-N STUDIO SHOWS OF WEEK

Themes from "Faust" and "Favorite Melodies of Schubert" will provide the major part of the Thursday evening musical revue program over W-G-N at 8:45 o'clock. The program, which is directed by Henry Weber, will offer Else Arend, soprano, and William Miller, tenor, as the soloists, and the W-G-N vocal ensemble. Mark Love, basso, and Adolf Hoffman, cellist, also will be heard in solo selections.

Another edition of "The Funny Bone Follies" will be given at 4 today in the audience studio at W-G-N. The two comics, Eddie Stanley and Henry Hoople, will be heard in new gags and songs, while the soloists with Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will be Edna Odell, the Hoosier songbird; Paul Small, tenor, and Jess Kirkpatrick, announcer and singer.

The choir of the North Austin Evangelical Lutheran church, directed by Phillip McDermott, will be heard on the "Evensong" program at 6:30 this evening. The Rev. F. W. Otterbein, pastor, will offer the prayer.

Olive June Lacey, soprano, will be the guest soloist on the Northerners program at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. She will sing "Ballatella" from "I Pagliacca" as her solo offering.

Dorothy Potter, soprano, will be the guest soloist with Attilio Baggiore and the W-G-N concert orchestra at 9 Tuesday evening. Miss Potter will sing "A Spirit Flower" and also will be heard in "Themes from the Vagabond King" with Mr. Baggiore. The solo selections by Mr. Baggiore will be the "Aria from Die Meistersinger" and "The Sunshine of Your Smile."

On Wednesday evening the Mardi Gras of Melody program with Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will feature Amy Neill, concert violinist.

MUTUAL NET TO BE EXPANDED FOR WEEMS' AIR SHOW

When Ted Weems and his orchestra open their new series of commercial programs over W-G-N and the Mutual System Sunday, April 12, two new stations will be added as outlets for the network. The Weems' programs will be aired each Sunday at 12:30 p. m. for a cosmetic manufacturer.

The new stations are WBAL, Baltimore, and WGR, Buffalo. Regular Mutual stations are W-G-N, Chicago, CKLW, Detroit; WSAI, Cincinnati; WGAR, Cleveland, and WCAE, Pittsburgh.

Weems' music is heard over W-G-N MBS currently from the Empire room of the Palmer house.

PET PEEVES

MY PEEVE!

Mr. Wolters, listen in,
Don't you think that it's a sin
That the tenors choose the night
To acquaint us with their plight?

Do the baritones need rest
To expand the manly chest?
Must they all retire at ten,
To fill up their lungs again?

We hear baritones all day
Some are sorrowful, some gay;
But when twilight's on the way
Come the tenors out to bray.

Their falsettos make me squirm;
For a baritone, I yearn.
In the night-time, most romantic;
I am driven nearly frantic
By their puny little wails
Itty-bitty sissy males!!

MRS. D. T. GOLDEN, Chicago.

Editor's note—You wouldn't call Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan opera tenor who will appear with the Melody Master at 11 tonight on WMAQ, a sissy would you?

DORING SISTERS TO BE GUESTS ON CONTENTED HOUR

The Doring Sisters—Grace, Ruth, and Marion—of the W-G-N staf will be guest artists on the Contented Program on NBC on Monday, April 6. The Dorings have been members of the W-G-N staf for the last two years and have attracted nation-wide comment for their harmony singing. On the Contented Hour program the girls will be heard in two ensemble numbers with the Commodores quartet, and in Brahm's "Lullaby" for their trio selection.

DEMOCRAT RIFT IN 8TH LEADS TO 'WRITE IN' PLAN

Party Now Seeks Three Assembly Seats.

Democratic than on the Republican side in this district as the campaign goes into the final fortnight. This is caused by the support thrown to Richard L. Creedon, trucking contractor of Broadview, by Joseph Lelivelt of Maywood, chief deputy in Sherif Toman's office.

Creedon and McGrath.

Creedon, many believe, will run second to Emmett McGrath of Brookfield, former representative who has first place on the ticket this spring. In that event he would defeat Representative Frank G. Ring of Harvey, a first termer.

Robert J. Burdett of Homewood obtained leave to withdraw his name from the Democratic ballot from this district last week.

Reports from the Sixth district—Evanston and a portion of Chicago north side wards—indicate that Senator James J. Barbour, a Republican veteran with twenty years in the senate behind him, while up against probably the toughest fight of his political life, is in the lead over his two opponents.

Fighting Barbour for the nomination are William G. Knox, who has the support of most of the leaders in the Chicago territory, and William H. Fetridge, a young man who has been hammering away at Barbour's record with considerable vehemence.

Maloney Suit Up Tomorrow.

However, Barbour is being backed in Evanston by County Commissioner William N. Erickson, one of the most active Young Republican leaders in the county, and this fact has led his friends to reiterate optimistic predictions of his success on April 14.

David B. Maloney, the leading Democratic candidate, is making a fight against two opponents, James M. Maloney and John J. Meyers, whom he charges are "stooges" for Charles H. Weber, committeeman of the Forty-fifth ward and a member of the house. Maloney has filed suit in Superior court, which will be heard tomorrow by Judge James Joseph Kelly, asking that James Maloney's name be taken off the ballot on the grounds that his petition is false. David Maloney is well known in the district by virtue of having been the Democratic nominee for congress in the Tenth district in 1934.

The house race in the Sixth finds Representative Drennan J. Slater, Republican, running well ahead of his eight opponents. Slater has first place on the ballot and the second place is held by former Representative Arthur E. Fischer, who is picked to run well.

Gains for Koehler.

Fred G. Koehler, who is backed by Committeeman John J. Hoellen of the Forty-seventh ward, is also said to be gaining strength. Two will be nominated and Slater is being picked for No. 1 position with Fischer and Koehler fighting it out for second place.

Other candidates include Attorney Charles E. Mallon, Democrat, running under the Horner banner; William C. Naumes, Republican, who wants the sales tax repealed; Attorney A. George Spannon, Republican, and Harry A. Sewell, Republican.

In the Thirty-first district, there is no contest among the Democrats for the house and the Republicans, who will nominate two of eight candidates, are said to be favoring Representative Edward P. Saltiel and Edward F. McGinnis, prominent Legionnaire. Another candidate is F. Ray Smith.

Carson Off Ballot.

The Twenty-ninth district is its usual turbulent self, one Republican candidate for the house, Edward Carson, having had his name taken off the ballot for fraud—at the instance of former Representative Robert M. Woodward, who is running again. Representative Joseph E. Farina, the sitting Republican, has first place on the ballot and Woodward, fourth, but the latter is assured the support of a number of influential citizens and organizations in the district.

Senator William J. Connors is predicting victory for the Democratic representatives seeking reëlection, Edward P. O'Grady and Arthur J. Quinn. They have seven opponents, chief among them former Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, who is in his usual fight with the Connors-Crowe organization.

Adamowski Is Active.

North and westward, in the Twenty-fifth district, Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, Democratic floor leader at Springfield, is regarded as such a cinch for renomination—by virtue of his much publicized activity in the house—that the Democratic organization is using him as one of its principal speakers throughout the city in the Bundesen-Horner campaign.

PROMOTING SCHOOL PATROL WEEK

The choral society of the Roosevelt High school is active in creating interest in school boy patrol week, which opens today in Chicago, through Mayor Kelly's proclamation. The singers have appeared at numerous safety meetings in the interest of stimulating interest in the boy patrol. Pictured are: First row (left to right)—Miss June Johnson, Miss Minette Seifer, Miss Eleanor Pick, Miss Jeranne Dwyer, Miss Dolores Cwik. Second row—James T. Gaffney, principal of the school; William Watson, Miss Elaine Turner, Miss Marcelle Kostman, Miss Lorraine Riske, Miss Thelma Balvtin, Herbert Edelman Jr., Robert Knudstrom, and Erhardt Bergstrasser, musical director. Third row—Earl Clark, James White, Walter McGrane, George Goebe, and S. Ronald Weissbuch.

STARTS COURT BATTLE TO GET NAME ON BALLOT

Barred Candidate Hits Election Board Rule.

school he has coached Chicago high school football and basketball teams.

Ran for Court Job.

For five years he was an assistant state's attorney and for three years was an assistant attorney general. He gave up the latter post in 1932 when he ran for and won the Republican nomination for clerk of the Appellate court, losing out for the office in the November Democratic landslide.

Mr. Kaleth is a son-in-law of the late Ald. Max Adamowski, and is also a former assistant state's attorney. His brother-in-law, who filed objections to Mr. Dempsey's petition, is said to be on the Democratic pay roll in the state auditor's office. Mr. Kaleth is supporting Caldwell.

FORTY-EIGHTH WARD

Although there are five candidates for Republican committeeman in this ward, the fight is between Committeeman John A. Massen and Joseph L. McCarthy. Mr. McCarthy is leading the Brooks campaign in the ward, while Mr. Massen, a Deneen man, has not indorsed any gubernatorial candidate.

FIFTIETH WARD

This ward is another that has two candidates for Republican committeeman working for Mr. Brooks. Besides Committeeman Louis Nettelhorst, who is chairman of the Brooks committee on halls and speakers, Carl J. Johnson, also is actively supporting his candidacy.

Mr. Johnson is manager of the A. Johnson firm, established by his father 50 years ago. He is active in civic affairs and organizations and in various Swedish clubs. He is urging the Republican groups to harmonize.

FORTY-SEVENTH WARD

Paul K. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the Harry N. Miller Republican club, says the Miller candidacy for Republican committeeman is not connected in any way with persons in the ward who previously have been candidates. The statement was made in answer to one appearing in THE TRIBUNE of last Sunday that William Wesby is supporting Mr. Miller. Committeeman John J. Hoellen, who is running for reëlection beat Mr. Wesby two years ago by 4,266 votes.

FORTY-THIRD WARD

Charges of political interference with business have been made on the Democratic side in the fight between Committeeman-Alderman Mathias Bauler and Anthony P. Collins, Horner candidate, over the committeemanship.

Mr. Bauler is charged with attempting to coerce an oil company into revoking the lease of a Collins' precinct worker on an oil station. He denies the charge, stating he doesn't need to go to those ends to win.

On the Republican side the fight has been narrowed to Committeeman James B. Waller, a former alderman, and Arthur F. Albert, also a former alderman. Irving A. Stevens, who was brought up politically in the ward by Mr. Waller, withdrew in favor of Mr. Albert.

FORTY-NINTH WARD

The limelight in ward scraps is taken by the three cornered race here over the Democratic committeemanship. The opponents are Committeeman John D. Hayes, assistant to Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court; Ald. Frank Keenan, and William G. Murray.

Mr. Hayes and Mr. Keenan are regular organization Democrats, with Mr. Hayes having its indorsement, while Mr. Murray is the Horner candidate.

This is Mr. Brooks' home ward and under the direction of Republican Committeeman Harry A. Riley it has been well organized for him. Caldwell sentiment is said to be weak in the ward although the group behind Mr. Riley's only opponent, George A. Williston, has indorsed Mr. Caldwell.

ST. STANISLAUS GRADS TO HEAR ASSESSOR CLARK TOMORROW

Assessor John S. Clark will address the monthly meeting of the St. Stanislaus College Alumni association tomorrow evening in Gordon hall, 1521 Haddon avenue, at 8:30 o'clock.

JOHN S. CLARK.

Committee chairmen will be announced as follows: Bruno P. Pstrong, entertainment; Julius F. Szatkowski, public relations; Joseph Sroka, finance; Walter A. Dobosz, membership; Bruno D. Obuchowski, publicity.

These chairmen, in addition to members of the administration board are completing plans for fall social functions in commemoration of the 35th anniversary of the association's founding. The following make up the administration board: Theodore Carnecki, president; Joseph A. Ziemba, Joseph P. Rostenkowski, Dr. John J. Liss, Alexander Bak, Aloysius Urbanski, John Gill, the Rev. Stanislaus Radniecki, the Rev. M. N. Starzynski, the Rev. A. C. Mayer, and Thaddeus A. Tryba.

CHURCHES PLAN PASSION SUNDAY SERVICES TODAY

Rites to Open Special Week's Observance.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Today is Passion Sunday. It ushers in a week of observance in Christian churches marking that moment in the life of Christ when he realized he would be compelled to atone for the sins of humanity by giving his life. Services today, especially those in Catholic, Episcopalian, and Lutheran churches, will dwell on the aspect of Christ's spiritual distress during that week preceding the physical agony which is memoralized in holy week.

DR. ROBERT N. SPENCER.

At the noonday services at the Harris theater, under the auspices of the Church club of Chicago, the preacher this week will be the Rt. Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer, bishop of Kansas City. For more than twenty years prior to his election as bishop Dr. Spencer was rector of Grace and Holy Trinity church, Kansas City.

He will be a guest of the Church club at luncheon at the Sherman hotel following Monday's meeting, and of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew at the Central Y. M. C. A. after Tuesday's meeting. Wednesday evening he will preach at St. Paul's church, Kenwood, and Thursday evening at Emmanuel church, La Grange.

To promote Christian fellowship, twelve Lutheran churches of the northwest metropolitan area are combining in a joint lenten service to be held Tuesday evening in Irving Park Lutheran church, Harding and Belleplaine avenues. The principal speaker will be Dr. William Eckert.

It is hoped to make this an annual affair, and where the next one will take place will be determined thus, according to Carl Ohlander, chairman of the committee: "The church whose attendance at this service on Tuesday evening is the highest in ratio to its total membership will be awarded the meeting for the following year."

PLANS DRAFTED FOR RECREATION IN ELMWOOD PARK

New Council Will Direct Village Program.

A plan whereby Elmwood Park can give all its residents free recreational facilities, evolved by Robert House, recreation council president, was submitted to a meeting of civic leaders in the suburb last Thursday. Already several key positions have been filled and other personnel recommendations will be made at the next meeting in the Elmwood Park Municipal theater building on Thursday, April 16.

The idea has been to establish a nonsecretarian, nonpolitical community recreation group to stimulate athletic, dramatic, and domestic science development. Under a governing council, participating organizations such as fraternal clubs, scouts, churches, and schools will establish their individual recreational departments.

Supplies from WPA.

The WPA will act as project operator and will provide certain equipment, supplies, and labor as indicated in the agreement made with Village President J. A. Cullerton, council sponsor, and Trustee E. J. Graham, as council superintendent.

Those who have accepted positions are Henry J. Graham, president of the school board of district No. 85, who will be chairman of the coördination and extension committee; George N. Nells, superintendent of the Elmwood Park schools, chairman of the activities committee, and Dr. James A. Moxon, president of the board of health in Elmwood Park, who will be chairman of the health and safety committee.

The superintendent, Mr. Graham, will serve as a contact between the WPA and Mr. Cullerton in settling questions of governmental and municipal policy.

On Executive Committee.

The executive committee will be the chief body under the council and will be composed of the officers and chairman of major standing comittees.

Under the recreational council will be the participating organizations divided into the following groups: church, school, fraternal, civic, social service, and social clubs.

The activities proposed are athletics, including baseball, volley ball, tennis, archery and croquet; nonathletic games such as chess; dramatics, domestic science, literature, including plans to establish a library; a community band made up of the graduates of Elmwood Park schools, manual training, including model planes; ballroom and tap dancing instruction, and hobbies.

READY FOR TALENT QUEST

Mrs. Walter H. Tallant, 2142 Miner street, Des Plaines, has completed her plans for an audition of the program bureau of the Seventh District Woman's clubs from 1 o'clock until 4 o'clock Tuesday during which talented women will be classified for future club programs.

NORTHWEST SIDE SAVE THE LAWN MEETING SLATED

There will be a northwest regional meeting of the save the lawn campaign at the Eugene field park fieldhouse, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. Mrs. Herman Turner, 4832 North Christiana avenue, will preside.

MRS. HERMAN TURNER.

Mrs. Charles Balch, ground beautiful chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will talk on recreation. John Riva, president of the Mayfair Garden club, will speak on "Growing Flowers."

CUT TELEGRAM RATE.

Telegrams to Great Britain may be sent anywhere within the country for 12 cents for nine words, the postmaster general announced in London, instead of 25 cents for twelve words.

OWNERS GROOM BLUE BLOOD DOGS FOR ANNUAL SHOW

Dog fanciers from the north, northwest, and west suburbs will play a prominent part in the 35th annual all breed show of the Chicago Kennel club to be held in the Coliseum Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. According to Alexander H. Stewart, club president, some of the best dogs in the country are owned by Chicago and suburban residents, and the local thoroughbreds have an excellent chance to win the major prize, the John C. Eastman trophy, valued at $1,000 for the best dog in the show regardless of breed.

The 41 owners and their entries are: Orville Caesar, Barrington, Irish setter; Miss Harriet Boonstra, Lombard, English setter; D. E. Larish, Oak Park, Irish and English setters; A. R. MacLean, Wilmette, Irish setter; Carl O. Wood, Berwyn, Irish setter; Joseph O. Comee, Northbrook, two Irish setters; A. C. Simmons, Maywood, English setter; H. J. Cooper, Franklin Park, two Irish setters, and Livingstone E. Osborne, Ravinia, two chows.

John Gordon Law, Geneva, has entered four English setters. Additional entries are: Miss Ruth Greidsbaum, Elmhurst, English setter; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bakke, Oak Park, Irish setter; Frank Warren, Park Ridge, three bull terriers; Herbert B. Beifuss, Oak Park, Dobermann-Pinscher; Frank E. McDonald, River Forest, two Irish setters; Irving Florsheim, Libertyville, four keeshonden.

Other entries are: Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Young, Park Ridge, cocker spaniel; George Olson, Highland Park, fox terrier; C. K. Trimble, Des Plaines, two Welsh terriers; Mrs. Grace Rudesill, Park Ridge, two pekes; Harold M. Florsheim, Highland Park, seven airdales; Alexander H. Stewart, Highland Park, eight wired haired fox terriers; Mr. and Mrs. Orin H. Baker, Chicago, four kerry blues.

$6,500 Is Needed to Pay for Boys' and Girls' Activities

WHAT YOUR CONTRIBUTION WILL DO
Your contribution will give you a part in the good work being carried on by the Irving Park YMCA—training the Boys and Girls of this community so that they will be the leaders and good citizens of tomorrow—Boys and Girls to whom you can confidently entrust your plans and hopes for the future. Perhaps your Son or Daughter or your friend's Sons or Daughters are now using the YMCA. Perhaps you or your friends have been in contact with the YMCA and are familiar with the good work. The Irving Park YMCA provides a recreational, social, and educational program for Boys and Girls with unlimited possibilities for the development of true friendship, fellowship, and the wise use of leisure time.

THE YMCA IS NOT SELF-SUPPORTING
The fees for Boy or Girl membership privileges are fixed to meet the average ability to pay. These fees are far below cost. Boys and Girls for whom the YMCA is primarily intended cannot belong to self-supporting clubs, yet they need the environment and privileges offered by the YMCA. The YMCA helps Boys and Girls to help themselves. It doesn't take a great deal of money on your part, and you will be surprised at the high returns you will receive on an investment in the leaders of tomorrow. Your contribution will be spent in maintaining the essential Boys' and Girls' activities. The adult YMCA work is self-supporting. We invite you to send for facts and figures which are available on request.

We hope you will help us in this work. Checks may be made payable to Arthur F. Jensen, Chairman Irving Park YMCA.

STONE CAN GIVE NEW CHARACTER TO MODERN HOME

Wide Variety of Effect Is Made Possible.

If you are interested in improving your bathroom, modernizing it in small ways or large, send for a new booklet by Louise Bargelt, "New Beauty for Bathrooms." It is 3 cents by mail and 2 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We are seeing many fine examples of new and remodeled houses of stone these days. So strong an appeal have walls of stone that it seems as if our affection for this most natural of all our masonry materials must be deep rooted in a far distant past.

Where stone is locally available it is not expensive to use on the exterior walls of a house. Every variety of stone, however, has its individual characteristics which dictate how it should be laid. Moreover, the style of architecture of a house and the homes surrounding it influence the selection of the stone. There are many varieties of stone, and many different effects are possible. Closely jointed blocks of uniformly grained stones will give a conventional, regular effect. A striking wall can often be built of sturdily grained stones laid in narrow, long pieces. A rough, irregular wall of stone will create an atmosphere of informality. A smooth stone wall, with even regular courses, will afford a certain definite dignity and formality.

Flagstone of Soft Ivory.

In the remodeled home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Mayo in Glen Ellyn the flagstones which have gone into its new overcoat were obtained from quarries in Joliet. These stones are a soft ivory in color, shot through with melting tones of buff and deeper tones of brown. Besides the fresh charm given to this house by its new walls of stone, there are the added advantages of lowered maintenance costs, slighter depreciation, and fire safety.

The present owners bought the house with a view modernizing it. They wanted a home which they could live comfortably with, as well as in. The remodeling was planned to meet their family life and its activities.

The greatest number of structural changes inside the home took place on the second floor.

On the first floor the partition between the living room and hall was torn out. This afforded the family a much more spacious living room. Arches were built between living room and dining room.

New Floors Throughout.

An old pantry was converted into a smart, up to date storage closet, and the old back porch was transformed into a modern lavatory and inclosed vestibule. The kitchen was handsomely modernized in the 1935-'36 manner. New wood floors were laid throughout, the woodwork and radiators were painted ivory, and the walls were decorated anew.

On the second floor the changes were more drastic. As in many homes built in the past, the windows were small and admitted only a scant supply of light and air. The bedrooms, lying close to the uninsulated roof, were hot and often breathless. The layout offered only two bedrooms—and an enormous bathroom. The old bathroom was removed, and in its place was built a smaller bath, all modern in fixtures and decorations. And there still remained space for a sizable linen closet, a closet for the children, and a pleasant, convenient hallway. Three bedrooms were built where only two existed before.

New Roof for Old.

A new roof, thoroughly insulated, was laid. In order that the family should not suffer more inconvenience than necessary while the structural changes on the second floor were taking place the new roof was laid first, above the old one. When it was finished the old roof was torn down and thrown out through the windows! In this way the home was not roofless even for a single hour.

Now the second floor layout, as well as the first, has a well defined air of spaciousness. This is the result of careful planning, wise arranging of difficult divisions, and easy and convenient line of travel between rooms.

Space, where it is limited, as is the case in many homes to be remodeled, needs skilful handling if it is to be used to the best advantage. Both floors of this house show such skilful treatment. Add to this the attractiveness of the wood trim which is painted ivory, the light shades of wall decorations, the discriminating use of draperies and rugs and furniture all in quiet harmony, and the new wide windows with their views of lawn and grounds—and in summer gardens, shrubbery, and flowers—and you have an atmosphere of warmth and friendliness and charm.

Remodeling Era Ahead.

We are starting a period which promises to be the biggest era in home remodeling which our country has ever seen. Hundreds and thousands of existing houses are going to be modernized in the months ahead. They are going to be transformed into sturdier, handsomer homes. In many cases their interior layouts and room arrangements will be materially altered.

Those of us who are lucky enough to be building or remodeling this coming year should keep uppermost in our minds that every house, however simple, can be a thing of beauty. Ugliness and beauty can be bought at the same price.

Sometimes beauty is even cheaper, since simplicity is in most instances an essential of true charm. And every house, however simple, can be made into a sturdy house by the proper use of enduring materials and the wise use of modern construction methods.

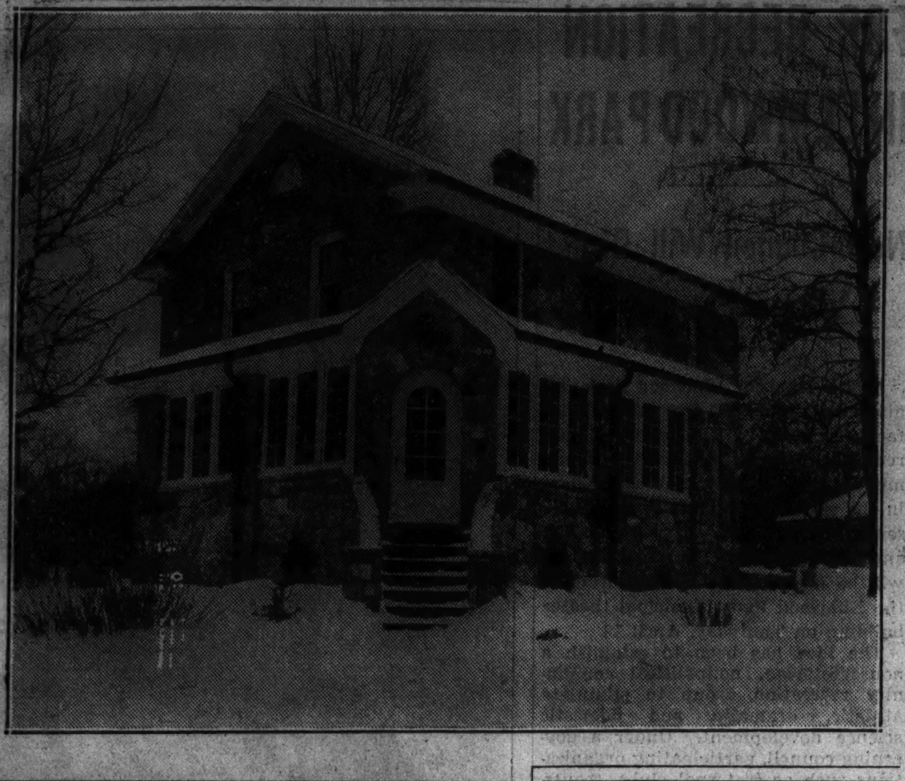
This spring various articles of wood around a house will be "modernized." A query recently came in to this department:

"I want to refinish some old maple furniture for a girl's bedroom. Would you use a varnish remover or a strong solution of caustic soap cleansing powder in hot water? And how can I obtain a soft, honey maple tone?"

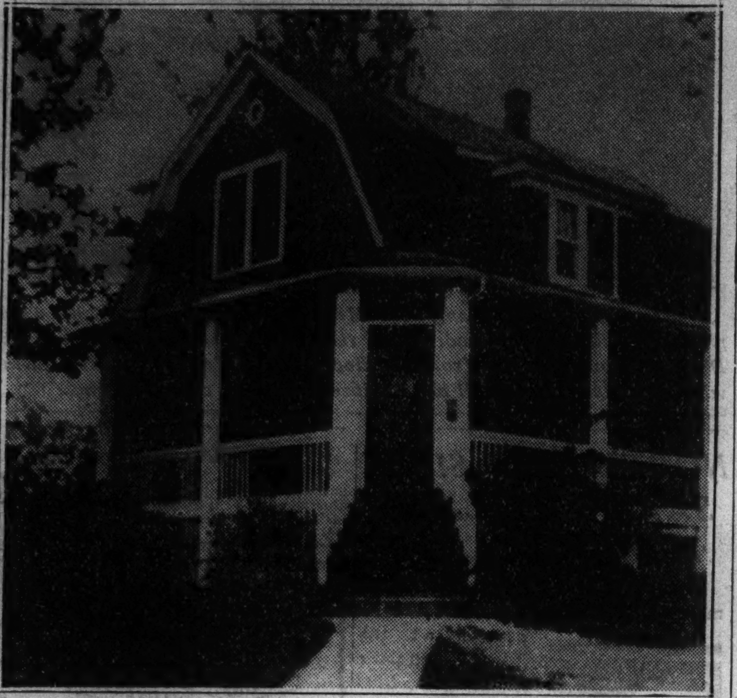
For those who will be removing old finishes from woodwork, floors, and furniture, there are two types of varnish removers: liquid and hard, applied with a scraper or brush. The first is preferable in most instances, since a liquid paint and varnish remover will not be likely to raise the grain of the wood and necessitate a sandpapering. A caustic soap solution in hard water, applied with a scraper or scrubbing brush, is cheaper than a commercial liquid varnish remover, but this treatment is also likely to raise grain of wood. To obtain a soft honey maple tone, try a combination of varnish stains—two parts of walnut to one part mahogany. Thin this a little and apply it lightly.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

GLEN ELLYN TRANSFORMATION



An excellent piece of modernization work is shown today. Besides a number of interior structural changes, the house has been given a new overcoat of flagstones. Its owners are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Mayo, 739 Duane street, Glen Ellyn.



The Mayo home before modernization. The contractor for the renovation was Walter J. Rozek, Glen Ellyn. The stonemason was Henry Anderson, Lombard.

WRIGHT COLLEGE PROFESSOR PENS NEW U.S. HISTORY

Book by H. E. Carlson Weighs Depression.

A new book of history, "Growth of the American People," in which a topic can be studied continuously with the aid of a system of cross references, has been written and recently revised by H. E. Carlson, professor of history at Wright college, in collaboration with Dr. M. W. Jernegan, University of Chicago, and A. C. Ross, of Hirsch High school.

HARRY CARLSON.
[Swisher Studio.]

Emphasis in the book has been placed on population, immigration and racial elements. Special stress has been laid also on the causes and effects of periods of depression and poverty. The book is of interest to teachers primarily as a new senior high school text on American history.

Prof. Carlson also is a lecturer on current politcal, social and economic issues. He began his history work at Monmouth High school, Monmouth, Ill., in 1914.

He then taught at Thornton Township High school, Harvey, Ill.; Lane Institute of Technology, and Crane Junior college, coming to Wright in 1934. From 1923 to 1926 he conducted four European tours.

ENTER SELECTION SWEEPSTAKES TO LEGALIZE LOTTERIES!

3 MINUTES TIME MAY BRING YOU $20,000.00
IT'S EASY—NOTHING TO WRITE!

Think what you could do with so much cash! Buy a home . . . travel wherever you wish . . . have an assured income for the rest of your life . . . start in business for yourself . . . enjoy life with all the fine clothes and good times you want! Here is your big opportunity. Someone will win $20,000.00 in this Selection Sweepstakes . . . someone will win $10,000.00 . . . someone will get $5,000.00 . . . and there'll be over 280 other big cash prizes. All this money is going to somebody — and it might as well be you!

WHO'S BEHIND THIS?

This great Selection Sweepstakes is sponsored by the National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries of which the nationally-known society leader and humanitarian, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, is President — a National Organization for a National Cause. It is being conducted in order to secure additional members to aid in legalizing lotteries; to familiarize the American public with the aims of the movement; and to obtain the judgment of its members on the best uses for lotteries if legalized in this country.

The National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries has the support of many of the most influential men and women — names you respect and honor — an absolute guarantee of the integrity of this "sweepstakes". If it's good for them, it's certainly good for you. Remember, when you join them you not only give yourself a chance to win BIG MONEY but you also help a great, important national movement.

WHAT LOTTERIES HAVE DONE!

France adopted a lottery to reduce its national debt; Italy to build railroads; Denmark to advance art and music; Holland to advance the sciences; Ireland to finance the building of hospitals; Spain for charitable institutions; Germany to finance public improvements, etc. England used to support its navy by public lotteries; early American colonies permitted lotteries to build schools, churches, and public works and improvements, such as canals, bridges, roads, etc. The Revolutionary War was in part financed with the proceeds of lotteries. Early buildings of Yale, Columbia and Harvard were built with the proceeds of lotteries.

HOW YOU ENTER!

It costs you only a dollar to become a member—and your dollar contribution entitles you to enter this entirely legal "sweepstakes" contest.

Here is all you have to do to be officially entered:

1. On the entry blank are listed 16 ways in which the money raised by legalized lotteries might be used. Everybody has an opinion as to which are the best ways. Simply indicate your opinion by writing the numbers 1 to 16 in the squares—No. 1 after what you think the best way, No. 2 after the second best, and so on until you have a number in each square. We suggest before you do this, however, that you read again the paragraph above which tells how legalized lotteries have been used before for the public welfare.
2. Print your name and address plainly on the coupon.
3. Mail the entry blank and coupon together with $1 membership fee.

The entries which, in the opinion of the judges, list in the best order of importance the ways of using money raised by lotteries will be awarded the big cash prizes.

Within 10 days you will be sent your own membership certificate and acknowledgment of your entry.

ABSOLUTELY LEGAL!

Don't confuse this Selection Sweepstakes with any other kind of contest. It is sponsored by a national non-profit-making organization—an honest contest and "sweepstakes" honestly conducted. This is a contest of judgment and skill, not of chance. You don't have to write any letter or essay. You certainly can form an opinion as to how the money raised by legal lotteries should be used. Your judgment is just as good as anyone else's . . . you have just as great a chance to win as anyone. But you can't win if you don't enter.

DON'T DELAY!

Fill out the entry blank and coupon and mail them now with your dollar membership fee. Don't put it off until tomorrow — you may forget.

Think what you could do with $20,000—more than most people save in a lifetime. Someone will get it for just a few strokes of a pen. Remember that there are over 285 cash prizes . . . over 285 chances for you to win.

Do it now — don't wait until tomorrow. Remember, only those who send in the coupon and are members of the Conference are eligible to enter this contest.

PRIZES AWARDED BEFORE JUNE 15TH

THIS COUPON MAY BE WORTH $20,000 TO YOU!

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, President of the National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries, presenting check for $10,000 to Mrs. Marie Harris, Yonkers, N. Y., winner of the first prize in the 1935 Sweepstakes Contest conducted by this organization. Second prize winner was Miss Maude King, Chicago, Ill. There were 66 other big cash prize winners. Complete list of names and addresses of winners mailed upon request.

THIS IS THE OFFICIAL ENTRY BLANK

YOU CAN USE THIS AS YOUR ENTRY BLANK
PUT A NUMBER IN EACH SQUARE

Below are listed the various ways in which the proceeds from legalized lotteries might be distributed. Read them carefully. Then number them in what you consider the order of their importance and merit. Write the number 1 in the square after what you consider the best way; number 2 after the second best; and so on, until you have a number in each square. Use ink or pencil.

Money for hospitals	☐	Pay for public works	☐
Funds for social service charities	☐	Give money to religious institutions	☐

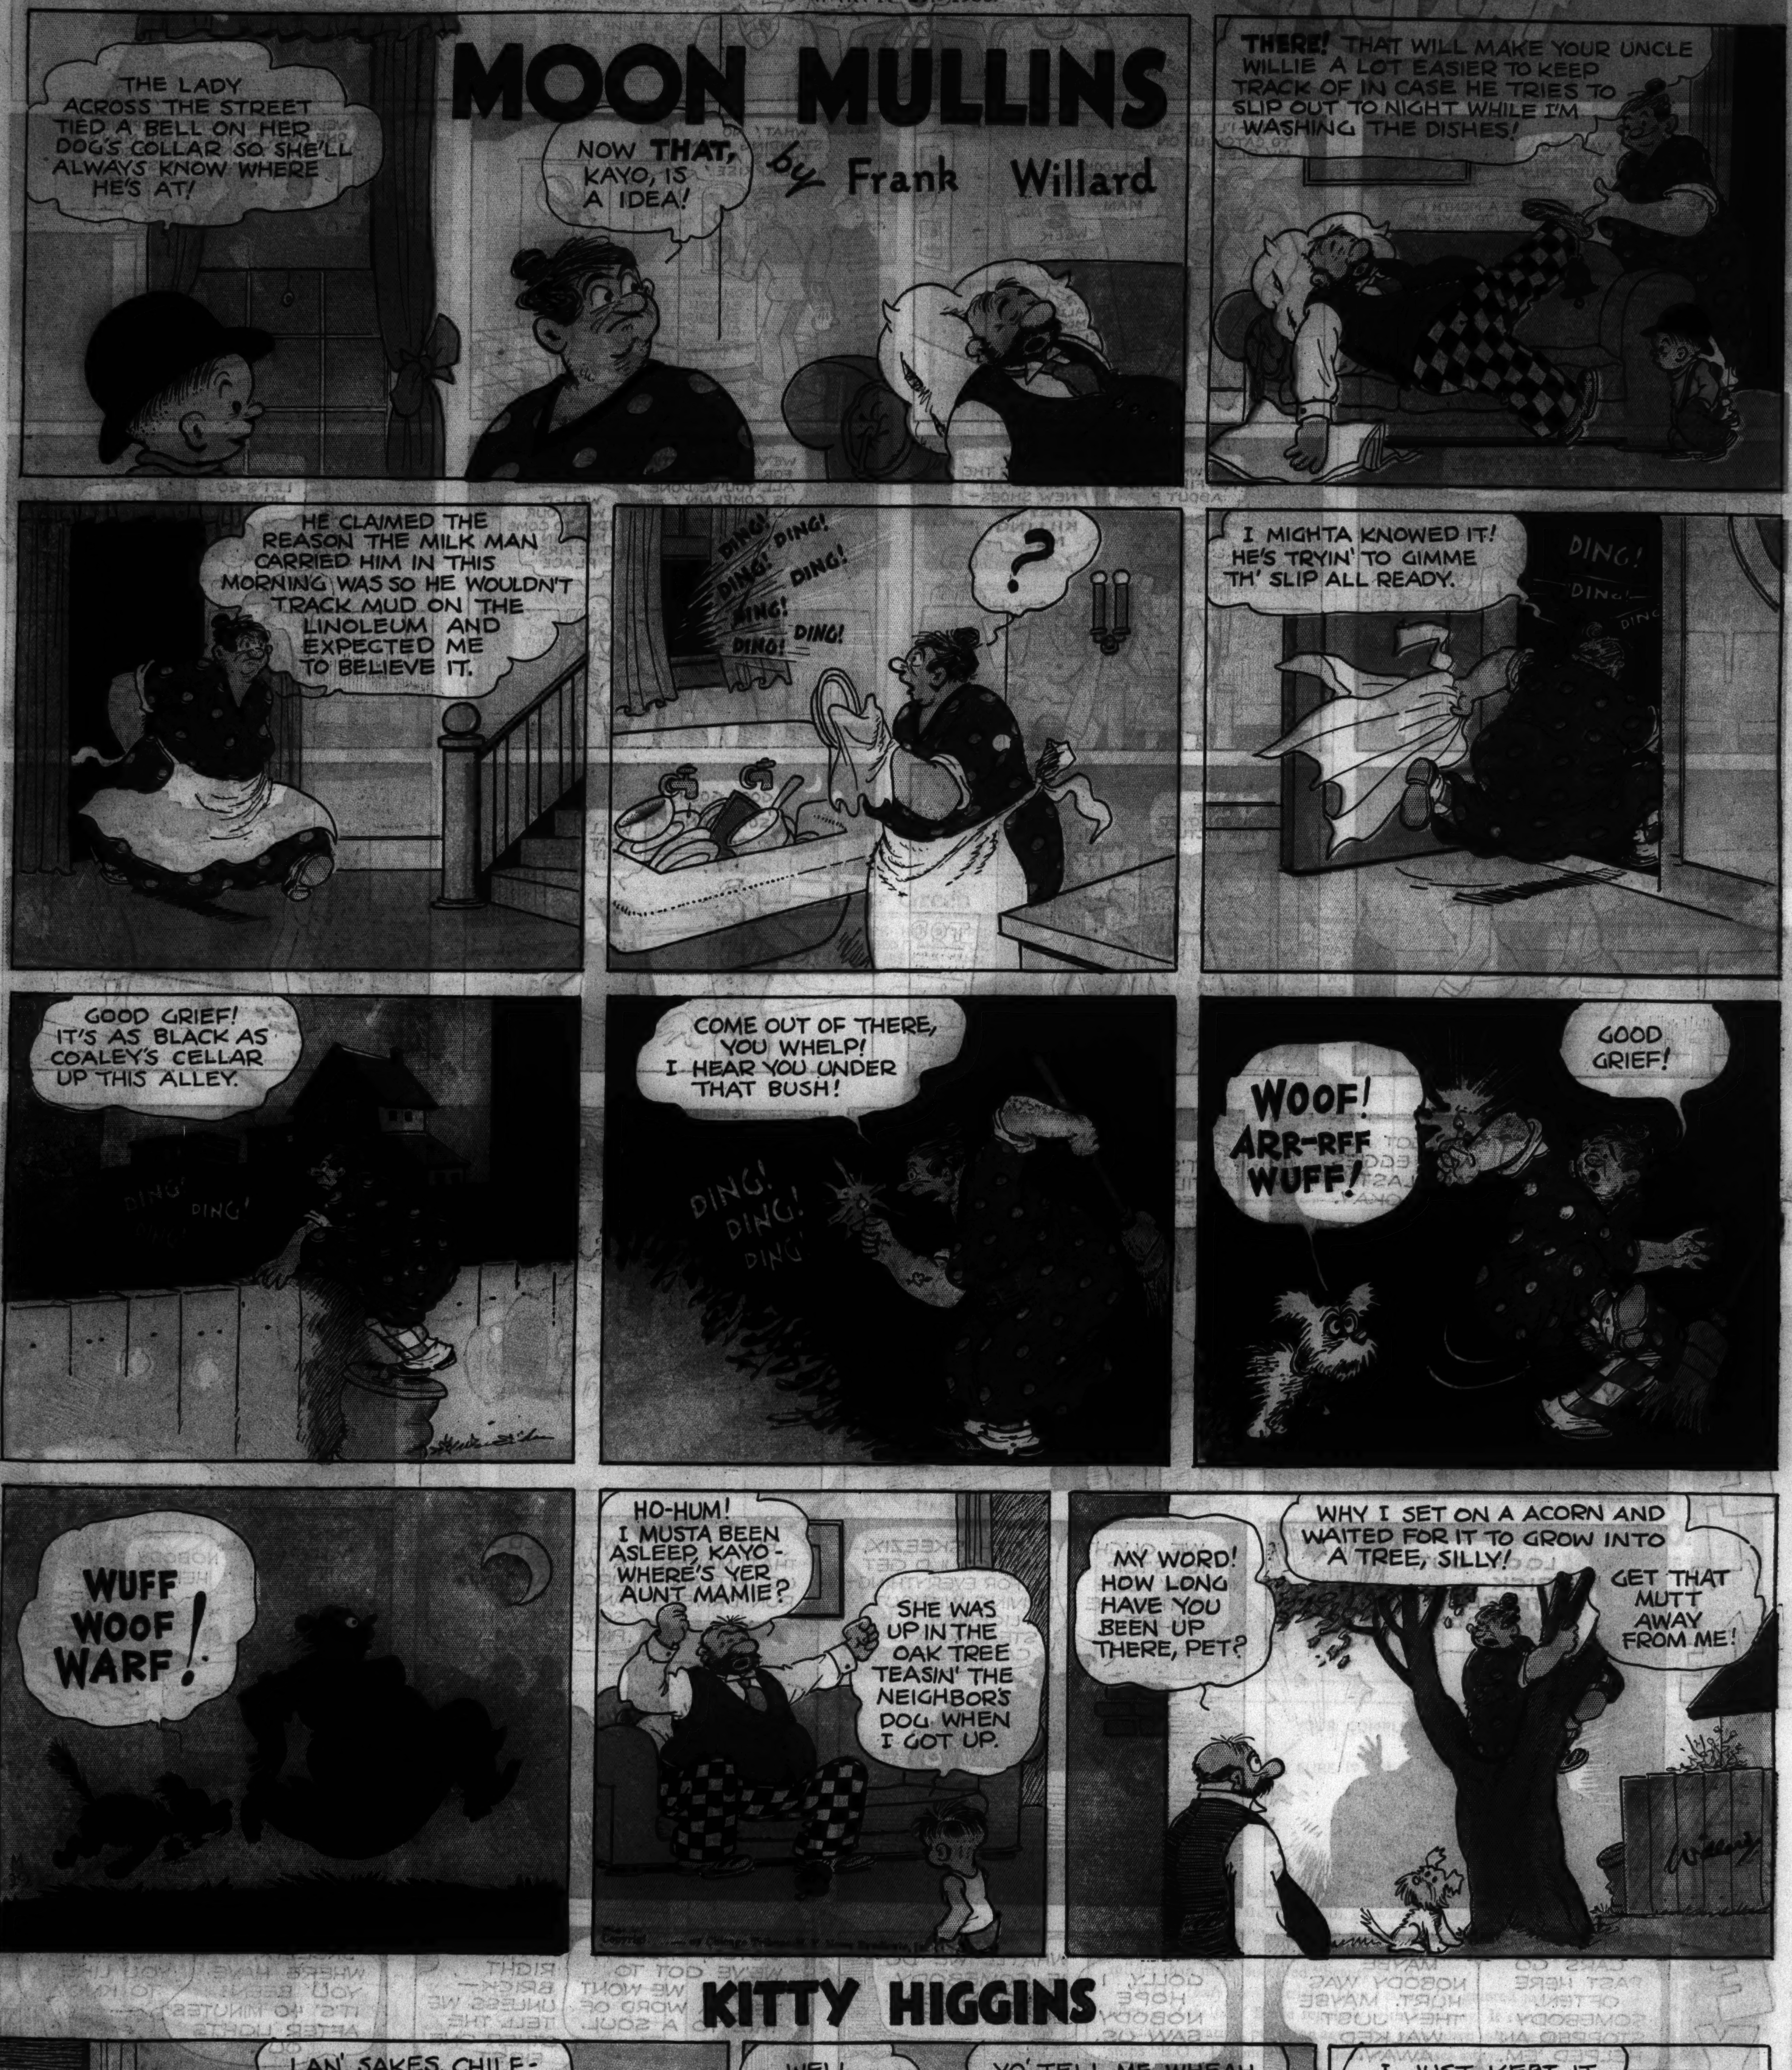
MOON MULLINS

by Frank Willard



THE LADY ACROSS THE STREET TIED A BELL ON HER DOG'S COLLAR SO SHE'LL ALWAYS KNOW WHERE HE'S AT!
NOW THAT, KAYO, IS A IDEA!
THERE! THAT WILL MAKE YOUR UNCLE WILLIE A LOT EASIER TO KEEP TRACK OF IN CASE HE TRIES TO SLIP OUT TO NIGHT WHILE I'M WASHING THE DISHES!
HE CLAIMED THE REASON THE MILK MAN CARRIED HIM IN THIS MORNING WAS SO HE WOULDN'T TRACK MUD ON THE LINOLEUM AND EXPECTED ME TO BELIEVE IT.
DING! DING! DING! DING! DING! DING! DING!
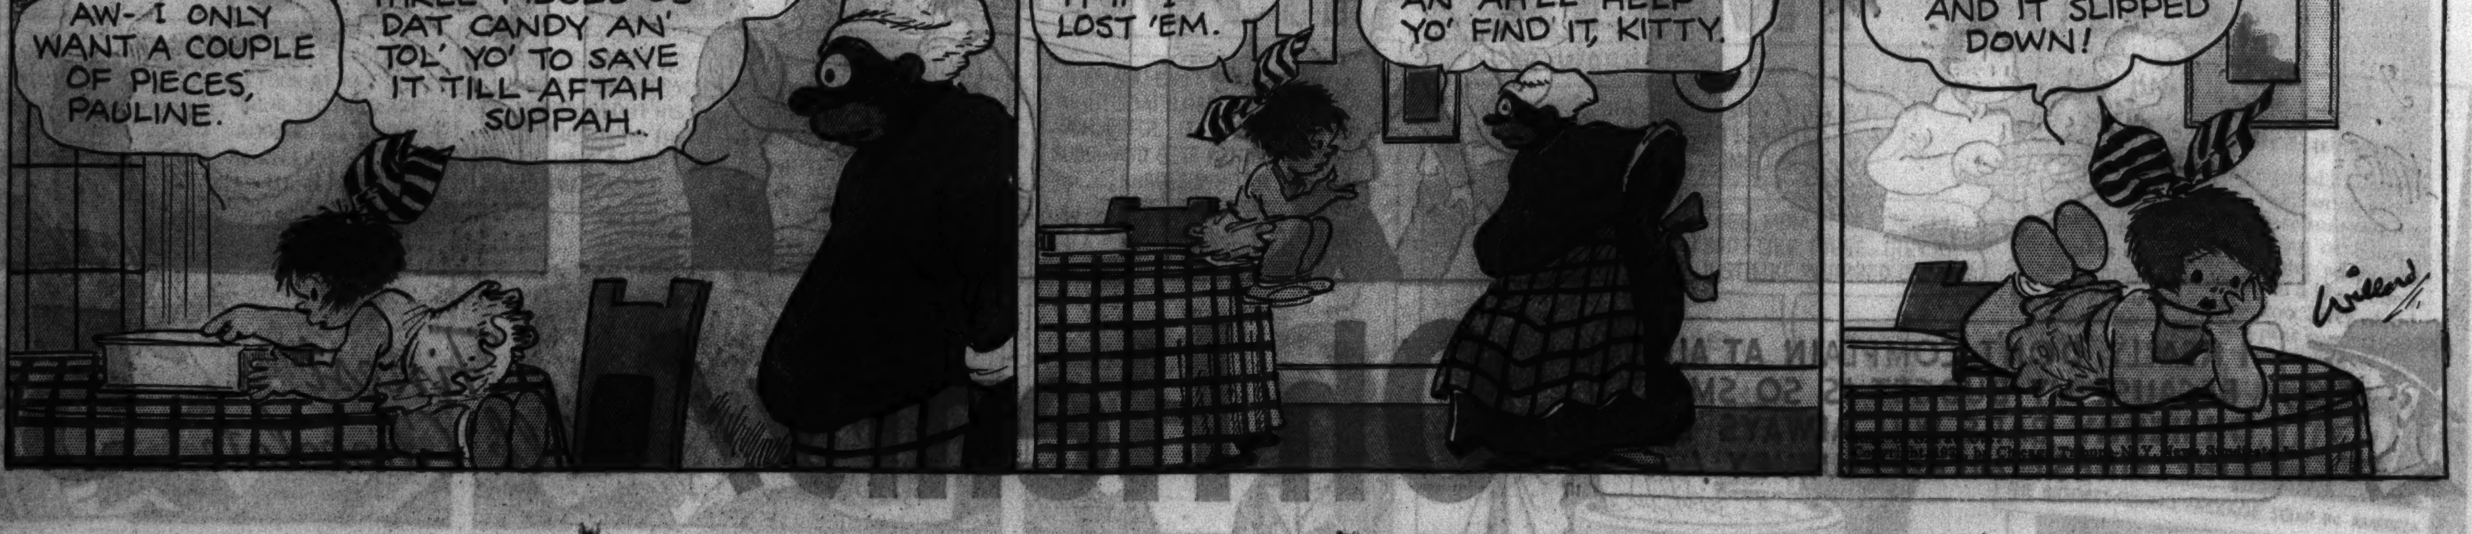
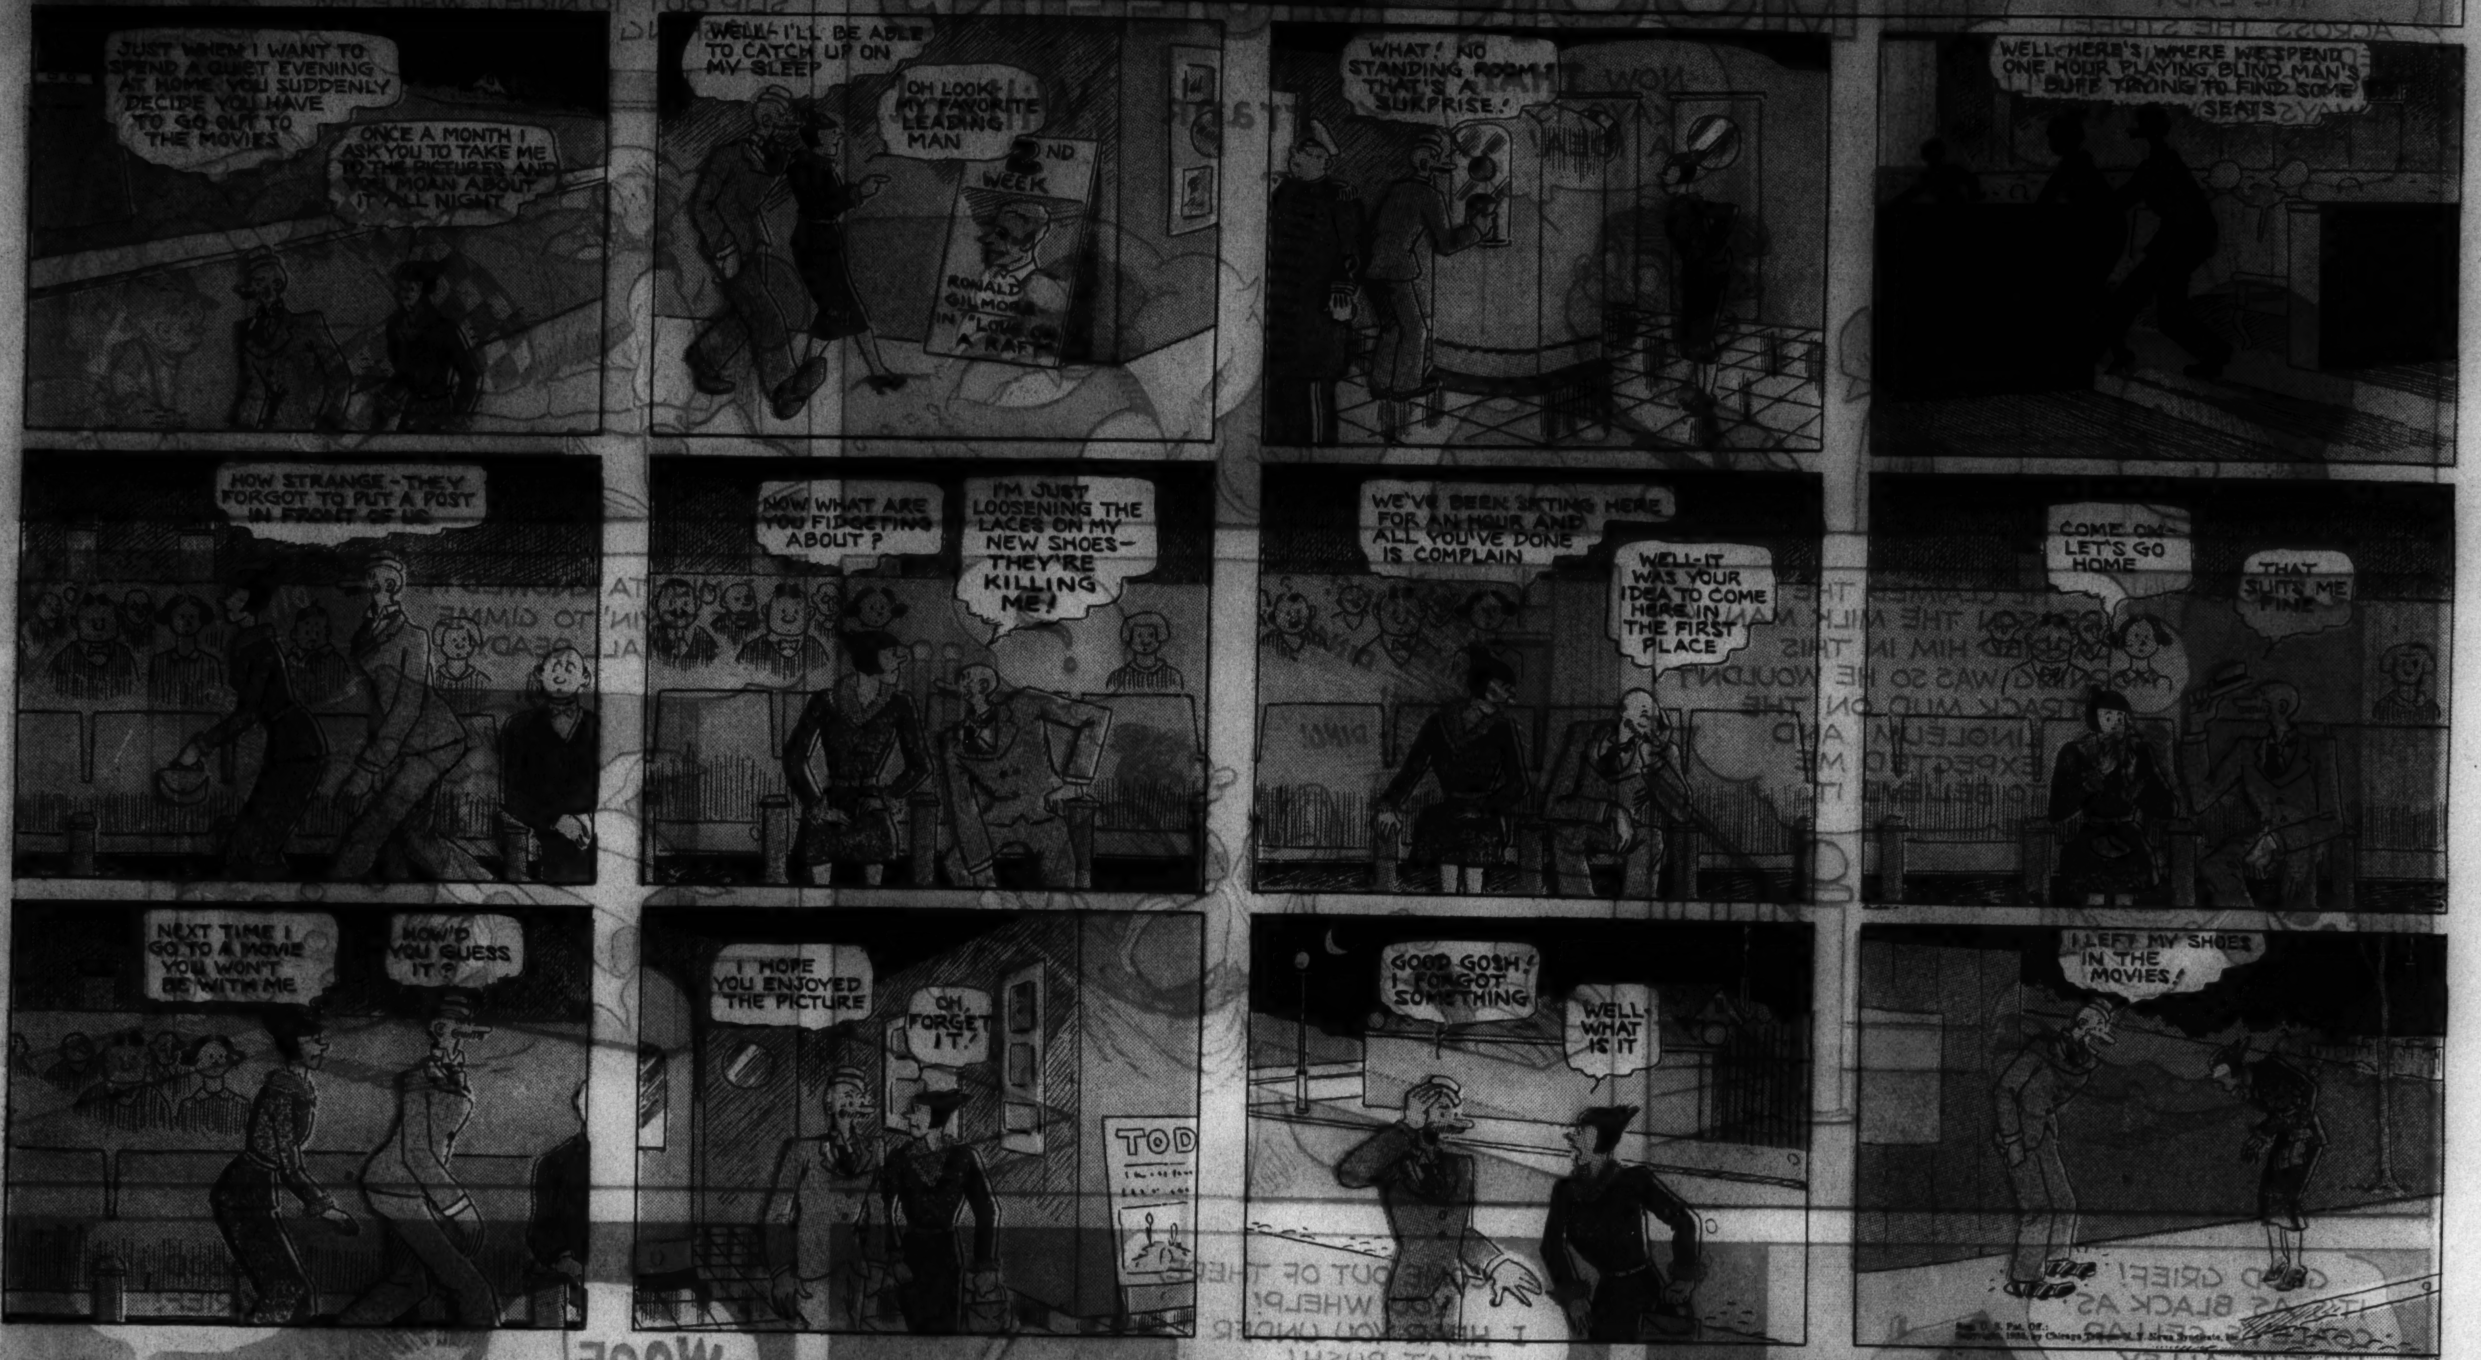
I MIGHTA KNOWED IT! HE'S TRYIN' TO GIMME TH' SLIP ALL READY.
DING! DING! DING
GOOD GRIEF! IT'S AS BLACK AS COALEY'S CELLAR UP THIS ALLEY.
DING! DING! DING!
COME OUT OF THERE, YOU WHELP! I HEAR YOU UNDER THAT BUSH!
DING! DING! DING
WOOF! ARR-RFF WUFF!
GOOD GRIEF!
WUFF WOOF WARF!
HO-HUM! I MUSTA BEEN ASLEEP, KAYO - WHERE'S YER AUNT MAMIE?
SHE WAS UP IN THE OAK TREE TEASIN' THE NEIGHBOR'S DOG WHEN I GOT UP.
MY WORD! HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN UP THERE, PET?
WHY I SET ON A ACORN AND WAITED FOR IT TO GROW INTO A TREE, SILLY!
GET THAT MUTT AWAY FROM ME!
Willard

KITTY HIGGINS



AW- I ONLY WANT A COUPLE OF PIECES, PAULINE.
LAN' SAKES, CHILE- AH JES GIVE YOU THREE PIECES OB DAT CANDY AN' TOL' YO' TO SAVE IT TILL AFTAH SUPPAH.
WELL, CAN I HELP IT IF I LOST 'EM.
YO' TELL ME WHEAH YO' LOST DAT CANDY AN' AH'LL HELP YO' FIND IT, KITTY.
I JUST KEPT IT IN MY MOUTH AND IT SLIPPED DOWN!
Willard



JUST WHEN I WANT TO SPEND A QUIET EVENING AT HOME YOU SUDDENLY DECIDE YOU HAVE TO GO OUT TO THE MOVIES
ONCE A MONTH I ASK YOU TO TAKE ME TO THE PICTURES AND YOU MOAN ABOUT IT ALL NIGHT
WELL- I'LL BE ABLE TO CATCH UP ON MY SLEEP
OH LOOK- MY FAVORITE LEADING MAN
2ND WEEK
RONALD GILMORE IN "LOVE ON A RAFT"
WHAT! NO STANDING ROOM !! THAT'S A SURPRISE!
WELL, HERE'S WHERE WE SPEND ONE HOUR PLAYING BLIND MAN'S BUFF TRYING TO FIND SOME SEATS
HOW STRANGE-THEY FORGOT TO PUT A POST IN FRONT OF US
NOW WHAT ARE YOU FIDGETING ABOUT?
I'M JUST LOOSENING THE LACES ON MY NEW SHOES- THEY'RE KILLING ME!
WE'VE BEEN SITTING HERE FOR AN HOUR AND ALL YOU'VE DONE IS COMPLAIN
WELL-IT WAS YOUR IDEA TO COME HERE IN THE FIRST PLACE
COME ON- LET'S GO HOME
THAT SUITS ME FINE
NEXT TIME I GO TO A MOVIE YOU WON'T BE WITH ME
HOW'D YOU GUESS IT?
I HOPE YOU ENJOYED THE PICTURE
OH, FORGET IT!
TOD
GOOD GOSH! I FORGOT SOMETHING
WELL, WHAT IS IT
I LEFT MY SHOES IN THE MOVIES!

GASOLINE ALLEY
SWELL NIGHT, BRICK.
WE GOT AWAY WITH EGGIE'S CAR LAST WEEK OKAY.
IT'S STILL THERE.
AN' IT'S STILL A SWELL NIGHT.
MOONLIGHT LIKE THIS SHOULDN'T BE WASTED.
BUT GOLLY IT'S DARK WHEN THE MOON QUITS!
EGGIE'S LIGHTS ARE AS BAD AS HIS BRAKES.
LOOK OUT, BRICK— THERE'S SOMEBODY—!
WE OUGHT TO STOP AN' SEE IF THEY'RE HURT.
GOSH, SKEEZIX, THEY COULD GET US FOR EVERYTHING- DRIVING WITHOUT A LICENSE, STEALING A CAR, CARELESSNESS-
BUT THAT MAKES US HIT-AN-RUN DRIVERS!
WE COULD WAIT A WHILE AN' CIRCLE AROUND AN' SEE IF SOMEBODY HAS PICKED HIM UP.
THIS IS WHERE IT HAPPENED.
NOBODY HERE.
CURVES- SOFT SHOULDERS
CARS GO PAST HERE OFTEN. SOMEBODY STOPPED AN' HELPED 'EM.
MAYBE NOBODY WAS HURT. MAYBE THEY JUST WALKED AWAY.
GOLLY, I HOPE NOBODY SAW US.
WHAT'LL WE DO IF SOMEBODY RECOGNIZED EGGIE'S CAR!
LISTEN, SKEEZIX, WE'VE GOT TO SWEAR WE WONT TELL A WORD OF THIS TO A SOUL.
THAT'S RIGHT BRICK— UNLESS WE TELL THE OTHER ONE FIRST.
SKEEZIX, WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN? IT'S 40 MINUTES AFTER LIGHTS OUT.
WOULDN'T YOU LIKE TO KNOW?

I REALLY DON'T COMPLAIN AT ALL BECAUSE MY BUDGET IS SO SMALL. OH HENRY BARS WILL ALWAYS BE THE FINEST NICKEL LUXURY!

TH' TEACHERS COULDN'T TELL WHAT GRADE I BELONGED IN- THEY THINK I'M JACK BOOTS' NIECE, ANNIE BOOT, AND THAT I'VE BEEN TOO SICK, OR SOMETHIN' TO GO TO SCHOOL FOR A LONG TIME-
I WAS FEELIN' PRETTY SMART, TILL MISS STRICK, TH' CRUSTY OLD PRINCIPAL, SET ME DOWN AT A TABLE AND HANDED ME A LIST O' 'BOUT A HUNDRED QUESTIONS
GEE- WHEN I STARTED READIN' THOSE QUESTIONS I DIDN'T FEEL HALF SO SMART-
MAYBE UNCLE JACK HAS A BOOK THAT'D TELL ME IF I GUESSED CLOSE ON SOME OF 'EM OR NOT- HM-M--- LEAPIN' LIZARDS! LOOK HERE, SANDY-
BOOKS ON EVER'THING- NOT JUST WILD-WEST NOVELS AND DETECTIVE STORIES AS YUH MIGHT S'PECT- NO SIREE--- AND LOOK HERE- HERE'S BOOKS ALL IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES-
AND THEY'VE BEEN READ, TOO- UNCLE JACK MUST KNOW A LOT MORE'N HOW TO HALF-SOLE A PAIR O' SHOES- -----WHO'S THAT KNOCKIN'?
OH, ER--- HELLO, MISS STRICK----ER- WON'TCHA COME IN?
NO, THANKS, ANNIE- I KNEW YOU'D WANT TO KNOW THE RESULT OF YOUR EXAMINATION- YOU DID VERY WELL INDEED-
IN FACT YOU DID REMARKABLY WELL- MONDAY I'M PLACING YOU IN A CLASS, MOST OF WHOM ARE AT LEAST A YEAR OLDER THAN YOU-
OH, THANK YOU, MISS STRICK- I HOPE I CAN KEEP UP WITH TH' REST- IT SURE WAS SWELL O' YOU TO COME WAY OUT HERE TO TELL ME-
UNCLE JACK! OH, UNCLE JACK! DIDJA HEAR THAT? IT WAS MISS STRICK, TH' PRINCIPAL-
YES, ANNIE- I HEARD- AND I'M MIGHTY PROUD OF YOU- I KNEW YOU HAD A GOOD HEAD ON YOU-
I HAD HER ALL WRONG- 'MAGINE HER GOIN' TO TH' TROUBLE TO COME WAY OUT HERE TO TELL ME TH' GOOD NEWS-
OH, I GUESS WE ALL SIZE UP PEOPLE WRONG, SOME TIMES-
THE LONGER I LIVE, THE MORE I'VE COME TO BELIEVE MOST PEOPLE ARE PRETTY GOOD AT HEART, OR WANT TO BE-WELL, I'M GOIN' TO BE A LOT HARDER TO FOOL NEXT TIME, B'LIEVE ME-

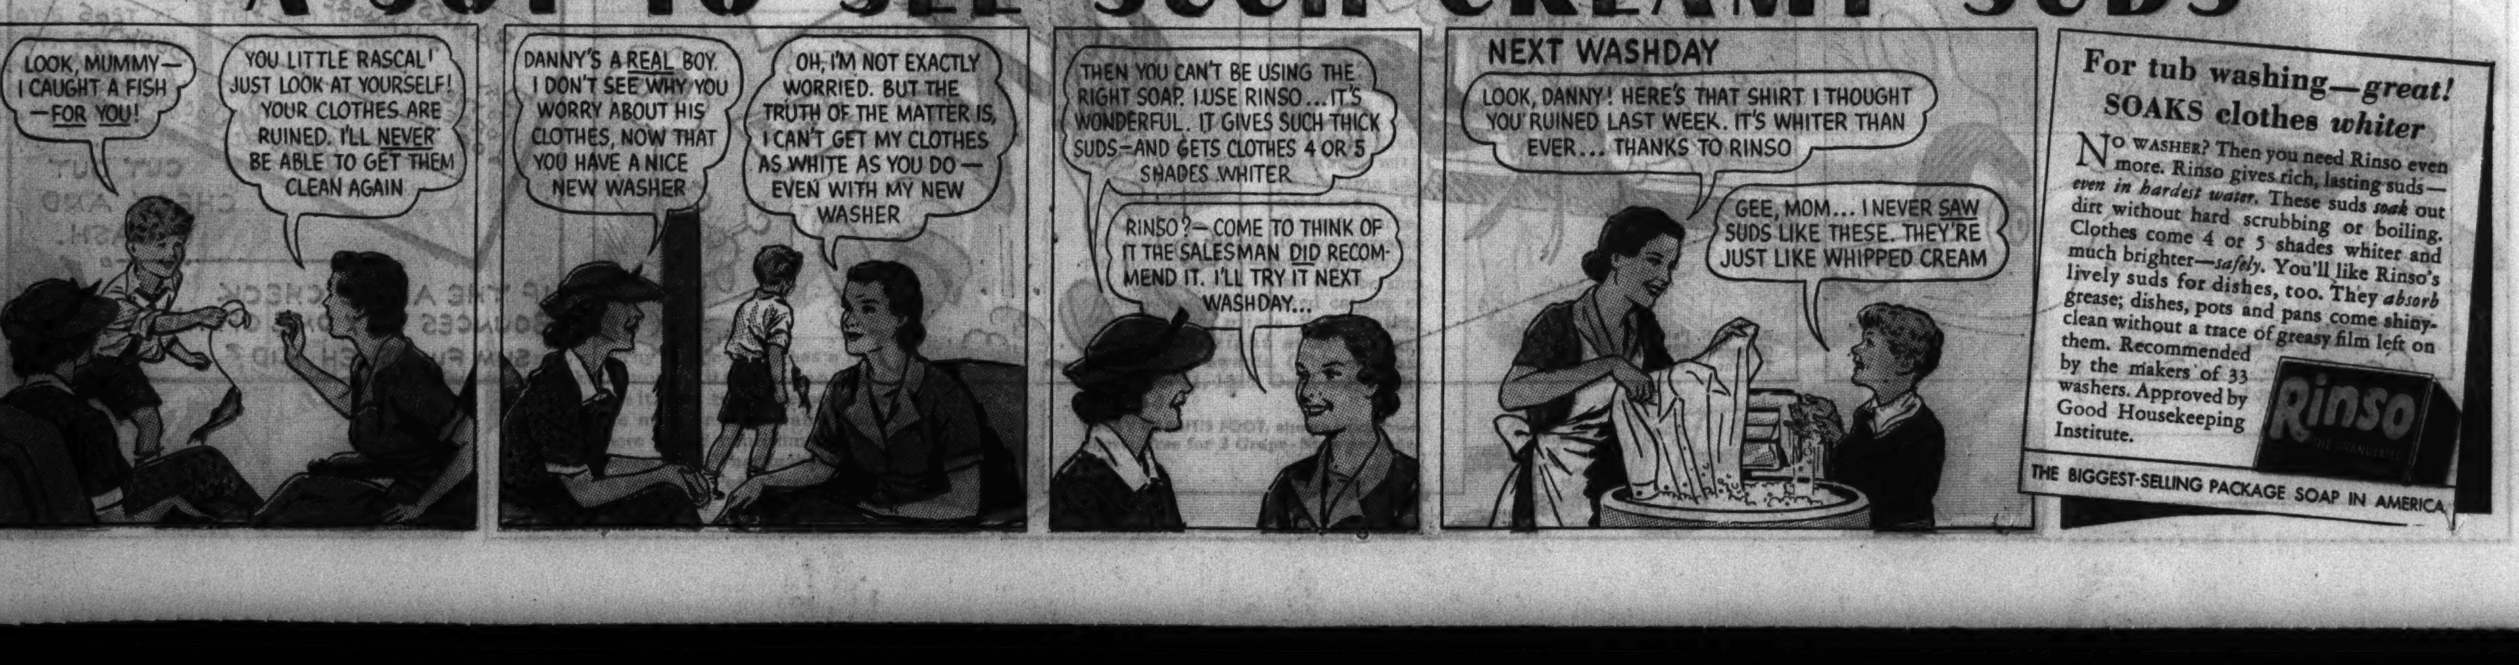
OH!
SOME OF THE PEOPLE HAVE "B.O." MOST OF THE TIME
OH!
MOST OF THE PEOPLE HAVE "B.O." SOME OF THE TIME
OH!
USE LIFEBUOY SO YOU WON'T HAVE "B.O." ANY OF THE TIME
TO ME, A BATH ISN'T A BATH WITHOUT LIFEBUOY. IT STOPS "B.O." AND IS SO KIND TO MY SKIN
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP
PUNCH POSTERS, INC.
OH, HOW I LOVE TO GET UP IN THE MORNING OH, HOW I MAKE FOR MY LIFEBUOY BATH
TOMMY, DARLING
YOUR COMPLEXION IS A JOY!
SURE IT IS! I USE LIFEBUOY
Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

SMART gal! You know what your complexion—every complexion—needs to be fresh, smooth, glowingly alive. Thorough cleansing. Gentle cleansing. Lifebuoy does both. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show Lifebuoy is more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

"B.O." (body odor) is tricky. Don't take it for granted you can't offend. Make sure! Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. It contains a special penetrating, purifying agent that goes down into the pores, stops "B.O." Lifebuoy's own clean scent rinses away.

A JOY TO SEE SUCH CREAMY SUDS



LOOK, MUMMY— I CAUGHT A FISH —FOR YOU!
YOU LITTLE RASCAL! JUST LOOK AT YOURSELF! YOUR CLOTHES ARE RUINED. I'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO GET THEM CLEAN AGAIN
DANNY'S A REAL BOY. I DON'T SEE WHY YOU WORRY ABOUT HIS CLOTHES, NOW THAT YOU HAVE A NICE NEW WASHER
OH, I'M NOT EXACTLY WORRIED. BUT THE TRUTH OF THE MATTER IS, I CAN'T GET MY CLOTHES AS WHITE AS YOU DO — EVEN WITH MY NEW WASHER
THEN YOU CAN'T BE USING THE RIGHT SOAP. I USE RINSO ... IT'S WONDERFUL. IT GIVES SUCH THICK SUDS—AND GETS CLOTHES 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER
RINSO?— COME TO THINK OF IT THE SALESMAN DID RECOMMEND IT. I'LL TRY IT NEXT WASHDAY...
NEXT WASHDAY
LOOK, DANNY! HERE'S THAT SHIRT I THOUGHT YOU RUINED LAST WEEK. IT'S WHITER THAN EVER... THANKS TO RINSO
GEE, MOM... I NEVER SAW SUDS LIKE THESE. THEY'RE JUST LIKE WHIPPED CREAM
Rinso

For tub washing—great!
SOAKS clothes whiter

NO WASHER? Then you need Rinso even more. Rinso gives rich, lasting suds—even in hardest water. These suds soak out dirt without hard scrubbing or boiling. Clothes come 4 or 5 shades whiter and much brighter—safely. You'll like Rinso's lively suds for dishes, too. They absorb grease; dishes, pots and pans come shiny-clean without a trace of greasy film left on them. Recommended by the makers of 33 washers. Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

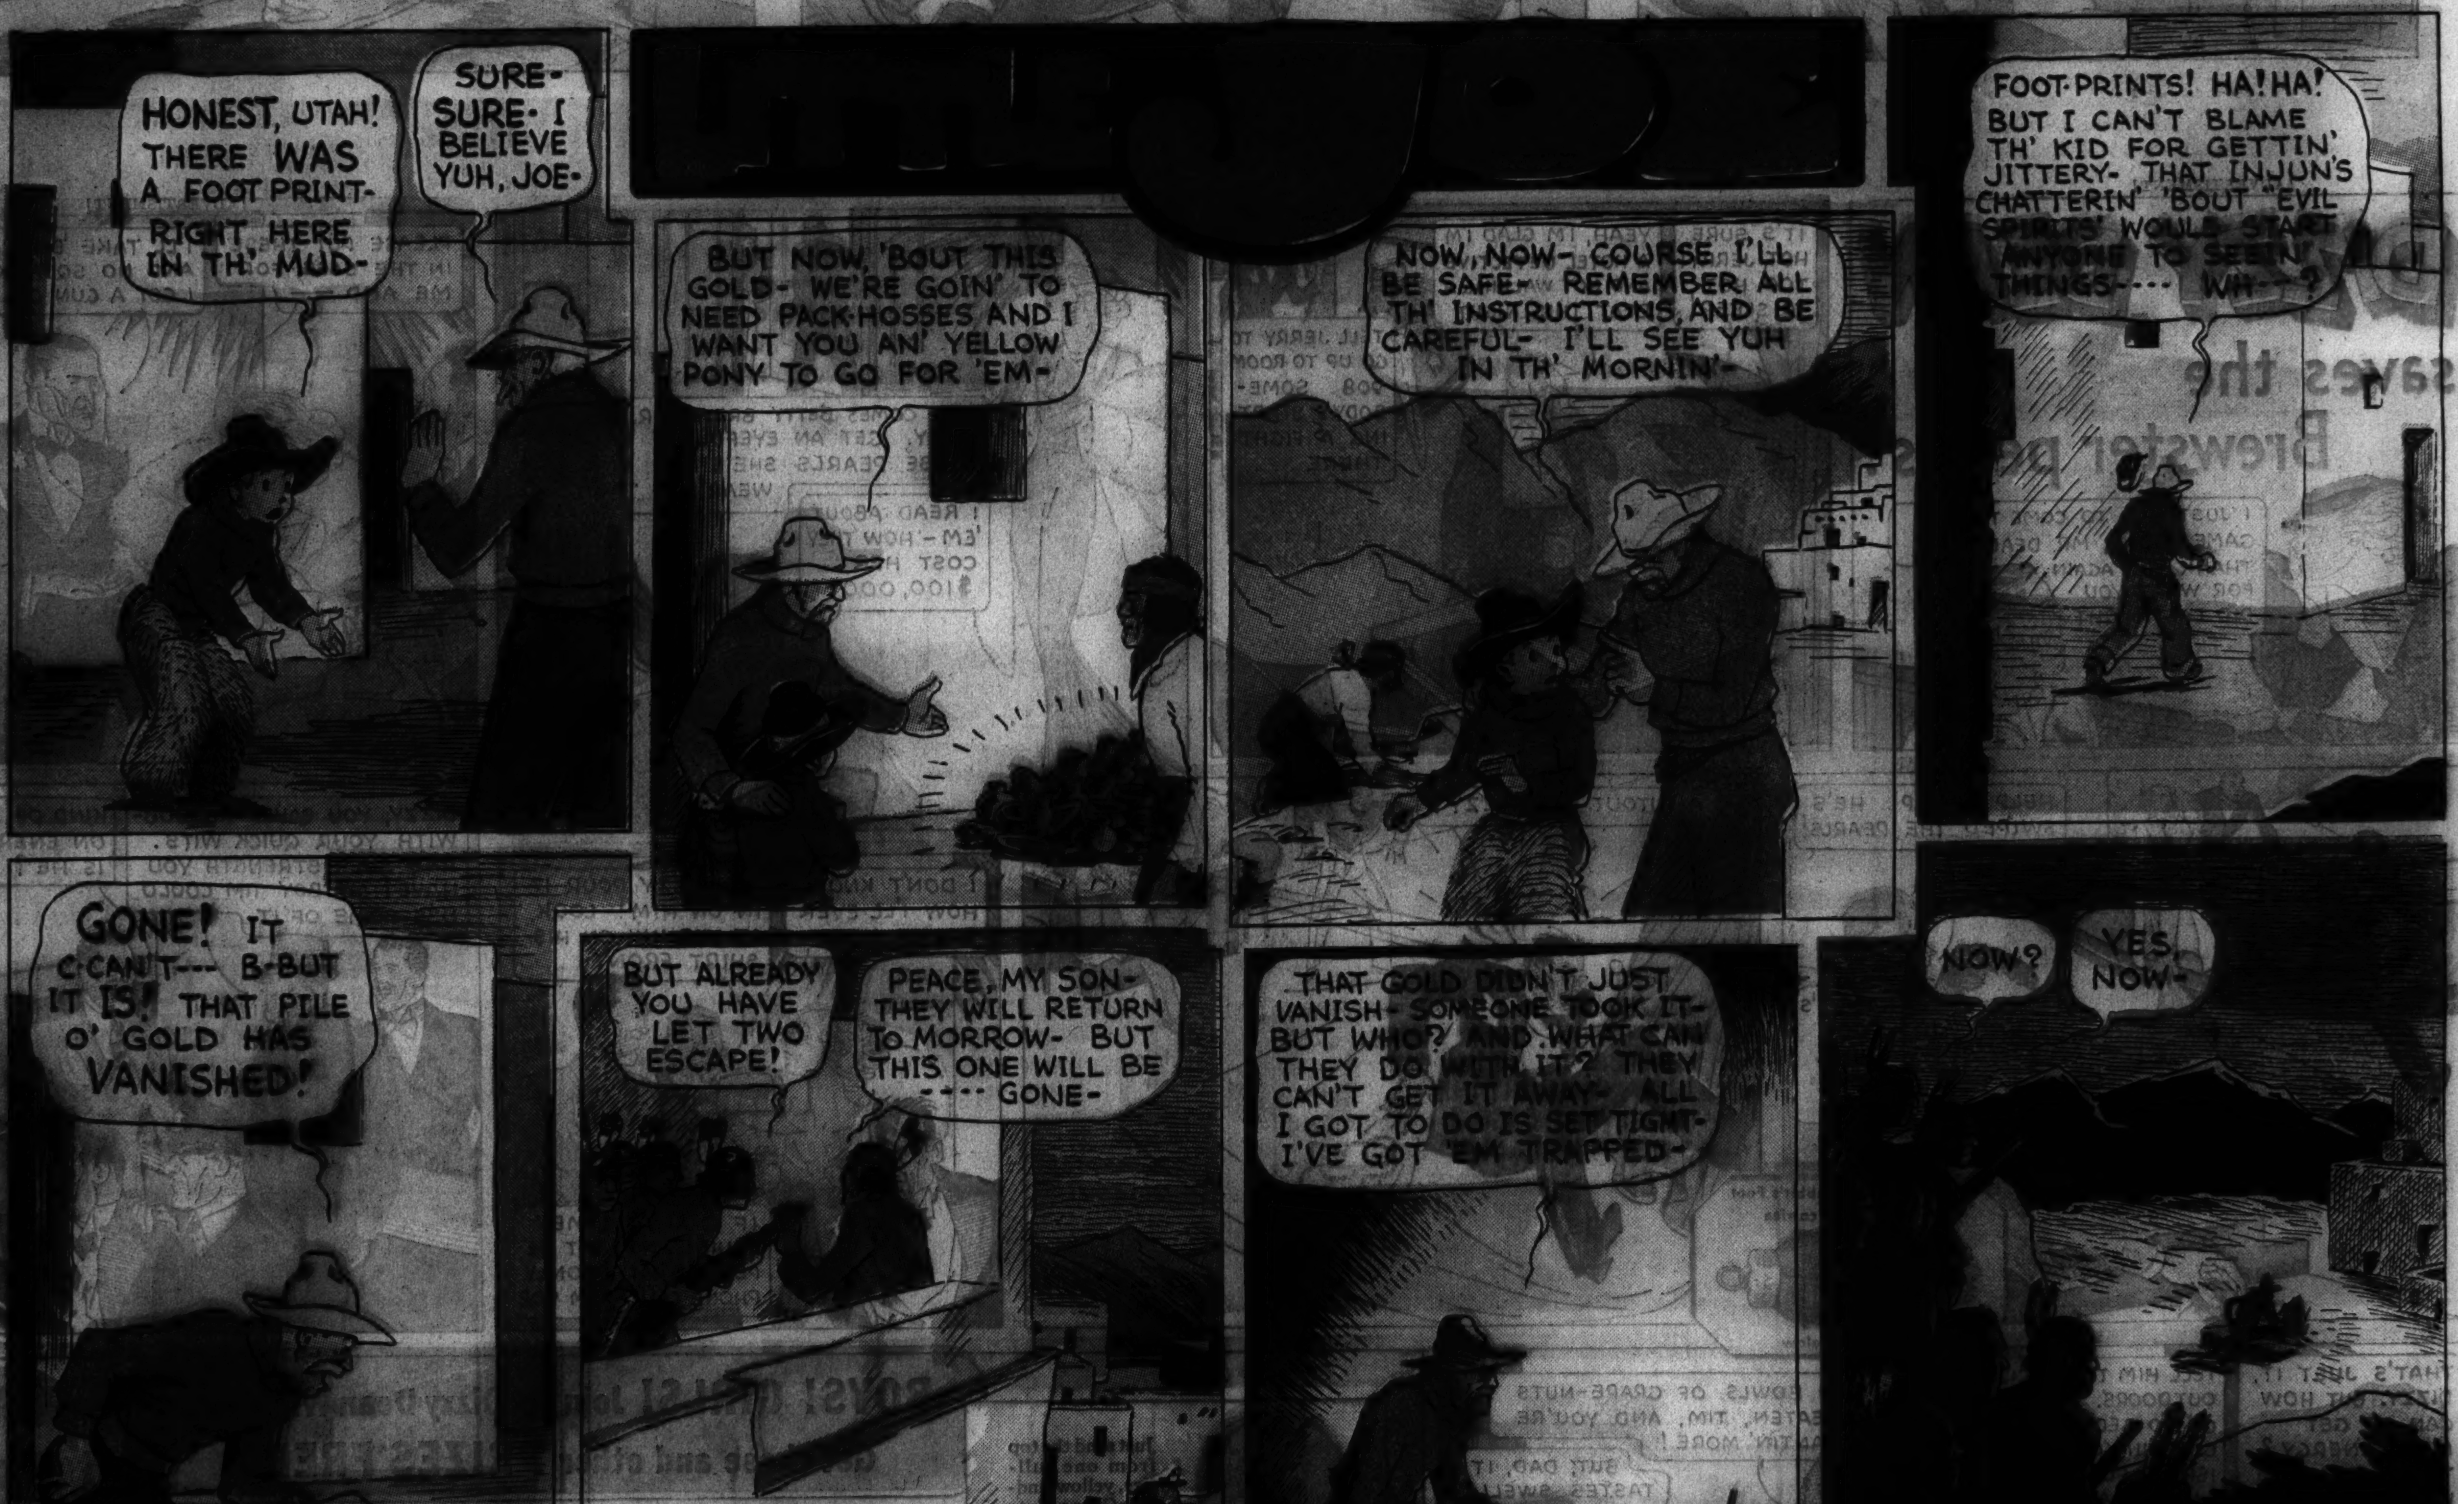
AH ME! THEY'VE PUT TH' TORCH TO ME ELEGANT FORT! — I'M RUINED!
IS SAD! IS WOE! — BUT YOU VELLY UNNICE TO ME BEFORETIME! MEBBE I BEST BE MAD TO YOU!
AW, DON'T BE 'ARD ON AN' OL' GENT! — HI AIN'T SO SPRY AS HI ONCE'T WUZ! — I KIN DO WIT' A KINDLY WORD FROM YE, CHINA BOY!
OKAY — I BE UNMAD! — BUT MIST TERRY AN' MIST' PAT IN CLUTCHES OF EVIL DLAGON LADY SOME MORE AGAIN! — CONNIE GOTTA GITTUM LOOSE!
HO! — SO YE'VE A MIND T' HESCAPE ALSO....?
WHY, SHOO MIKE! — CAN DO NO GOOD HIKIN' ALONG LIKE PUPPY POOCH!
GOOD! — LISTEN CAREFUL! — I GOT A PLAN! — ONE OF US COULDN'T DO HIT — BUT T'GETHER WE KIN MAKE A BREAK! — WHEN TH' GUARD AIN'T LOOKIN' I'LL YELL, AN'....



HONEST, UTAH! THERE WAS A FOOT PRINT — RIGHT HERE IN TH' MUD — SURE — SURE — I BELIEVE YUH, JOE —
LITTLE JOE
BUT NOW, 'BOUT THIS GOLD — WE'RE GOIN' TO NEED PACK-HOSSES AND I WANT YOU AN' YELLOW PONY TO GO FOR 'EM —
NOW, NOW — COURSE I'LL BE SAFE — REMEMBER ALL TH' INSTRUCTIONS, AND BE CAREFUL — I'LL SEE YUH IN TH' MORNIN' —
FOOT-PRINTS! HA! HA! BUT I CAN'T BLAME TH' KID FOR GETTIN' JITTERY — THAT INJUN'S CHATTERIN' 'BOUT "EVIL SPIRITS" WOULD START ANYONE TO SEEIN' THINGS---- WH---?
GONE! IT C-CAN'T--- B-BUT IT IS! THAT PILE O' GOLD HAS VANISHED!
BUT ALREADY YOU HAVE LET TWO ESCAPE!
PEACE, MY SON — THEY WILL RETURN TO MORROW — BUT THIS ONE WILL BE ---- GONE —
THAT GOLD DIDN'T JUST VANISH — SOMEONE TOOK IT — BUT WHO? AND WHAT CAN THEY DO WITH IT? THEY CAN'T GET IT AWAY — ALL I GOT TO DO IS SET TIGHT — I'VE GOT 'EM TRAPPED —

To introduce you to KRAFT DAIRY-FRESH Caramels

Luscious, rich caramels that stay fresh and "chewy"! Kraft Dairy-Fresh Caramels! You get six in a protective wrapper for only a nickel. The biggest nickel's worth of quality caramels you've ever had!

You see, Kraft experts have discovered a new way to make caramels richer and stay fresh longer. Now they can use gallons and gallons more fresh, rich milk in every batch. That's why these new caramels are such a fine energy-giving, body-building food, too. You'll say Dairy-Fresh Caramels are the best ever. Taste them today!

5¢ AT CANDY COUNTERS EVERYWHERE

WRITE THE LAST LINE

There is a young fellow named Spence
Who knows what to do with 5 cents.
Kraft Caramels he brings
To his girl friend who sings:
....

MADE WITH Pure Fresh Milk
KRAFT Dairy-Fresh CARAMELS 5¢
A KRAFT PRODUCT

WRITE A LAST LINE FOR THE LIMERICK

FIRST PRIZE $500.00

SECOND PRIZE	$250.00
THIRD PRIZE	$150.00
FOURTH PRIZE	$100.00
10 PRIZES OF	$ 50.00
25 PRIZES OF	$ 25.00
100 PRIZES OF	$ 15.00
275 PRIZES OF	$ 5.00

AND 1000 OTHER PRIZE WINNERS WILL EACH GET A POUND BOX OF KRAFT DAIRY-FRESH CARAMELS!

This is the second Kraft Caramel Contest—another short-time one with a whole new set of 1414 prizes!

Get going on it right now and win. All you have to do is taste these swell new caramels and then write a last line to the limerick . . . and that's fun, too. Here are the easy rules:

READ THESE RULES

1. Think up a last line for the above limerick on Kraft Dairy-Fresh Caramels.
2. Write your last line on a sheet of paper and sign your name and address plainly.
3. To your entry, attach the printed wrapper from one five-cent package of Kraft Dairy-Fresh Caramels.
4. Submit as many last line suggestions as you like, each on a separate sheet of paper and accompanied by a Kraft Caramel wrapper.
5. Mail your entries to Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, Dept. 401-d, Chicago, Illinois.
6. Contest closes April 24! All entries must be postmarked before midnight of that date. Winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible. Kraft will correspond with no other contestants.
7. Winning entries will be those which, following limerick form, are in the judges' opinion most apt and interesting. The decisions of the judges must be accepted as final. In case of a tie duplicate prizes will be awarded. All entries become the property of Kraft-Phenix.
8. Men, women and children are eligible to enter this contest—everyone except employees of the Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, their advertising agency and their families.

2nd Contest

NOW, CHILDREN, LET'S EXAMINE YEAST UNDER THE MICROSCOPE AND SEE JUST WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE. WHO CAN TELL ME SOME OF ITS USES?
IT MAKES BREAD!
AND DOUGHNUTS!
IT'S GOOD FOR PEOPLE!
IT MAKES CANARIES SING!
YEAST FOR CANARIES, TOMMY! I NEVER HEARD OF SUCH A THING! YOU'RE MAKING THAT UP.
NO, I'M NOT TEACHER. YOU SHOULD HEAR OUR CANARY SING. MOTHER SAYS IT'S BECAUSE SHE ALWAYS FEEDS HIM FRENCH'S WITH YEAST IN IT.
I WONDER IF TOMMY IS RIGHT? SOMETHING AILS THIS BIRD.... I'LL STOP ON MY WAY FROM SCHOOL AND ASK AT THE STORE.
TOMMY IS RIGHT, MISS ADAMS. YEAST IN FRENCH'S IS AN AMAZING NEW DIET DISCOVERY FOR CANARIES. IT PROTECTS THE CANARY'S HEALTH, TONES-UP HIS SYSTEM AND MAKES HIM FEEL LIKE SINGING. YOU'LL WANT FRENCH'S BIRD GRAVEL, TOO. CANARIES NEED IT TO GRIND THEIR FOOD.
IN THE MEAN TIME
YEH! TOMMY THINKS CANARIES NEED YEAST! TOMMY THINKS HE'S SMART.
THEY DO, TOO! THEY DO.... THEY DO.
I GUESS I'LL BEAT IT!
TOMMY'S A SMART BOY.
NOW, DO CANARIES NEED YEAST?
SURE THEY DO! OUCH! QUIT IT!
AT THE NEXT NATURE LESSON
CHILDREN, TOMMY WAS RIGHT. YEAST IS GOOD FOR BIRDS. LISTEN TO OUR CANARY SING NOW THAT HE HAS FRENCH'S DIDN'T I TELL YOU TOMMY WAS SMART?

French's New Diet Discovery gives Canaries..YEAST

Based on successful tests with 3 generations of canaries, French's now announce a new diet discovery that brings to canaries—for the first time—the amazing health benefits of yeast. This yeast is in the French's Bird Biscuit, which is included in every package of French's Bird Seed—and only in French's.

Yeast makes French's a protective food for canaries. It quickens digestion; steps up the appetite; and aids in eliminating poison wastes that clog the intestines. Yeast builds resistance against colds and other ailments. It supplies the vitamins that help to prolong life. It tones up the entire system and makes the canary feel like singing.

The combination of French's Bird Seed and French's Bird Biscuit containing yeast supplies a balanced diet for health and song—a mixture of clean, nourishing seeds, plus the health protection of yeast. Change to French's—the only canary diet that contains yeast.

French's
Bird Gravel

Canaries need hard, sharp gravel to help them grind their food. French's Bird Gravel is hard quartz—uniformly sized and sterilized for health.

You may have a French's Bird Biscuit containing yeast, absolutely free. Simply mail the coupon.

Mothers Read this! Pabst-ett is a Delicious Cheese Food—Even More Digestible than Milk—Rich in health giving Nourishment

Don't confuse this unique cheese food with other cheese products you may have tried. Pabst-ett is entirely different from anything else on the market.

One of the best foods you can serve to youngsters for building muscle tissue, strong bones and hard teeth. An excellent food for keeping the system in perfect working order because it's even more digestible than milk and actually helps the digestion of other foods. It contains all the valuable nourishment of cheese to which extra important milk minerals have been added. The whole family will rave over the distinctive cheese flavor of golden Pabst-ett in tasty cooked dishes, luscious sandwiches or served with crackers. Try Pabst-ett today and you'll never be without it again.

Spreads like butter—melts quickly and smoothly without stringing. Slices neatly—creams easily

When you ask your mother to buy Pabst-ett — tear this out and show it to her.

1. Pabst-ett is a nourishing cheese food that digests even faster than milk.
2. Pabst-ett helps make hard teeth and strong bones because extra calcium (as in milk) has been added.
3. Pabst-ett builds strong muscles because it is a good protein food (like meat).
4. Pabst-ett has extra quantities of vitamin A (as in cod liver oil and spinach).

TRACY—YOU MEAN TO SAY THAT THE CAUSE OF GOTHORN'S DEATH WAS A BULLET HOLE IN THE BACK OF THE HEAD?
I WOULDN'T CALL IT A BULLET HOLE, CHIEF, ALTHOUGH IT LOOKS LIKE ONE.
BUT DEATH WAS DEFINITELY DUE TO A WOUND IN THE BACK OF THE SKULL. HERE, COME INTO THIS NEXT ROOM.
KEEP OUT
AFTER HOURS OF EXAMINATION, I DISCOVERED THIS HOLE—HID UNDER A LOCK OF HAIR.
THE WOUND EXTENDS ABOUT AN INCH INSIDE THE SKULL AND APPEARS TO BE A BULLET HOLE—EXCEPT THAT NO BULLET CAN BE FOUND INSIDE THE SKULL.
BESIDES THAT, THE WOUND SHOWS NO EVIDENCE OF PARTICLES OF BURNED POWDER OR GREASE LUBRICANT FROM THE BULLET, USUALLY FOUND ABOUT THE EDGE OF ANY WOUND MADE BY A REVOLVER SLUG.
FURTHERMORE, THERE IS NO HOLE OF EXIT WHERE A BULLET LEFT THE HEAD!
IN OTHER WORDS, WHATEVER IT WAS THAT ENTERED GOTHORN'S HEAD, DID NOT COME OUT!
EXACTLY! AND SINCE IT DID NOT COME OUT—IT SHOULD STILL BE IN THERE. BUT IT ISN'T!
ALL OF WHICH IS TOO MUCH OF A MYSTERY FOR ME—I GIVE UP.
PERHAPS GOTHORN WAS PUNCHED—ER.. ..WITH AN IRON ROD OR SOMETHING.
IMPOSSIBLE! BECAUSE THE HAIR AROUND THE WOUND ALL POINTS IN! IF AN OBJECT HAD BEEN WITHDRAWN, SOME OF THE HAIR WOULD POINT OUT.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU OUT OF THE RUNNING

FROM the beginning of adolescence—at about 13 years of age—to 25, or even longer, young people are often greatly embarrassed by pimples.

At this time, the body is completing its growth. Important glands develop that cause disturbances throughout the system. The skin becomes oversensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin and pimples result.

Thousands of boys and girls have found a good way to get rid of adolescent pimples is to eat Fleischmann's Yeast. It clears these skin irritants out of the blood. Then—pimples go!

Eat 3 cakes regularly every day, one before each meal—plain, or in a little water—until your skin clears! Start today!

—clears the skin

NEW Trip to Paris Award

Velma Marsh, 5115 Nevada-st., has been announced as winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship for efficiency while in training. She sails April 22d on S. S. Manhattan.

65 YEARS KNOWING HOW TO TEACH GIVES YOU A FLYING START.
Established 65 years ago, in 1871, E. Burnham, Inc., operates the world's oldest, largest beauty school.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL AT BURNHAM'S THAN AT ANY OTHER SCHOOL.

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher.

ALL TOOLS ARE FREE.
FREE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE.

UNUSUAL IMMEDIATE OPPORTUNITY TO START EARNING AFTER ONLY 30 DAYS' TRAINING.
We will prepare a limited number of students for positions as slenderizers in beauty shops. You will be trained in the famous Hollywood Method of Slenderizing and Body Molding. You work on living subjects under personal supervision of international expert. Course can be taken by itself.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES.

UNBELIEVABLY EASY TERMS NOW —or you can pay for most of your beauty school tuition after you graduate.

Call, write, or phone. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 o'clock. Write for free beauty culture book. Use coupon below.

YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant increasing demand.

Now, here are our requirements: You must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance, and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northwestern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday only between 1 and 3 p. m.

Ask for Mr. Buckley, suite 402, Maryland Building, 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

VICE PRESIDENT OF LARGE LOOP INstitution has bought a larger home. He will rent or sell his present River Forest house—a two story, pressed brick, on a lot 50 feet by 185 feet, containing eight rooms and heated attached two car garage. There are two additional rooms for maids in the basement. The first floor has a large living room with natural fireplace, dining room, breakfast room and tiled wall kitchen; also an extra lavatory with 4½ foot tiled wall. On the second floor there are four bedrooms and two 7 foot tiled wall baths [one has a separate shower stall.] There is a recreation room in the basement with a natural fireplace. Hot water heat [gas fired.] Lot is nicely landscaped. Owner believes $175 per month would be a fair rental for this home, which is six years old. Address X T 260, Tribune.

Builders—Contractors

I have 50 fully improved Chicago lots between 101st and 103d-sts. which I will sell very cheap for cash. These lots have asphalt streets, cement sidewalks, sewer, water, gas, electricity, street lights. Restricted. 100 new homes recently built. Qualified for FHA loans. Also have 15 fully improved lots at South Park-av. and 90th-st. Owing to our large business in the region of 95th-st. and Western-av., we haven't the time to show lots in other sections, therefore will make an attractive price for immediate sale. No trades. Full commission to licensed brokers.

Another Bargain Sale

In 1934 we sold nearly 50,000 acres of land for dairy farms, raising small grains, root crops, garden truck, small fruits. Many could not buy then, so another sale will be held. Now we offer 40,000 acres of good land. 40 acres average $150 each. Same soil and quality land hundreds of farmers paid $1,200 for 40 acres before the depression. Come to the fertile valley of the pretty rivers, "Chippewa" and "Flambeau." Here be independent in a farm home. Fish, hunt, trap in the lakes, rivers, forests. Last chance to buy this land at bargain prices. Deal with big responsible company who established hundreds of families here during past 20 years. Come where you'll find good roads, schools, churches, hustling towns. Not a backwoods country. Good neighbors. Enjoy life here. Thousands vacation here where they find charming scenery. Lovely locations on rivers and lakes for summer homes or log cabins. Places for hunting and fishing clubs. These lands border the Chequamegon National Forest. Write for literature and pictures.

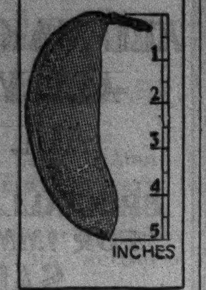
Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

It's Spring; Listen!

NOW that the frogs have started their 1936 series of concerts in the marshes on the experimental farm, the workers in the fields do not lack for spring music. Until this week the "marsh croakers" have been silent. But the warm days were enough to bring on a mighty chorus. Red-winged blackbirds in the cattail marsh, ducks on the Fox river, Bob Whites whistling in the fields, and now frogs on the job—this is the spring background as March ends on the farm.



COFFEE TREE POD.

But even more interesting to us than the frog concerts and the arrival of a young wild turkey gobbler on the Wheaton experimental farm was the discovery of a growing Kentucky coffee tree. Now that we have located this novel member of the bean family, we can see some fun ahead testing the seeds of this tree in making a hot drink that tastes much like real coffee.

A Walk, and Exploration.

We found the coffee tree while enjoying a walk over the Yorkville farm. It's fun to hike across the fields and through the woods late in March when you catch a day that is sunshiny and warm. There are birds to be seen, sheep in the fields, pink buds showing on the maple trees, and other intriguing evidence that spring is making an impression on the brown landscape.

While on our hike we noticed hundreds of big brown pods on the moist ground. Some of these were five inches long and more than one inch wide. These pods had fallen from the Kentucky coffee tree. This tree gets its name from the fact that in the early days settlers sometimes took the seeds from the trees, roasted them and used them as a substitute to make a pioneer form of coffee.

The seeds in the pods are three-quarters of an inch in diameter, almost as hard as stone, and separated by a thick layer of light green, sweet-tasting pulp that has some medicinal qualities. We have located only one of these trees, but the crop will give us enough seeds next fall so we can try making "coffee."

Gobbler Gets Acquainted.

The wild turkey gobbler that has arrived at the Wheaton farm and will be used for breeding purposes to improve the turkey flock is slowly getting acquainted with his future pals. A young wild turkey hen came along with him. For the time being this bird from Mississippi is penned up with four hen turkeys, but within a few days he will be turned out.

We are hoping that this young wild gobbler will be released some distance away from the domesticated gobblers. If he isn't, we can forecast some of the most intense "sock and claw" contests that the farm has ever seen, because every gobbler on the place is going to challenge the newcomer.

The Guineas Open Up.

The frog chorus on the farm seems to have stimulated the broadcasting powers of the guinea hens these days. It seems as if the guineas never did make as much noise in previous years as they did the other day when we were trying to get around in the sheepfold as quietly as possible so we could spy on some starlings. All went well for a few minutes. One old ewe and her cute little lamb lying down in the sheepfold paid little attention to us when we passed by them. A couple of ewes nibbling at hay saw no cause for alarm in our presence. But as soon as we stepped out of the sheepfold a bunch of guinea hens in the open yard rushed away pell mell, cackled and complained, and called us so many names that there was a near riot in the barnyard. This bird truly is the feathered watchdog of the farm, wild, suspicious and quite unapproachable.

Need money? Have you any defaulted bonds, delisted stocks or certificates of deposit you've just about given up as hopeless? Bring them to us. We'll appraise them —fairly—quickly—and advance you their value in cash. In this way you won't have to sacrifice. You can get the cash you need, and hold on to your securities until their value has gone up again. We loan money on other items besides stocks and bonds—on diamonds, jewelry, furs, orientals, antiques—quickly—fairly—confidentially— and at interest rates as low as 1% per month. COME TO Nash Sales, Inc. 2412 S. Michigan-av.

Positively the finest stock of nearly new cars to be found in Chicago and every car priced at far below its actual value.

1935 CHRYSLER—Airstream sedan; special gray finish and shows no wear. Tires and mechanical condition could not be better. Just one of those cars you had hoped to find in a used car department.
Price $560.00.

1935 NASH—Amb. 6 sedan. Just been driven enough to adjust itself and ready for years of good service. This is the model that made Nash history for economy. Every inch of the car is as good as when sold, yet you save many hundreds of dollars; you will find the Price tag plainly marked.

1934 NASH SEDAN—1200 series. Rarely do we have a chance to offer this model and especially this car. Come and look it over and see the finest used car offered by any dealer. Has many extras and of course carries our standard Bonded Guarantee.
Price $550.00.

1935 LAFAYETTE SEDAN—Here is a 6 cyl. economy light car that will be cheaper to operate than any cheap new car. State registrations of this model this year will show you how popular this car is with the man who has to pay attention to economy. Roomy 5 passenger sedan with all the latest improvements, with many extras. This car can hardly be told from a new one, yet our price will represent a great savings.
Price $495.00.

1934 STUDEBAKER BROM.—The small model that has had regular service, so it's away above the average; tires, paint, upholstering, mechanical all fine and at our price you will buy it if you will take a good demonstration.
Price $375.00.

ALSO

'34 FORD SEDAN, '34 CHEVROLET SEDAN, '34 LAFAYETTE SEDAN; any one worth much more than the tagged price.

Reconditioned by CADILLAC

What It Means to You

The reconditioning of our Used Cars is thorough—and this is an important part of the value you receive when you buy from us.

BUICK 1935 4 DR. TOURING SEDAN. Jet black finish, 5 steel wheels, large built-in trunk and very modern in appearance. Looks like a brand new car, but costs much less. $745.00. RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC.

CADILLAC 1934 V-8. Roomy 5 pass. sedan. This car was very popular in 1934. It is very modern in appearance and shows very little wear. RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC..$1,445

CADILLAC 1934 5 PASS. TOWN COUPE. Smart, snappy and stylish in appearance, immaculate interior. Has wire wheels with metal disc covers. Has an attractive Brewster Green finish with chrome trim. RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC. 85% unused at 40% of its original cost $1,325

LA SALLE 1935 TOURING SEDAN. Has the styling of our 1936 La Salle. Roomy built-in trunk. Ebony black finish with chrome trim. This car has had excellent care. RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC. By comparison this car is an outstanding bargain. Stop in and drive it today. $1,075

LA SALLE 1934 4 DR. 5 PASS. SEDAN. Beautiful gray finish, 5 steel wheels, Custom Fleetwood body. There are many new cars on the street today not half as good looking. Very modern in appearance. An exceptionally high value at its price. $895.00. RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC.

LINCOLN 1932 V-12. 5 pass. sedan. This car has received excellent care by the previous owner and will make a fine family car. It has black finish, 6 wire wheels and a large heater in rear. RECONDITIONED AT CADILLAC. Bring the family along and inspect this car today $845

PACKARD 1932 CLUB SEDAN. This is a De Luxe model, close coupled sport sedan. Has many extras, such as side mounts and radiator grill. This car will appeal to the most exacting buyer. IS RECONDITIONED BY CADILLAC and the price we ask is no index to its true value. Look it over today and see if you can equal it at....$675

Auto Loans

On loans secured by automobiles this bank charges the same rate whether the car is new or used. We only require Fire and Theft, and we much prefer that this insurance be placed through your own broker, and you may of course add the premium in the loan account which is paid off monthly. Here are typical costs and terms:

Balance to Be Financed.	Total Yearly Charge.	Total Amount of Note.	12 Monthly Deposits.
$100	$12.08	$112.08	$ 9.34
200	19.00	219.00	18.25

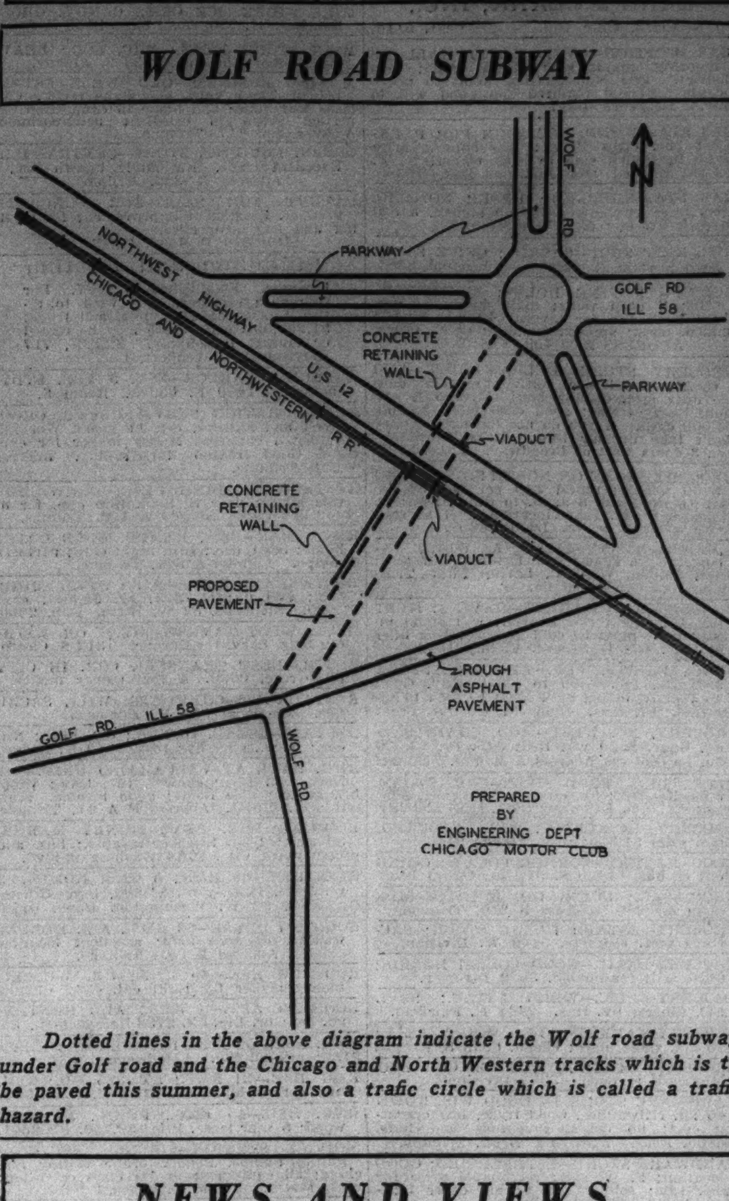
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS



Dotted lines in the above diagram indicate the Wolf road subway under Golf road and the Chicago and North Western tracks which is to be paved this summer, and also a trafic circle which is called a trafic hazard.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Many motorists who face the trafic judge with a degree of assurance will have the wind taken out of their alibis when they hear of legless, one armed Alfred Leroy who has driven automobiles for 20 years without ever figuring in an accident.

Leroy's newest car is a 1936 Dodge coupe equipped with modified controls enabling the owner to manipulate the clutch, the transmission, steering mechanism, throttle, etc., by means other than those provided for the average driver.

Leroy negotiates his new automobile through hand actuated levers which replace the usual clutch and brake pedals, and by throttle buttons placed on the steering column. A heavy metal ring is bolted to the steering wheel rim through which Leroy passes his left arm which ends just below the elbow. All these mechanical features are of the owner's design.

Chevrolet has built more than 530,000 1936 model cars and trucks, it was revealed last week by M. E. Coyle, president and general manager. His statement was made in answer to a question as to whether the earlier announcement of 1936 models had succeeded in leveling out employment to a greater degree than in previous years.

"Using the case of Chevrolet as an example," said Mr. Coyle, "these 530,000 units were built during the winter months when employment would otherwise have been low. We have delivered cars to those financially able to make their purchases during the winter months. We have supplied our dealers with adequate stocks of new cars in various models and colors, so they are prepared to make immediate delivery. During the spring months we shall build sufficient cars to maintain dealers' stocks at proper levels."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

WOMEN DRIVERS.

Chicago, March 19.—Dr. Harry D. Desilva of Harvard states that it is impossible for women over 25 and 30 to learn to drive a car. This remark is a reflection on them and should be contradicted.

Age does not affect men or women in driving. All they require is correct instruction. Some are easier to teach than others. But they all can learn.

Shifting gear and handling wheel and stopping car are just the beginning. The most important part is to handle car in trafic under all conditions. The life of the driver and general public depends on correct and safe driving.

Don't get disheartened. Watch the cars go by and see how many women are driving. See the women in suburbs make their social calls and do their shopping in their cars. All I can say to the doctor's remarks is that the women he refers to must of had an incompetent teacher.

WOULD REMOVE CROSSING.

Chicago, March 18.—Suggest allowing Chicago avenue surface cars to reach Navy pier without crossing new outer drive. By using Fairbanks court from Chicago avenue to Grand avenue, then east on present Grand avenue tracks to Navy pier, and running out onto same or using one of the present loops just outside and to the south of entrance. This method would eliminate present grade crossing and proposed subway, and in addition would allow removal of present rails along the lake front.

WILLIAM C. ANDERSON.

SEE TRIB TOUR BUREAU.

Chicago, March 26.—After being marooned in the city by snow and ice on the pavements for a couple of months, I'm hungry for a view of a green countryside. How far south would I have to drive to see some green grass? Could I make it on a week-end?

H. T. C. PETERS.

◆

WHERE IS HIS LICENSE?

Chicago, March 17.—On Jan. 4 I purchased a postal money order for $10.50 and sent it, together with an application blank and my 1935 license card, to the secretary of state. Several days later it occurred to me that the application had not been notarized and I wrote asking that the one inclosed be substituted for the one originally sent. Nothing has been heard to date.

Upon checking with the postoffice I have a card stating that the money order was cashed on Jan. 10, thus preventing me from receiving a duplicate money order. Upon phoning the department on Ashland avenue I was referred to some one in Springfield, who would promptly take care of the matter. Accordingly on March 8 I wrote stating my case. Silence still reigns.

We understand a license drive is soon to take place and many officers are inclined to let the motorist tell it to the judge. I cannot afford to take that chance as laying off from work would be an unnecessary expense. The taxpayer is used to paying, but can't he get just a little better service for his money?

THURE NELSON.

◆

OUTER DRIVE SPEEDS.

Chicago, March 24.—As a motorist who frequently uses Leif Eriksen drive I cannot agree with Mr. Faulkner of the Chicago Motor club that cars on this drive are consistently driven at speeds beyond the limit of 40 miles an hour. My usual pace on the outer drive is around 35 miles an hour. I have not found the majority of cars rushing past me as Mr. Faulkner would seem to imply.

E. J. C.

◆

UNREASONABLE SPEED LIMIT.

Chicago, March 20.—East 112th street from Avenue A [state line] to Avenue P is a paved street approximately 54 feet wide with only one building on it and very little cross trafic. Yet the speed limit has been posted by the Chicago district park as 25 miles per hour.

Such an absurd limit under the conditions existing is only an invitation to the motoring public to break the limit. I am a parent with three children in school and am in favor of accident prevention, but I think when any such unreasonable action as this is taken, safety minded groups and motor clubs should take action.

P. W. PEARSON.

STATE TO PAVE WOLF RD. SUBWAY UNDER GOLF RD.

Structure Has Been Idle Since June, 1934.

BY HAL FOUST.

A subway in Golf road under the Northwest highway and the Chicago and North Western railroad is to be completed this summer, according to Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the Illinois highway department. All it has lacked is pavement for the last two years. Lacking this finishing touch to make it usable, an investment of $103,008 in the structure itself has been lying idle since June of 1934.

While the subway has been incomplete, a trafic of a thousand automobiles a day has been using a dangerous detour across the busy railroad tracks, not without accidents. It is not a long detour, merely a run-around, but the temporary pavement of rough, bituminous bound macadam rises sharply when approached from the west to get onto the tracks, and then there is a stop sign for the Northwest highway just to the east of the railroad.

Right of Way Troubles.

"We've been delayed by right of way troubles," Mr. Harger explained. "The subdividers donated the right of way for the subway approach. Thereafter the realty men went bankrupt and the property reverted to a former owner. It has taken all this time to untangle this legal mess."

The subway will serve Wolf road as well as the Golf road, which is also know as Ill. 58 and as the Evanston-Elgin highway. The two pavements converge just west and just east of the structure and have been carried across the tracks on the same detour.

At the intersection of Wolf and Golf roads just east of the subway is a "trafic circle" that promises to become an even worse nuisance after the grade separation is finished. According to the Cook county highway department, this circle was built several years ago by a real estate subdivider. It is obvious that it was built without benefit of competent engineering.

Unnecessary Hazard.

"It is an unnecessary hazard thinly disguised as a safety device," said Arnold Faulkner, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. "Drivers are forced to swing around this circle on a short radius without any banks."

The state highway department has recognized that this circle is a hazard, but while it has not arranged to remove the obstruction, it has erected a danger sign for west bound trafic in Golf road, an unilluminated warning half hidden by shrubs.

Open Evanston Trafic School on Tuesday

Evanston police will open the first session of a trafic school next Tuesday night in the suburb's Municipal court room. Attendance will be compulsory, under court sentence, as well as voluntary.

Evanston, winner of the 1935 reward by the national safety council for accident prevention, thus is taking another forward step in trafic regulation. Such a school for violators is operating successfully in several other cities, notably Detroit.

A sentence to attend four sessions of the school will be at the discretion of the court. In cases that the judge believes appropriate, the defendant will be found guilty of a trafic offense, but the judgment will be suspended if the offender returns at a fixed date later with a certificate of graduation from the school.

Better Than Fines.

"Attendance at four sessions will do more to correct the faults of some types of drivers than the imposition of any fine," said Robert Forster, director of public education of the Evanston police. "It is a fitting treatment for defendants too wealthy to be punished adequately by a fine or for defendants to whom even a small fine would be a hardship upon a family.

"The school is also a desirable measure for juvenile offenders who have no regard for any fine because it is paid by indulgent parents. If a driver shows by his attitude in court that he doesn't care or doesn't understand trafic regulations, he'll also be a candidate for the school.

Voluntary Enrollments.

"In addition to violators, we'll have voluntary enrollments of automobile owners who want to improve their driving. We've had such voluntary schools in the past. But like our voluntary car inspections as contrasted with the present compulsory tests the voluntary schools failed to reach those who needed them most."

The sessions, starting at 7:30 o'clock and lasting an hour and a half, will consist of the showing of trafic safety lessons by moving pictures, followed by lectures and discussions.

AUSTRALIAN TO SWIM 3 MILES DAILY FOR YEAR

Geoffrey Gillam, Melbourne, Australia, is well on his way to establishing a swimming record—that of swimming more than three miles a day for a year. Since he started last April he has covered 800 miles in the Olympic pool in Melbourne, and is confident of completing his program. Gillam swims with a six beat crawl stroke.

Molds Create Shapely Dishes for Springtime

Desserts, Salads, and Main Courses Are Fashioned in Attractive Forms.

By Mary Meade.

SING a song of molds, and of the shapely dishes evolved therefrom, sister cooks, if you'd head for a spring-summer season of extra tempting food. Fancy shapes or conservative ones, amusing or staid, a good collection of mold forms for jellied and frozen dishes will add untold interest to warm weather menus.

Now we can't suggest just how complete your personal supply of molds should be. Suffice it to say that unless you recently have inspected the stock of a good housewares store or department there may be a number of entrancing new shapes you'll want—and likewise that these varied forms come in graded sizes, so that you can adapt your purchases to the size of your family. Our business begins and ends with some suggestions on how to fill said molds after you've acquired them. Here's a start, with some spring sparklers, salads, main dishes, and desserts.

Delicious Dessert Gains Its Form in a Large Melon Mold.

First, here's an effective dessert trick with a large melon mold, the versatile type that boasts a tightly fitting cover. Chill the mold thoroughly, then line it with a thick layer of chocolate ice cream, pressing it down firmly to remove any air spaces. Then fill the center almost to the top with vanilla ice cream [any two harmonious combinations may be used]. Cover to overflowing with another layer of chocolate, then press the lid on firmly. Pack the mold in a mixture of 3 parts of ice to 1 part salt, and chill for 2 hours. To unmold, dip quickly in hot water, remove lid and invert on a chilled serving platter. Slice at the table, and pass a sweet dessert sauce.

If the lid of your mold doesn't form a perfect seal, here's a trick to remember. Wrap a strip of muslin that has been dipped in melted fat around the junction. When the mold is packed, the fat will chill and harden to form a perfect mold.

Mousses Employ the Large Molds with Effectiveness.

We needn't remind you that mousses, creamy and firm, use the large covered molds effectively. Or regular, lidless molds [large or small] may be snugly covered with heavy waxed paper to make these frozen treats. Here's a fine spring favorite, for example.

SPECIAL STRAWBERRY MOUSSE.
1 pint strawberries
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
3 tablespoons boiling water
1 pint heavy cream

Wash and hull berries, sprinkle with sugar, and let stand for an hour. Mash with wooden spoon and force through a coarse sieve or colander. Soak the gelatin in cold water, dissolve in the boiling water, and mix with the berries. Chill until the mixture begins to thicken, beat until fluffy with a rotary beater, then fold in the stiffly beaten cream. Turn into a mold or molds, cover snugly, and freeze in a 1 part salt to 3 parts ice mixture—2 hours for small molds, 3 to 4 hours for a large one.

Meat, Chicken, or Fish Is Tasty in Main Dish Mousse.

Or maybe you'd prefer a main dish mousse — a creamy, well flavored meat, chicken, or fish mixture, in some attractive molded form. Then we'd suggest something like this.

LAMB MOUSSE.
2 cups cooked lamb, finely minced
1 cup lamb stock
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons granulated gelatin
Salt, cayenne, paprika, pepper
1 cup heavy cream
½ cup chopped pecan meats
Pimiento, green pepper

Pour the hot lamb stock over the beaten egg yolks and cook until thickened. Soak the gelatin in cold water, and then dissolve in the hot, thickened stock. Cool until thickened, then fold in the whipped cream, finely minced lamb, and chopped nuts. Pour into a mold and chill for several hours. When firm, unmold and decorate with strips of pimiento and green pepper.

Several Main Dish Molds Have Charm During Spring.

While we're on the main dish theme, here are several other shining examples of molded dishes with undeniable spring charm.

CRAB LOUIS.
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
1 small can crabmeat
½ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped pickle relish

Soften gelatin in cold water, and heat over hot water until thoroughly dissolved. Mix with the mayonnaise and catsup, and then combine with remaining ingredients. Turn into individual molds, chill, and unmold on a thick tomato slice.

MOLDED MACARONI AND CHEESE.
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cup hot water
½ cup diced American or cream cheese
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ cups cooked macaroni
¼ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon onion juice
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ cup heavy cream

Soften gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot water, and combine with cheese. Cool slightly and add all ingredients except mayonnaise and cream. When mixture begins to stiffen, fold in the mayonnaise and stiffly beaten cream. Turn into large mold and chill until firm. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives and cress.

Hot Dishes Also May Be Fashioned in the Molds.

Not all the molded main dishes need be chilled. Tempting hot ones come out of the molds, as well, such as this one.

HOT FISH MOLD WITH TOMATO CURRY SAUCE.
½ cup raw rice
½ pound mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup rich cream
2 hardcooked eggs
1½ cups flaked cooked fish
Salt, pepper, Tabasco

Boil the rice, drain, rinse, and fluff over hot water. Slice the mushrooms, sauté in butter, and combine with the rice, cream, sliced eggs, and flaked fish. Simmer for several minutes and season to taste. When thickened enough to hold its shape, turn into a well buttered fish mold. Reheat in oven, unmold on a hot platter, and serve with a hot tomato sauce, well seasoned with curry powder.

For the tiny appetizer salad, a molded tomato aspic, filled with chopped cucumber and celery, is a promising choice. Or add bits of lobster meat, or even drained raw oysters to the same aspic, turn the mixture into tiny molds, and serve as a meal starter with a garnish of cucumber slices and pimiento.

Allow for Fading When Deciding on Hue of New Rug

WHEN shopping for a new rug it is wise to choose hues slightly more intense than you really wish, for daily exposure to the light plus ordinary soiling will soon turn them darker.

A new broadloom can be expected to "shed" for the first few weeks. Do not attempt to run the vacuum or carpet sweeper over it too often during this time, as the extra, short wool should be allowed to mat and mingle with the nap. This will lengthen the life of your rug.

A wall to wall carpet makes the small room seem larger.

When in doubt about the amount of floor that should show around the four sides of a rug use the following ratio: One inch of floor to one foot of the size of the rug. Thus a rug twelve by fourteen will have a width of twelve inches by fifteen inches of floor showing.

A rug pad adds to the life of your rug and the comfort of your feet as well.

Scatter and small rugs should be treated with a nonskid preparation to avoid the danger of slipping.

[Answer on page three.]

FRENCH CHIC ADAPTED TO CHICAGO

Paris Originals Here, Titillating Local Fashions

Smart Models Often Skillfully Altered to Suit the American Streamlines.

By Rhea Seager.

ORIGINALS, direct from their tissue packed boxes, excitingly new creations with all the important details that mark a new season, are being unpacked daily in famous Chicago shops. Within a few short days of their presentation in Paris, these frocks are here in Chicago ready for the rush of curious and appreciative shoppers. Some are accepted without as much as the change of a tuck. Others are altered to suit an American streamline, or the living habits of the women who buy them. They are the tremendously important originals that change a season, that revolutionize fashions for thousands. If they are good, decorative, different, and can be worn for and practical purpose, they go over with a bang. And what Chicago shops do with the adaptations and changes of these heady new things makes fashion history.

New skirt lengths, short, flaring, and young, bid strongly for favor. Anything that makes the average shopper keep youthful is greedily snatched and pressed into service for everyday wear. Rib hugging jackets to accent small waistlines boost the corsetière's business. And they are going to keep the dieters rushing around for good, new ways to slimness . . . reducing methods that insure a figure without any flabby bulges to mar the simplicity of this new, revealing silhouette.

Puffed Sleeves Must Still Prove Their Virtues.

Whether the puffed and larger sleeves are going to succeed remains to be proved. Moderately puffed and perky they are, charming and something different.

After you've seen these lovely, feminine collections of imports and their equally different and clever adaptations, you'll cheer loudly for more and more feminine clothes. Try as you will, you can't resist the miles of flutings, and ruchings, and plaitings, the swish of silk taffeta, an alluring feminine soft taffeta considerably less audible than the stiff, stand alone taffeta stressed last winter.

It's equally hard to stay in strictly tailored clothes after seeing the clouds of floating pastel chiffons, the soft, printed silks, the sheer wool dressmaker afternoon suits made with crisp taffeta trim and a contrasting petticoat under the flaring, shorter skirt. Jackets will lure you into bankruptcy unless you have a strong will. Owning a dozen different colors and kinds of jackets is the ambition of any good clothes collector, for you can change any dress or outfit you own with such a jacket. This spring they're fitted and we mean fitted. They hug your ribs as tightly as skin. They are short, with peplums that stick out. They have either short or long sleeves with emphasized shoulder puffings and most of the newest models have a row of tiny buttons down the front.

How low you wear your bodices is up to the important man whose criticisms count—or your own conscience. But the fashion fact is this: Buy skirts with plenty of yardage, skirts that billow and swirl as you dance, but resign yourself to the fact that the quaint little bodices that top these wide, full skirts are indeed microscopic.

Daytime Clothes Stress Charms of Youth.

Daytime clothes are grand and young looking, what with flared skirts that are definitly shorter, and brief, fitted jackets that have all the electrical dash of youth itself. Colors run rampant. Colored accessories and even the clothes themselves blaze with bright and unusual color.

We've sketched four important originals that can be found in a Chicago shop, not because they are spectacularly new and different, but because any one can wear them. They are delightfully feminine, most decorative, and more than practical, without losing a bit of their chic. These, and faithful replicas or distinctive adaptions, can be ordered for your own wardrobe.

Figure A . . . Mainbocher, who went from his own studio in Chicago to Paris and became a leading designer in a few short seasons, sponsored both the frock shown in this figure and that in figure B. Figure A shows printed, colorful silk taffeta, a soft, new taffeta made with a finely plaited underskirt that sweeps around the floorline. The long peplum is cut on the bias, and the bodice is draped and molded to match the quaint charm of the short, puffed sleeves. It fits princess line, without any shadow of a belt.

Lion of Brilliants Acts as Buckle.

Figure B . . . sophistication in dull black crêpe, again showing the long, fitted streamline with a long, artfully draped tunic effect both in front and at the back. A stunning and most unusual buckle fastens the belt . . . a large lion of brilliants with twitching tail and red eyes of tiny, simulated rubies. The deep backline and moderately cut front décolletage make this costume an ideal all purpose evening gown, good even for three or four seasons.

Figure C . . . young and almost defiantly breezy, this daytime suit of Schiaparelli's uses French blue cotton twill for the material and trimmings of coral red straw. Just as revolutionary as anything you'd expect from this wizard of sheers. The dress has the inevitable flared and youthfully short skirt with a smooth hip and waistline. The top is sleeveless and fits tightly so that the short jacket can also fit smoothly and snugly. The sleeves have shoulder puffings and the unusual belt of coral red straw accenting the new lower waistline effect, matches the small, shovel brim hat in both color and straw.

Figure D . . . Lanvin sends the most beautiful of dressmaker suits . . . a marvel of slinky dress parade costumes, a dinner suit with a long slit skirt, a peasant blouse of glistening silver lamé, and a gorgeously long full jacket coat. The blouse has full sleeves gathered into the wrists. The square cut neckline is puffed and accented with criscrossing bands of gold. The coat is extremely full as to sleeves and silhouette, and has a luxurious band of silver fox, starting at the middle of the back neck and widening out as it goes down the left side only. One of the most wearable as well as unusual imports of the collection.

English Parson Ignores Church Divorce Laws

LONDON

While the limelight is on A. P. Herbert, the new M. P. who is fighting for divorce reform, it is well not to forget the old parson of the little city church of St. Ethelberga's, who is one of the few parsons in the Church of England who will marry divorced people.

His is the only one of the prominent London churches to perform this service for divorcees since the rectorship of the Savoy chapel has passed into less liberal hands. Under the old régime Sinclair Lewis was married at the Savoy chapel.

Dr. Geikie Cobb has been rector of St. Ethelberga's for 33 years and is a leader for divorce reform. His wife recently died after having been married 51 years. They celebrated their golden wedding last year, and this week he conducted a memorial service to her in his own church.

Paris Decrees Every Dress Be Color-Spiced

Even Black and Blue Can't Get By This Year Without Brilliant Relief.

Color photos on page 1 of picture section.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Color, vociferous, subtle, and tender, is a page one item in Paris styles this spring. Fashions have been getting more and more colorful these past few years, and actually, today, the old one color styles seem as dumb as do the silent movies. The great dressmakers are burning with passion for color harmonies and there are few sober, one color garments to be found anywhere. The woman who gets around without flashing some bright shade in her clothes line looks as stale as a cold potato.

It is true that black, the peerless color, beloved of the smart woman everywhere in the world, is still at the head of the procession, but black is spiced with one, two, and three color harmonies when it steps out in the style parade this season. Dark blue, the staple, bread-and-butter color of the season, gets the same color treatment in flashes and accessories, and so do all the other neutral shades.

Orchid, Lilac, Parma Violet Best Hues for Evening.

In evening clothes black and dark blue have virtually disappeared altogether. They are replaced with glowing colors. I see few black evening gowns this spring in Paris, but many in color. Orchid, lilac, and parma violet are among the smartest colors for evening clothes, and they appear doing an accessory and detail act on many daytime clothes also. Red in shades you can't overlook is a chic daytime color, and is worn in the evening too. A brilliant fuchia red, paired with pansy purple, is used for evening. Rose pink is a star of evening colors, with additions of bright details, such as flowers, petticoats, and wraps. Turquoise blue is supremely smart, and it gets a dash of purple or pink or sulphurous yellow to give it force. The most intense sky blue you ever saw is a color that the Paris dressmakers use to make daytime dresses for sports and evening frocks. Lush melon shades, tangarine, and the nasturtium colors are delicious evening colors. Anything goes, in short, in the way of color for evening.

The evening prints are as hot with color as an August afternoon is with sun. Live greens appear in many of the brilliant printed materials, and green in soft and brilliant tones is a smart color for daytime.

Dull Accessories Must Absolutely Go Into Storage.

Every style conscious woman will throw away, or put into cold storage, her dull colored, practical accessories this season. To be in style you must have sweet or bright colored gloves and handbags. You will want to wear color at your feet, in pipings and trimmings on your smart little shoes. You will pin gay flowers on every dress or ensemble or suit you wear, and you may repeat the floral piece on your spring hat. Paris puts a "must" on the decorative petticoat, both for day and evening this season. Flowered, striped, and plaid taffeta petticoats are the kind to wear under daytime skirts, or petticoats of sheer eyelet embroidery. Mainbocher tells me that even their most conservative clients are getting the petticoat fever, and in this piece of lingerie order them in such lusty shades as red, too.

For evening you will want to have the swish of frilled tulle under your dress, the way Schiaparelli treats her evening dresses, or two or three sheer petticoats in as many different colors, under a transparent frock.

The application of colors to daytime clothes is usually done with details, accessories, or jackets. Bright jackets are big styles over black or dark blue dresses. Printed jackets and printed long coats in plenty of colors are also worn. Gaudy belts, gloves, and flowers give enough color to any simple dark dress for practical wear. A flower hat, or a hat trimmed with flowers is a smart way to put color into your daytime wardrobe.

Housewife Is Champion of Blood Donors' Society

THE champion donor of the Blood Donors' Benevolent society of St. Louis, Mo., is Mrs. Emma Conrad, a middle aged housewife. She averaged a transfusion a month in 1935. The society, composed of 110 men and women, gives blood for charity.

A Beautiful Complexion . . . . Comes Quickly When Mercolized Wax is Used

GIVE your skin youth. Bring back its loveliness and beauty with the aid of pure Mercolized Wax. Let this delightful cream remove the unattractive, blemished surface skin that conceals your true beauty. This scientifically-evolved cream takes off the surface skin so skillfully that you are not actually aware of the skin shedding until you observe the new smoothness and natural beauty of your complexion. Mercolized Wax cleanses, softens, smooths and beautifies the skin. Blemishes disappear.

Since its inception twenty-five years ago, Mercolized Wax has been sold all over the world. It takes the place of numerous beauty aids. Beautiful women everywhere are grateful to Mercolized Wax for smooth, clear complexions. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty in any skin.

TRY PHELACTINE—the "different" depilatory. Takes off superfluous hair quickly and gently. Leaves skin hairfree. Simple to use. Odorless.

USE SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT—a refreshing, stimulating skin tonic. Dissolve it in witch hazel. Saxolite tightens the loose, flabby skin, smooths out wrinkles and age lines. Refines coarse pores. Eliminates oiliness.

At drug and department stores everywhere.

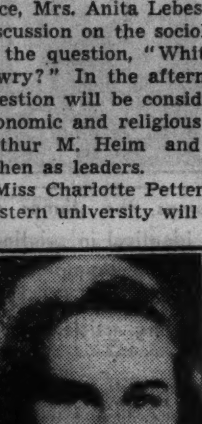
After official greetings by Miss Julia I. Felsenthal, president of the conference, Mrs. Anita Lebeson will lead a discussion on the sociological aspects of the question, "Whither American Jewry?" In the afternoon the same question will be considered from the economic and religious aspects, with Arthur M. Heim and Dr. Samuel Cohen as leaders.



MISS CHARLOTTE PETTERSON.
[Carlos Photo.]

Miss Charlotte Petterson of Northwestern university will be one of the hostesses at the fourth annual state meeting of Delta Delta Delta sorority to be held next Saturday in the Georgian hotel, Evanston. Members of the sorority from all parts of Illinois are expected to be in attendance.

At luncheon at noon Saturday, "The Fraternities' Relation to the University" will be discussed by Dr. Grace Manson of Northwestern. Dr. Manson is an assistant professor of psychology in the university, and previously was engaged in personnel work at the University of Michigan. Another speaker on this occasion will be Miss Madeline Gilbert of the University of Chicago who, for the last two years, has worked with the Children's Department bureau in Portland, Ore.

Round Table Discussion and Tour to Follow Luncheon.

After the luncheon there will be round table discussions and then a tour of the Northwestern campus. In the evening the Deltas are to be the guests of the North Shore alliance at a buffet supper at the Northwestern chapter house. The general chairman of the meeting is Mrs. R. L. Junod.

To acquaint parents with the Parent-Teacher bookshelves in the Chicago Public library and its branches, the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers is to have a meeting at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the training classroom of the Chicago Public library. The meeting will be conducted by Mrs. H. M. Mulberry, state library service and children's reading chairman of the Illinois congress.

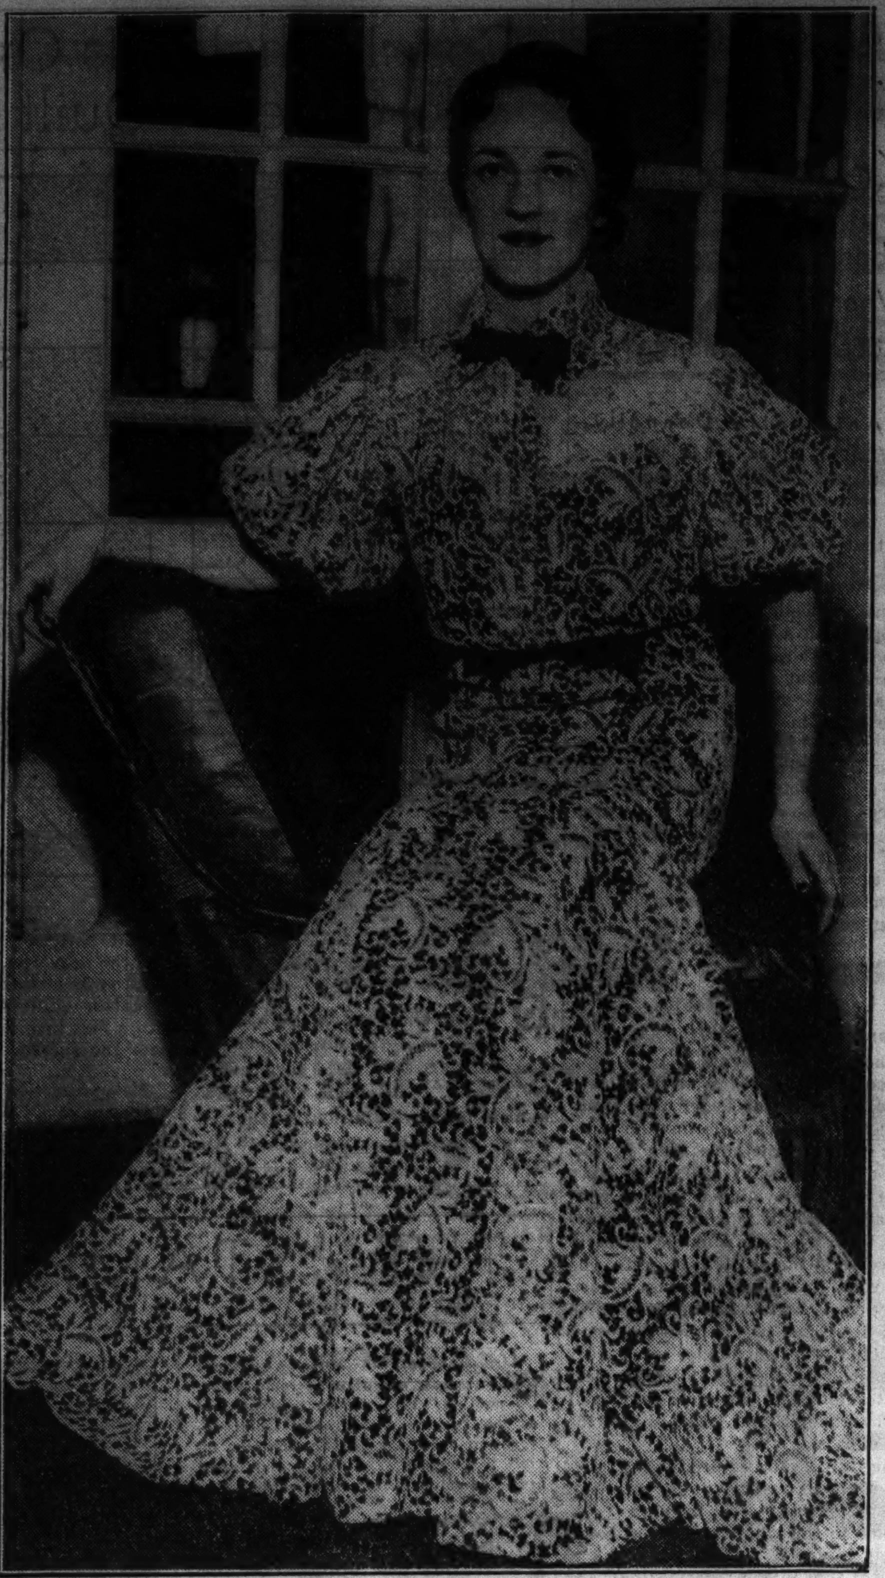
All council, district, elementary, and high school library service chairmen of associated groups are expected to attend and discuss ways and means of using the bookshelves to the best advantage. Miss Adah Whitcomb, supervisor of the school libraries department of the Chicago Public library, will explain the shelves and conduct a tour of the library at the close of the meeting.

More than 1,000 new books, including publications of the national congress, have been purchased for these shelves with money appropriated at the last session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall Is to Preside at Homemaking Meet.

Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, state homemaking chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will preside over a homemaking conference at 9:30 Tuesday morning in the Stevens hotel. Miss Sarah McGiffert of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund, Miss Adele Kamile, and Harvey Huntington of the United States bureau of agriculture will be the speakers.

The Kansas Woman's club is giving a luncheon tomorrow noon at the McCormick Y. W. C. A. for its president, Mrs. Charles W. Balch, who has been given membership in the Chicago recreation commission by Mayor Kelly.



WHITE LACE OVER BLACK NET

Mrs. Charles M. Price, who lives in Evanston, looks particularly well in this type of evening dress. It is made of white lace over black net, an unusual combination, and a belt and tie of green satin bring a touch of color to the gown. Mrs. Price, who is a member of the Evanston Infant Welfare Service league, modeled this dress at a fashion show given recently by the league.

Long Rest May Cure Child Who Lags at School

If Study Is Too Arduous, Keep Him at Home for a Term or Even a Year.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

FOR every one who writes me about some special difficulty there are hundreds who don't.

I know how it is with me—I have the impulse, when I read a particularly satisfying book, to write to the author and tell him. I intend when I find a beautiful children's book to tell the writer of it how I admire it—or to protest, when I discover a gifted creator of small children's stories putting in a heart rending episode illustrated by a distressing picture. But other affairs are pressing and I don't obey that impulse to write.

So I know that there are a great many mothers who, like some who have written me recently, need advice about their children of school age.

Interview with Teacher Should Be First Step.

While thousands of children are happy in school and thrive under its routine and activities, there are many who are not happy and who do not thrive in school.

Since state of mind and state of body are so closely tied together, it is only sensible to consider both.

It is important then, when a child dislikes school, or shows constant fatigue or irritability, or his or her disposition suffers on school days, to try to do something about it.

The first step for the child's mother to take is to go to see the teacher. It is really fairest for a mother not to go in a spirit of complaint, but as one desiring to give and receive friendly coöperation. Often a marked change will take place in a child's feeling about school after such a conference between his mother and teacher.

But sometimes this will do no good, because the trouble may be one that the teacher can't correct. She may be faced with classroom or teaching conditions over which she has no control, and these may be conditions which, for a particular child at a particular time in his life, are entirely wrong.

What to do then?

Illness or Rapid Growth May Cause Crisis.

Before we go on to a remedy, let's look a little more closely at some of these children—big and little—who aren't thriving in school. How do we find them?

Well, here's one who's been sick for a long time and who's trying to catch up on back work, and also keep up with his class in the current lessons.

Here are several girls, growing fast, who are tired all the time, and who carry a heavy academic program, including much homework.

Here's a boy, thin and nervous, who dreads school, and who comes home too tired to play and do his homework, too, in the afternoon. He can't do it in the early evening because after supper he's sleepy and ready for bed. So he gets no outdoors at all.

Confinement in School Severe Strain on Any Child.

Here are a number of both boys and girls, a little nervous, sensitive, none too robust, who have long journeys to school in subways or street cars, or who, in order to catch the school bus which collects all the children, must be ready early in the morning and do not get home until late in the afternoon.

And here is a child of perhaps rather special talents, possessing a great need for physical freedom, who at the same time needs to be built up in general health.

To sum it up, there are a number of children who are not thriving in school. Due to illness or convalescence—to temperament, to nervousness, to rapid growth, to malnutrition—some children just don't thrive in school. Why not?

For one thing the confinement is hard on them—too little physical freedom can be tiring just as well as too much. The continuous preoccupation with the printed page and sustained mental activity are a strain. The sense of making time in the morning and after lunch often affects appetite and digestion. If they are tired there is no chance to rest. The best hours for outdoor play or exercise have to be spent indoors. Add to this a certain pressure exerted by the school regarding work, unbroken attendance, and promptness records added frequently to required home study, and we have summed up why, at certain times in a child's life, he may not thrive in school. And, when this is so, his work as well as he himself doesn't thrive. He falls behind, gets confused, or actually fails in most of his subjects. Naturally these children are the exception—but their number is larger than you would think.

To my mind, when things get to such a pass and everything within reason has been tried, there is only one thing left to do. Instead of letting them hobble and struggle unhappily along, I believe these children should be taken out of school for a term or a year. This isn't such an unthinkable step as it seems to many parents. Not only health—that precious possession—can be secured by doing this, but often a fresh interest in school work.

If you feel this is more radical a step than is needed, perhaps one session a day for half the year will do the trick. School in the morning, then home at noon to stay for the day. This would make possible a leisurely lunch, a rest time, then outdoors for the best part of the day. Then home for the late afternoon, with time for books or drawing, or helping with supper.

"Helping the Nervous Child"—a leaflet valuable to mothers—will be sent by this department on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Simple Frock with Smart Scarf Neckline Is Chic Yet Easily Fashioned.

By Clotilde.

STRAIGHT, simple lines which are ideal for the amateur seamstress to attempt are the foundation of this daytime frock for late spring and early summer. The skirt is paneled, creating a perfect fit around the hips. The sleeves are raglan, being cut in one with the shoulders, which, in turn, share their chic with the attractive yoke.

There is no collar. The plain neckline is fitted with darts in the back and embellished with either buttons, scarf, or both. The sleeves may be long or short, depending on your preference and the exact season of the year in which you wish to wear the dress.

The very simplicity of this frock makes for latitude in color of both fabric and accessories. The original of this dress is dainty in a spring violet print. Since this model was designed primarily for average and heavy figures, the delicate color just mentioned is especially attractive.

Any of the lovely spring fabrics will be appropriate, but if you're planning to make this frock for your early summer wardrobe you will prefer washable material. Sheer cottons in gay prints, pastel linens, and tub silks are suggestions.

Style No. 2674 is extremely easy to make, as is illustrated in the sketch at the lower right. This pattern is designed for sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement.

Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Dining Suite in Knotty Pine Has Distinction

Miss Weigle will be glad to help you with color schemes for your dining room. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

By Edith Weigle.

FORMULA for a delightful dining room: Walls painted a cool, pale lime green [chartreuse]; floor length draperies under a narrow valance, pale rose; glass curtains, cream toned silk voile; carpeting, a neutral brown, and—pièce de résistance, a perfectly beautiful grouping of dining room furniture in natural toned knotty pine, chair seats upholstered in a brown strié fabric.

We've seen some thousands of sets of furniture for the dining room during our years of scouting about at the stores and the manufacturers, but this particular one stands out in such a way that we'll never forget it. First, it is so light and charming in its color, such a refreshing change from the eternal walnut and mahogany. It will brighten the darkest room because of its soft, satin-yellow hue.

Second, it is exceptionally well styled. It is simple, straightforward, the china cabinet without any ornamentation of the top to break the dignified beauty of its lines, the chairs sturdy and large enough, with graceful ribbon ladder backs and saddle seats.

Third, the sideboard or buffet is like the long lost needle in the haystack. It comes down to the floor, yet is not over bulky as most models of like design are. Try to find a piece like this for the average small dining room and you'll give up weeks to the search without success. But here is the ideal article, all ready for you in this model room now being shown on the furniture floor of a Chicago store.

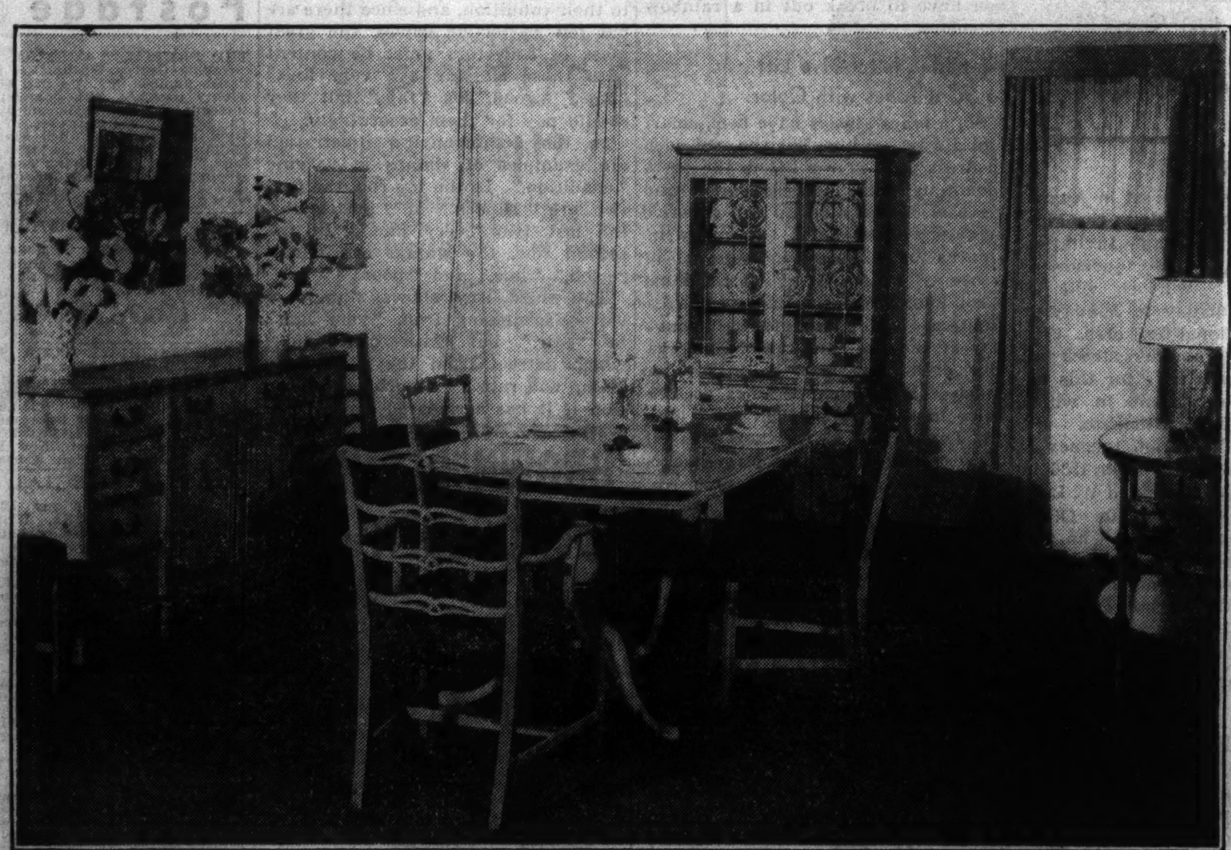
Because it does extend to the floor it contains a great deal of drawer space and a fairly large cabinet besides. Note, too, the good looking drawer pulls.

The extension table has two pedestal supports. A three tiered side table, seen at the right in the picture, is practical as well as decorative, for it, too, offers generous shelf space.

This pine furniture is not modern in any sense of the word. It follows the line of the best traditions of 18th century English design. Yet, because of its blond coloring, it has a decidedly modern feeling and makes an excellent companion to fresh, light colors in draperies and walls.

It is ideal for the bride's house, for a country home, or for a five or six room city apartment. In answer to queries we have been receiving lately about blond furniture [pieces finished without a dark stain so that they show the true, natural beauty of the wood, and pieces that have been bleached to give them a fresh, soft tone] it is extremely smart and is beautiful, as well. It is the rage in New York and with artistic-minded women here, and because it is livable and in good taste it will not go out of style overnight. It was used several hundred years ago, is back again now, and will be just as lovely decades hence.

LIGHT NOTES FOR A GLOOMY ROOM



This dining room, displayed by a large Chicago store, is furnished with an exceptionally good looking grouping of knotty pine pieces having a beautiful, waxed blond finish. Note the sideboard comes down to the floor, thus affording a great deal of extra drawer and cabinet space. The china cabinet has a plain, straight cornice ornamented only by a narrow dentil molding. Drawer pulls are of brass and highly decorative. The chairs are in Chippendale style.

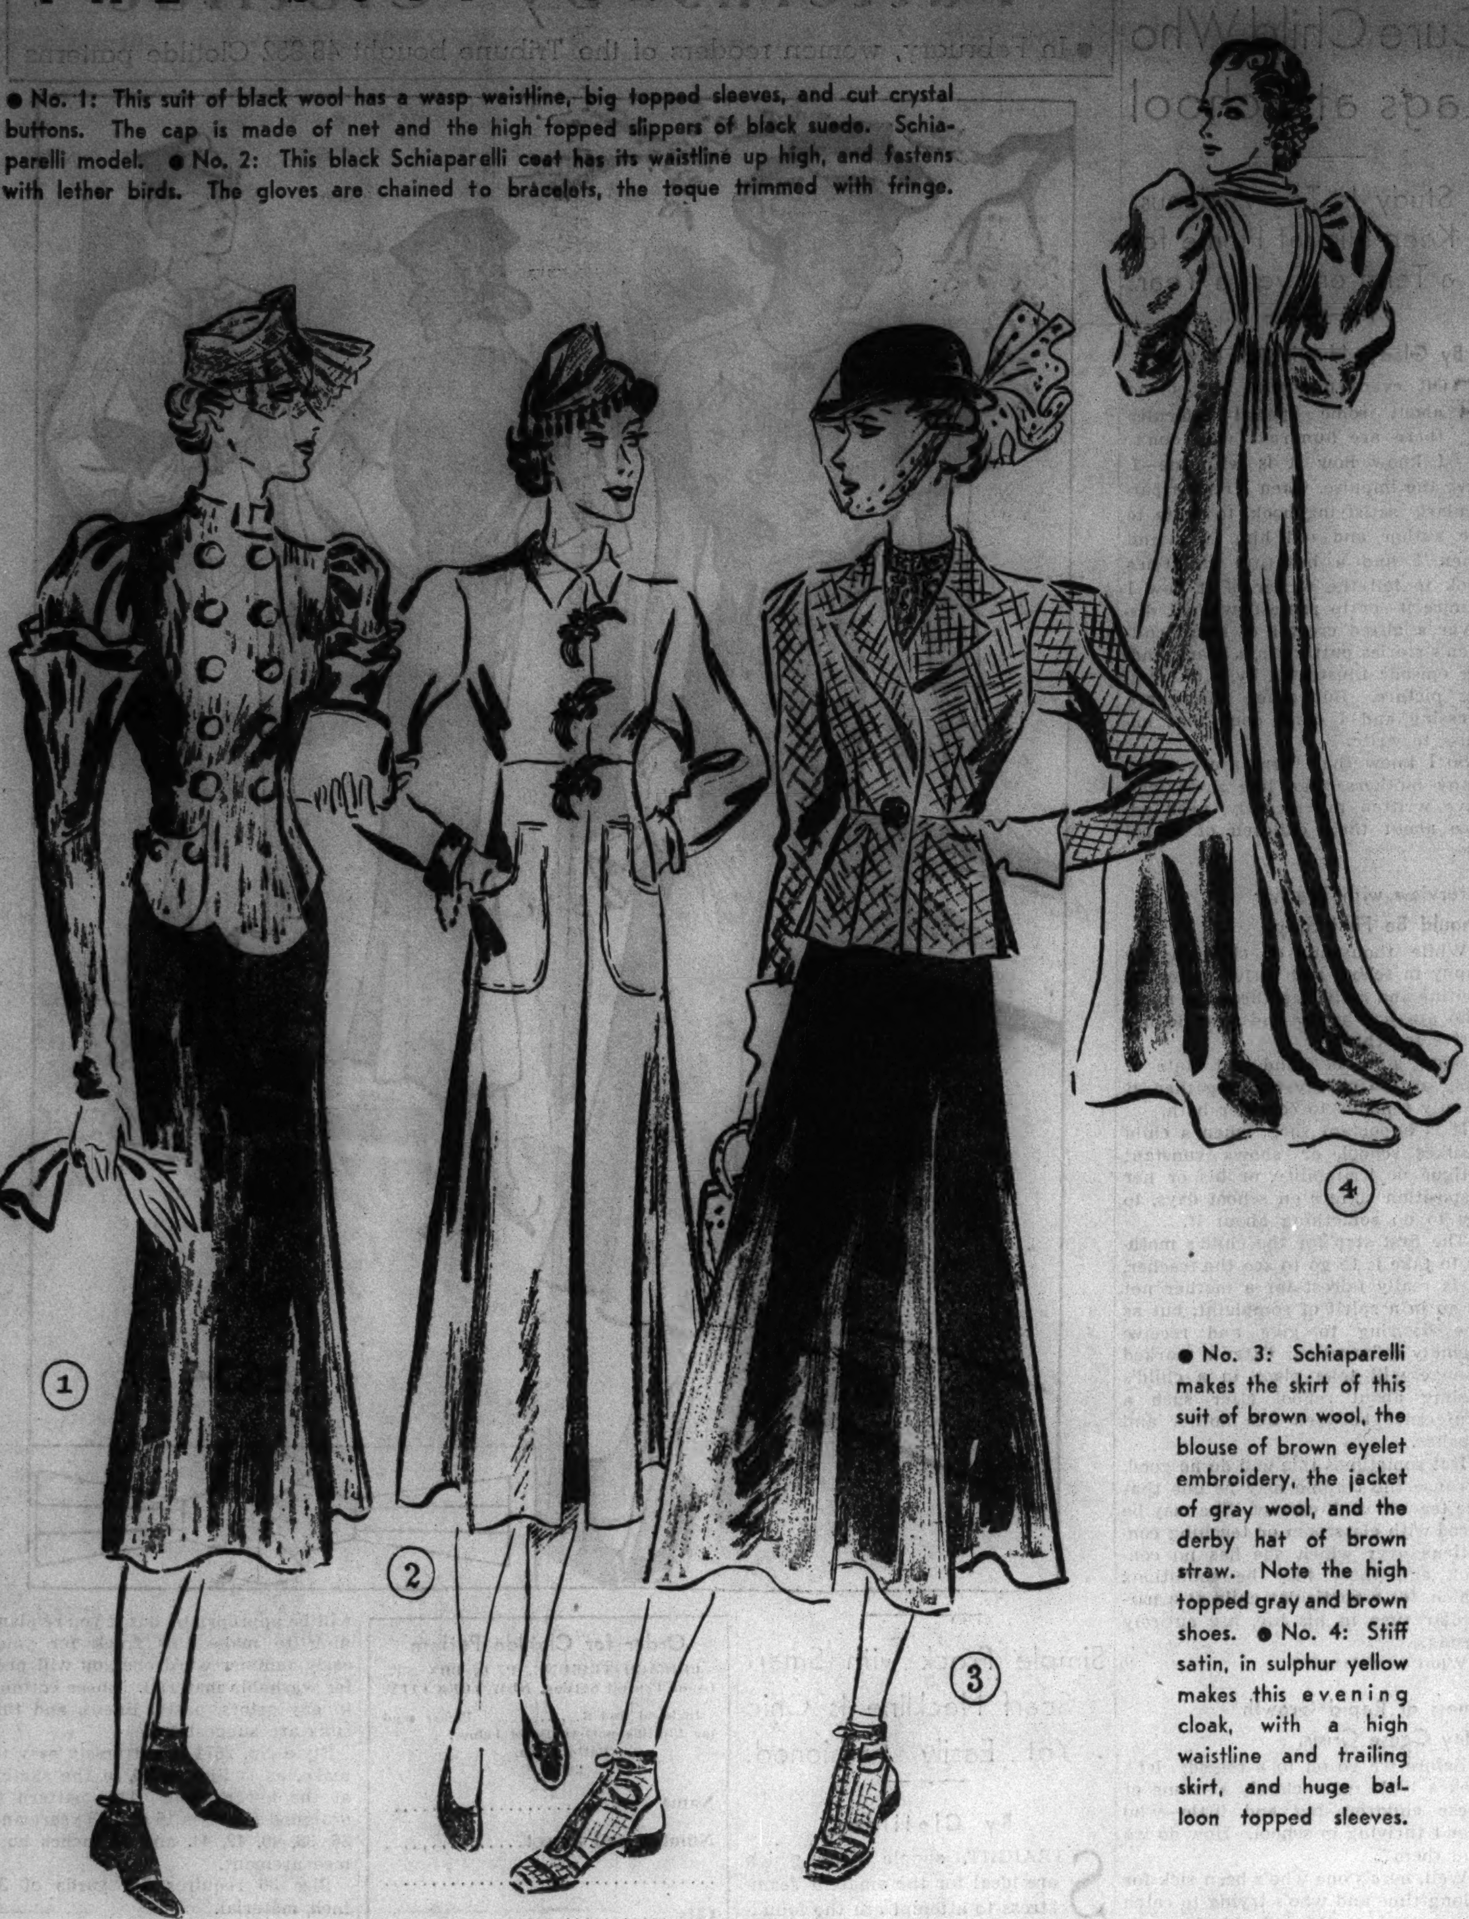
THE SUIT IN FOUR GUISES



● No. 1: This suit of black wool has a wasp waistline, big topped sleeves, and cut crystal buttons. The cap is made of net and the high topped slippers of black suede. Schiaparelli model. ● No. 2: This black Schiaparelli coat has its waistline up high, and fastens with lether birds. The gloves are chained to bracelets, the toque trimmed with fringe.

● No. 3: Schiaparelli makes the skirt of this suit of brown wool, the blouse of brown eyelet embroidery, the jacket of gray wool, and the derby hat of brown straw. Note the high topped gray and brown shoes. ● No. 4: Stiff satin, in sulphur yellow makes this evening cloak, with a high waistline and trailing skirt, and huge balloon topped sleeves.

The Feminine Morning Suit Paris Favorite

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—In the morning: Paris says you're smart in a tailored suit with jacket and skirt of different wools, preferably men's striped or shadow plaid suitings with plain material. With it a sheer blouse of eyelet embroidery, chiffon, bright shantung, challis, in colors that stop the parade, made simply. A stiff sailor, a straw derby, a scoop beret, a Spanish bolero on your head, and a veil mocking the masculinity of the suit. Gloves and bag in hefty lether and costume colors.

Flowers, any kind, pinned to your lapel. Shoes up to your ankles, but open and cool. Bright soles on brown shoes, matching accessories. Or you're just as chic in a tunic jacket and dress or skirt with blouse, both a little softer and more feminine. Or with a bright or checkered baby swagger coat and simple one piece dress. Or a Cossack coat of light wool and a printed frock, shirtwaist type, or simple, anyway—designs to be different from flowers—postage stamps, clock faces, and such things. Wear a small hat trimmed with flowers or ribbon with this. You can wear these all day to business.

Waistlines Are Highlighted by Sashes.

Noon and after: Jacket ensembles with big shoulders and tight waistlines, the jackets bolero length, hip length. Waistline fit highlighted by sashes, firmly wrapped, bright belts, wide crazy belts. Skirts definitly shorter and wider, plaited or with circular cutting. Blouses with high necklines—ruff necks, bib necks, turtle necks, and such. Jackets lined with print or bright color and having big revers, also in color.

One color ensembles with two color details and accessories. Paris says wear flower trimmed hats like mother used to wear, wear small toques with wings sprouting, wear caps trimmed with feathers, wear bonnets, wear hats with plaited or ruched brims. Put flowers at your waistline or lapel. And wear accessories and details in such shades as orchid, purple, sulphur, cerise, and chartreuse, two together. Wear veils. Wear suede slippers high in front and air conditioned at the sides. Wear colored gloves. Wear gay prints.

Dresses for 5 O'Clock Grow More and More Sheer.

The 5 o'clock date: Much the same, but dresses will get more and more sheer, and skirts will be wider and wider, but no longer. Circular and accordion plaited chiffon skirts will look new and charming. Prints will be flaming in tropical colors. Hats will be incredibly small, more like headdresses, and any shape, or enormous with sheer or soft brims. Slippers will be mere straps and soles. Shoulders will be trimmed with flowers or embroidered, fringed, and ruffled to keep their bold bigness, but made soft for late afternoon. Every style conscious female will wear a petticoat—anything from white embroidered cotton, printed taffeta, organdy, to cotton and tulle.

After dark: Styles for evening will be a no limit game that every woman can play as she pleases. Spring evenings may be crisp in dinner suits made of satin, taffeta, starched organdy. Beaded blouses in colors to look like prints, tulle shirtwaists, and low cut bodices. They become dramatic in Lanvin's geisha girl dresses with sashes half as big as the dress, in Alix's sheer white with whirligig skirts, full circles they are; in Mainbocher's sharp black with cascades of white down the back. They will be grand in plaited empire frocks, in slim gowns with frothing petticoats, and elfin in chiffon, tulle, and lace.

Schiaparelli Tops Suit with Prince of Wales Derby.

Parisiennes will be stepping out this April in Schiaparelli's suit [No. 3 in the sketch]. The easy, parachute skirt is dark, mauvish brown wool, and the severe blouse is made of matching brown eyelet embroidery. The gray wool jacket has a pinched waistline and bulky shoulders. Sensational details are the prince of Wales derby in brown milan straw with a brown veil tied over it, and high topped gray linen shoes trimmed with brown lether, and open at the heel and across the vamp and instep.

The smartest women will be wearing Schiaparelli's wool coat [No. 2] with an empire high waistline. It is made of black wool and has sleeves that are heavy at the top. It fastens on three black lether birds with spread wings.

No. 1 is a suit for noon and after. It is made of black supple wool, and the jacket is fitted, longer in front than in back, with long glove sleeves fitting into weighty puffs at the top. It fastens on cut crystal buttons. Chiaparelli's black net cap with a plaited visor is shown with it; also her high black suede sandals laced up the sides.

No. 4 is a vivid yellow satin evening wrap with a waist as high as a mother hubbard and trailing fullness at the back. A flock of purple morning glories trail off the back hair.

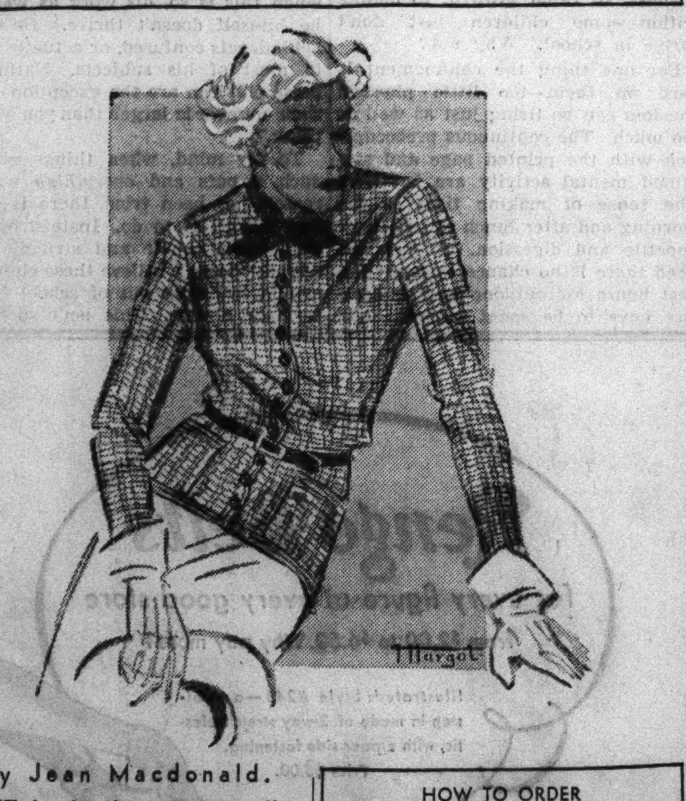
Canary Yellow Knit Blouse Will Be Smart for Spring



By Jean Macdonald.

THE lovely clear canary yellow two ply shetland blouse illustrated today is an example of what will be extremely smart for early spring and summer for sports, spectator, and street wear. A black wool skirt of either knit or fabric, to match the acorn buttons, and a tailored organdy tie produce a striking ensemble which may be made at a reasonable cost.

The stitch in the blouse is a new one which is not difficult, but requires a certain amount of practice before speed will be obtained. Another nice feature of the blouse is that it is knitted on a number five needle. Two ply shetland and the particular stitch involved are a favorite combination for women with an inclination to plumpness, since they insure an elasticity and basket weave surface ideal for that popular streamline silhouette.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the yellow two ply shetland blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter. Be sure to include the following measurements:

Augusta to See Jones and Little Play This Week

Social and sport interest in Augusta will center next week in the Masters' Invitation golf tournament

AUGUSTA, GA. which will be played from Thursday to Sunday at the Augusta National Golf club. Golf enthusiasts from numerous states and Canada will gather here for this nationally important event in which leading golfers will participate.

The Masters' invitation tourney is the only competitive golf in 1936 in which both Bobby Jones and W. Lawson Little Jr. will participate. Other champions and titleholders who will be in Augusta for the event are: Gene Sarazen, defending champion, Walter Hagen, Henry Picard, Sam Parks Jr., Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Craig Wood, Charlie Yates, Tommy Armour, and Olin Dutra.

Included in the invitation have been the past and present United States and British amateur and open champions; the present Walker cup team, the present Ryder cup team, the first twenty-four players in the 1935 Masters' tournament, the first thirty-five players in the United States open, the last eight players in the United States amateur, and the last four players in the P. G. A. championship.

Numerous luncheons, cocktail parties, and dinners will be given at the club and at the three resort hotels, although no formal entertainment has been planned for the coming week.

Horseback riding, skeet, and polo continue to vie for popularity in Augusta. The bridle paths are bright with dogwood, flowering fruit trees, wisteria, and woodland flowers, and offer a beautiful setting for the lover of equestrian sports.

Dramatization with Color Is Key to Beauty

Drabness and Age Retreat When Clothes, Makeup, Accessories Change Hue

By Antoinette Donnelly.

BEAUTY today is so largely a matter of dramatizing one's self with the color aids that modern dress and makeup afford that I offer you today the first of a series on the vital subject: color. With the coöperation of Miss Bettina Bedwell, well known fashion authority and a color expert of note, you will be shown how to adapt color as an ally that will see you through a beauty career as will no other single force in the pursuit of loveliness.

Miss Bedwell's close affiliation with the French couturiers and their confidences on how a woman may drop years with a change in dress color or, if not a change, a dramatic lift with a right color accessory or accessories, offers a particular advantage to the woman in pursuit of a younger, more dramatic appearance, and a more charming one.

New Use of Color Creates Brilliance of Personality.

Time and time again I have seen women blossom forth with a brilliance or charm of which one never suspected them capable in their drab dress tones. You have seen it, too, of course. Perhaps you even have felt a new and younger woman with the adoption of a color you never wore before. There's magic, girls, in the color field, as it applies to you and your dress and makeup colors. Study color, then experiment with it, work at it, and use it until you have extracted the last ounce of beauty from it. Disregard old prejudices about colors you can wear and can't wear, sufficiently, at least, to give the new ones a trial.

The dull, drab, uninteresting tones that some women adopt for practical reasons, perhaps, or through indifference to the whole subject of color, forfeit for such women the right to inspire the interest, attention, and admiration their rôle a women should create. The old, old story of calling upon color to transform the ugly duckling into the enchantress holds more true at this moment than it ever did, because women have more and better colors on which to draw in dress and makeup. Let me repeat, there is no other factor so powerful in the creation of the modern charmer. Miss Bedwell adds that there is no factor, either, that can contribute so wholeheartedly to ugliness, as is illustrated by the woman who holds to ugly, ageing, depressing, muddy dress tones against a face untouched by makeup at all, or made up with the hand of a rank amateur.

Color Is Psychologically Important to the Morale.

Color is recognized by many psychologists as being so vital to human health and happiness that the term "psychological suicide" was created to diagnose the melancholia suffered, the psychologists say, because of bad dress, taste, and wrong color.

"I have yet to see a woman suffering from melancholia or depression," reports one famous psychologist, "who was not dressed in black, in dirty brown, or dull, depressing, dark blue!"

Comparatively few women have a naturally good color sense, which is why so much money goes into clothes annually without any appreciable return to the wearer, in compliments or in her own sense of well being.

But those women who have the native color sense, and the women who recognize its potentialities and make a study of it, are the ones who stand out as the best dressed and the most attractive. It is not meant that you have to break out in a rainbow of colors.

New Idea Is to Give Lift to Solid Tones with Color.

Solid tones always have been smart and always will be, but the new idea in dress is to give a lift to the dress monotony with cleverly placed and cleverly chosen makeup and effective accessory dress notes. In many instances today it's the introduction of a beautiful "flash" of color against a solid color costume that creates distinction. As opposed to the monotony of the one tone, ultra conservative dress, one may go in for too much color, which becomes as tiresome in time. Too much color loses its drama, like a play keyed to climaxes with every actor's entrance and exit. No leading up to a BIG moment.

Next Sunday, with Miss Bedwell's coöperation, you will be told about "cold" colors and how a note of interest, charm, and personality may be provided these with the right makeup and accessory colors. How other neutral colors and WHAT other neutral colors may be adopted in place of the eternal tans, blacks, grays. A few other pointers on choosing colors for attractiveness will be considered next Sunday.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

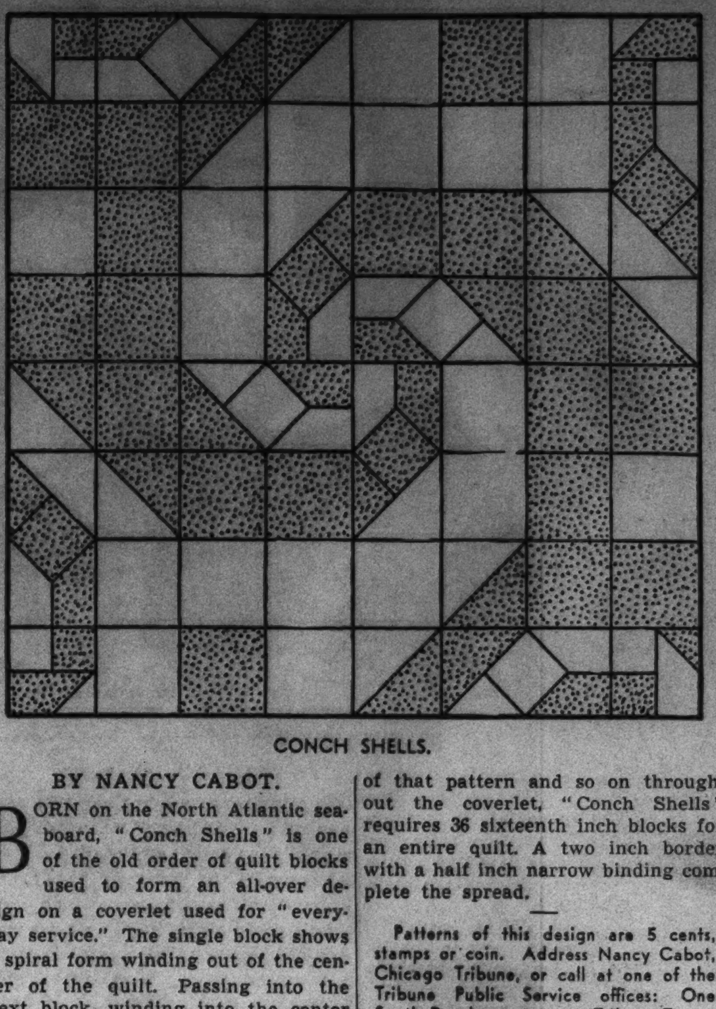
"Conch Shells" Is One of Old Order of Quilt Blocks



CONCH SHELLS.

BY NANCY CABOT.

BORN on the North Atlantic seaboard, "Conch Shells" is one of the old order of quilt blocks used to form an all-over design on a coverlet used for "everyday service." The single block shows a spiral form winding out of the center of the quilt. Passing into the next block, winding into the center of that pattern and so on throughout the coverlet, "Conch Shells" requires 36 sixteenth inch blocks for an entire quilt. A two inch border with a half inch narrow binding complete the spread.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Most Pastel Wall Paper Now Can Be Washed

Well Chosen, This Part of Decore Will Alter Apparent Size of Room.

IN choosing your new wall paper for the living room or the bedroom do not hesitate to select light, pastel hues, if you like them. By far the majority of papers now are washable and can be easily restored to pristine freshness even after they are badly soiled.

Points to bear in mind before the wall paper is bought:

The smaller the room, the lighter the wall colors should be.

The smaller the room, the smaller the design of the paper.

Ceilings are blossoming out in their own papers: turquoise blue, chalk blue, dusty pink, white and stars, etc.

Narrow stripes are smart and tend to make a small room seem taller and larger.

When run horizontally stripes tend to reduce the size of an overlarge, high ceilinged room.

Avoid designs with "spotty" repeat patterns, as these may get on your nerves after a few weeks.

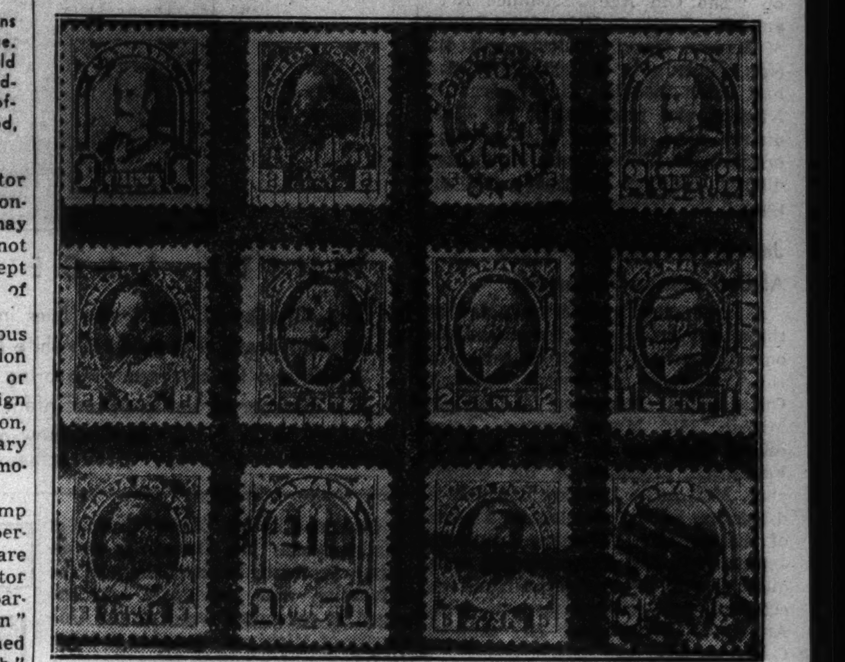
A plain, painted, or papered dado with contrasting color above is seen in some of the most charming dining rooms.

Use vivid or dark hues for occasional rooms only, such as a powder room, a bathroom, a game room, or an alcove.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



For illustrating "condition" in United States stamps, the stamps of Canada have been selected since they are nearly identical in printing, perforation, and in types of cancelations. In the finest examples the canclation does not touch the face, or if it does, it must not strike the eyes. Condition is explained in the accompanying article.

FROM the very start the collector is confronted by the word "condition," and although he may know what is meant, he cannot set up a standard to follow except by inspecting other collections of stamps.

Condition concerns the various characteristics of a stamp in relation to an ideal state for that stamp or series. Beauty, or ugliness, of design or color, are not factors in condition, and the communist issue of Hungary may outrank the Queen Astrid memorial issue of Belgium.

Certain characteristics of a stamp have to do with printing, paper, perforation and perhaps gum. These are beyond the control of the collector and the finest specimens of any particular variety establish "perfection" for that stamp. A dull, lithographed stamp may rate the word "superb," as well as a sparkling engraved stamp, if each are examples of the best work produced for the respective stamps.

The quality of stamps differs greatly and the characteristics which make an early Australian stamp "superb," might bring a rating of only "fair," in some modern issue.

Other factors which affect condition are the result of the use or abuse of the stamp. These include cancelations and damages, such as tears, thin spots, folds, scuffed spots, stains, dirty marks, etc. Perfection in a stamp assumes that it is physically sound, with printing and perforation equal to the best produced for that stamp, and if unused, with the original gum, if any, or if used, with a clear and not too heavy cancelation.

When stamps are equally priced, always choose the one with the least imperfections, but when prices are graded, choose the one which fits your budget. Except for the most common current issues, all United states stamps have a value in relation to their condition, and since there are but few perfection copies, the great mass of collectors must be content with those classing as "very fine," "fine," "good," or "fair," but they should pay for them accordingly.

In the accompanying illustration are examples of stamps in varying "condition." In the top row the first two are "superb," or "perfection," the last two "very fine." In the second row, the stamps are "fine," "good," "fair," and "poor."

The third row shows stamps of various centering from "very fine" to "fair," but with cancelations which detract from the effect. No stamp will rate a "superb" classification if it has a smeared cancelation.

Report on English Nutrition a Jolt to Nation's Pride

LONDON

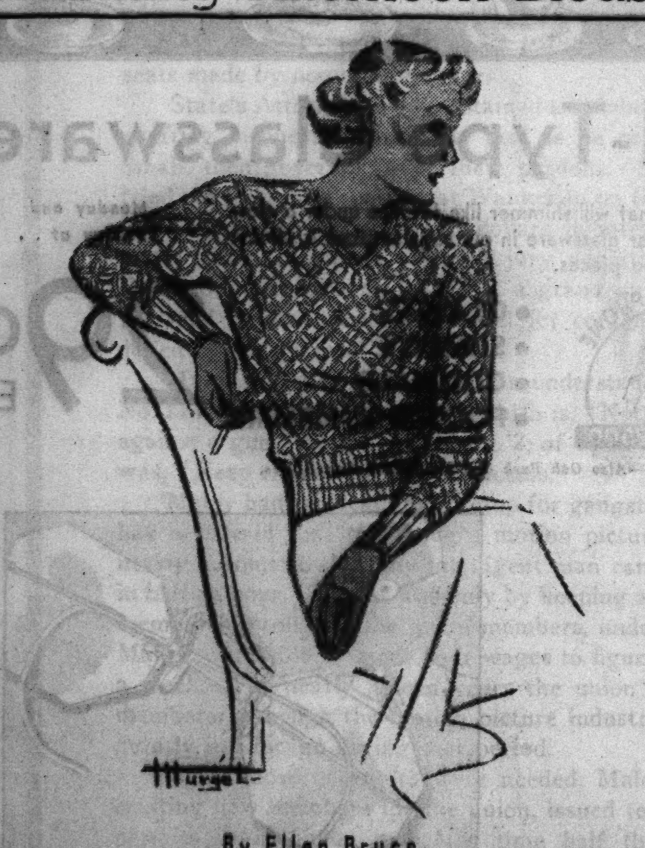
England had a jolt to her pride when the diet of the people committee of the imperial bureau of animal nutrition reported that 4,500,000 people spend on an average of not more than about a dollar per week per head for their food!

Disease, stunted growth in children, and poor physique in adults were the rule among the poorer half of the population.

To bring the diet of this part of the community up to the standard required for health would mean the consumption of 25 per cent more eggs, fruit, and vegetables and 12 per cent more meat and twice the amount of milk.

At the same time it is estimated that in order to bring the milk consumption up to the standards experts consider adequate, England needs 2,000,000 more cows. The Englishman averages only one-half the consumption of milk of an American.

Love Knot Pattern Makes Charming Afternoon Blouse



By Ellen Bruce.

A love knot motif in the body of the blouse distinguishes this long sleeved V-neck crochet model. Either double crochet or a slipper stitch may be used for the band at the waistline and cuffs. A tiny shell or scallop finishes off the V-neckline. The love knot crochet pattern is one of the easiest of all crochet stitches, and one which may be done with a minimum of effort and a maximum of speed.

Fine crêpes, lightweight crochet cotton in any of the available pastel shades, or a soft French zephyr or two ply saxony, are the materials which should be used for a model of this particular type. Shetlands, crinkly or nubby wools, or fingering yarns, are absolutely unsuitable for spring and summer wear in a lacy afternoon blouse.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for crocheting love knot V-neck blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Bullets, Bombs, and Blackmail

How Tom Maloy Ruled Movie Union and Finally Paid Price

By JOSEPH ATOR

IF MOTION picture operators ever have time to look at the films they are projecting, members of the operators' union in Chicago must have been frightfully bored by the recent cycle of gangster pictures. For they themselves have been participants, often unwillingly, in a gang drama which has been unreeled for the last fifteen years.

The principal figure in that drama was Thomas E. Maloy, now spectacularly laid to rest. Two business competitors, equipped with a sawed-off shotgun, caught up with him a year ago on the outer drive and ended his rule. While he lived he ruled the union, and to a considerable extent the whole motion picture business in Chicago, with knuckles and guns and bombs.

Maloy got his start under Mossy Enright, one of the gunmen who ruled building trades unions some twenty years ago until other gunmen killed him. The youthful Maloy was chauffeur of an automobile that came to be known as the "gray ghost." Normally parked in front of Enright's headquarters, it rolled forth on sudden missions loaded with sluggers who executed swift vengeance on union workmen so foolish as to dispute Enright's sway.

Enright was killed sixteen years ago, but before that Maloy had appeared as the operator in a little motion picture theater in 35th street near Calumet avenue. The operators had been organized into a union in 1906 or 1907.

Their first business agent was Elmer D. Miller, better known as Jack. Miller used to make his rounds on a bicycle. His efficiency so pleased the union members that they bought him a motorcycle. Under his guidance most of the operators in the city were unionized.

One of Maloy's friends tells this story of the manner in which Tommy first attracted the attention of his fellow members in the operators' union.

"Some hoodlums were trying to muscle in on the union," the friend said. "Two of them, carrying guns, climbed up the stairs to Maloy's booth. He kicked them in the teeth, took away their guns, and ran them down the street. After that the union decided that he would make a good successor to Miller, who was quitting to open a theater of his own."

That may all have been, but Maloy was hardly the clean-cut young man implied by the tooth-kicking incident. At that time, according to other stories, he was running a gambling house in a hideaway over the stage of the theater where he worked as an operator.

⁂

At any rate, the year 1920 found Maloy firmly intrenched as business agent in the operators' union. The newspapers of that year chronicled that one A. Williams, who sought to run against Maloy for business agent, was tossed out of a meeting of the union. Later Maloy found more strenuous methods necessary.

Under Mossy Enright Maloy had learned the value of guns and fists in running a union. In 1921 he got another lesson which he never forgot. A grand jury in that year started an investigation of extortion practiced by union business agents upon builders. One of the indictments named "Umbrella Mike" Boyle of the electricians' union and seven other persons, one of whom was Maloy, on the charge of extorting from the builders of the Stratford theater $2 a seat for the privilege of installing seats made by nonunion workers.

State's Attorney Crowe obtained a number of convictions of grafting business agents. As fast as he convicted them Len Small, then governor, gave them pardons. Small himself was tried the following summer at Waukegan on the charge of stealing hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest while he was state treasurer, but a friendly jury acquitted the governor. When Boyle refused to testify at a grand jury investigation of the trial he was sentenced to jail for contempt but later pardoned by the grateful Small.

Maloy watched all this with an understanding eye. To rul No. 1 of the gang leader's code, which is, "Nobody likes to argu against a gun," he added rule No. 2, of equal importance. Tha was, "Keep right with the politicians."

Maloy had an ideal union setup for gangster domination. I has been said that the modern motion picture projector is s nearly automatic that any intelligent man can learn to run on in half an hour. Thus it was only by keeping a tightly restricted membership roll that the union members, under the guidance o Maloy, were able to boost their wages to figures as high as $17 a week. For nearly fifteen years the union admitted no new members, although the motion picture industry expanded enormously in Chicago during that period.

When more operators were needed, Maloy, instead of recruiting new members for the union, issued temporary working permits to nonunion men. In time half the motion picture machines in the city were operated by these "permit men." And every permit man paid 10 per cent of his salary for the privilege of working, ostensibly to the union, actually to Maloy. As State's Attorney Courtney said after Maloy's death, the organization was really no union at all. It was an immensely profitable racket for Tom Maloy and his lieutenants.

In 1923 Maloy had adjoining offices at Harrison street and Wabash avenue to those of the notorious Con Shea and one Steve Kelliher. Shea and Kelliher had the theatrical janitors' union for their private preserve. Back of the offices was a gambling house.

FORMED, SINGLE FILE, IN ONE BOX-OFFICE QUEUE, THE 469,530 PATRONS COMPOSING CHICAGO'S DAILY MOVIE AUDIENCE WOULD MAKE A LINE 126 MILES LONG (THE AIR DISTANCE FROM CHICAGO TO ROCK ISLAND, ILL.).

THE 500 REGULAR, 250 (EMPLOYED) AND 200 (UNEMPLOYED) "PERMIT" MOTION PICTURE OPERATORS OF 1932, SIMILARLY PLACED, WOULD FORM A LINE A LITTLE LESS THAN 1/3 OF 1 MILE LONG.

HIGH SPOTS IN THE CAREER OF TOMMY MALOY

① About 1916, Maloy, one-time chauffeur for Enright (slain labor gangster) was operator of movie projector in little 35th street establishment which also housed his gambling hideaway. By 1920 Maloy was firmly fixed in the business agency of the operators' union.

② In 1921, with Mike Boyle and 6 others, he was indicted for extortion from theater builders. Gov. Small pardoned the convicted criminals.

③ In 1923, Maloy disagreed with Shea and Kelliher, his alleged partners in gambling houses near union headquarters. At Al Tierney's resort on 35th street, "Dapper Dan" McCarthy, Maloy's guest of the evening shot and killed Kelliher.

④ In 1927, Arthur Devent, anti-Maloy union member was shot in Lincoln Park, but recovered.

Six months later, all but 75 of the city's theaters closed in an effort to end Maloy's extortionate demands, but re-opened after a week's loss of $1,350,000.

⑤ Each year Maloy boosted the wage scale. He placed friends on theater payrolls, their duties performed by working operators in addition to their own. Admitting no new members, he "permitted" non-union men to work, taxing them 10% of their salaries, assigning them to the better-paying jobs to fatten his own rake-off.

By 1929, Maloy had muscled-in to the electric sign business.

⑥ In 1930, he forced a distributor to deny film service to G. W. Kreuger, Hinsdale exhibitor, for refusal to employ extra operator. Kreuger slugged and shot; his crowded theater bombed.

⑦ In 1931, while States Atty. Swanson investigated union, Maloy's extra-operator bill was enacted.

Kaufman, anti-Maloy operator was shot dead at 9527 Princeton ave.

Maloy and 6 others indicted for conspiracy. Little exhibitors closed theaters, then employed N.Y. union men, many of whom were molested by Maloy thugs at Gary.

● Theaters all over the city were bombed. Mayor Cermak dictated settlement; Maloy trial dropped.

⑧ 1933- O'Hara killed Oser. U.S. started Maloy income inquiry.

Theater fired. Quinn slugged Osterberg. Grand jury resumed investigation of union affairs.

1934- Maloy shown as systematic grafter from theater chain. Reported "raid" of Maloy's summer home and "kidnaping" of Maloy.

⑨ 1935- U.S. charged him with evasion of $81,000 taxes. He entered plea of not guilty.

Feb. 4- Maloy was shot to death by two men in a motor car at 24th street and the Outer Drive, as he and Quinn were riding toward the loop.

MY constituents are yawping loudly, "When are you going to bring a new show to town?" This is not a new refrain; it has afflicted my ear drums for several years, but it becomes more insistent and painful with the passage of time. At present I am advising said "constits." to restrain themselves until Easter, when the Chicago stage will make a faint, seasonal gesture at resurrection, or to soothe their impatience by making a new inspection of "The Great Waltz" and "Boy Meets Girl," which are restoring Chicago's reputation as a long-run theatrical center.

But there are always odds and ends of alleged drama to be picked up by the quaint old customers who are keeping a sedulous death watch on their favorite anachronism. Gather around, good people, and I will cry my wares for the week.

"The Czardas Princess"—A prime specimen of Viennese operetta to be found at the Civic Opera house tonight only. It will be sung and acted in its native language, but that should not discourage the hordes of citizens who have been pretending all their lives that they know German by saying "Gesundheit" and "Wie geht's?" whenever they feel linguistic. Moreover, there will be an English synopsis of the story in the program.

Lyric Romance from the Blue Danube.

This production of "The Czardas Princess" belongs in the Germania broadcast series of annual [sometimes semi-annual] offerings of fine examples of German and Austrian operetta. I have seen several of these shows and have always found them worthy of the opera house tradition. Musically they are superior to the average song and dance amusements of Broadway manufacture. The leading rôles are sung by professionals of high standing on the German-American stage, such as Lucie Westen, Georges Trabert, and Angelo Lippich, and the scenery is in the grand opera style.

"The Czardas Princess" was composed by Emmerich Kalman, who has made important contributions to the modern tradition of Viennese operetta. His "Sari" had a great success in this country; his "Countess Maritza" is also easily remembered. Among his other works are "The Gay Hussars," "Miss Springtime," "Her Soldier Boy," "The Riviera Girl," "A Little Dutch Girl," "The Gypsy Princess," "The Circus Princess," "Golden Dawn," "Paris in Spring," and "The Devil Rider." His style is strongly colored with Hungarian folk song themes and he has a fine gift for melody and orchestration.

First Draft of Goethe's "Faust."

"Faust"—Opens next Tuesday night at the Great Northern theater as the second production of Federal [WPA] theater No. 1 for two weeks.

This is a version of Goethe's masterwork, which contains some aspects of novelty. The text, written by Robert Breen and Justus Shifferes, is based mainly upon Goethe's "Urfaust"—the source material of the great literary edifice. Thereby hangs a scholarly tale. In 1887 a copy of this manuscript was discovered among the papers of the dead Louise von Gochhausen. It was authenticated as a series of dramatic scenes written by Goethe about 1775, when he was 25 years old, on the theme which he later developed into his philosophic poem. The dialog was in the German vernacular, following the mood of the folk tales that preserved the medieval legend of Dr. Faustus.

The "Urfaust" was staged in 1918 in Frankfurt, Goethe's birthplace. Max Reinhardt gave Berlin a glimpse of it in 1920 at the Deutsches theater. The Chicago production will be a free treatment of the original manuscript, with certain embellishments in the spirit of the Faustian legends of the authors' invention.

"Romey and Julie"—Opens next Wednesday night at 5555 Indiana avenue, marking the debut of Federal [WPA] theater No. 3, an activity for Negro players. This is a modernization, in terms of comedy, of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet"; no doubt, it is really a burlesque, all in the spirit of good, dark fun. Dancing, clowning, and singing—spirituals, of course—are promised.

The schedule of Easter premières contains two sound playgoing opportunities and one mysterious stranger. Here they are:

"At Home Abroad," a revue which has been popular on Broadway since last September, will come to the Grand Opera house on Saturday night, April 11, with Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters, and Mitzi Mayfair as its leaders.

"Winterset," a drama in verse by Maxwell Anderson, also a New York hit, will appear at the Harris theater on Monday, April 13, as the fifth play in the series of six on the American theater society's subscription program.

"From Out the Darkness," a drama by Adolph and Paul Salvatori, Chicagoans, will be staged in the Studebaker theater on Sunday, April 12, under the authors' auspices. The young men make this bold announcement: "The plot will freeze the audience to their seats."

DANCING STAR OF AT HOME ABROAD

Mitzi Mayfair will be a star with Beatrice Lillie and Ethel Waters in the Broadway revue, "At Home Abroad," when that production begins an engagement at the Grand Opera house on April 11. She got her start in a "Ziegfeld Follies" several years ago.

Lady Peel's Show

AFTER a long run in the New York Winter Garden, the revue called "At Home Abroad," will come to the Grand Opera house for an engagement beginning Saturday evening, April 11. The company of 90 players includes Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters, Herb Williams, Mitzi Mayfair, Reginald Gardiner, John McCauley, Woods Miller, Paul Haakon, Nina Whitney, and Vera Allen.

Miss Lillie's material, written especially for her, is said to be the best that she has had since "Charlot's Revue." Her songs include "O Leo," "Antonio," "The Toast of Vienna," "Triplets," "You May Be Far Away From Me" and "Paree."

In private life she is Lady Peel.

Harry Richman Comes Back to the Chez Paree

HARRY RICHMAN will return to the Chez Paree on Friday, April 10, as the star of a revue which Paul Oscard is staging to suit his personality. Richman will feature songs from his latest motion picture, "The Music Goes Round," including "Life Begins When You're in Love," "There'll Be No South," "Let's Go!" and "Rolling Along." He will also offer his "Cavalcade of Song Hits," a medley which combines all the numbers identified with Richman during his long career. Until his arrival Helen Morgan, Paul Draper, and Gus Van will continue as stars.

● Abe Lyman and his band come to the College inn of the Hotel Sherman on Saturday, April 11. The ice skating show will continue during his engagement. Anson Weeks and his orchestra will remain at the College inn until the arrival of Lyman.

● "April Foolies," a floor show, opened last night in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Bernie Cummins' dance band remains until May 1, and will return June 13 to open the outdoor Beach Walk.

● Otto K. Eitel has engaged a third attraction for the new floor show opening April 15 in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel. Ramon and Renita, dancers, and Xavier Cugat's Spanish-American orchestra will be featured with Jerry Goff and Jack Kerr, singers, making their first Chicago appearance. They were featured in the Broadway revues, "Strike Up the Band," "You Said It," and "Manhattan Mary."

● Ted Lewis and his orchestra, with a floor show, are breaking records in attendance at the Terrace room of the Hotel Morrison. The program contains the King's Jesters, the Radio Aces, "Snowball" Whittier, Edna Strong, dancer; Nascha, dancer; Kay Gregory, singer; the Hi-Hatters, and Carroll and Shalita, ballroom dancers.

● The dancing De Marcos will make their farewell bow in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone this afternoon. A good-by party, with stage and screen celebrities in attendance, has been arranged.

Unemployed Protest via WPA Project

Uncle Sam Finds Workless Actors and Dramatists Indignant Lot.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—As a showman your Uncle Samuel finds himself in something of a fix. The young actors, directors, dramatists, real and would-be, whom he has taken into his federal theater project, are rebellious. Being pretty much on relief and a little resentful, not to say bitter, they would write him plays and stage him topical revues that are largely devoted to proletarian protests.

The boys see red and act accordingly. Communism and alleged communistic propaganda raise their ugly heads at every turn. The result is proving extremely disturbing to your generous uncle.

The living newspaper unit of the federal theater enterprise is the chief trouble maker. Organized by Hallie Flanagan, at the head of the theatrical division of WPA, partly to take care of two or more groups for which she hoped to find employment, including writers and actors, stage directors and stage workers, it was planned to dramatize the news of the day and present it hot off the wires.

Hopkins Won't Let Theater Insult Mussolini, Selassie.

When it tried to stage its first edition, however, and included as its leading story a history and criticism of the fracas in Ethiopia, administration officials stopped the presses and threw the edition out. There was danger, said Administrator Hopkins, of offending both Mussolini, who did not like to have his nose tweaked, and Haile Selassie, who was terribly sensitive about having his whiskers pulled. Whereupon Elmer Rice, a liberal with radical leanings, promptly resigned as regional director for New York.

The Ethiopian matter having been composed, and young Philip Barber having been appointed to succeed Mr. Rice, the living theater went to work on the history of the AAA, recently declared null and void and without standing in court by the nine supreme masters of the constitution. "Triple A Plowed Under" was the working title agreed upon for this spectacle, which was last week given its first showing and was thereafter seen at two performances nightly at the Biltmore theater, one at 8 o'clock and the other at 10:15. Admission was 25 cents and the crowds were average in size and frequently boisterous in temper.

Without taking sides in the controversy as to whether this division of the federal theater project is being used for political purposes, one may state that the living newspaper experiment itself is decidedly interesting and may easily inspire the development of a new form of theater entertainment.

In addition to the illustration of news stories, there is a loud speaker arrangement through which the voice of an interpreter of the news is heard, revealing the causes leading to the visitation of national calamities and the steps taken in the work of recovery.

The opening scene of "Triple A" is that of a massmeeting before the war at which impassioned speakers exhorted the farmer to raise more and more foodstuffs. The results of the planting are shown in a second scene following the war, when the bottom has dropped out of the market and the farmer is still raising an oversupply of food. There is nothing to do with the yield, even though there is a good deal of suffering for want of food in other sections of the country.

Secretary Wallace and Supreme Court Appear.

On this foundation of drama and news the history of the farmers' strike is builded. One scene shows an unhappy dairy farmer bringing a quart of milk to market and being paid 3 cents for it. The same quart of milk is passed on by the middle man, who buys it, to a hard pressed city dweller, who is forced to pay 15 cents for it. And in answer to the protests of both dairyman and city dweller the middle man growls: "Take it or leave it!"

There are some twenty or thirty similar scenes and a variety of diagrammatic charts bringing the government's crop control program into the picture, with explanations by Secretry Wallace, and culminating in the action of the Supreme court.

Concluding scenes are still a little muddled. They bring in the additional problems of unemployment and the high cost of living. Although as a result of crop control the farmer is able to sell what he doesn't raise to the government and what he does raise to people able to buy at high prices, the overproduction of factory products has thrown a vast number of persons out of work, the depression has settled upon the world, and misery is widespread.

The nearest to a solution the editors of the living newspaper come is to show that the farmer on the one hand has foodstuffs to sell but that the dispossessed of the cities are without funds to pay, while the unemployed plead for work and a chance to solve both problems.

The final tableau is one in which all three groups are crying out that they need each other and hoping for some agency or some miracle that will bring relief to all.

The presentation is naturally crude. But many of the scenes are effectively staged. The decision of the Supreme court in the AAA case is shown with the nine justices in silhouette, Justice Roberts reading an extract from the majority opinion, Justice Stone an extract from the minority report.

Variety Bills

GEORGE JESSEL and Alice Dawn are the stars of a stage revue on the current program at the State-Lake theater. Jessel offers a new act and a repertory of new songs. Alice Dawn is a singer who has appeared in New York night clubs and in radio bills.

Other acts on the bill are: Three Jackson Boys, equilibrists; Gene, Gory, and Roberta, comedians; Gardner and Kane, dancers; the Jocky Club Boys, Verne Buck, and the State-Lake ballet.

Maj. Bowes' amateur unit No. 1, now at the Oriental theater, is the fifth of its kind to appear in Chicago since last October. Included in the company are the Red Bank, N. J., Rangers, a hill billy band; Alfred Reynolds, tap dancer; Sara Berner, mimic; Kenneth Broadhurst, banjoist; John Randolph, baritone; Fritzi Robbins, singing debutante; Skeets Simmons, hobo humorist; Dewey Moon, bell boy vocalist, and Celeste Alvi, lyric soprano.

George Olsen and Ethel Shutta, with their dance band and auxiliary entertainers, are making their farewell appearances at the Chicago theater this week after a run of many months in the College Inn.

Critic Tells Back Stage Saga of Chicago's Civic Orchestra

Group Trains Young Artists for Symphony

Players Scheduled for Concert at Orchestra Hall This Afternoon.

By Edward Barry.

FOR a long time now I have been troubled by a temptation to drag the Civic orchestra of Chicago out into the open some Sunday and let the sunlight shine into its dark places. There should be a story of more than passing interest in an organization that has existed as secretly as the Inquisition, right in the middle of a big city. Even now, the bulk of the townsfolk have nothing better than a very murky idea of its functions and purpose.

March 29 seemed the best day for such disclosures because the orchestra was scheduled to leave its misty caverns on that date, and emerge blinking onto the stage for one of its rare concerts. Accordingly, I slipped into Orchestra hall last Monday and spent a considerable time prowling about the passages of the bewildering building, surprising many a group from the Civic orchestra and taking hurried note of all that went on.

Frederick Stock Original Founder of Orchestra.

I am sorry to have to confess that there are no oubliettes and no hidden outlets to river or lake. The workings of the orchestra are clear as day now—but no less interesting than when the haze of rumor comprised all available knowledge of them.

The Civic orchestra of Chicago, the only institution of its kind in the United States, is designed to give young but proficient performers on orchestral instruments the experience in actual symphony playing that is absolutely necessary if they are ever to hold important positions in the major orchestras of the land. During the sixteen or seventeen years of the Civic orchestra's existence, more than a hundred persons have left it to take places in the symphony orchestras of this and other cities.

Frederick Stock and the Civic Music association were the original founders, Eric DeLamarter has directed all of its activities since the very beginning, and the Orchestral association makes up the small deficits at the end of every season.

The Mortar and Pestle Is Anathema to Jones.

Why not follow John Jones through a few years of his life, and see just how the Civic orchestra works? Jones is eighteen when our story begins, living an outwardly tranquil life in his parents' home in What Cheer, but consumed inwardly with an ambition that will give him peace neither by day nor by night.

There have been pharmacists in his family since the Cardiff Joneses moved to London in the time of Edward VI. John could easily take his certificate in pharmacy, and insure a pleasant and remunerative life for himself.

But the bassoon is his love, and the mortar and pestle anathema. Night after night, from behind the closed doors which are supposed to shield his privacy while chemical experiments are in progress, comes the melancholy melody of his adored instrument, instead of the quiet plink of bursting test tubes. Soon Papa Jones drops in for a quiet talk with his son. His subject is the uncertainty of music as a profession, and the warm security of pharmacy.

Orchestra Directors Examine Prospective Entrants.

He gets nowhere. A few days later John reads in a national music magazine that seven members of the Civic orchestra of Chicago, one of them a bassoonist, have been requisitioned by Kansas City and St. Louis, and that there will be many vacancies when the orchestra resumes its sessions in the fall.

He writes for information, receives the date of the next examination, and works madly during the few weeks left him to perfect his command of the bassoon. He borrows his uncle's truck one dark October night, and long before dawn is chugging through the outskirts of Chicago.

Next afternoon he faces the examining committee, Eric DeLamarter and his advisers. Despite a trembling tone and one or two bad upsets, the discerning conductor sees the boy's capabilities and enthusiasm—and accepts him.

Working with Group Arduous but Pleasant.

With a little wire pulling, and a considerable expenditure of energy and shoe lether, John finds a part time job in Chicago, and some humble but satisfactory lodgings. His father is proud of the recognition the young man has won, and gladly advances the twenty-five dollars matriculation fee.

Now begins an arduous but fairly pleasant life. John finds that he must attend two or three long rehersals a week with the other hundred-odd members of the Civic orchestra, and learn things about ensemble playing that he had never known before. The secrets of coöperation, of subjugating oneself and one's beloved bassoon in order that an even higher end may be reached, offer difficulties which were entirely strange to those carefree days when he puffed away in his own room at home.

Theoretical Side of Music Also Studied.

In addition to these rehersals are the much more grueling Monday afternoons when Hugo Fox of the Chicago Symphony orchestra takes all the bassoons of the Civic orchestra and drills them in the principles of good orchestra playing. He must lay the groundwork for Eric DeLamarter's coördinating efforts—the actual rehersals. The tiny washroom given over to the bassoons [for every cubicle in Orchestra hall is filled that afternoon with groups of violins or violas or flutes, each under the tutelage of a Chicago Symphony orchestra man] echoes hour after hour to the monotonous music of four or five of the instruments moaning in unison. Even the kindliness of Hugo Fox does not prevent John from realizing that he does not know much about professional bassoon playing, for point after point of style must be explained laboriously by the patient instructor. As the weeks go on his technique becomes cleaner, his attack more precise.

There are opportunities, too, to study the theoretical side of music, harmony, counterpoint, and composition. John eagerly avails himself of these, and dreams of the day when his bassoon concertos will be heard from every stage of the world, and his instrument take its rightful place beside those haughtier mediums that have consistently monopolized the output of the best composers.

Programs Perfected for Orchestra Hall Concerts.

Autumn gives way to winter, and Eric DeLamarter marks carefully the weekly improvement in the forces under his direction. The day comes at last when an Orchestra hall concert is announced. From then on, his efforts are bent toward the task of perfecting the program which he has selected, rather than to the practice of sight reading that filled most of the earlier sessions.

These concerts are open to the public at nominal admission prices. The quality of the orchestra by this time is high, with enthusiasm and excitement added to greatly improved musicianship.

A second concert comes along a month or so later, then a third. Before the spring is over the orchestra disbands for the season, and John goes back to What Cheer to spend the summer with his family and earn what money he can at odd jobs around the town. He has been canny enough by this time to master the saxophone, too, and can always be sure of a Saturday night engagement with a pickup band.

Players Show Constant Improvement in Work.

The next year is much like the one that preceded it, but by now our hero is thoroughly routined in orchestra playing, able to read at sight anything within reason, and modulate his tones at the will of the director.

Toward the end of April Mr. X. of the Lake City Symphony orchestra arrives in Chicago and pours his woes into Eric DeLamarter's sympathetic ear. The bassoon situation in Lake City is desperate; none of the local boys can play the simplest passage without destroying the musical prestige of the town. He must have two next October, and wants to hear some of the men of the Civic today. DeLamarter and Fox confer, decide to let X hear all of the orchestra's bassoonists and choose the men himself. X likes John's tone and sureness immensely, draws up the contract on the spot, and orders him to report for work in Lake City early in the fall.

Members Often Hired by Other Directors.

John plays for a year in X's orchestra but finds things very little to his liking, and decides not to renew the contract. There is nothing in particular to complain about, but he feels that another year in the Civic orchestra would make him a much better bassoonist and a much better musician. DeLamarter knows about these homing pigeons from long experience, and welcomes him back for another season of practice and instruction.

When the next spring blows into Chicago, a prospector from a large city in the middle west arrives at Orchestra hall looking for bassoonists. Eight bars of John Jones' art convinces him that the young man will completely solve one of his several problems. He takes him on the spot, and makes the contract a two year one at a good salary. Jones has reached his goal, and at least half of the credit must go to the Civic orchestra of Chicago.

There is another side to the picture, or two more sides, if a picture can have that many faces. Some of the Johns drop out after trying vainly to get positions, others go into allied professions such as public school music. The Chicago Symphony orchestra boasts about thirty-three graduates of the Civic orchestra in its ranks. There is hardly an orchestra in this country which has not received at least one man from this remarkable institution at some time in its history.

Some of Chicago's well known professional musicians are proud to keep their membership in the Civic orchestra. Among them are Robert Sanders and Adalbert Huguelet of the conductors' class. Isler Solomon, conductor of the Lansing orchestra, still comes in regularly for instruction.

Group Giving Concert at Orchestra Hall Today.

Three little items of possible interest. . . . There are a few women in the Civic orchestra, usually about five per cent of its total membership. The director stresses the excellence of some of them and deplores the fact that there are not yet sufficient outlets for first rate women orchestra players.

Mr. DeLamarter makes a big point of using manuscript works in its rehersals, and occasionally in the public concert programs. Young composers are given an opportunity to hear how their brain children really sound; their grasp of the difficult science of instrumentation is improved thereby.

The director emphasizes the need for good winds, cellos, and basses. There are chances in these divisions for men and women who have become discouraged with the instruments in which competition is so heavy.

This article simply leads up to the announcement that the Civic orchestra of Chicago will play a concert in Orchestra hall this afternoon. D'Indi's "Symphony on a Mountain Air" and Boellmann's "Variations Symphoniques" for cello and orchestra find a place on the program. Jenska Slebos, one of the few women members of the orchestra, is soloist in the latter work.

CERTAINLY SEEM HAPPY

Well, everybody seems happy here! This is the very latest picture on tap of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy as they appear in "Rose Marie." (It's at the Roosevelt.) Mr. Eddy is certainly the type who can wear a "mountie" uniform—says, which, girls?

Harpischord Program Set for This Week

Works of Couperin and Bach Are to Be Presented Wednesday.

A remarkable evening of ancient music is promised Wednesday, when Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, harpsichordists of parts, enlist the aid of two flutists, a string quartet, an organist, and another harpsichord player to present a Bach and Couperin program in the Goodman theater. Couperin is the 17th century Frenchman whose reputation is greater than the opportunity to hear his works.

Manuel and Williamson are Chicagoans, specialists in early instruments and the music written for them, and the possessors of what is thought to be the best collection of harpsichords in America. They were made by Pleyel of Paris to closely approximate the instrument for which Bach and Couperin composed much of their music.

The most interesting item on the program is a concerto for two harpsichords and strings, which is said to be a transcription by Bach himself of his concerto for two violins. Let us fervently hope that its original is the familiar one in D minor, and that no one will dare to come late Wednesday night to spoil the bewitching effect of an almost immediate segué from the first movement into the matchless second.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra is busy this fortnight confounding those of its critics who are wont to complain, now and again, that there is not enough contemporary European music of an advanced type on the programs. Excerpts from Alban Berg's "Lulu" were performed last Thursday and Friday, and the Hindemith symphony, "Matthias the Painter," is due this coming week. Berg, by the way, is no longer a contemporary in the strict sense of the word. He died a few months ago.

Hindemith and his "Gebrauchsmusick" have been twin centers for a storm of controversy these last few years. You can find knowing esthetes ready to rate him almost anywhere in the musical scale that your own desires demand, from a place near the very top of the contemporary hall of fame to a sub-basement beneath its foundations.

The symphony, which Chicago is to hear for the first time this week, is based on the opera of the same name—and concerns Matthias Grunewald's three paintings on an altarpiece in the Colmar museum. The work was first played in this country about a year and a half ago.

The Chicago Composers Collective gives its first public concert in the Auditorium Recital hall this afternoon. Works by David Sheinfeld, Nathan Lupu, George Henry, and Ernest Brooks are scheduled for performances. All of these men are Chicagoans. Charles Skopp, violinist, will be featured on the earlier part of the program.

Ennio Bolognini, the cellist whose name has been absent from the city's concert calendar for some years, plays a recital this coming Tuesday at the Studebaker. The program opens with a Richard Strauss sonata, goes from that to a Saint-Saëns concerto, and closes with a miscellaneous group that includes two transcriptions by the cellist himself. The pianist is Leon Benditzky. Bolognini was once principal cello of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

On the same evening the DePaul university orchestra and chorus are scheduled for a concert in the Goodman. The first half of the program, directed by Wesley LaViolette, features two premières. One of them is a Bulgarian dance by Boris, the other a set of six dance rhythms by Theodora Troendle. Miss Troendle plays the piano in the latter work, which treats the instrument as solo. After the intermission comes Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," with Arthur C. Becker conducting.

The New First Congregational church repeats its famous dramatized version of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" next Thursday, Friday at 8, and Sunday evening at 7:45. The united choirs, under George L. Tenney, will have the assistance of a staf of soloists led by Adelaide B. Tenney and Raymond Koch, and of the staf organist, William Lester. Mrs. Tenney had a part in the oratorio when it was first produced at the church in 1918.

Admission is free, but tickets are required. These may be secured at the downtown music stores. There are none required for the Sunday performance.

Bertha Ochsner and Emily Boettcher, handling choreography and music respectively, have composed a ballet based on the sights and sounds of this city. It is called "Chicago by Night," and some of its scenes bear such provocative titles as "Water Front" and "Back of the Yards."

It will be performed next Saturday night by the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago at Mandel hall. The music, said to be of a strange and exciting nature, is given to two pianos and a small orchestra. Miss Boettcher and Marion Hall are the pianists, and John Pratt is doing the costumes. An especially splendid excerpt from Mrs. Harold Stark's description of the new ballet is appended. Mrs. Stark is president of the society.

"Its implications range from the amusing to the profound. Implicit in its movement are the beauty and ugliness of a great modern city, and the fact that its talented collaborators are not unmoved by the wonder of America's place in the world, and Chicago's place in America."

CELLIST IN PROGRAM AT STUDEBAKER

Ennio Bolognini, who was principal cellist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra six seasons ago, plays in a program at the Studebaker Tuesday night. His accompanist is Leon Bendtisky.

Fragile Charm Wins Anita Louise Fame

Success Proves Hollywood Still Has Place for Delicate Feminine Type.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Anita Louise, the young girl in Hollywood who dared to be different, is now beginning to reap the rewards for it. Cast in many recent rôles, she is now to play the feminine lead in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" opposite Errol Flynn for Warner's. It's not so long since lovely Anita played Titania in "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the feminine lead in "Here's to Romance" with Nino Martini. But perhaps the biggest break in her earlier career was as the youthful Marie Antoinette in Dolores Del Rio's vehicle "Du Barry."

Anita Louise is as delicate and dainty as she appears in her film rôles, and her winsome fragility showed to advantage in the gray suit and gray skull cap set off with huge wool pompoms that she wore the day we interviewed her.

"A couple of years ago it seemed that I wasn't getting any parts and that I was going to lose out on a film career because I wasn't the modern type of girl. Arline Judge and others of her vivacious modern type were getting all the breaks. I simply wasn't the type. I'm not jazzy, I'm not cute, and I would look silly speaking the lines of one of those slangy modern girls.

Hopes to Have Both Stage and Screen Careers.

"However, it's all worked out for the best, I guess, for I have been fortunate in the rôles I've had. None has been like any other, each has varied enough so that I've escaped being typed. If I had been the popular, modern sort of girl I'd probably find myself safe in a well paying rut but getting nowhere in particular.

"I have considerable ambition. Eventually I hope to establish myself on both the stage and screen. I know how valuable the stage is as a developer of acting talent. You know I've done two stage plays here on the coast. One, not long ago, 'One Sunday Afternoon,' and the other 'The Marquise' with Billie Burke. When I was 7 I played in the Broadway production of 'Peter Ibbetson' with Walter Hampden. Among stage notables Katharine Cornell is my ideal.

"I'm happy that I have finally had a chance to use some of the things I have been trained in in my screen work. When I made 'The Dreamer' I had a chance to use my dancing. It was a joy to work under Nijinska and Nini Theilade. Then in 'Here's to Romance' I did a bit of dancing as the ballet girl. I hope some time to get a chance to play my harp in a film, for I've worked hard on it."

Started Work at 3 as Advertising Model.

Incidentally Anita Louise is rated a good harpist even among professional musicians of standing, with some of whom she has appeared in concert. She is a personal friend of Leopold Stokowski, who recently visited here.

Anita's earning career started in New York City at the age of 3. She was used as an advertising model. At 7 she was on the stage, as related, and at 8 she was working in films beginning with "The Music Master" for Fox. She is now 18 and has been a favorite for casting in costume rôles, as her Dresden china charm is quite unlike anything to be found among the numberless young actresses in films.

The only child of her mother, Mrs. Ann Beresford, Anita is of English and Alsatian descent. Her childhood education was in the professional children's school in New York and later the Greenwood School for Girls in Hollywood. Private tutors have made her proficient in German, French, piano, harp, dancing, and singing. She is a demon on the tennis courts, rated Hollywood's best "southpaw" girl player.

Anita Never Forgets to Be a Lady.

Her home, French provincial, in which white and pastel shades predominate, was done by her mother, a professional interior decorator, whose shrewd management has placed her daughter's career on the firm foundation it has.

While Anita is seen about at all the parties of the younger crowd and has her full share of romance and dancing partners, she never departs from her ladylike demeanor. She's fun, but she's an extremely nice girl and doesn't see any reason for pretending to be wild when she isn't. She is none of the things that most people think movie actresses are, and doesn't feel she has to drink too many cocktails and smoke incessantly to give the illusion of sophistication so cherished by girls of her age. In short, Anita Louise has been different in a town where most people don't dare to be different, and she's made it pay.

"Dodsworth's" End.

Walter Huston will end his tour in "Dodsworth" on April 4 at Cincinnati, but will stay in character long enough to make the picture version. He will return to New York in the fall to act "Othello."

PLENTY OF BAD NEWS

Got some bad news, Miss Hopkins? We're afraid so. Because this pretty lady does get bad news, and plenty of it, in her new photoplay, "These Three." (United Artists.) She's one of the "three." The others are Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea.

GOOD Morning!

O! O! That I should see the day when Preston Foster would be cast in such a conglomeration! "We're Only Human"—ha! A joke. Downright inhuman, us as likes him calls it, to treat poor Preston so!

As to scenario—the piece is the boloney—ab-so-lute! Should I go into details? Well—a little—not much. I'd get too tired. Because—you see—there are such a world of stupidities committed . . .! Like this——

A Metropolitan Newspaper Has One Reporter on Staf.

Robbery and murder can take place in a downtown New York bank without ever a police corps arriving. BUT—away out in the sticks, when a shot is fired, the whole department of Manhattan mace bearers, afoot, a-motorcycle, and a-auto, arrive on the spot with a celerity that is miraculous even in a punk movie. Then—and did this burn me up!

You observe a metropolitan newspaper [N. Y. sheet] functioning with, apparently, but one reporter on its staf—a girl cub—who "covers" the police beat and chases about with a police card in the band of her hat . . .! And so forth—but I refuse to go on . . .

Preston Foster Plays Part of Fearless Cop.

Mr. Foster saves the day for the piece as much as the day can be saved for it. He's seen as a fearless cop, who packs an awful wallop in his fists, and is forever rushing in single handed when it would have been smarter to summon aid. For his foolish valor Pete McCaffrey receives kicks instead of encomiums from the powers higher up. [His side kick, Danny Walsh, had learned better.]

Circumstances Too Foolish to Be Really Exciting.

Danny's death—and the escape of the murderer who had been responsible for that death—and plenty of other casualties—result in a train of circumstances that would have been highly exciting if they weren't so often highly foolish. There is a finale that should sit well with the credulous.

The cast numbers several excellent players besides Mr. Foster—James Gleason, Jane Darwell, Arthur Holt.

But with such a vehicle—and a director asleep at the switch—what on earth's the use of a good cast?

BitsaBOUTem.

Some years ago GRETA GARBO lost a little gold signet ring that had a sentimental value for her. She searched untiringly for it—but it didn't come to light. The other day, in the ruins of an old M-G-M commissary, the ring showed up—and Miss Garbo has a nice surprise awaiting her when she returns to Hollywood from her vacation abroad. . . . It cost NELSON EDDY'S mother around seventy-five dollars to do a thoughtful thing for her boy. Nelson was on a concert tour in Seattle when "Rose Marie" had its Hollywood preview. His mother arranged so that he could hear the applause over a telephone wire! . . . Said NAZIMOVA in a recent interview: "Eight fast changing years since I was in Hollywood! I left it completely broke in 1928—had lost not only what I earned in pictures, but all that I had before as well. . . . Such remarkable progress since then in acting, directing, photography, lighting! . . . For myself I have declined all offers to return to pictures, and shall continue to do so unless an exceptional rôle appeals to me.

DOG ACTORS are again having their day on the screen. "The Voice of Bugle Ann" has a dog hero. Rin Tin Tin Jr. makes his debut in "The Tough Guy" and Buck, who played in "Call of the Wild," is at present working in "The Country Beyond." . . . Director FRANK CAPRA waited a year to get RONALD COLMAN for the principal rôle in "Lost Horizon"—a Columbia output. Mr. Colman was so anxious to play the part that he made special provisions for it in his new contract at Twentieth Century-Fox. . . . From the lips of FRED MacMURRAY—[Attention, girls!]—"It's my observation that small town girls are prettier than those from the big cities because they have more freshness; they're not over groomed. They have natural eyebrows, and natural hair and lashes. That's very attractive to me. If it were up to me to award the palm for sheer prettiness—I think I would hand it to the small town girls."

HERBERT MARSHALL'S been having the divil of a time finding a 1914 tie and tails to wear in "Till We Meet Again." . . . GINGER ROGERS is proud as a peacock over the fact that her comparatively brand new husband, LEW AYRES is now a full-fledged movie director. . . . KATHARINE HEPBURN has a new green lether jacket that she wears with her favorite slacks. . . . DAVID MANNERS, who's been in some secluded spot or other, has been signed for a featured rôle in "The Glory Parade." . . . They tell us that HELEN HOLMES has come out of retirement on her ranch near Sonora, Cal., and will reënter the movies. Her husband, Lloyd Saunders, a former movie cowboy, has sold the ranch. . . . Want some "tabs" on the SORT OF MAIL the stars receive? The Samuel Goldwyn research staf reports as follows:

1. That only 20 per cent of so-called fan mail addressed to motion picture luminaries is adulatory.
2. That 10 per cent contains requests for autographs and pictures.
3. That at least 10 per cent comes from self-appointed critics who dole out advice to the stars on suitable stories, rôles, clothes, etc.
4. That more than 15 per cent contains requests for money, and another 10 per cent requests for advice in love and business matters.
5. That fraternal organizations write 10 per cent of all letters received by the studios. These ask permission to use the names of popular players for exploitation.
6. That letters from enterprising fans who solicit financial backing for new [and sometimes impractical] ventures comprise the largest classification—30 per cent of all fan mail.

See you tomorrow!

Breaking Into the Movies—How It Is Being Done Today

Odds Against New Film Prospect

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

SHE tried to sell a magazine subscription to Jack Votion, head of the new talent department at Paramount—and that is how Irene Bennett landed a screen contract for herself.

It was not quite so easy for Olympe Bradna to break into the movies. Born into a French theatrical family, she emerged from acrobatic dancing at the age of eight in the French version of "Hit the Deck" to parts in the Folies Bergère. At fourteen she was a star of the French Casione. She came to New York in Clifford Fisher's production of the Folies Bergère, where Oscar Serlin, Paramount scout, spotted her and signed her.

Gail Sheridan, from a career as a dancer under Kosloff and Cansino, became a Goldwyn girl in "Strike Me Pink," with Eddie Cantor, and was signed from that start.

Jill Deen, hailing from Kansas City, was touring in vaudeville in a dance act, and after three years of it was spotted in New Orleans dancing at the Jung hotel, where a talent scout signed her.

Wilma Francis was signed in New Orleans, too, though at the time she was working in an insurance office as summer work to help with her education at Loyola university, where she was studying journalism. Ben Piazza, talent scout, found her.

Another New Orleans girl is Ann Evers, who went to New York to enter the Academy of Dramatic Arts. She frequently was summoned to various New York studios to help out opposite men taking film tests, but she never got one herself. At home in New Orleans on a visit, she met a talent scout.

Louise Small also is from New Orleans, where she studied dramatics under Bernard Szold, head of the Little theater there. A beauty contest winner, she was chosen Miss New Orleans in 1933, Miss Louisiana in 1934, and Miss America in 1934 at A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

John Morley of Oakland joined a little theater group in San Francisco. Radio work and four weeks in vaudeville landed him a job in "Annapolis Farewell" at Paramount, where he was signed.

Henry Arthur started out as a dancer and soon was dancing and emoting in Eddie Dowling's Broadway musical, "Thumbs Up." After three years of Broadway he came to Hollywood, gained the ear of Melville Shauer, today a producer but then in the talent department, who gave him a chance in "College Scandal." A contract followed.

≈

The University of Michigan, the Cleveland Playhouse, and Broadway started Adrienne Marden in the show business. The Pasadena Community Players and Oliver Hinsdale's theater, also in Pasadena, got her a break in the show "Merrily We Roll Along." Here the scouts caught up with her.

Football at Notre Dame started Nick Lukats on the road to fame. He had film offers, but put them off till after playing with the All Stars against the Chicago Bears in 1934 in The Chicago Tribune's game at A Century of Progress.

Frances Farmer is the girl who traveled 12,000 miles to Hollywood via Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Germany, Poland, France, and England as winner of a popularity contest in her home town, Seattle. Abroad she met a Dr. George Gladstone, who arranged to introduce her to Shepard Traube, a theatrical producer in New York, who took her to Paramount for a test. Her father is a prominent Seattle attorney. Frances has a college education and was prominent in college dramatics at the University of Washington, which she attended.

All these aforementioned youngsters of the movies now are being developed by Paramount. All, barring breaks that may turn against them, are on the road to genuine stardom.

And, speaking of breaks, it is the same Jack Votion to whom Irene Bennett tried to sell a magazine subscription who knows more about breaks, perhaps, than anyone else in Hollywood. As head of Paramount's new talent department he knows how the new ones break into the movies and how not infrequently the movies break them.

"No new prospect gets a screen test at once," says Votion. "It wouldn't be fair to her or to him, and it would be too expensive for the studio. It's always a matter of two or three weeks, in which they receive a bit of training, are made up properly through experiment in the makeup department, and given a chance to familiarize themselves a bit with what is expected of a new prospect.

"The stars of today have to be replaced eventually—and it's up to us to comb the mass of prospects and find something that can be made into acceptable screen material, we hope. We get our new prospects through talent scouts largely, who haunt college campuses, beauty contests, theaters, amateur productions, and cafés. Anyone in the studio from the gateman and policeman up can recommend anyone who seems talented. We see them all.

"Percentages run something like this: Out of one hundred, ten get into my office for an interview. The rest are discarded by my assistant. Out of 220 I saw recently, three were signed to contracts.

"Those landing contracts are given small salaries and work on sets as needed. Coaches in dramatics, music, and dance are arranged for. They report to the studio daily for school or any work they are assigned to. Auditions and screen tests are arranged to show executives the new products. When some talent begins to show we have to keep them out of big parts they're not yet ready for. We sometimes have to spend two years keeping talented kids out of big parts. We have to keep ideas out of their heads. Their progress will be spoiled if they get premature ideas.

"Most girls have not had training or experience. A good family training is an essential, however. When I gave Gary Cooper his first part at $5 a day I liked his pleasantly awkward look, which he still has, but it was evident that he was not a crude product, that he had a family background.

"A few years ago a man came in to see me, a carpenter, who in the boom building times then was making his $12 to $14 a day. I discouraged him. It was Carl Dane, later famous in 'The Big Parade' and for a while successful in comedies. Yet I maintain I was right about it when I advised him to stay away from pictures. They cost him his life in the end. He would be alive today if he were still a carpenter."

Votion also was wrong when he misjudged the ability of Jimmy Cagney and Fred Astaire. These errors happen very rarely, for the talent picker must be guided in selection by some general rules. No one can tell finally and absolutely what the chances of a given individual are; only the odds are known. Children are the biggest chance of all, as they change so rapidly.

"A new recruit will get as much as five weeks of preliminary training before a test is made," continues Votion. "During this time we are busy on our side, studying the contacts of the new arrivals—friends, habits, pastimes, their attitude toward their new status. Do they take to wearing smoked glasses and speaking with an accent, we worry! All these things have a bearing on their value to us.

"Sometimes a talented youngster is let go at the end of the first six months because there has been no spot in a picture in which he or she fits, or there is none in immediate prospect.

"It isn't good economy to let them stay on the pay roll too long. One of our finds whom we had to let go in that way was Wendy Barrie. It was a mistake, and I fought against it, but figures on the pay roll, piling up week after week with no work done to balance the ledger, must be deferred to.

"Sometimes the gamble is taken; it frequently depends on whether the original contract mentions a large raise for the second option. So we start them off; and if they remember us from their heights of stardom enough to give us a kindly 'hello' it's swell. We work twelve to fourteen hours a day in our department, much of it on the tests we make. Everything depends on the showing the player makes in these tests.

"When the player is sent to the dramatic coach we always request that no attempt be made to modify the personality of the player. It is important for the voice and character to remain the same in essentials, though trimming and development are required. If every girl were taught to speak in the same way as Frances Farmer, for instance, it would be monotonous. The cultured and aristocratic accents of Miss Farmer are not for everyone. We sign a player because we believe he or she possesses something unique and worth developing. We try to bring this out, not destroy it. In show business personality and individuality are what count."

Studio's Talent Picker and Drama Coach Tell Secrets

Paramount's dramatic coach, Miss Phyllis Loughton, is a personable young woman with a head full of red hair and ideas and a world of experience behind her. She was once known as the youngest stage director in the business when at the age of eleven she directed a stock company and made money for it. This was in Jessie Bonstall's theater in Detroit.

When players come to Miss Loughton from the talent department she sizes them up in a few conversations and then goes to her files of dramatic material and selects two or three acts as possibilities suited to their personality. They are sent home with a scene assigned them to go over for two or three days alone. Then Miss Loughton cues them through it. She says: "I can't explain how, but in five or ten minutes of this I know what's what, no matter how well or how badly they read their lines."

Fred MacMurray was almost bad, she admitted recently, but "there was a spark of integrity and intelligence that would get him somewhere." It certainly has this past year, as you know if you have seen Paramount films.

"At this point," Miss Loughton resumes, "it is decided whether the player will get a film test or not. Then I supervise the preparations for the test, which may be in a week or a month. Then I direct the cutting and the test is shown to the executive in charge. This decides if there will be a contract signed. If it is, they come back to me. Then the long, serious grind of preparing them for a screen career begins.

"There is no pattern followed in this training. Each person has different needs. Some must have 'breakdown' work done. Accent, poise, and clothes must be corrected. Then the acting training begins. Players are put in amateur productions staged at the studio. If possible they are spotted for a suitable rôle in a film. Extra work and bits are given them to help cure their camera-consciousness. When they are not working they report to me daily. Often they stand around on sets and absorb everything they see.

"Their physical routine is taken care of outside the studio, of course. This is their dancing, and diet and general conditioning when they are needed. I give them the elements of proper breathing and teach them how to walk, and I give them directions for posture exercises. They have to achieve the natural and unself-conscious grace of a child; a child always walks and breathes well.

"When players get a part I work with them on it, of course. The director of the picture coöperates with me in helping the young player achieve his conception of the rôle. How long do the players go along with me? Until they are finished enough actors to get along with the direction they are given on the set.

"I must know the young players better than their mothers do. I must have their love and respect or I can do nothing, and I must secure this and maintain it. Often I must deflate those first exalted ideas they have of themselves. I must build their ego, yet deflate it; a very nice balance must be struck."

A few of Miss Loughton's pupils at Paramount have been Randy Scott, Wendy Barrie, Gail Patrick, Benny Bartlett, and Fred MacMurray.

FAVORITE POEMS

FRANCIS BRET HARTE, famous American writer of poetry and prose and author of the verses "Dickens in Camp," which appear below, was born in Albany, N. Y., on Aug. 25, 1836, and died in Camberley, England, May 5, 1902. Harte was forced to quit school at thirteen because of family financial straits. At sixteen he went to California, where he became a printer. From typesetter to newspaper editor and finally to authorship were logical steps for this talented man. Harte's fame as a writer brought him rewards in the United States consular service, his last appointment in that service being to the consulate in Glasgow.

DICKENS IN CAMP

Above the pines the moon was slowly drifting,
The river sang below;
The dim Sierras, far beyond, uplifting
Their minarets of snow.

The roaring campfire, with rude humor, painted
The ruddy tints of health
On haggard face and form that drooped and fainted
In the fierce race for wealth;

Till one arose, and from his pack's scant treasure
A hoarded volume drew,
And cards were dropped from hands of listless leisure,
To hear the tale anew;

And then, while round them shadows gathered faster,
And as the firelight fell,
He read aloud the book wherein the Master
Had writ of "Little Nell."

Perhaps 'twas boyish fancy,—for the reader
Was the youngest of them all,—
But, as he read, from clustering pine and cedar
A silence seemed to fall:

The fir trees, gathering closer in the shadows,
Listened in every spray,
While the whole camp, with "Nell," on English meadows
Wandered and lost their way.

And so in mountain solitudes—o'ertaken
As by some spell divine—
Their cares dropped from them like the needles shaken
From out the gusty pine.

Lost is that camp, and wasted all its fire;
And he who wrought that spell?—
Ah, towering pine and stately Kentish spire,
Ye have one tale to tell!

Lost is that camp! but let its fragrant story
Blend with the breath that thrills
With hop vines' incense all the pensive glory
That fills the Kentish hills.

And on that grave where English oak and holly
And laurel wreaths entwine,
Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly,—
This spray of western pine.

Genius of Faraday Opened Way to the Dynamo

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

Michael Faraday, son of a blacksmith, who became one of the world's greatest scientists.

OCCASIONALLY it happens that some obscure person by an apparently insignificant deed profoundly influences the course of human history. Such a one was a kindly bookworm named Mr. Dance who dwelt in London in 1812. At the time the newly built smokestacks at Manchester were spreading their grimy pall over England and the continent was convulsed by the mad ambitions of a Corsican adventurer.

Mr. Dance did not approve of such things and sought refuge in a book shop, where he whiled away the time conversing with a twenty-year-old journeyman bookbinder named Michael Faraday. Faraday's father was a Yorkshire blacksmith who had come to London in search of work. Without formal education, young Faraday had been apprenticed at an early age, with no wealth other than instinctive good manners, a gentle and genuine humility of spirit, and as brilliant a mind as a man ever had.

Doubtless Mr. Dance was a phenomenal bore, but Faraday was too polite to mention it to anyone. Mr. Dance liked the youth and one day gave him tickets to a series of lectures by Sir Humphrey Davy, the outstanding British scientist of his day. After the lectures were over, Faraday, to show his appreciation, wrote up some notes on them and showed them to Mr. Dance. The latter persuaded him to send them to Davy for criticism.

Davy probably was fed up with the overeducated fools he had been meeting, and he recognized the genius back of Faraday's notes. He kept up the correspondence, and shortly thereafter Faraday left the book shop to become a bottle washer in Davy's laboratory in the Royal Institution of Great Britain.

The fact that Britain and France were engaged in an appalling war with each other did not prevent Davy from making a lecture tour of the latter country in 1813. Faraday accompanied him as lecture assistant and secretary. On their return to London in 1815 Faraday began his first independent research.

The remainder of his life was the story of his scientific work and was quite uneventful otherwise. He remained with the institution for the rest of his days, becoming director of the laboratory in 1825, and a professor (with only research duties, and no teaching) in 1833. During the fifty years following 1815 the story of his life is that of his research. And since he delved into so many fields simultaneously, it is useless to discuss the latter with any attempt at chronological order, but we shall do so according to the separate fields of endeavor.

⁂

His greatest discoveries were in the field of electricity. At the time he began his studies the accumulated knowledge on this subject could be summed up rather briefly. It was known that there were two kinds of electricity, positive and negative, and that like charges repelled each other and opposite charges attracted with a force varying inversely as the square of the distance separating them.

It was also known that two different metals, placed in a salt or acid solution and joined together outside of it, generated what appeared to be a continuous flow of charge known as an electric current, and that such a current was capable of breaking down fused or dissolved salts into their chemical elements.

One of Faraday's first discoveries about electricity was that the net electrical charge produced in an insulated system is always zero; that is, the production of a charge is always accompanied by the production of a corresponding charge of opposite sign in another part of the system.

Shortly after this discovery he carried out his famous "ice pail" experiment with an electroscope. An electroscope is essentially a vertical metal rod insulated from the ground, to which is suspended a strip of metal foil folded to an inverted V shape (Figure 1). When the instrument carries no electrical charge the two leaves of the foil hang limply together, but when the rod is touched by a charged body the like charges flowing into the two leaves cause them to repel each other and to fly apart.

Faraday fastened a metal ice pail to the upper end of the electroscope and lowered a charged metal ball into it without making actual contact. The leaves flew apart, and fell together again as soon as the ball was withdrawn. Faraday explained this by saying that the attraction of the charged ball (call it positive) had drawn negative electricity into the pail from the rest of the electroscope. The loss of the latter from the leaves left them positively charged, so that they then repelled each other.

If the pail was momentarily grounded while the ball was in it, the leaves fell together, because negative electricity was drawn from the ground to the pail, allowing the electricity in the latter to return to the leaves and neutralize the positive charge. Then if the ball were withdrawn the negative charge in the pail distributed itself through the electroscope, forcing the leaves apart. If the ball was then allowed to touch the pail both of them became completely discharged, showing that the charge on the ball and that attracted into the electroscope were equal in quantity but opposite in sign. The significance of this discovery lay in the fact that it demonstrated that the mere proximity of an electric charge to a conductor could induce a charge in the latter.

⁂

In 1821 the scientific world was aroused by Hans Christian Oersted, a Danish physicist. Oersted found that if an electric current passed along a wire parallel to and below a suspended magnetic needle, the latter was deflected, as though the current had set up a magnetic field perpendicular to its direction. A few years later a French scientist, Ampere, showed that this magnetic field could be intensified by bending the wire into a loop.

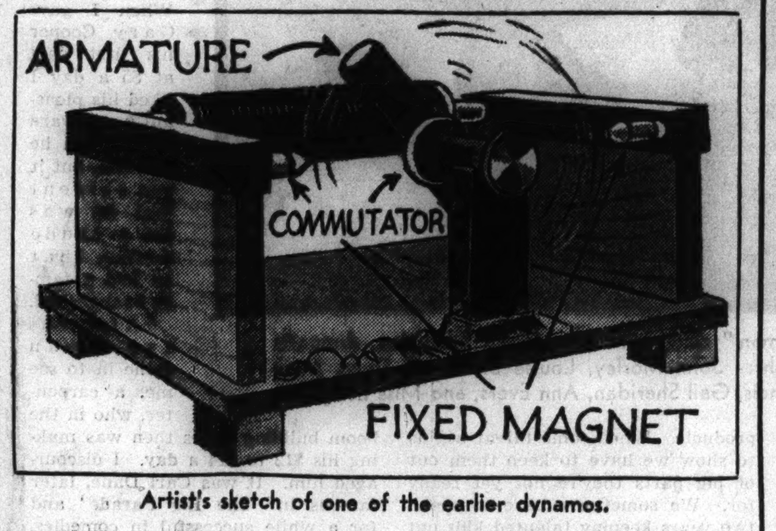
Faraday carried these experiments to their logical conclusion by bending the wire into a number of loops, or, in other words, a coil. He found that the resulting field was much more powerful. Then, since iron is easily magnetized, he placed an iron bar along the axis of the coil and produced the first electromagnet.

Since an electric current could be carried over a considerable distance by a wire, the electromagnet made it possible for a man to create and destroy a magnetic field at distant places. The invention of the telegraph by S. F. B. Morse in 1844 was a logical development from this fact. Another invention springing from the electromagnet was that of the galvanometer for measuring electric current. This device consists of a lightly built coil suspended between the poles of a magnet in such a way that its axis lies across the field. When a current passes through the coil the latter becomes an electromagnet and tries to turn itself parallel to the magnetic field. The amount of the twist is proportional to the current.

Faraday had shown that the electric field surrounding an electrostatic charge could induce a charge in a neighboring conductor. Would it be possible for a magnetic field in the space surrounding an electric current to induce another current in a nearby wire? Experiment showed that mere proximity of a wire to a magnet did not cause a current in the former. But Oersted had observed that a current had caused a magnetized needle to move. Could a moving magnet, then, generate a current?

Faraday in perhaps his greatest experiment showed this to be true. As motion is a relative thing anyway, instead of moving a magnet past a wire, he moved a wire through a magnetic field. He had a coil and a galvanometer in a circuit. He held the coil so that its axis was parallel to the earth's magnetic field. When he quickly twisted the coil around in the opposite direction through 180 degrees the galvanometer showed a momentary surge of current.

After making a thorough study of the mathematical relations between the speed of the wire and the size and strength of the magnetic field, Faraday showed that the current resulted from the wire's motion across the direction of the force between the two poles of the magnet. Then why not generate a current by continuously revolving a loop or a coil of wire between the poles of a horseshoe magnet?



Artist's sketch of one of the earlier dynamos.

A little thought will show that a particular portion of such a revolving loop will move downward through the field during half of a revolution and up again during the other half. This change of direction through the field causes a corresponding reversal in the direction of the current; that is, the current produced would be alternating rather than direct.

Faraday invented the first direct-current generator in 1831 (Figure 2). It consisted of a metal disk mounted like a wheel on a metal shaft. This was placed between the poles of a magnet with the shaft in line with the magnetic force, and the disk therefore cutting across it perpendicularly. The disk behaves as though it were made up of a large number of wires radiating from the shaft and when rotated generates a steady voltage between its center and its rim. By means of a metal brush rubbing against the shaft, and another against the rim, a direct current can be drawn from the disk.

Although this was the first direct-current generator, it is not the same principle used in present-day dynamos for this purpose. In the present ones a coil revolves through a magnetic field, the same as in an alternating current generator, but by means of a commutator the coil's connections with the rest of the circuit are reversed at the moment when the current reverses itself in the coil.

Nevertheless we would not be wrong in considering Faraday the inventor of the electric generator and of the electric motor, which is nothing but a generator run backward. The story is told that in later years Faraday was showing Gladstone, the great statesman, through his laboratory, and explained to him how the generator worked.

⁂

Gladstone was an intelligent man, but a trifle contemptuous of things not in his own line. After hearing Faraday's explanation he superciliously inquired as to the possible usefulness such a thing could possess. Faraday paused for a moment to search his mind for an explanation that an eminent political leader could understand. Then a happy thought struck him and he replied, "Some day you will be able to tax it."

About this time Faraday reasoned that since a changing current set up a changing magnetic field surrounding the wire, and since a changing magnetic field was much the same with respect to a particular point in space as a moving one, then a changing current must induce a current in a wire running parallel to it. He found this to be the case. This induction of alternating electric currents in secondary circuits is the principle upon which the modern transformers are based.

⁂

Faraday made two other important theoretical discoveries in electricity. He investigated the decomposition of salts by electric currents and found that definite units of electricity were required for each molecule decomposed; this law laid the foundation for Arrhenius' theory of ionization some fifty years later. He also found that the electric charge that a given voltage could put on a condenser could be increased by filling the space between the plates with certain insulating substances such as paraffin or sulphur. As a memorial to his contribution in this line the unit used in measuring the capacity of condensers is known as the farad.

The closing decades of his life, from 1845 to 1867, were devoted to the study of magnetism. His findings can be summed up briefly by saying that he found that magnetism was not a property limited to a few metals such as iron, but was common in different forms in all matter. A powerful magnetic field could induce magnetism, usually of quite weak intensity, in most materials, just as an electric field could induce an electric charge.

Spring Best Time to Buy New Pup

These Boston terrier puppies, O'Keto, at left, 5 months old, and Babe, 4 months old, typify the appeal that a puppy has for millions of dog fanciers. (Tribune photo.)

ALTHOUGH the people who like dogs will insist that there is no one season of the year that can be called better for dogs than another, we believe that spring has its advantages for the people who wish to buy a dog—especially their first puppy. The advantages that we see in purchasing a puppy in the spring concern training, sunshine, and outdoor exercise.

Although anyone with ordinary common sense can take a puppy at any season of the year and raise it without a great deal of trouble, bringing up a pup in the spring is somewhat easier because of weather conditions, especially in the northern half of the United States.

It's possible to take a pup outdoors a great deal in mild weather, and in many cases house-breaking the pup is made much easier. Of course, dog fanciers who live in warmer parts of the United States, where spring already has arrived, don't have to worry so much about weather at this season of the year, but shopping for a puppy is greatly facilitated here in the northern tier of states after Old Man Winter has faded from the picture and mild, sunshiny days give promise of the spring season.

Inasmuch as we always have taught pups their house manners by taking them outdoors at certain intervals, we prefer to procure a new pup at this season rather than in cold weather. It's obvious that the pup doesn't mind going outdoors at this season like he does when it is cold and snowy. Then, too, we like to feed our dogs in their kennels and teach them that they must expect to spend time in their kennels. Thus it is easier to give them these lessons at this season of the year than in midwinter.

Another advantage of the season is the exercise and sunshine angle. A normal, healthy pup needs exercise. It's good for him to get outdoors and romp around or to be taken on walks when he is old enough to get his lessons in contacting strangers, automobiles, strange noises, street cars, trains, and other things that he must know about. Obviously this season in the northern part of the United States is better for such education than in winter, when it may be cold and stormy.

If one is somewhat puzzled about the breed of dog to get, two things can be done to get help on a decision—first, visits to kennels to see the breeds that one has in mind, and, secondly, a visit to a dog show, where one can size up from twenty to forty breeds under one roof. There are many dog shows scheduled at this season of the year in every part of the country. Practically every city of any size is holding an all-breed show. In fact, there are regular circuits in some parts of the country, the southern circuit being an excellent example. By going to a dog show one meets dog fanciers who can supply all kinds of information about the breeds or breed he is interested in. And one can see excellent specimens of the breed or breeds that he has in mind.

Readers constantly ask us to help them decide on the breed of dog that they should buy. We can help very often with suggestions on size, inherent qualities of some breeds, and ease of handling, but we invariably urge the prospective buyer to see the various breeds and study them first hand. With dog shows and kennels numerous, this is not difficult to do.

After a healthy, happy-go-lucky, peppy little pup has been obtained (the urge is to get one that is not terribly shy or timid), the dog owner can get started on the right track by reading a simple booklet or handbook on the care of the puppy. What foods to give a ten-week-old pup, how often to feed it, where the pup should sleep, how to housebreak a pup, the value of immunizing the pup against distemper, the importance of not mauling, intimidating, or frightening a very young puppy, and the value of simple training for house manners are among the important things for the owner to learn about.

Not one of these subjects involves anything but common sense. For example, a young puppy (like an infant) has a small stomach. Therefore it needs to be fed often rather than a huge amount infrequently. Another common-sense, simple fact about pups (and all dogs) is that they require meat among other food items.

An amusing study of a Scottish terrier, a big favorite among breeds popular in America. The dog is Angus and is owned by R. Metz of Chicago.

Calendar of Dog Events in Chicagoland

March 31 and April 1—All-breed dog show of the Tri-City Kennel club at the New Masonic temple, Davenport, Ia.

April 6 and 7—Annual spring field trial of the Northern Indiana Field Trial club, to be held on grounds seven miles north of Winamac, Ind.

DOG NOTES

The year 1935 proved to be a banner year for the growing sport of field trials, according to William F. Brown, manager of American Field magazine. Mr. Brown has made a detailed study of the 1935 field trials. He found that approximately 20,000 dogs competed in 400 trials during the year. More than 250 sportsmen's organizations sponsored formal competition during the year. This record, combined with those of other recent years, indicates that field trials for dogs are becoming increasingly popular in all parts of the United States.

Hundreds of dog owners are being attracted to the sport of running dogs in trials. Mr. Brown has prepared a little handbook to help these beginners in field trial competition. It is called "The Field Trial Primer" and gives full information on how to organize a club, requirements of trials, and like subjects. The price of the primer is $1.

The judging of dogs at the Chicago Kennel club dog show which opens next Friday, April 3, in the Coliseum and continues through Sunday night, April 5, will not be in the same hall where the dogs are benched. This practice, successfully tried out last fall by the Western Specialty Clubs association, calls for all judging to be done in the annex of the Coliseum, which is connected with the Coliseum proper. Thus spectators of the judging will have a quiet place away from the confusion and barking in the big hall of the Coliseum, where all the dogs in the show are to be benched.

The show opens at 9 o'clock Friday morning. The judging will start at 11 o'clock the same morning. Theodore Offerman of New York will pick the best dog in the show Sunday night.

Pomeranians, Pekingese, Yorkshire terriers, and some of the other small toy dogs are often called lap dogs, but the owners of these small breeds are quick to defend them when their favorite pets are slandered.

We recently received a letter from Mrs. Louise Disselhorst, Chicago, former president of the Western Pekingese club, in which she points out the mistake that many persons make of describing the Peke as "the yappy little Pekingese."

She says in part: "I have raised Pekingese for almost twenty years and have found them anything but yappy. I once sold a Peke puppy to a professor, and when I offered him the pedigree papers he said I didn't need to bother about them; that the dog was to be only a pet. I told him that he would soon change his opinion about his dog, but he only smiled.

"Six months ago I received a letter from him asking me to send him the pedigree papers and stating that no money could buy the dog. The 'pet' had saved his auto from being stolen and had bitten a fellow who had tried to hold him up.

"I have raised smooth fox terriers, Boston terriers, and black-and-tans, and at home my father bred Great Danes, so I am not a fanatic on just one breed."

Readers who are looking for a comprehensive encyclopedia on dogs, one that covers innumerable subjects yet is not bulky in size, should find the answer to their problem in the new "Dog Encyclopedia," edited by Capt. Will Judy. This volume contains 587 articles and 375 illustrations. It contains material of value to both the professional breeder and the pet dog owner.

Help on the problem of deciding between a large dog or a small dog, a long-coated or a short-haired dog, or any other question involving many of our popular breeds may be found in The Tribune's dog guide entitled "The Dog Book."

This 92-page handbook contains scores of illustrations depicting breeds which make excellent pets or capable assistants to the sportsman. In addition to the illustrations, which are printed in rotogravure, the prospective dog buyer will find in the book a brief, accurate, and impartial description of each breed depicted. These descriptions give the origin of each breed, its size, color, type of coat, and general characteristics.

"The Dog Book," published by The Tribune, is sold by the public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. The price is 25 cents over the counter, 30 cents by mail.

Chasm Between Religion and Science Is Bridged

Dr. Mathews Gives Views on Piety

Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.— Psalms, 90.

The mind has been firmly placed in the evolutionary frame. The consciousness of dog and man has evolved, and redevelops in every ontogeny in the same unbroken way that the function of the digestive or glandular system has developed. Mental development depends on the same pillbox of genes that decides the color of our skin and our degree of resistance to diabetes. — Oscar Riddle, research biologist of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

By PHILIP KINSLEY

IF "GOD" were like the law of gravitation or breathing—what then?

A view of religion—all religions—is offered here, which sees no necessity of a compromise with science, because it is itself scientific. It takes science as its handmaiden in its search for new techniques to approach the ultimate reality that lies behind appearances.

After fifty years of intimate contact with theologians, philosophers, and scientists Dr. Shailer Mathews, emeritus dean of the University of Chicago divinity school, presents a method of approach to this problem that may be called a bridge between the psalmist and the biologist.

This is highly important to the world today.

"To suppose that conscience in some way represents the nature of things makes all the difference in a man's life," says William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy at Harvard. "To have such men as its components makes all the difference in the life of a civilization."

Dr. Mathews was born in an atmosphere of New England evangelicism seventy-three years ago and today is finding new faith for old. He began with a God who ordered human life, including sickness and misfortune, to whom Darwin, Tyndall, and Huxley were enemies. Today he finds a God immanent in the universe, striving to manifest himself in individual and social experience as well as in the laws of the universe. This God is the active entertainment of all personal ideals, "with the urge of their finite realization." It is a God of power undreamed of in his youth, one whom man can join in the creative process. If man does not respond he sinks to lower levels. It is deterministic with man and society setting up at each moment the cause and effect relations.

"Psalm 90 is just as true as it ever was," said Dr. Mathews discussing his ideas in the course of a leisurely interview at the University club.

"The whole concept of God and cosmic activities varies, but the activities remain. God is not a metaphysical term but like the word friend a conception of the personality producing activities of the universe. We have kept the values of evangelicism while we have dropped its theology. Orthodoxy is built on a pattern of the unconstitutional monarch of the seventeenth century. Today we have new philosophies of government and we must use the pattern which is most efficient in rationalizing these values."

The complete honesty with which Dr. Mathews sought to answer all questions on the relation of science and religion was one of the charms of this interview. As a young student he was shocked when he was told that if science showed any Christian belief to be incorrect, Christianity would have to be modified at that point. Since then as a teacher he has been in constant touch with great scientists and philosophers and has studied the changing picture of the universe in the light of the new physics, social progress in the light of evolution and psychology.

The great question centers on individuality. What is it? Is it cherished and cared for by any power outside humanity? Was it launched on the dark sea of life by accident, or does it come from afar, trailing clouds of glory? Is conscience a psychological accident or "an intimation of destiny, a perception that human choices have some bearing upon the eternal order of things?" These are hard questions to answer. We will start with a brief catechism as follows:

Q.—Is the mind of man firmly placed in the evolutionary frame, as Dr. Riddle says?

A.—Yes. The individual is the outcome of the evolutionary principle. There is not a process of species but of individuals, no two of whom are alike. Nature produces individuals. In human individuality we get that which a dog, for instances, does not get—personality. We get it by self-directed social relations. A thing can be individual that is not personal. The great law of unification and coördination carries on the level which has been developed. Man's coördination is to society. He can direct himself within the limits set by the possibilities of his own nature. Part of the limitation is this organism's relation to the universe, in which are the activities which have produced personal values. There is nothing outside. All is implicit in the ultimate. We are constantly knowing more and more of its attributes.

Q.—What is evil?

A.—The law of progress in evolution is adjustment. Maladjustment means suffering. The situation to which we give the name of God has everything to do with it. My structure was meant to be in the air. If I go in water I drown.

Man's structure is to get to live personally. When animal nature forms the center of his life he deteriorates. Illness may be one outcome, a tragic commentary. It is born of perversion of that which is normal. Evil is a negation, the outcome of the maladjustments which are subject to the laws of the total structure. We may include in this the acts of others, social and hereditary maladjustment.

Q.—What is faith?

A.—Faith is the willingness to act on the basis of that which is not yet a matter of experience, but which is reasonable in the light of what is admitted real. It is separate from knowledge, yet it must have intellectual integrity.

Q.—What is the soul?

A.—We don't have souls; we are souls.

Q.—How much free will do we have?

A.—I don't know. Our freedom is limited. As a man I must act as a man, not as a woman. I can act as though I were not organically connected with the universe, and suffer the results.

Q.—What is good?

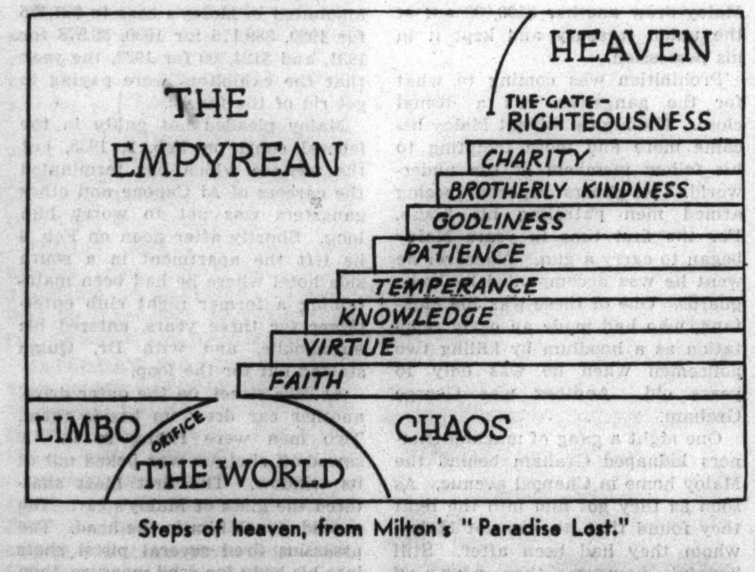
A.—That which makes toward increase of personal values. It is a law that when a man lives in accordance with that end he is in touch with it. It is like breathing the air of the great cosmic activity. It is not natural to live as though all were a matter of chance and mechanism. Man has got to live in the environment that produced him.

Q.—Is God a person?

A.—The relationship is personal. There are elements of personal responsiveness, that of a friend or person. Conceptually, he is a person; metaphysically we must be agnostic on this.

Q.—What is deism as distinct from theism?

A.—Deism is God apart from the universe, a God emeritus or a king that has abdicated. Theism is God operating in human life. It is not pantheism. Theism carries elements that are scientifically tenable.



Steps of heaven, from Milton's "Paradise Lost."

Q.—What is prayer?

A.—Prayer is a utilization of the technique of personal communication in development of personal relations with the activity of the cosmos. It is not trying to persuade an angry God, but it is possible to accomplish through prayer something that could not otherwise be accomplished. It is not necessarily only wishful thinking, the dynamics of the mind. It is that, but it is something more. All religions recognize that somewhere one comes up against the not-self and gets what otherwise he would not have—strength and direction.

Q.—There is, then, a power outside ourselves that we can get hold of and use in human living?

Man of science! Dr. Arthur H. Compton with X-ray spectrometer, used in making delicate atomic measurements. (Acme photo.)

Valley of the Shadow of Death, as illustrated in "Pilgrim's Progress." Early artists always made "Old Nick" a picturesque figure.

A.—Yes. We are made to live happily in one direction. The way I meet it personally, my conception of personal relations with the activities of the cosmos, is what the word God means to me. We must be responsively adjusted on the level of personality.

Q.—What is the value of the church?

A.—Conceptual theism has a direct bearing on our activities. The church has its great business of organizing itself to make this fellowship ever more effective. Every religion is a technique. The scientific method is the only way to approach it. I think a laboratory experiment in religion could be worked out. However, we already have a laboratory in the conception of process with differentiation. We can't limit religion to psychology, although that is one aspect. Religion is adjustment. Protestants have got to come to the recognition of the church as carrying values not carried by any other movement. In group life the individual gets something which he could not get without it. The church is a channel, a means of adjustment, or of "grace."

Q.—What can we say of immortality?

A.—It is not necessary to identify belief in immortality with transcendentalized geography or prescientific psychology or poetical pictures. Because one does not want to play forever on a harp is no final reason for denying that death may be an episode rather than an end. There are different levels on which the cosmic activity forms combinations. As original cosmic activity has become concrete in the chemical, the chemical in the vital, and the vital in the personal, it is at least a logical conjecture that in its personal stage it may still further develop its implicit potentialities into the more completely personal. Whether all persons will survive death would seem to depend upon the extent to which men meet the conditions requisite for the development of a personality.

Q.—How is God to be defined?

A.—God is not thought of as an entity objective to the universe imparting grace, or as immanent in dead matter, or as an undefined spiritual order over against nature. The word "God" will stand for our conception of those personality producing activities of the cosmos with which we are organically connected and with which as environment we are in dynamic personal relation. Our theistic belief demands a change from the pattern of sovereign and personality to the pattern of organism in environment. Such a relationship must be a creative situation. An honest believer will be agnostic as to just what may be the conditions of the individual after death. Strictly speaking, immortality is no more a matter of religion than is birth or the structure of the universe.

Dr. Mathews' beliefs were not arrived at casually. It may be said that he has spent his whole life in reaching such conclusions. During this lifetime science has found a bewildering number of new facts about the nature of matter and mind, the origin of inorganic matter, and has almost bridged the gulf between the inorganic and the organic. Einstein and Freud have come like blazing comets across the skies of human thought. The old stabilities in nature have melted away under the impact of relativity and the discoveries centering around mass and energy, but God remains a dynamic center of thought. Dr. Mathews' religion, when it is analyzed, has nothing of weakness or paleness about it. It is a struggle. It has in it something of the old Calvinistic fire. We are treading on forces, dealing with cosmic energies that may bless or destroy. It is in line with the religion of Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard, who says:

"The actual presence and inexorable operation of law in the spiritual realm has not yet been adequately appreciated. It is like the law of gravity. Give us time and we shall either learn or die."

The universe which science compels men to consider in any effort at forming a cosmology is far different from that which the psalmist knew or that which Dr. Mathews knew in his youth. Both the macroscopic and the microscopic have grown into infinitude. Yet natural law and order have only extended their scope.

We are living, in this scientific picture, toward the southeast corner of the Milky Way galaxy under the life giving rays of our sun, which is a dwarf among countless other suns. Our galaxy, if viewed from afar, has a disklike shape, like the Andromeda nebula or other galaxies that are observed in the giant telescopes. It has form and it is traveling on its way somewhere. Beyond this galaxy are a hundred million or so other galaxies. This universe is never still. It is flying apart, receding, expanding every second, from the viewpoint of this little corner. So-called space is filled with some fine structure that is constantly going into new creations. It is a universe where the speed of light is the only constant, where the law of least resistance seems to prevail, where space and time are mingled in a curve, where all things are relative to the observer.

Man stands on this planet bearing in the cells of his body the same elements that are in the sun and stars. The atoms that make up these cells have a system of their own that is not unlike the vast siderial system. The space between the elements of the atom correspond relatively with the space between the stars and the galaxies. There is a reservoir of untapped energy, layer below layer, in man and in the stars. It all resolves into manifestations of this energy, which is something almost ghostlike, a shadowy explosion. The ultimate energy is nearer to thought than to anything else.

How the earth came into existence is still an hypothesis, but it is supposed to have been drawn out of the body of the sun. Observations of the atmospheres of the planets and of the sun's composition show this; also show that the stars evolve just as all things, including the human mind, evolve.

The gaseous mass that became the earth was cooled by expansion and radiation. Drops of molten metal fell toward the center and formed the core. As the mass cooled, a 2,000 mile deep sea of lava solidified at the bottom and water vapor escaped to the surface to form a new atmosphere. Under rapid cooling an ocean bathed the rocky crust. It has been suggested that the impact of cosmic rays aided in forming this crust. The supply of oxygen is a product of terrestrial life, through the chemistry of plants. Observation of the other planets shows that Venus is at the beginning of such a cycle and Mars toward the end. There is a sea of ammonia on Jupiter.

* * *

When matter is considered at the biological level it is organization and interaction of organic molecular aggregates. It is mechanical, like an engine. There is tension, release, and force in plant and tree as there is in an engine. The organization or form determines the growth. In one sense all nature is alive. Digestion in the human body releases the forces of growth, just as in the plant. The sun's rays give life to the plant, and all animal life, including man, emerges from this process.

The origin of life on earth shows a narrow bridge between the organic and the inorganic. Biologists expect to cross this bridge some day. The natural forces at work on the earth's surface prior to the appearance of living matter had almost certainly already provided a variety of both organic and inorganic compounds characteristically utilized by living matter, according to the latest biological view. This included the particular sugar and glucose from which most living matter still derives a flow of free energy, and some amino acids which must serve as building blocks for the protein which is the chief constituent of living matter. Something akin to electrical action united them and started the process of life.

"Consciousness, as well as some related subconscious phenomena, is associated with organization at a high biological level," says Dr. Oscar Riddle of Carnegie institution. "This is chiefly though not solely with the organization of the brain. A hormone, a thing of somatic (body) origin, shares in bringing a new element of consciousness into the body of the mind, as, for instance, maternal instinct in fowl and virgin rats."

"Men are parts of nature," says Dr. Edward L. Thorndike. "They and the scientific knowledge they acquire and the choices they make are on the reel, in the dance of atoms, among the marching events."

We begin to get away from the ancient dualism of body and mind into the new concept of body-mind in zoölogy. The present concept is that of an organism depending upon its environment and to some extent influencing it.

"We must think of the organism as a four dimensional whole," says Dr. E. P. Russell, president of the zoölogy section of the British association for the advancement of science. "We no longer attempt to contain it within the static scheme of classical materialism. The whole trend of modern work on perceptions of animals is to show that they do not normally respond to the simple physico-chemical stimuli, but to more or less complex whole situations. This is the essence of the principle of Gestalt—response to the elements in the perceptual field as parts of the pattern of the whole."

* * *

It is here that Dr. Mathews bases his views on the validity of the spiritual law, as the highest level known to man, that personality responds to the environment that produced it. This environment is fundamentally one of order and intelligence, and it has responded through all the ages to the lives of great and good men, to the efforts of the finest personalities. It is a process, he believes, that is ever going on. His own views mirror the evolutionary processes of the human mind. His inheritance was that of ministers and teachers. His father was a Baptist deacon. God's plan of salvation was well known to him in youth. He approaches it now from a different angle, that is all.

The principle of evolution, which is fundamental in science, was the disturbing factor in his younger life. In those days the higher criticism of the Bible was considered dangerous. He later, however, found an enduring interest in historical study as a means of understanding Christian doctrin.

"I was lecturing one day on the teachings of Paul, a sort of romanticizing, as I see it now," he said, "when a boy in the class asked me a question. To answer him I drew on a great mass of new stuff in my mind. From that time on these lectures became worthless. Something had happened to me. I think it came little by little, starting from the evolutionary hypothesis. In 1909 I wrote a paper trying to show the religious analogy between biological adjustment and that of the human organism to its environment. John Fiske was an influence, also John Elof Boodin, then professor of philosophy at Carleton college. Also John Dewey.

"The whole concept of personality seemed axiomatic. If we are the outcome of the evolutionary process, if we have so arrived at our position, it has been absolutely essential to keep in harmony with the creative environment on all levels. We are chemical laboratories and we also have self-direction, the ability to organize ends, shaping techniques for our goals."

In 1894 Dr. Mathews came to the University of Chicago as associate professor of New Testament history. A few years later he made his first attempt at the systematic presentation of Jesus' social teachings.

"I now see," he said, "that when Jesus is viewed in the true historical light he is seen to have no social program, but induces social attitudes in his teachings as to love. Jesus' teachings are all moral. It was Paul's idea that any one who had accepted Jesus had had an experience with God. It is an exposition of what life should be, motivated by experience with God through Jesus the Savior. It is basically true, I think."

* * *

Transferred to the chair of systematic theology, he organized historical and sociological studies which have had a great influence on the modernist position.

"The only method I could see at this time," he said, "was that of equivalence of the function between the messianic interpretation of Jesus and the presentation of his ideals in thought forms to an entirely different situation. This still seems an advance over the romanticizing of orthodoxy which without any distinct method endeavors to set forth orthodox doctrins in such a way as to make them acceptable to the modern world. What I was trying to find was a method by which the values of the Christian doctrin could be conserved in our own moral and religious systems without dependence upon a discredited doctrin of inspiration."

He became editor of The World Today for eight years and here saw the academic and professional aspects of religion more in the perspective of human needs.

"This made it impossible for me," he said, "to think of theology as a mere academic discipline or of the Christian religion as concerned only with the truth. The history of doctrin becomes the history of a people who make doctrins. A religion is a phase of civilization, theology a product of social minds, relative rather than final. The history of Christianity shows that orthodoxy is a group belief organized by a dominant group and that heresies are the beliefs of repressed minorities. An inevitable consequence is that Christianity is functional rather than scientifically accurate, inseparable in its development from the history of western civilization. Its authority is coextensive with the authority of the group that enforced it. Its truthfulness is another matter, to be determined by other methods than appeal to authority."

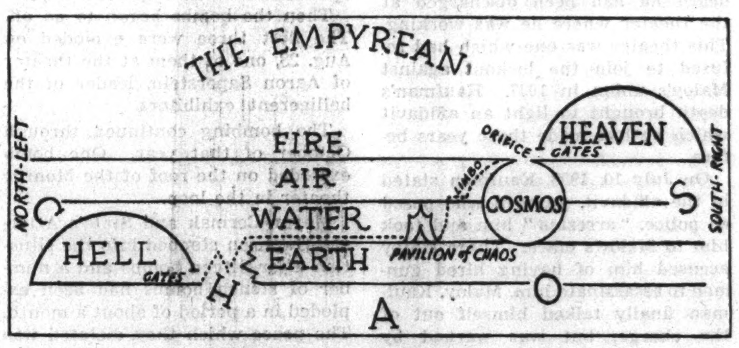

Diagram of Milton's universe.

"What should the modern church do with inherited beliefs which did not square with scientific conclusions and social needs?" was the question he then asked himself. The Bible, he decided, already had lost its authority as an infallible revelation and had now become a basis of religious loyalty subject to examination.

"The only answer I could see," he said, "was that ecclesiastical authority must be replaced by some intelligible method by which one could distinguish between the form and content of inherited religious group belief, then determine the truth of the content by such criteria as were applicable."

In his search and questioning of front rank scientists he found that the ultimate conception of science is activity which was uniform, intelligible, and capable of being expressed in mathematics and in natural laws.

"While it is impossible to speak of a cosmic purpose," he said, "there are discernible tendencies which are akin to what in human life we call purpose. From one such tendency human personalities have been evolved. It would seem, therefore, that by the very nature of life the human person must live personally in the midst of environmental activities expressed in matter and in forces on which it depends and with which he must set up dynamic situations on the level of personality.

Our Devotion to God Called Law of Life

"The word God has never had a consistently identical content, but has been shaped by social experience. Men project into the percept formed by sensations personal values similar to those which each recognizes in himself. There is a dynamic situation set up which as an element in reality cannot be ignored, but must be rationally adjusted. The old theological conception of sin reappears as a factual maladjustment due to the atavistic pull of inherited but outgrown gods. The recognition that others are to be treated as persons, as ends rather than as means for satisfaction of individual needs, is conformity with the cosmic process on the level of personality. Such an imperative becomes a criterion for all social relations, economic, political, and international. Morality is more than convention, just as religion is more than beliefs and rites. It is the carrying on of the evolutionary cosmic process from which personality has come. The process becomes realistic. Jesus has the central position as guide and inspiration. His way is simplicity itself. To love and serve one's fellow man is to coöperate with and be aided by God."

This view, it is seen, is not philosophy alone. It is more than pragmatism. It does not depend upon science or ask science to approve it. It antedates science and uses science to find new methods of thought and action which are vital. A thought may be likened to electricity, or a rushing together of chemical affinities to form something new. Thinking along religious lines is a fusion of reason and emotion. The reason gives it intellectual integrity. The emotion gives it power.

Science cannot tell where conscienceness began or when it became conscience. All it knows is that with this development a new trend came in the process of evolution. That process has never stopped. Man has become the thinker who begins to comprehend his environment. A candle has been carried into a dark room.

"Everywhere," says Dr. Mathews, "mind is moving through a series, either upward to more and more complex adaptations or downward through processes of dissociation to lower and often abnormal levels. A water breathing animal must live in water, an air breathing animal must live in air. Religion is the application of the same law to human personality. As an animal must live like an animal rather than a crystal in a universe which has produced him, so a person must live personally in a universe from which he springs. Only thus can his evolved characteristics be maintained. Religion from this point of view is certainly more than a mere vestegial survival of primitive customs; it is a law of life. Religion is a form of life itself, its highest phase."

"This globe, its mountains and valleys, pleasant fields and busy cities, what are they," asks James Arnold Crowther, professor of physics at the University of Reading, "but radiation imprisoned in electrical bonds? What is this mass but an expression of the intense energy locked up in their minutest particles? Radiation is the fundamental stuff of which the universe is made. Our universe is an organic whole exhibiting structural symmetry. Man has developed the capacity to reflect a ray of universal intelligence, for law is inconceivable without intelligence."

* * *

Prof. Boodin thinks it probable that the constitution of the universe may be pluralistic, that our cosmic continuum may be a complex of many levels, that life emerged not only from inorganic elements but by the help of unique energy patterns from higher levels.

It is in the field of psychology that the new scientific techniques toward personality must be found.

"As there are archaic structures of body, so in mind," says William A. White, director of St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington, D. C. "All the forces of the cosmos as they have been concentrated in conflict between organism and environment have resulted in definite structure of mind and body preserved in miniature and give us a picture of organism which at each moment is reacting with precipitates of its entire past to present situations. I think of the individual man as a point where at the moment the forces of the universe are nucleated in a particular way and where they are working themselves out in accordance with certain laws. Functions of the mind can best be thought of in terms of energy. Man becomes the final integrator of all the laws, physical and vital, that have led up to his development and which he manifests in the very fact of living."

"The aim at social perfection," says Alfred North Whitehead, English philosopher, "is not a romance of thought. It is a fact of nature. Religions are like species of animals; they do not originate from special creations. It is the task of theology to show how the world is founded on something beyond mere transient fact and how it issues to something beyond the perishing of occasions."

Maloy's Tragic Reign Over the Movie Operators' Union

Fifteen Years of Gun and Bomb Rule

The three labor agents were its reputed proprietors.

They fell out over their enterprise, the story goes. One night Maloy invited "Dapper Dan" McCarthy, a labor slugger who was becoming one of the leading lights of Dion O'Banion's north side bootlegging gang, and Kelliher to spend an evening with him at Al Tierney's resort at Calumet avenue and 35th street, next door to the little theater where Maloy got his start as a motion picture operator. Kelliher entered. A quarrel followed. McCarthy shot Kelliher right between the eyes. He pleaded self-defense, and since witnesses declared that Kelliher also had a gun, there was nothing the authorities could do about it.

McCarthy had done the killing. The job, however, was recognized as Maloy's. It was typical of the man. He stood only 5 feet 6 inches. Despite his size, he rarely carried a gun. He had learned another valuable lesson for the hoodlum labor leader — that it is always easy to get somebody to do your rough work for you.

Every year Maloy negotiated a new labor contract on behalf of the union with the theater owners of the city. In 1922 top wages for operators went from $66.65 to $80. [illegible] jumped $3 the next year. In [illegible] the top went to $112 and the [illegible] to $55 a week. These [illegible] wage increases put Maloy between two fires. On the one hand, his exactions made him more and more of a problem to the theater owners. On the other, his fat pickings made his job more and more enticing to rival gangsters. In 1927 he had to face both problems.

The gangsters struck first. "Big Tim" Murphy, the hoodlum who combined in one stormy life the careers of a state legislator, a gang labor leader, and a train robber, was the first to try to unseat Maloy. This had been some time about 1922, and after surveying the situation the affable Murphy wisely left the field to the equally affable Maloy.

But in 1927 came a greater threat. Peter and Frank Gusenberg, a pair of gangsters who were to die two years later in the St. Valentine's day massacre, had a brother, Henry, who worked for a living. He was a motion picture operator. The gangster Gusenbergs put up their brother against Maloy for business agent of the union. Detective squads became regular attendants at the union meetings. Before the election Maloy arranged a truce. Henry Gusenberg got a fat assignment as an operator and Maloy was reëlected. The election had its repercussions ten days later. Four operators who had looked to Gusenberg's candidacy as a welcome relief from Maloy's rule were riding in Lincoln park. Gunmen curbed their car and shot one of their number, Arthur Devent. He recovered, but Maloy didn't have to take disciplinary action again against rebels among his followers for four years.

≈

Six months later the theater owners made an unsuccessful attempt to throw off Maloy's domination. On Aug. 29, 1927, they locked out their union operators and shut their houses. Throughout the city only 75 small neighborhood houses remained open. Jack Miller, who, in the days since he had left the operators' union, had become head of the Chicago Exhibitors' association, the movie theater organization, denounced Maloy's arrogance and charged that the exactions of the union were ruining many of the small theater owners.

The strike lasted until Sept. 4. The theater operators lost $1,350,000. They settled in time to get the Labor day holiday business. There was no change in the operators' contract. Maloy had whipped them.

Every year when wage contracts came up Maloy succeeded in winning new increases for his men. This held him the union allegiance, although it was becoming less and less a union. There were nearly as many permit men working as bona fide union members. To increase his 10 per cent "take" from these permit men, disgruntled union men charged, Maloy gave them all the high paying assignments. Sometimes Maloy's friends didn't even have to work on the jobs he got for them. Dr. Emmett C. Quinn, a dentist who was an intimate of Maloy's and a member of the union, was paid $130 a week as an operator at the Chicago theater. The other operators there divided his shift and worked it for him.

Maloy was quick to recognize other opportunities for profit. In 1929 Erwin Wagner, owner of an electric sign company, filed a suit against Thomas J. Flannery, a business rival; Maloy, Ralph O'Hara, Maloy's best gunman, and Michael J. Kennedy, city commissioner of gas and electricity. He charged them with a conspiracy to ruin his business and to transfer it to Flannery. His customers, Wagner charged, were warned that if they used his signs Maloy would require their theaters to employ extra operators, and Kennedy would make trouble for them on electrical inspections of their premises.

Again in 1930 Maloy's close connections with other elements in the motion picture industry were demonstrated by the experiences of George W. Kreuger, owner of a theater in Hinsdale. Maloy demanded that Kreuger hire two operators for his house, paying them $108 a week each. Kreuger protested that that would break him. When he remained obdurate his supply of films was cut off.

He went to the Paramount Film Exchange at 1327 South Wabash avenue to protest. Two sluggers attacked him there, beat him, knocked out four of his teeth, and shot him in the leg. The stubborn Kreuger still defied Maloy. He was a former operator and began to run his projection machine himself. One night while 400 patrons were seated in his theater the place was bombed. That aroused such indignation in the quiet suburb of Hinsdale that Kreuger had no further trouble.

That year Maloy was sent as a delegate to an international labor conference in Europe. The union voted him $5,000 and gave a banquet attended by 4,000 persons, friends or those who thought it wise to appear so. From the banquet was realized an additional profit of $17,000 that went into Maloy's pocket. All this was in addition to his salary of $25,000 a year. The following year the union members, with a touching interest in his health, installed a $4,000 bathroom in his home at 6806 Chappel avenue, and the next year they contributed $5,000 to put a bar in his basement.

Meanwhile, depression had struck Chicago, but Maloy refused to recognize it. He demanded that all the small movie theaters keep two operators on duty. The theater owners complained first to State's Attorney Swanson. He started an investigation of the union. Maloy, however, availed himself of his political connections to have a bill introduced in the legislature requiring two operators as a "safety measure." A federal grand jury was told later that Democratic support for this measure cost the union a $5,000 contribution to the late Mayor Cermak's campaign fund.

The sponsors of this bill in the state's senate were Dan Serritella and James B. Leonardo, both long identified with gangster alliances in politics. Indeed, there was considerable evidence that Maloy no longer ruled the union alone. He was observed to have frequent conferences with Danny Stanton, Al Capone's lieutenant in the labor racket.

The investigation of Maloy was quickened by the murder of Jacob D. Kaufman, a motion picture operator. He was shot down in a garage at 9527 Princeton avenue by a dapper young man clad in white flannels, on the evening of June 20, 1931.

Kaufman had been one of the Gusenberg supporters. The day of his death he had been discharged at the theater where he was working. This theater was one which had refused to join the lockout against Maloy's union in 1927. Kaufman's death brought to light an affidavit which he had made three years before.

On July 10, 1928, Kaufman stated in the affidavit, gunmen who posed as police, "arrested" him and took him to Maloy's office. There Maloy accused him of having hired gunmen to assassinate him, Maloy. Kaufman finally talked himself out of the charge, but was warned by Maloy that he would be taken for a ride if he talked about the incident, the affidavit charged.

The murder investigation got nowhere, but the investigation of Maloy's union did. It was disclosed that Maloy's brother, Joseph Maloy, had a job in the city hall in charge of licensing motion picture operators. Candidates whom brother Tom recommended were passed without question, even, the grand jury was told, when they were unable to read and write and had to have experienced operators write their examination papers for them.

On July 15, 1931, the grand jury voted an indictment charging Thomas and Joseph Maloy, Thomas J. Reynolds, Maloy's stooge as president of the union; Ralph O'Hara, Dr. Quinn, Frank J. Clifford, assistant business agent, and Jack Miller of the Exhibitors' association with conspiracy. Various counts charged them with obtaining money under false pretenses, conspiracy in restraint of trade, the assault on Kreuger, violation of the city license ordinance through Joseph Maloy's activities, and conspiracy to injure property. Miller, it was charged, had acted as a go-between in collection of $65,000 paid Maloy to call off strikes or threatened strikes.

Before the indictment could come to trial the little motion picture exhibitors rebelled against Maloy's two operator rule. They closed their theaters on Aug. 9. Ten days later they imported 100 operators from New York, members of a motion picture union not affiliated with Maloy's. Most of the operators came west in chartered planes. A dozen who followed by train were met at Gary by gunmen, who warned them that it would be unhealthy for them to continue their journey. They took the hint.

≈

Joseph Maloy refused to issue licenses to the New York operators. He was suspended. The theaters, all located in the neighborhood districts of Chicago and suburbs, reopened with their imported help.

Then the bombs began to go off. The first three were exploded on Aug. 28, one of them at the theater of Aaron Saperstein, leader of the belligerent exhibitors.

The bombing continued through October of that year. One bomb exploded on the roof of the Monroe theater in the loop.

Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson stepped into the situation after fifteen bombs and a number of stench bombs had been exploded in a period of about a month. The peace which they dictated was the first setback Maloy had suffered in more than a decade. Houses with fewer than 400 seats were allowed to run with one operator, and the union scale for operators in large as well as small theaters was cut 20 per cent.

A month later Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury appeared before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court and dismissed the conspiracy indictment against Maloy, Miller, and their co-defendants. Rumors that this had been one of the conditions of the peace settlement had been current for weeks. Judge Prystalski was angered, but could do nothing but grant the prosecutor's motion.

The permit man situation under which Maloy's friends got most of the good jobs to the exclusion of legitimate union members became a worse and worse source of discord. Eight rebel members of the union filed an equity action in the federal court asking an investigation of Maloy. When their action was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction they renewed it in the state courts. One of their charges was that when they had gone to New York to protest to officers of the international union against the conduct of Maloy and his mates, Maloy had them fired and fined $5,000 each by the union.

Maloy's lawyers won an initial victory. On March 24, 1933, one of the rebels, Fred F. Oser, went to Maloy's office to what he had told friends was to be a reconciliation with Maloy. Maloy was out. O'Hara met him.

O'Hara had had a stormy career as a union agent. In 1919 the Chicago Federation of Musicians, which to that time had never had a business agent, decided that it needed one. O'Hara, who had been a dance hall operator and the organizer of a union of piano tuners, got the job. He was fired for slugging the president of the federation. Then Maloy picked him up and through Maloy's reign O'Hara was his star "heavy man."

Oser, a slight man 50 years old, went into a room alone with the burly O'Hara on the day of his call. Two shots were fired. O'Hara hurried out of the office. The employés in the outer office made no attempt to investigate, apparently being accustomed to gunfire. Only when police arrived in response to an anonymous telephone call was Oser found dead. A gun, which his family and friends said they had never seen before, was lying beside his right hand.

O'Hara surrendered and pleaded self-defense. A coroner's jury, at an inquest conducted by Coroner Frank J. Walsh himself, brought in a verdict terming the killing of Oser justifiable homicide. As a result of the scandal over this verdict it developed that the jurymen were professionals carried about by Walsh's deputies from inquest to inquest.

In spite of Coroner Walsh's verdict O'Hara was indicted on a charge of murder. His trial before Judge James H. Fardy in the Criminal court verged on the farcical. A barber who had shaved Oser just before he went to Maloy's office was ready to testify that Oser had not had a gun on his person.

But when O'Hara's attorneys established that the barber had not subjected his customer to a formal search Judge Fardy refused to let the jury hear his testimony. The judge then ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the grounds that, since there was no witness present at the shooting except O'Hara, the jurors would have to accept without question his contention that he shot in self-defense.

Before the O'Hara trial, however, the handwriting had appeared on the wall for Maloy to see if he wished. The hand was that of the "old gentleman with the whiskers," as Maloy and his ilk sometimes styled the federal government. On May 6, 1933, it became known that Maloy's income tax payments were being investigated.

Meanwhile a new instance of hoodlumism turned the spotlight of publicity on the union again. Clyde Osterberg, a recalcitrant operator, had made his peace with Maloy's crowd sufficiently to get a job operating a machine in the Chrysler building at the World's Fair. Osterberg did not work for the automobile company, however.

He was hired by the ubiquitous Dr. Quinn and paid $35 a week. When he discovered that Quinn was collecting $2.50 an hour for his work and pocketing the difference he went to the union headquarters and protested. Quinn gave him a beating with the butt of a revolver. When Quinn was arraigned in Municipal court he was discharged.

≈

The Cook county grand jury also resumed investigation of the union shortly after the Osterberg incident. A lessee of the State-Congress theater had attempted to start a show there, employing rebel operators. A few days before the theater was to open gasoline was sprinkled over the seats in the place and it was fired. Again the authorities were defeated in their attempt to fix the responsibility on Maloy.

The federal investigators found hard going in their attempt to trace Maloy's income. Jack Miller, who had been indicted in 1931, was taken before Federal Judge John T. Barnes and held in contempt of court for refusal to answer questions before the grand jury. Miller had been asked about checks for $22,491 and cash of $97,000 which the books of Balaban & Katz, theater owners, showed had been turned over to him.

Miller contended that this money and other payments had gone to a mysterious "Mr. Nikolas." Federal agents were satisfied Nikolas was a fictitious person and that the money had gone to Maloy or some of his lieutenants as graft. They were more than a year dragging the story out of Miller and other witnesses.

≈

Eventually they established that when sound movies came in the union had demanded the installation of extra employés known as faders to regulate the sound and synchronize it with the films. When sound tracks on the films supplanted the earlier method of playing the sound off a record the faders had nothing to do, but that made no difference to Maloy. Eventually word got around to the theater owners that they could get the faders off their pay rolls if they would pay $1,100 for each man dismissed.

The investigators uncovered other financial transactions of Maloy. They found that in 1928 and 1929, when the stock market was booming, a Chicago theater chain had purchased stock and carried it on its books in the name of Maloy. He got $25,000 in profits on this stock.

It was also established, as it had long been suspected, that Maloy made little distinction between the funds of the union and his own. When the 1931 indictment was voted the union had given him a blanket authorization to use its funds, then aggregating about $250,000, as a defense fund. When O'Hara was indicted on the charge of murder Maloy drew another $100,000 out of the union treasury and kept it in his possession.

Prohibition was coming to what for the gangsters was a dismal close. The highly solvent Maloy became more and more tempting to his fellow members of the underworld. Neighbors reported seeing armed men patroling his house. For the first time in years Maloy began to carry a gun. Wherever he went he was accompanied by bodyguards. One of these was Joe Montana, who had made an early reputation as a hoodlum by killing two policemen when he was only 16 years old. Another was George Graham.

One night a gang of machine gunners kidnaped Graham behind the Maloy home in Chappel avenue. As soon as they got him into the light they found that he was not Maloy, whom they had been after. Still hopeful, however, they phoned Maloy and asked him if the life of his bodyguard was worth $10,000. When Maloy replied that it was not worth a quarter so far as he was concerned, they let Graham go.

On March 3, 1934, Maloy, surrounded by Quinn, O'Hara, and other bodyguards, encountered Osterberg at Wabash avenue and Congress street. Osterberg claimed later that the Maloy crowd went for their guns but that he beat them to the draw. The faithful Quinn was wounded in the hand as he knocked aside the muzzle of Osterberg's pistol, leveled at Maloy.

With the income tax investigators hot on his trail, Maloy was afraid to use bank accounts or even to leave his money in a safe deposit vault. He kept a sum supposed to have exceeded $100,000 in a safe in his home. One night when he was out of the city gunmen kidnaped his Negro maid as she was leaving the Chappel avenue home and took the keys to the place from her. Unfortunately for them, some neighbors noticed the kidnaping, and when a police squad arrived in the neighborhood the gunmen fled without having been able to open the safe.

The following October another gang of bandits was more successful. They went to Long Beach, Ind., where Maloy had a palatial summer home. Kidnaping the town marshal of the little resort settlement, they used him as a front to obtain admission to the Maloy home, where Mrs. Maloy at the time was residing with a woman friend. Mrs. Maloy defied them at first, but when they threatened her with torture she gave up $65,000 and some valuable jewelry.

Maloy supposedly was on a hunting trip in Canada. He hurried back to look for the robbers. One story of the "robbery," never authenticated, was that Maloy had been a prisoner in the hands of kidnapers and that the holdup had been a fake to cover up payment of his ransom out of union funds which he had hidden in his home.

All this time the income tax investigators had been patiently piling up evidence. Early in 1935 they had O'Hara indicted for perjury before the federal grand jury. The jury brought in its indictment on Jan. 25. It charged that Maloy had failed to report income totaling $350,000 for the years 1929 to 1932 inclusive and that in so doing he had evaded taxes totaling $81,000. "Other sources," that blanket phrase which in other income tax cases had covered the illicit gains which gangsters and politicians had been afraid to report to the government, amounted in Maloy's case to $27,136 for 1929, $89,176 for 1930, $9,578 for 1931, and $124,300 for 1932, the year that the exhibitors were paying to get rid of the faders.

Maloy pleaded not guilty in the federal court on Feb. 2, 1935, but the menace which has terminated the careers of Al Capone and other gangsters was not to worry him long. Shortly after noon on Feb. 4 he left the apartment in a south side hotel where he had been maintaining a former night club entertainer for three years, entered his automobile, and with Dr. Quinn started out for the loop.

At 24th street, on the outer drive, another car drew up beside them. Two men were riding in it. A sawed-off shotgun was poked out of its window. The first blast shattered the glass of Maloy's car. The second struck him in the head. The assassins fired several pistol shots into his body for good measure, then sped away. When Dr. Quinn brought the car to a stop death had ended the rule of Tom Maloy.

He had a fine funeral. His home and the union office were crammed with elaborate floral pieces. A thousand presumable mourners followed him to his grave.

With the reservation that whoever did it, it was a good idea, police started a search for the slayers. To date they have made no progress, which probably has not surprised them.

The name of Frank Nitti was mentioned frequently. Nitti, a cousin of Al Capone, was accounted by many to be a shrewder man than the burly gang czar. He returned to Chicago after serving a term for income tax frauds, and the remnants of the old Capone gang have rallied around him.

Nitti is given credit for turning the talents of the surviving Capone gunmen to other fields after prohibition cut off their principal source of revenue. Gambling and vice, the old standbys of the underworld, have provided some outlet for his organizing genius. The labor rackets have been another field in which his hand has been felt, although never openly.

Nitti, for example, got credit, which he by no means solicited, for the obliteration a little more than a year ago of "Two Gun Louie" Alterie, one of the last survivors of the old O'Banion gang, who was eking out a meager living on the dues he was able to extort from the members of the theatrical janitors' union. When Maloy was killed it was remarked that much light would be thrown on his murder when his successor in the operators' union became known.

The international union stepped into the Chicago situation, however. Its officers started an audit of the union books. Two months after the murder, suit was filed against Maloy's estate, Reynolds, the union president, and a number of other officers, charging that they had stolen $500,000 from the union

≈

Meanwhile the turbulent Osterberg was attempting to organize a rival union. He escaped one attempt on his life. Two weeks later gangsters caught him at 18th and Loomis streets and shot him four times. He lingered for days in the hospital, admitting that he knew who had shot him. But he died without talking.

George E. Browne, head of the stage hands' union, was placed in charge of Maloy's old organization by the international union. One of his first acts was to abolish the vicious permit system. The arrest of some of Osterberg's associates last summer on charges of conspiracy to bomb disclosed that Browne had established a school for training operators. It was this school which was to have been bombed. Browne, it was said at the time, was training members of his own stage hands' union to supplant the ousted permit operators.

The operators' union held its first election under the new régime last December. The pliant Reynolds, and O'Hara, were ousted. Maloy's old job went to Frank Clifford. He had been Maloy's assistant, was named with him in the 1931 indictment which was never tried, and was one of the defendants named in the suit to recover the half million dollars Maloy and his lieutenants were charged with taking from the union treasury.

To date the new union administration has proceeded without bloodshed but not without strikes. In December two strange walkouts, lasting an hour or less, were called against forty-six Balaban & Katz and Paramount-Publix theaters. They were called not because of local grievances but because out in Hollywood a dispute was raging over whether movie camera men should belong to stage hands' unions affiliated with Browne's parent organization or to the electricians' union.

The foregoing is the first of a series of articles on murders and other violence in connection with labor racketeering in Chicago. The second article will appear in this section next week.

KNIGHTS of the RANGE

What Had Happened on the Cattle Drive? A Strange Reticence Grips the Men Who Have Just Returned to Don Carlos Rancho

THE STORY TO DATE

Holly Ripple, who has inherited the beauty of her Spanish mother, returns from boarding school to her father's ranch in New Mexico just before his death. Anticipating an era of cattle rustling and outlawry, Colonel Ripple placed Holly under the care of his trusted foreman, Britt, and ordered him to surround her with the hardest outfit of cowboys he could gather together. In an encounter with horse thieves Holly is saved from the insults of the leader by one of his own men, Renn Frayne, who shoots his master and another man to save her. Holly persuades Frayne, self-admitted outlaw, to ride for her. Holly has carried on the traditional hospitality of the rancho. Friends and enemies alike are invited to a yearly fiesta in her honor. Holly gives a dinner to her outfit before the party and in an address inspires them to loyalty proclaiming them her Knights of the Range. Holly realizes she is in love with Frayne. Yet Frayne avoids her. Sewall McCoy, a rival cattle owner, proposes to Holly. When she refuses him he threatens to join up with the rustler Slaughter. To prove her faith in Frayne, Holly sends him to sell a drove of cattle and bring back the money.

INSTALMENT XI.

FRAYNE and Britt followed Holly out on the porch. She had planned this responsibility to see how Frayne would react to it, how he would execute it. Yet she had not gone so far as to hope or dream that he cared deeply for the faith she imposed in him. She must wait until she was alone to ponder that out. The certainty that Frayne entertained something besides indifference to her made Holly strong and calm. She stepped off the porch into the sunlight and waved the red scarf. Scarcely had she sent the long streamer aloft than a puff of white smoke appeared against the green away down at the apex of the triangle, and it was followed by the report of a gun.

"They're off," declared Britt with relief. "I see Brazos ridin' hell bent for election. . . . Go, Frayne. . . . Catch up. . . . Catch up! . . . Thet's the old trail word."

Holly lowered the scarf with a whirl that circled it around her neck. That was well, she thought, because her cheeks were hot and red. She extended her hand and smiled up at Frayne, no longer sure of anything except that the parting was poignant. "Adios, Renn. . . . Good luck! Don't forget—Don Carlos rancho!"

"Be it on your head!" he replied so darkly that Holly did not grasp whether he meant the risk of her money, the risk of her trust, or the risk of some terrible consequence to him that was surely not peril or death. "But don't worry about us. We will come through. . . . Look out for yourself. Don't ride out of sight of the cowboys. . . . Adios."

After the blur had left her eyes Holly watched the herd wind the valley toward the gleaming green-bordered Cimarron. She had always loved to watch a crawling herd of cattle. The yellow dust rose to cloud the sides and rear of the vast wedge of moving red and white. There were two riders in the lead, pointing the herd. One bestrode a big brown horse, and that would be Cherokee. Brazos' white shirt and sombrero shone in the sunlight. She watched until she saw Frayne on his black come into view below, loping swiftly eastward. Upon him she used her field glass, trying with shaking hands to work him into the magnified circle of her vision. What was that trailing out behind him like a streamer of red? He had taken her scarf without her being in the least aware of it, though she remembered it last around her neck.

* * *

WHEN Britt had been captain of the Texas Rangers, hard riding, perilous and perplexing situations, criminals to arrest or kill, rescue of stolen stock, mysterious murders to clear up, settlers to protect from thieving Mexicans and marauding Comanches, all were the order of the day and taken as a matter of course.

But Britt had not then had in his charge a beautiful and imperious young woman whom he loved as his own, and who had no relative, no husband, no one save himself to look after her. It was telling on Britt. In the five weeks since Frayne and the cowboys had driven east with the big herd enough had happened on the range to keep him awake nights without the several narrow escapes Holly had sustained. She had a habit of riding out alone in spite of orders, protestations, entreaties. There were occasions when the girl was strange, moody, and refused to have an escort. At such times Britt had to watch her or have one of the cowboys do it and trust to Providence. The arrival of the short, hot midsummer period put an end to Holly's riding, for which Britt was profoundly grateful. When the cooler weather came Frayne and Brazos would be back, and after that it would not be long until frost and snow. The rustlers holed up in winter, there was no movement of cattle, and some peace and rest might be obtainable until spring. "By thunder," he muttered, "I'm shore goin' to move heaven an' earth to marry Holly off by then!"

Britt did all this soliloquizing in the bunkhouse while he sat at the table poring over the crude map he had tacked there. The drawing, which had been made by Britt himself, was not a work of art, but it was accurate to a distance of fifty miles or more beyond Don Carlos rancho.

"Wal, let's see," said Britt as he bent over his map. "Skylark an' Stinger an' Gaines air at White Pool. Jim an Blue an' Flinty air at Cedar Flat. Talman an' Trinidad somewhere in Cottonwood basin. Rebel is ridin lone. . . . Nobody heah with me, an' thirty thousand longhorns oot there to be run off. Shore is a hell of a deal!"

Britt had sent Talman and Trinidad to the headwaters of the Cottonwood with a deliberate purpose. This was up in the rough breaks through which the Ute trail led to the north. Talman had been consistently watched, to no avail. One thing only had Britt noted—Talman's unobtrusive cultivation of Trinidad since the other cowboys had gone, and the usually merry Trinidad's preoccupation. As the days and weeks passed Britt grew more convinced that there was something amiss. The crafty, indefatigable Rebel had been detailed to keep track of Talman.

Later, while he was pacing up and down the porch, plodding with his hands behind his back, Holly put in an appearance, slender and graceful in her flimsy white. Her cheeks were without color and her eyes gloomed.

"Cappy, I picked up some riders with the glass. Across the Cottonwood five miles or so. Three horsemen and two pack animals."

"Thet'll be Skylark," replied Britt gladly. "Aboot time."

"Frayne is four days late," she said broodingly.

"What's four days? Why, lass, he might be four weeks late. Reckon he had to wait for the money. . . . Holly, air you worried aboot thet?"

"What do I care about money?" she exclaimed impatiently.

In an hour Skylark rode up with Stinger and Gaines, with the white dust sliding in little streams off horses and riders. Begrimed and sweaty, with eyes of fire, they brought a lusty welcome from the old ranger.

"Like May flowers, you easy-comin' gents! Gosh, I was lonesome. I don't care a damn if you have bad news—I'm shore glad to see you."

Skylark unlimbered his long frame from the tired and dusty horse and clanked upon the porch, to throw gloves, sombrero, scarf, shirt, and gun belt in a pile beside the wash-bench.

"We got out of smokes," said the cowboy tragically.

"Ahuh. Is thet dirt or gun smoke on yore face?"

"Both, I reckon. I pumped my Winchester pretty fast this morning."

"Wal, clean up. I'll walk over to the store an' fetch you the makin's."

Britt strolled leisurely across the flat to the trading post. Skylark's few remarks were not reassuring. The Mexican village appeared to be taking its midday siesta. Two dusty, well pointed horses stood at the hitching rail. Britt encountered a brace of hard-lipped men, strangers, who gave him a gruff word and passed on. Britt made his purchases and took his time returning to the bunkhouse.

* * *

STINGER and Gaines were splashing like ducks in a pond. Skylark was inside donning a clean shirt. His tanned face, cleaned of grime and beard, appeared somewhat gaunt. He yelled with delight when Britt pitched the package of little tobacco pouches on the table.

"A cowboy without cigarets is like thet play I read of—with the main hombre left out—just nothin'." In another moment he was puffing away. "Boss, we drove near four thousand head down out of the canyons to White Pool."

"What? Not our stock! Don't tell me you boys have taken to rustlin' other ranchers' cattle."

"Knew it would floor you, Cap. It shore did us. Say, we have no idee how many cattle we have. These were all wearin' the long ripple. An' there was a load of calves we didn't count."

"Wal, I'll be darned! How you explain thet, Sky?"

"We all had different reasons. Mine is we haven't got enough riders to go around. Stinger knows thet country better than any of us. He says a big per cent of this stock has been drifted in them south canyons. I reckon Stinger is right, but, doggone, I hate to believe it!"

"Ahuh. Stinger seldom makes a mistake, Sky," rejoined Britt, in deep thought.

"If it's so it means a big drive up out of them canyons before the snow flies."

"Where to?"

"Seven Rivers—most likelee—or down the Pecos sure."

"By Paso del Muerte?"

"No, boss; west of the pass. You know them little canyons south of White Pool? They were full of our stock an' nobody else's. We cleaned them out. I advise the outfit ridin' over there pronto an' drivin' the bunch down so they'll water on the Cottonwood."

"Good! We'll do thet. Wal, go on. Who did it, Sky?"

"Are you askin' me?"

"I shore am."

"Humph! You better tell me."

"An' what else? Thet doesn't account for gun smoke."

"We run onto a funny deal. Or I should say Old Wasp Stinger did. After we got the herd pointed this mornin'—about sunrise—Stinger took us on a little ride into a draw thet drains into White Pool. Sting didn't say much, but he looked heaps. After we got in the brush he took to his hoofs, an' you can bet Handsome an' me were not so crazy about thet. It shore was hot in thet brush. Finally we got sore an' stops short. 'What the hell you takin' us, Sting?' Gaines wanted to know, an' I swore I was near dead. 'Fellars, I got shot at again up here yesterday, an' damn near bored. Look here!' . . . He stripped up his shirt an' showed us a red welt across his side. 'Close shave? Ha, I should smile.' . . . We saved our wind then an' went on till we come to the big open. There had been a new shack thrown up under the bluff where the spring comes out. We saw smoke an' saddled hosses. Stinger hadn't been very cute about slippin' up, for the bunch was watchin', an' they opened fire on us. We dove for cover an' they took to their horses. Sting had a rifle, an' I was packin' mine. There were six or seven men in the bunch, all carryin' light packs behind their saddles. Which says a lot. Stinger swears he killed one of them. Saw him pitch out of his saddle. But I was too busy pumpin' lead to watch his shots. I had ten at them, say from four hundred yards on. An' I saw one man who was shootin' back—I saw him drop his gun an' keel over his hoss, an' I'm sure I crippled another. Anyhow, they got away."

"Whose ootfit was it, Sky?"

"Stinger swears it was Heaver's. He's seen them, you know. They were workin' this side of the range. Anyway, this job of Stinger's was good."

"I hope thet's all."

"I wish it was. Half way home we saw three riders bob over a rise an' stand their hosses, waitin' for us, turned out to be Joe Doane an' two of his dad's riders. Joe gave me the stump of his cigaret, which was all he had. Doane lost twenty head of hosses, his best, includin' the blue roan wearin' the Ripple brand. Miss Holly gave thet roan to Ann. Say, wasn't I sore? . . . Joe said they'd trailed this bunch for three days till they darn near starved—along by 'Dobe Cabin, down to the Cimarron, which the thieves crossed on to the Old trail."

"How many hawse thieves?" asked Britt, shaking his head.

"Joe didn't find out. Four shod hosses, he said. . . . Now, boss, wouldn't it be funny if thet bunch run into Brazos an' Frayne comin' back?"

"Funny? Aboot as funny as death."

Early in the afternoon of the next day Jim, Blue, and Flinty arrived from Cedar Flat.

This section of the range was quite remote from Don Carlos rancho, being a succession of tremendous benches running out from the foothills some sixty miles away.

Activity of rustlers had been difficult to uncover and hard to trace. They had encountered half a dozen cowboy outfits, three of which omitted to make clear what connection they had on that range.

Jim's report, however, included other activities that gave Britt food for reflection. San Marcos had more than a year ago begun to feel the influx of new settlers, cattlemen, and the parasites that lived on them, but this summer had seen the sleepy little Mexican village grow in a way that had both gratifying and dismaying reactions for the Ripple foreman.

Horn Brothers had started a new post there, which Jim said was just an excuse to add another saloon and gambling hell to the already long list. New stores, a hotel, a mining company, and numerous residents, both Mexican and American, had been added since Britt's last visit there. McCoy was reported to have an interest in several new San Marcos business developments. He [illegible] to be going into partnership with Chisum, but Britt knew this was mere brag and rather stupid of McCoy, because it was well known that the Jinglebob cattleman was a lone wolf.

Russ Slaughter and his Seven Rivers outfit had apparently dropped out of sight, and this to Britt was the most significant news. Slaughter had quit Chisum to be a free agent, to be in the thick of the fat pickings for cattle buzzards that would prevail in central and eastern New Mexico.

"Cap, thet's a big country between Cottonwood basin an' Ute hills," said Jim. "Clement has twenty thousand cattle there, Haywood aboot eight, an' Doane, who's on the edge, aboot five thousand. Or he did have thet many. Doane was pretty much het up when he was heah."

"Wal, countin' six to ten thousand of ours oot there, these hombres have a big bunch to pick from. A big range an' easy ootlets. Jim, it jest makes my blood boil."

"We're doin' all we can. A hundred riders wouldn't be enough. Cattle hev growed too thick an' fast. An' to hev the price bust on us is somethin' onheared of! . . . Cap, what we ought to do is like Chisum. Help ourselves."

"No, thet's the cowboy's point of view, Jim," returned Britt seriously. "Mebbe Chisum takes what comes his way. An' some of the other cattlemen will when this deal comes to a haid. But we cain't double-cross Miss Holly, an' she wouldn't own a steer thet wasn't hers."

"Whoopee!" yelled Blue fiercely from the porch.

Britt ran out with Jim. A cloud of dust down the road only partially hid a troop of horses being driven up from the pass toward the village. Flinty joined the others on the porch, where Britt expressed his belief that Frayne and Brazos had arrived home with the horses stolen from Doane.

"By all thet's lucky!" ejaculated Britt. "Gosh, my eyes water! How many, Blue?"

"Aw, two dozen or more. An' thet's our top bunch of riders. There's the chuck wagon, Britt, comin' down out of the pass."

"Skylark will be plumb tickled. . . . Wal, wal, I hope Frayne came through safe."

"Outfit's all trailin' home at once," remarked Jim with satisfaction. "Now if Rebel would rustle in."

Britt caught the rather significant omission of Talman and Trinidad. It gave him a pang. He had grown attached to every member of this greatest band of cowboys that he had seen.

Stinger appeared in the bunkhouse door, half dressed and blinking of eye. "What's all the hullabaloo, boss?"

"Ootfit's back, an' I reckon they got Doane's hawses."

"Darn my pictoore! Didn't I have a hunch? . . . I'm gonna get into my jeans."

* * *

BRITT found in the situation another reflection as to his peculiar strain these days. He could hardly conceal either his joy or concern or impatience. How good to have them back—to see Frayne and Brazos—to feel Holly's relief! Would all the cowboys be with them, safe and well? He managed, however, to contain himself while waiting for them to come up. At last when Britt walked off to meet Frayne it ran in his mind that he had never in his life been so glad to see a man. Britt wondered with a sting of conscience if he had unconsciously harbored a doubt of Frayne. Gaunt, hollow-eyed, unshaven, and hard, Frayne had seemed to have about him that something inimically western and stable.

"Howdy, Cap," he said, leaning to meet Britt's eager hand.

"I'm shore glad to see you. Everythin' all right?"

"Now that I'm here, yes," replied Frayne with his cool laugh.

"How aboot the money?"

"All here," rejoined Frayne, patting the saddlebag which hung over his pommel instead of the usual place behind the cantle. "That is, except a few dollars to each of the boys."

"What'd they bring?"

"I got forty-two dollars a head."

"Wal, you son of a gun! Thet's great! But heah, don't waste another minute on me. Ride up to Holly an' get rid of thet money."

"Britt, you take it up for me. I'm tired. And——"

"No, sir. Holly would—wal, never mind. But she wants to see you, Renn. I'd rather like to be in yore boots. She'll be surprised you're heah."

"She saw us coming, Cap," he rejoined. "Must have been watching with the glass. Cherry saw her wave before we crossed the Cimarron."

"Holly has been on the job with thet glass for the last ten days. Rustle, now."

"But, Cap——"

"There ain't no buts. Go! The girl has worried herself sick. She can't eat or sleep," went on Britt, lying shamelessly.

"Worried herself! Good God, man! For fear I'd turn yellow?"

"Hell, no! You're as testy as Brazos. . . . She didn't care a hang aboot the money. She missed you."

Without another word Frayne turned his horse toward the winding road up the green hill. He could not have been a more pondering and dazed man if he had been forced to report loss of the large sum of money.

* * *

BRITT'S conscience did not even smart, and he chuckled to himself as he directed his attention to the approaching cowboys. They had driven the band of horses into a corral. Skylark, Blue, Flinty, and Gaines, all on foot, were escorting the mounted boys to the bunkhouse. Stinger was on his way to meet them. Britt's fond eye soon missed a familiar figure.

"Where's Brazos?" he yelled while they were still some distance off.

"He's drivin' the wagon. Be hyar pronto," shouted Laigs Mason.

Britt returned to his chair on the porch. All was well. The outfit was home. That somber purple shadow which hung over the foothills could be forgotten for the time being. He watched the cowboys dismount and throw their saddles. Tex Southard appeared to be the only one incapacitated. Skylark took his horse while Blue helped him to the bunkhouse. Tex had a decided limp.

"Wal, I reckon a hawse fell on you," said Britt dryly.

"Boss, eet ees lead bullet in my laig. Yu must dig out," replied the vaquero.

"Anybody else hurt?"

"Mason got barked. You'd think he was all shot up to hear him holler," said Blue.

Britt refrained from more questions at that time. He took out his impatience in listening and watching. They all piled past him with greetings, the vociferous ones of which he noted were made by the cowboys who had remained home. They were merry. Mason glared at Britt as he hobbled up on the porch and shoved out a dirty hand with a bloody furrow across the back of it.

"Thet's what I get fer not throwin' my gun," he growled, as if Britt had been somehow to blame.

"Wal, it's yore left hand."

"Yaas? An' how'm I gonna play cards?"

"Cap, Laigs means he can't stack the deck," said Blue.

"Laigs, when did you an' Tex stop these bullets?" queried the foreman.

"Yestiddy mornin'."

"I reckon it was accident."

"Sorta—fer the hombre who done it."

During the ensuing half hour, while Britt went inside to wait for Frayne and Brazos, he heard much interesting news, but nothing at all about the rescue of Doane's horses and the fight which had evidently taken place with the thieves.

Railroad construction had been slow during the spring and summer, due to lack of funds. But now the rails were moving west again and Las Animas was roaring. The construction engineers expected to get to Trinidad before winter set in. Trains were running regularly between Las Animas and Kansas City. One train had been held up for a whole day near Dodge by a herd of buffalo. Another had been stopped recently by bandits. Frank and Jesse James had been blamed for this, but, according to railroad men, they could not have been implicated, because they had been recognized in western Kansas at the time of the holdup near Newton. This strengthened the rumor of other strong bands of outlaws working westward. —all so you could hang behind an' Cattle shipments had been large, and the price of cattle on the hoof, delivered at the railroad, was expected to increase. The cowboys had passed a large caravan between the Cimarron and the Purgatory rivers. Laigs Mason had won a hundred dollars in a game of poker, which bit of news appeared to be the most impressive the returning cowboys felt that they had.

Presently the doorway framed the striking figure and face of Brazos Keene. Unlike his comrades, Brazos had that morning taken the trouble to shave and don a clean shirt and scarf. He looked like a handsome imp of Satan.

"Howdy, old timer! Yu shore look lonesome. Proves yu don't 'preciate us when we're heah," was his greeting to Britt. "Pards, I had a drink as big as thet. An' who yu think was layin' for me? Connie! Did she—was she glad to see me? Wal, yu'd all been green."

"Aw, I was onto you," bawled out Laigs. "You let me drive thet ole wagon all day long till we get near home. Then you offer to relieve me, meet the gurls an' have a drink. Doggone you, I don't know how'n the hell you make sich a sucker out of me."

Brazos did a jig in the middle of the bunkhouse floor, his fine embroidered boots flying, his spurs jingling, his clustering yellow locks dancing with the rest of him.

"Back home!" babbled Brazos as he completed his jig. "Lucky trip! Sweet rest an' good grub an' thet black-eyed slave of mine! Aw, a cowboy's life is hard."

Britt thought that all the marvelous traits of the Texas cowboy, and, for that matter, of all the range riders of the west, were epitomized in this slender, fair-haired boy of nineteen. But Britt knew that to look at him and to listen was to court deception. Brazos was never what he seemed. On the surface he was frivolous, care-free, a heedless, wild youth, hard as flint, living for the moment, conscienceless and irresponsible. This was true of Brazos, but it had to do with externals. Either Brazos was a youth with many sides or an incomparable actor, or both.

"Wal, how aboot it?" queried Britt into the first lull.

"How aboot what, boss?" drawled Brazos.

"I want a report, don't I?"

"Dawggone if I even know what yu want," complained Brazos plaintively.

"You got back Doane's hawses."

"Shore. We didn't know whose they were till I seen thet blue roan with a ripple on his flank. I'd seen Miss Holly on him, an' I recollected thet she gave him to Ann Doane. . . . So things kinda connected up in my dumb haid."

"Ahuh, I reckon. Wal, tell me aboot what happened."

"Boss, I ain't feelin' like talkin'," replied Brazos in cool evasion.

"Laigs, do you want to tell me?" went on Britt dryly.

"Boss, I'm a cowman what's shy on words. Besides, I'm tired an' hurt an' I couldn't talk fer a million."

"Million what?" asked Britt, convinced that he could make Laigs retract this extravagant speech.

"Pesos," said Laigs shortly.

Then Britt called loudly, "Jackson!"

"Yes, suh, heah I is."

"Come over heah."

The little bow-legged Negro approached Britt with some uncertainty and trepidation, but his eyes rolled till the whites showed to match with his teeth.

"Are you dumb, too, Jack?"

"I reckon—yes, suh, I's as dumb as Laigs."

"Wal, heah's ten pesos."

"Boss! Fer me?" asked Jackson with a huge grin.

"Yes, if you'll take thet back aboot bein' dumb."

"Sho', suh. I's not dumb a-tall. . . . Yo' see, boss, I wuz jes' sidin' wif Laigs——"

"Hyar!" yelled Laigs, suddenly coming out of his stupefaction. "You darn hoss-chewin' nigger, lay off'n me! . . . Boss, I'll take it back. I'll tell you anythin' fer ten——"

Career of Venizelos Colorful

Great Rebel and Great Patriot

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Athens, Greece.

MOST hated and most beloved man of all contemporary Greece, Eleutherios Venizelos, is dead—a gloriously picturesque career is ended. But this man—a great patriot and a great rebel—breathed his last not within the land that he loved. He died in self-imposed exile in Paris on March 18 last, a victim of heart failure.

The story of his life is a colorful one. He was born in 1864 of well-to-do parents in the village of Mournies, an hour's journey from Canea, the capital of Crete. He got his schooling in Syra, where his father had been exiled, and later in Canea. In 1886 he passed the law examinations at the University of Athens, and, returning to Canea the next year, he entered the Cretan assembly as a Liberal deputy and leader of the Liberal party. It was the beginning of Venizelos' long struggle to get Crete, then subject to the sublime porte and a sort of Turkish Ireland, united to Greece. While he was beginning his political career he was also working up a big law practice through his oratorical ability.

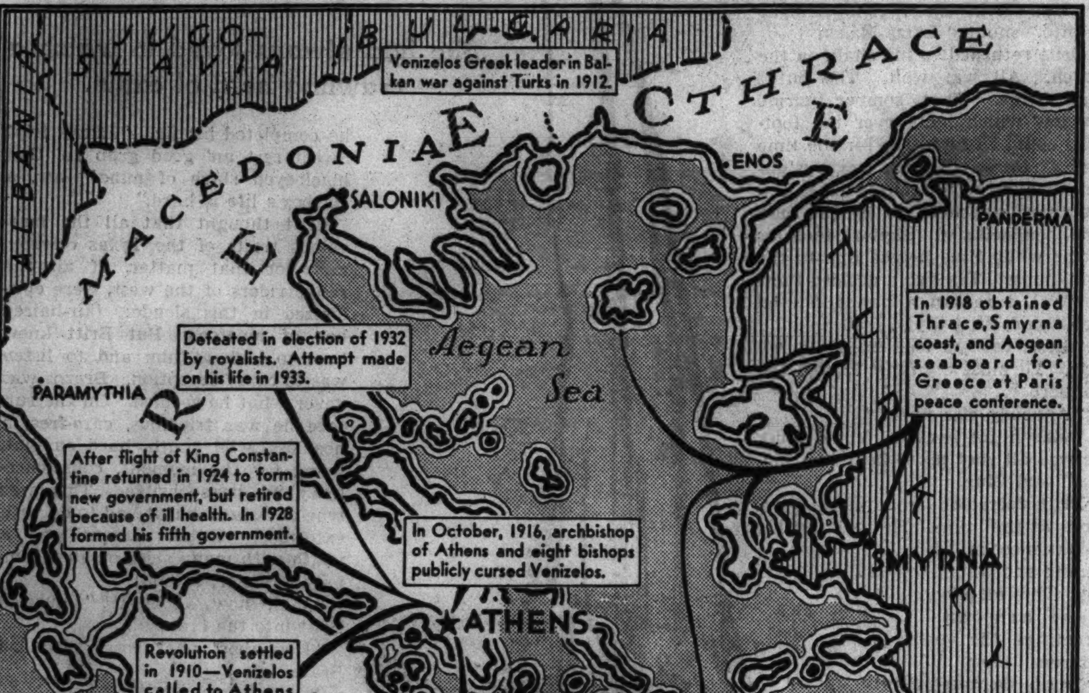
Eleutherios Venizelos



Venizelos Greek leader in Balkan war against Turks in 1912.

Defeated in election of 1932 by royalists. Attempt made on his life in 1933.

In 1918 obtained Thrace, Smyrna coast, and Aegean seaboard for Greece at Paris peace conference.

After flight of King Constantine returned in 1924 to form new government, but retired because of ill health. In 1928 formed his fifth government.

In October, 1916, archbishop of Athens and eight bishops publicly cursed Venizelos.

Revolution settled in 1910—Venizelos called to Athens and made prime minister.

Passed law examinations at University of Athens in 1886.

Lost in election of 1920 and became exile.

Headed revolution against Greece.

Entered Cretan assembly in 1887 and began struggle to get Crete (then subject to Turkey) united to Greece.

Rebelled against Greek neutrality in world war in 1916 and set up provisional government in Crete.

Went to school in Syra and Canea.

Eleutherios Venizelos born in 1864 in village of Mournies, Crete.

Threw in his lot with the rebels in revolution of 1935. Uprising unsuccessful and Venizelos fled to Rhodes.

Map of modern Greece, a country in which Venizelos was a great patriot and likewise a great rebel. Localities figuring prominently in the life of the Greek leader are designated on the map.

His reputation spread to Athens in 1889 when the Turks intervened in Crete and sent 40,000 men to carry out repressions there. In the turbulent period from 1889 to 1898 there were revolutions, uprisings, interventions in the island by the powers, massacres, and a war between Greece and Turkey, the porte accusing the Greeks of aiding the Cretan rebels. In all these events Venizelos was a leader and ruling spirit. In 1898 he was elected president of the Cretan revolutionary assembly, which stood for complete independence. After further massacres the Turk forces were expelled by the big powers, which established a sort of protectorate government over the island and set up Prince George, younger son of the king of Greece, as high commissioner.

⁂

Venizelos then became Prince George's chief adviser, but they soon disagreed and an insurrection fomented by Venizelos broke and Venizelos took to the hills, where he lived for years, the leader of the revolting Cretan mountaineers. It was a life of exposure and hardship. Prince George resigned as high commissioner in 1906 and was succeeded by M. Zaimis, with whom Venizelos and his insurrectionists got on no better. There were more revolts and uprisings. In October, 1908, he headed a revolutionary committee which took over the government of Crete and proclaimed fidelity to King George of Greece. And in 1910 a constituent assembly passed a resolution of complete union with Greece.

Venizelos had become a famous figure in all these happenings. So in September, 1910, he resigned the presidency of the Cretan council and was called to Athens, where he received a tremendous welcome in the Piræus. Venizelos was known as the "Cretan Deliverer." There was a question of revising the Greek constitution. When in October, 1910, the military league forced the cabinet to resign, King Constantine called on Venizelos to form a government. As prime minister he began carrying out a program of administrative reform, and he promised King Constantine that if left alone he would remake Greece in five years.

⁂

At the time he was putting his house in order at home Venizelos was planning the Balkan federation and building up the Greek army and navy, which had been demoralized by the defeat at the hands of the Turks in 1897. A Greco-Bulgarian alliance was formed in May, 1912, and political observers could see that the Balkan war against Turkey was not far off.

It broke in the fall of 1912 over the ill treatment of Christians in Macedonia. Greece declared war first, followed by Montenegro, and in their turn the other Balkan powers handed notes to the sublime porte. In October the Greek chamber held a special session and admitted the Cretan deputies. It was a historic day and the triumph for Venizelos' long struggle.

The Balkan allies were successful against the Turks and on Nov. 9 the Greeks occupied Salonica. At the peace conference that followed in London Venizelos brought all his diplomatic talents to bear to secure the maximum gains for his country. There was difficulty in dividing up the spoils, but Greece kept Salonica.

In June, 1913, the second Balkan war broke out. The Bulgarians started it with their attack on the Vardar river to cut off the Greeks from the Serbians. This war gave Greece another big slice of Macedonia, including Kavalla. Venizelos' popularity was supreme. His dream of a greater Greece was being realized. Constantine gave Venizelos the grand cross of the Royal Order of our Savior.

Soon the world war broke out, and Venizelos, the friend of France, directed the policy of his country toward the triple entente. He believed Greece could get more on that side. In January, 1915, after the bombardment of the Dardanelles by the Allies, he sought the intervention of Greece on the side of the Allies.

King Constantine, brother-in-law of the German kaiser, refused to adhere to the premier's scheme and Venizelos resigned, but in August, 1915, he came back to power, only to resign again in September when Bulgaria attacked Serbia and Constantine refused to help her.

⁂

In September, 1916, Venizelos decided to rebel. He went to Crete and proclaimed a provisional government of national defense. Salonica, where the Allies were established to fight the Bulgarians and Germans, and the Greek islands joined the Venizelos movement. Venizelos went to Salonica and began raising troops to fight on the Balkan front. A period of internal turmoil followed. Greece was divided. On Dec. 26, 1916, occurred the ceremonial of cursing Venizelos by the Athens archbishop, who stood on a pile of stones in the center of a great throng of people. Eight bishops also participated. They chanted:

"Cursed be Eleutherios Venizelos, who has imprisoned priests and plotted against his king and his country." Each cried "Anathema" and threw a stone on the pile. But next day at dawn the stone pile was seen covered with flowers by the admirers of Venizelos.

Death Takes Exile in Paris

As head of the government of Greece at Salonica, Venizelos raised 60,000 men and but for the Allies' refusal would have taken Athens. This step, however, they took themselves in June, 1917, when they deposed Constantine and named a high commissioner at the same time that Venizelos became premier again. His problem now was to realize his aims in intervention and in rebelling against Constantine. That problem was to put the Allies under obligations to him as much as possible and so get territorial gains in Asia Minor. Greece raised a force of 300,000 men.

A month after the 1918 armistice found Venizelos in Paris. At the peace conference he was eminently successful. He occupied Smyrna against Italian wishes. He emerged from the conference with the whole of Thrace, the Smyrna coast, and practically the whole Ægean seaboard. His dream of greater Hellenism seemed to have been realized.

⁂

In 1920 he came home with the treaties of Sevres and Neuilly and a treaty with Italy. But in the elections that year he lost and on Nov. 17, 1920, he left on a British destroyer, an exile again. On Dec. 20, 1920, Constantine returned as king after an overwhelmingly favorable plebiscite.

Constantine embarked on a course of military adventure which quickly lost the recently acquired territory in Asia Minor. Against the rising menace of the Turks under Kemal Constantine's prime minister, Gounaris, in March, 1921, ordered a general offensive, but the Turks under Kemal soon drove the Greeks in a pell-mell rush out of Asia Minor.

Colonel Plastiras and Colonel Gonatas, who had served with the Greek army and who organized the retreat, escaped to the Greek islands, where they organized a revolt against Constantine, seized the government at Athens, and set up a military dictatorship, forcing Constantine to abdicate. Peace was made with the Turks at Mudania, in which Greece lost much of her territorial gains in Thrace and all in Asia Minor.

⁂

Meanwhile, in November, 1922, a military court in Athens had sentenced former Premier Gounaris and three other ministers to death for their alleged betrayal of the country vith the Asia Minor campaign. They were shot. Did Venizelos approve these executions, carried out a few hours after the court's verdict? He never answered the question clearly and precisely, but he has always praised the merits and patriotism of his friend Pastiras, then dictator of the country. At any rate the executions left a tragic heritage to Greece and threw a ghastly light over the events of the next fourteen years, as it has transpired, in fanning the flames of political passions over the question of the monarchy.

After the second flight of Constantine, Venizelos for a time refused to return and form a government. But in January, 1924, he consented. He became prime minister for the fourth time on Jan. 11, 1924, but his health was not good and a month later he resigned. In March he left Greece again, a voluntary exile, while the struggle over deposing the monarchy and making Greece a republic was going on, to result in the plebiscite of March 25, 1924, which sent the Glucksburg dynasty of Constantine into perpetual banishment. Greece became a republic, with Admiral Coundouriotis as its first president.

Then for four years Venizelos, because of ill health, retired from politics. But he remained leader of the Progressive Liberal party from 1924 to 1928, and in July, 1928, he came back to Greece and formed his fifth government, a coalition of liberals, independents, and republicans.

⁂

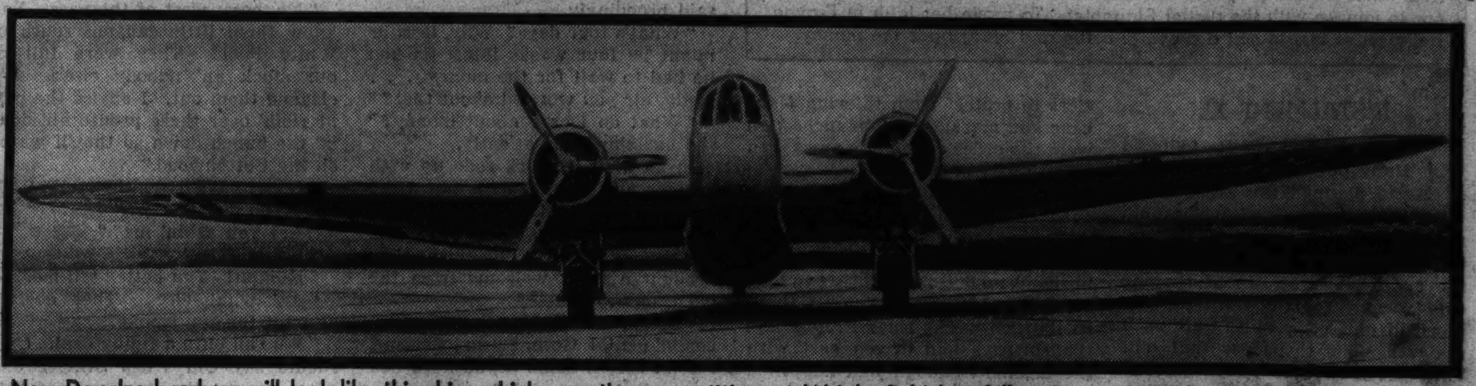
He remained in power till September, 1932, when the royalists, or Populists, as they then called themselves, won the elections and forced Venizelos into a minority in the chamber. General Plastiras staged his abortive revolution in March in 1933. Again it is a question whether Venizelos had part in this uprising. An attempt on Venizelos' life was made in the summer and his would-be assassins were never apprehended.

Plots and counterplots grew. They were fomented on foreign soil by republican officers who believed that Tsaldaris and the Populists were preparing to restore the monarchy. These plots came to a head with the March, 1935, rebellion, when army detachments revolted and naval officers seized the Greek fleet, or at least part of it. The direct motive of the revolt was the acts of the Tsaldaris government in throwing army and naval officers known to be Venizelist sympathizers out of their jobs and replacing the high command with royalist officers.

Venizelos, then living in Crete, where he had gone because his life in Athens was no longer safe, threw in his lot with the rebels. The revolution was unsuccessful and on March 13 Venizelos, who had formed again a provisional government at Canea, the site of his early struggles, gave up and escaped to Rhodes on one of the rebel warships. Thus began the last exile of Eleutherios Venizelos.

Airplanes and Air Transport

Air corps' largest plane, Boeing 299 bombardment ship, thirteen of which have been purchased. With 4,000 pounds of bombs it has a high speed of 240 miles an hour and range of 3,000 miles.



New Douglas bombers will look like this ship, which won the competition at Wright field last fall and a contract for 82 others. Speed, 230 miles an hour; range, 1,700 miles with 2,500 pounds of bombs.

Attack aviation units will be re-equipped with Northrop planes like this one. Two hundred have been purchased by the air corps. Top speed, 250 miles an hour.

Fast Pursuit Ship Needed by Army

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE United States army air corps needs a 350-mile-an-hour pursuit type airplane, strong enough to withstand the strains of pull-outs after long dives and other violent maneuvers associated with tactics of small fighters. Procurement of such an airplane is the great problem ahead of the air corps during the year 1936.

Such a fast, sturdy ship has become essential as a result of the great strides made in two years in both bombardment and attack branches of combat flying. Ships built specially for the duties of bombing and ground strafing now are faster than the single-seaters which in the past have been valuable because they were faster than any other military planes.

This situation was publicly recognized last December by one of the procurement boards assembled by the air corps to judge the winner in a competition for a contract for 82 new pursuit airplanes. The contestants were the Seversky Aviation company and the Curtiss-Wright Airplane and Motor company. Ships of both these companies were low-wing monoplanes with retractile landing gear, closed cockpits, and 700-horsepower engines. Speed of each was just under 300 miles an hour.

After both ships had been flown thirty hours at Wright field, Dayton, the army's experimental field, the board refused to award the contract, saying that neither of the planes fulfilled requirements for modern pursuit aircraft. Although it was not so stated by this board, one of those unfilled requirements was a 100-mile-an-hour edge in speed, which the contesting ships did not have, over the 250-mile-an-hour bombers and attack planes already on order.

⁂

During the year the army did purchase 50 low-wing monoplane two-seat pursuit airplanes. Delivery by the Consolidated Aircraft corporation has begun. These all-metal ships are powered with 700-horsepower Conqueror engines, liquid-cooled in-line type, and have a top speed of 260 miles an hour. They cruise at 225 miles an hour. Armament consists of machine guns, several firing forward as in a single-seat pursuit and one traversable gun operated by a gunner who sits in a tiny cockpit facing the tail.

These airplanes, although not possessing the desired speed, are probably the most deadly fighter ships in service in any nation. They are regarded by the army design staf as transitional types and consequently worthy of purchase. Moreover, performance is expected to be increased by fifty miles an hour when new 1,100-horsepower in-line liquid-cooled motors, now completing tests at the Wright field laboratories, are installed.

The Boeing P-26 low-wing fixed landing gear ship, of which the army has purchased 200 since 1932, is today the finest pursuit airplane in service. The engine is a 550-horsepower radial Wasp. Top speed is 240 miles an hour. Two machine guns and bombs can be carried.

Although the army is dissatisfied with its pursuit equipment, there is no discontent evinced when the bombardment or attack divisions of the combat branch are mentioned. During 1935 the air corps purchased 206 bombardment ships and 245 attack type planes. Delivery of about half this total will be completed by the end of 1936.

New acquisitions in the bombardment field, with a group of about ninety machines ordered in 1933 and delivered during 1934 and 1935, will give the United States army air corps the world's best-equipped bombardment squadrons.

The nucleus of this force consists of the Martin B-10 and B-12 bombers already in service. These monoplanes, with twin radial engines, have a range of 900 miles with 2,000 pounds of bombs, a crew of three or four, and formidable machine gun defenses. Their top speed at 13,000 feet is said to be 220 miles an hour. A contract for 103 more of these bombers was awarded the Glenn L. Martin company during the summer of 1935.

On Dec. 22 the air corps ordered 90 Douglas bombers, monoplanes with twin motors and guaranteed higher performance than the Martin. The Douglas bomber is reported to have a top speed of 230 miles an hour at 14,000 feet, a range of 1,700 miles, and a bomb load of 2,500 pounds. The engines are Cyclones, developing 850 horsepower.

Cream of all the new bombardment machines, however, will be the 13 Boeing 299 four-engine "super-bombers" ordered on Dec. 24. These machines will be the largest land airplanes built in the United States and will represent a great advance in speed, range, and load-carrying capacity over bombardment planes of any other nation.

The first 299 was completed last summer and set a world's speed duration record when it was flown from the Boeing factory at Seattle nonstop to Wright field. For the 2,100 miles of air line distance the big ship cruised at an average speed of 232 miles an hour at 62.5 per cent full throttle. The four motors were Hornets developing 750 horsepower.

This machine was destroyed after being flown for thirty hours when army pilots at the controls took off with the elevators locked. Two men were killed, four others escaping with minor injuries. An army board of inquiry determined the cause of the crash and stated publicly that neither structural nor engine failure played any part in the accident.

So outstanding had been the results obtained in the short period the machine was in the hands of the air corps, however, that the order for 13 identical ships was given. The only difference in the ships to be delivered beginning next October will be that the Hornet engines will be replaced with Cyclones of a rated 1,000 horsepower for take-off purposes. With these engines developing 930 horsepower in the air, top speed for the big planes will be 255 miles an hour, according to calculations.

⁂

Two orders for attack airplanes were given the Northrop Aviation corporation of Inglewood, Cal., a subsidiary of Douglas. The first called for 120 ships with a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour and a top of 220, with a crew of two, range of 1,000 miles, and racks for bombs and tanks for spreading chemicals.

The second order was for 115 of a later type machine of considerably better performance. The newest machines will cruise at 220 and have a top speed of 250 miles an hour, carrying pilot and gunner, 800 pounds of bombs, five machine guns, chemical tanks, and fuel for 1,750 miles. They will take off and clear a 50-foot obstacle in 500 feet.

Engines in the first order were Cyclones or Hornets of 750 horsepower. In the second order the engines are twin-row Wasps of 800 horsepower. Controlable-pitch propellers, full radio, the latest engine instruments and navigational aids are standard in all the new ships.

"Why should I put up with jarring 'all-at-once' cathartics?"

I know a better way to relieve constipation—the new scientific 3-minute way. You simply chew delicious FEEN-A-MINT for 3 minutes at night. And, because you chew it, it goes to work easily, gradually—not all at once. No wonder every one in our family says: "No more old-fashioned cathartics—we're FEEN-A-MINT fans." Only 15c and 25c for big, generous boxes.

Society Turns Eye on Modes New and Old

Elizabeth McCormick Exhibits Her Collection of Prints to Her Friends.

By Cousin Eve.

FLOWER shows and spring openings, tanned faces from the south and west! Paris frocks are conservative with those subtle differentiations which make a new style. Black, and black with white are tops, and some French stylists are featuring peeping petticoats, a froufrou of colored ruffles.

Things Chinese, too, are in vogue: Peaked Chinesey hats, and loose coats with floppy sleeves, and loud, large prints for evening dresses.

Miss Elizabeth McCormick's guests Tuesday afternoon at the Brush and Pencil club of the Art institute had a style show, rather unexpected. The walls of a large room in the north wing were hung with her collection of prints of the French revolutionary and Directoire periods. A fashionable group of her friends arrived early and studied the curious drawings which are mostly travesties on manner and morals that came with the revolution, as well as pictures of the clothes worn by men and women who survived the guillotine.

Some of the prints have much beauty of color and line and are valuable as possessions. Miss McCormick had been laid up by an accident and so could not move about as she intended and explain her treasures and their creators. But she was able to stand and give a charming résumé, quite spicy, of the people and times reproduced in her collection.

Startling Costumes to Attract Attention.

Mme. Tallien, a great leader of the new-rich after the revolution, and her adventurous career were described with much wit. This lady, married first to Comte de Fontenay and then closely associated with Tallien, and Barat, resorted to most revealing costumes the better to gain the attention of these revolutionaries. She headed the "Merveilleuses." Barat, a foppish man, was high up among the Incroyables, or Unbelievables. At that period the behavior and license of the successful makers of revolution was truly marvelous and unbelievable, and many women rode to notoriety and leadership in the nouveau riche mushroom society that grew overnight by outrageous behavior and conspicuous clothes.

Miss McCormick mentioned that she had in her possession a pair of gloves worn by Barat. Of blue, they had white wristlets and straps and an unmistakable spot of human blood. Furthermore, the gloves were made of a woman's skin. This circumstance is authenticated by an old, time-stained document.

Daniel Rich introduced the speaker, complimenting her spirit as a collector, and referring to her father, R. Hall McCormick, from whose collection of old English portraits in the Rush street house a lovely Raeburn now hangs in the Art institute. A handsome tea table was set in an embrasure of the large room and Mrs. Walter Ayer poured tea for her sister. Among the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. H. H. Shearson, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. C. W. Dampster, Mrs. James R. Walker, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. George Langhorne, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Robert Hall McCormick and his son Robert Hall Jr., Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. William S. Monroe, and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland.

Russell Plympton Talks on Chinese Art.

Another enchanting talk on the artistic side of life was given at the Fortnightly one morning by Russell Plympton, assistant curator of the Minneapolis museum, brother-in-law of Beatrice Borland. Mr. Plympton spoke on the magnificent oriental collection shown during the winter at Burlington house, London. Illustrated by slides, it was a vivid review of the whole important event, from the moment of landing these national treasures of China and Japan from a British battleship at Portsmouth, to reproductions of the building, its plan, and even where Chicago's treasures were exhibited. Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer had loaned a pair of Chinese terra cotta lions, immensely rare, and Miss Kate Buckingham and Russell Tyson's names also figured in the catalog.

Introduced by Mrs. Chauncey Blair Borland, who had raced back from Paris for the lecture, Mr. Plympton modestly called himself a mere reporter of events, and described the earlier days of the show when mercury stood at 50. Another thing I had not thought of, that enormous crowds made it difficult to see the smaller pieces. Many of the gems of the collection are only nine or ten inches high. The Chinese bronzes were infinitely gorgeous and there were shown objects from all the Chinese periods down the ages. A few Chinese pictures were reproduced, and marvelous pieces of pottery. There were 3,500 pieces shown, some being mere eggshell fragments, showing old and extraordinary civilizations, and even analogy with Greek and Roman times.

Many visitors went to Burlington house daily for weeks, spending all their time in London absorbing this oriental culture. And, while these treasures of the Chinese government were infinitely interesting, nobody supposes that they lent their most valuable and superlative possessions to hazards of the sea, war risks, or whatsoever.

Charming Party for Polish Opera Singers.

On Saturday night the Polish consulate, 1444 Lake Shore drive, was gay with a musical party. Guests were asked to meet two Polish opera stars, Mme. Halina Lipowska and Antoni Golebiowski of Warsaw, who came here to sing in "Halka" at the Civic Opera house.

Consul General and Mme. Gavronski received in the long drawing room of the house, overlooking the lake, its walls elaborately brocaded in gold, with crimson hangings. There several generations of Chicago society have come and gone as guests of Gen. and Mrs. A. C. McClurg and the George M. Reynoldses. It was odd to hear the soft, sibilant sounds of Polish and almost no English as the charming guests came in. The Gavronskis are gay and cordial, and Vice Consuls Staniewicz and Lepkowski have taken their places in our society among the young bachelors of the town.

Receiving also, Mr. Buonowski of Warsaw, the well known conductor, and a most charming woman, Mme. Carola Zagorska, a cousin of Joseph Conrad. He is the distinguished Pole whose epics of the sea are the most beautiful of English prose writings, perhaps even more lovely than the English of Robert Louis Stevenson.

The opera singers came last of all, with a little furor of excitement and rustlings of Mme. Lipowska's silken skirts. One must rustle once more to be chic. She is a pretty woman, a high coloratura soprano with the fresh song of a bird. Both artists sang, in Polish, several arias from their national operas with much brilliancy.

Rumors of Next Post of Count Potocki.

I heard again during the evening that Count George Potocki will be the next Polish ambassador to Washington, being now en poste at Ankara, Turkey. He is said to have refused the embassy at Rome because he knows the Duce wishes to dismember the Versailles treaty, under which Poland fared so sumptuously. Count Potocki is a younger brother of Alfred, who is the lord of Lancut, near Cracow, greatest landed estate in eastern Europe.

The buffet at this party was superb. Magnificent spring flowers for a centerpiece, and real food: two cold roast turkeys, neck and neck; fish in aspics; handsome Polish hams, a wonderful delicacy. Indeed, Polish cooking is the best in the world, far surpassing the French. There were salt rising bread of a fineness, salads, sweets, cakes, lavishly served.

Among the guests at the musical were Count and Countess Antony Potocki who have returned to Chicago from Detroit to live. They are staying with the bride's mother, Mrs. Griffiths, at 1500 Lake Shore drive. The romance of their wedding was a quick falling in love, courtship, and marriage. A highly comic side line was a Parisian suitor of much pride and circumstance, whose parents were already aboard ship about to sail from Havre, coming to see about the dot. As all Americans should know, a French marriage is hardly legal without the bride's dot, or marriage settlement, from her parents. Fortunately these worthy French parents heard about Count Potocki's coup before the boat sailed and were spared the Atlantic crossing.

Lecturer Dresses in Ethiopian Costume.

Burton Holmes was terribly funny at his Saturday matinée, "Ethiopia," when he came on the stage dressed like Haile Selassie. The audience was frankly charmed with his many petticoats, tight, long white trousers, African sun hat, and long white mantle. Of the orders that covered his chest, one was Ethiopian, the others were from many lands where he has made wonderful photographs. His Ethiopian adventure was at the time of Haile's coronation. The royal duke of Gloucester arrived at the same moment, by the same train, with his suite, all men of great stature and magnificent appearance, in splendid regalia.

The duke of Gloucester overlooked the dusky royal guardsmen of the king of kings, who stood greatly dejected, not knowing which one of the tall young men in flannels was the son of England's king. Burton Holmes then came along with his corps of aids and photographers, and seeing that the royal guard needed reviewing, reviewed them regally, passing with great dash along their ranks, saluting in his best manner.

The result of this kindly maneuver was that Mr. and Mrs. Holmes and their suite were ushered right to the royal breakfast. It was a boiling hot day, and the menu was a stimulating combination of caviar and champagne, ham and eggs.

Lion Skin Used as Part of Head Dress.

An interesting part of the film were solo photographs of many of the Rasses with their headdress of lion skin, one lion to every ras. No wonder the supply of lions is low in Africa! Most of these Rasses seem to have fallen in battling the Italians.

Burton Holmes has a droll dinner story on himself. He heard some people talking about his 40 odd years of lecturing—and a voice saying, "Holmes is over 90 now!"

The Casino had a capacity crowd Monday afternoon to hear and see Lady John Dunn on Salzburg. It was the spring festival of the causerie of the Alliance Française and the Cercle and its promotors were delighted. Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, handsome and charming, introduced her friend, Lady Dunn, and her nephew, president of the Alliance, Robert H. McCormick, prefaced the concert by a few words on the romantic adventure of meeting Lady Dunn at the airport at midnight when her plane came roaring in from Hollywood on the dot.

The lecturer wore a short green silk peasant dress of the Austrian Tyrol, with white blouse sleeves and pink scarf, her black hair fluffed in a childish bob. Her talk was illustrated by a large sketch of Salzburg, nailed to an easel, also by musical records of the cathedral organ, the opera orchestra, and again of cathedral bells, and a Mozart accompaniment to Lady Dunn's own piano performance. The records were designed to show that whole operas may be given some time by Hollywood.

Lady Dunn had an English voice and an important way of saying unimportant things. I think I'll learn to do that, too. In time one might be taken quite seriously.

Her ladyship began by giving quite a swat to Bayreuth, where they also have opera. But her whole heart and soul seem to be in Salzburg. She described the various centers where music is made and heard there during the month of August: The opera house, the Dom, the courtyard of the Residenz and the riding academy, with its high mountain wall and cut-in galleries, where ladies sat in days of old for tournaments.

The speaker is a good propagandist and I think she spurred up new business for this beautiful salt mine region of the Alps. Many in the audience, of course, know Salzburg well, go there often, and have their own opinions of the leaders, the singers, and the values of the experience. Opera tickets last season were $10.25 apiece.

EVANSTON HER HOME

Mrs. Harris B. Burrows III. is an attractive addition to the younger married crowd in Evanston. She and her twin sister, Mrs. David Brown Richardson, were brides in a double ceremony last June. The former Helen and Lois Dodd, who have been inseparable since childhood, soon are to be separated, however, for Lois and her husband, Mr. Richardson, soon are leaving Chicago to make their home in Oklahoma City, Okla.

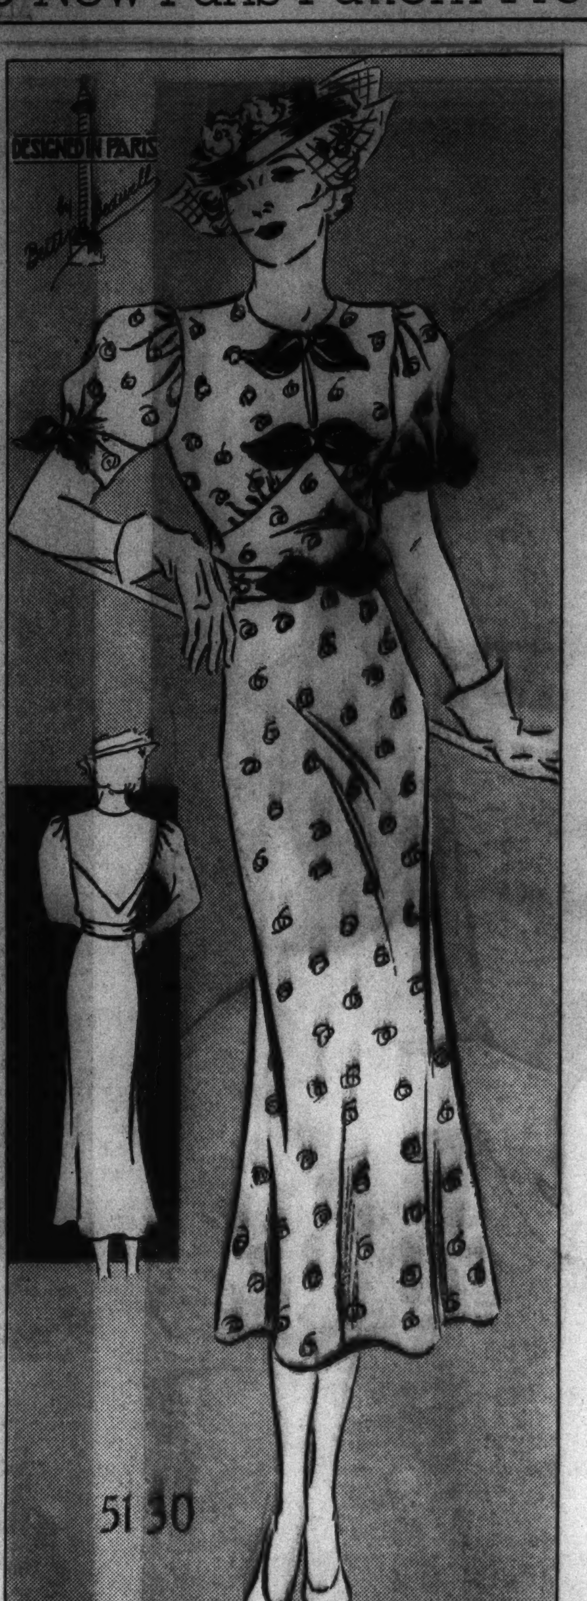
Bows Give Quintuple Chic to New Paris Pattern Frock



No. 5130—The Paris pattern for this youthful dress is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS—[Special.]—Bows, no matter how you spell them, are dear to the great French dressmakers as they are to all women this spring. This chic Paris dress brings you five bows, and is five times smart because of them. The dress, in the original Paris model, was made of printed silk, with gay flowers on a white ground, and the bows were made of white piqué. Two of them tie the bodice front together, one ties the belt, and two others tie the short, gay sleeves closely around the arms.

You could make this dress of a one-color material, silk, cotton, or wool, and make the bows of flowered silk, white piqué or of one solid bright color. If you wear brown, select parma violet bows, or bright green ones, and you'll have the latest color combination. With dark blue you can use white bows, pink bows, raspberry red bows, or bows of green, and you can do the same with black. If you make the dress of printed material, have the bows white, in one color of the print, or make them of the print if that suits your preference.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 30.

Clean up the yard. Rake off the coarse part of the mulching material and use it in the compost heap. Clean up gladiolus corms. Get the dahlia roots ready for planting, dividing them carefully. Always leave an eye or the tubers will not grow. Finish pruning this month. Strong growing, vigorous ramanus roses [rosa rugosa] may be cut to the ground. At least cut back the old canes and shorten the canes of the previous year.

Tuesday, March 31.

Clean out bird houses before placing them for the season. Give cold frames containing perennials and other cool plants plenty of air. The hotbed with artificial heat must be carefully tended as to air, watering, and covering at night or on the approach of sudden drops in temperature. Sow seeds in rows and not too thickly. Keep the soil stirred between the rows to give aeration and small weeds. Be sure to take down the vines and repair and paint the trellises or supports. See that stock planted in the fall, especially trees, is securely staked or supported with guy wires.

Wednesday, April 1.

Continue to make the lawn—the earlier this is done the better. If an old lawn is to be repaired fill all depressions with prepared soil and chip up the bare spots. Top dress it with rich soil and rake it into a fine seedbed with a steel rake. Sow with a high grade mixture. If this work is done just before a rain, rolling will be unnecessary. A sandy soil can be worked more easily and earlier than a heavy clay loam.

Thursday, April 2.

Transplant seedlings that were started in the house or hotbed. Place them from 2 to 3 inches apart in the row to give them sufficient room to make good, stocky plants for later planting in the garden. Transplant when the plants have only two or three leaves, for they will be less disturbed than when they have made more growth.

Friday, April 3.

If perennials are to be well maintained through several years the soil should be deep, well drained, and well enriched. The perennial border must be examined each season to restrict the too rapid spread from underground stems of fast spreading kinds. These encroach on desirable varieties and must be kept in bounds. The shasta daisy should be divided because each division will make a fine flowering plant.

Saturday, April 4.

Many of the tender bedding plants can still be propagated. The coleus and other soft stemmed plants grow rapidly and will make good stock. Shift house plants, but do not overpot them. Large plants are difficult to find room for in the average room. Transplant cacti and other succulents. It is essential to give plenty of drainage and to use a soil composed of half sand and half loam. Seedlings of cacti should be kept at a higher temperature than old plants, although they should not be placed in full sun or the tender skin may be blistered.

Phoenix Visitors Find Diversion in Desert Picnics

PHOENIX, ARIZ. Desert picnics are holding the attention of spring visitors here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Pearce chose the famous Echo canyon for a moonlight picnic, and had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. James Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke Dean, the Howard Johnsons, the Eugene Clarks, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Buss, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Mrs. Robert P. Shimmin, Mr. and Mrs. James Offield, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hagey, and Homer Hargrave.

Another interesting outing that is fast becoming popular is the breakfast ride—riding horseback out on the desert, where breakfast is cooked over the open fire in real western fashion, with bacon sizzling and all busy at some task to make the meal a perfect one.

Francis Neilson entertained at a birthday dinner for Mrs. Neilson in the Arizona Biltmore hotel's dining room. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Paine, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Watkins, Judge and Mrs. Charles A. Loomis, Judge and Mrs. George A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. James Minnotto, Mr. Demetrius Minnotto, Miss Idamay Minnotto, and Miss Nora Carney.

Another dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry May and Mr. and Mrs. Henry May Jr., the Howard Kelloggs, Judge and Mrs. George A. Carpenter, and Mrs. James Horner Winston.

Mrs. James Norris has arrived with her three children, Eleanor, Marguerite, and Bruce, to spend several weeks.

Club Parties Join in Spirit of Springtime

Breakfasts, Luncheons, Other Social Events Are Scheduled for This Week

WITH the first hint of spring, breakfasts, luncheons, and parties of all varieties provide frivolous interest for Chicago's hundreds of clubwomen.

On Tuesday noon at the Edgewater Beach hotel the Woman's Progressive club will hold its annual spring breakfast and card party. Mrs. Gustav W. Kunstman will be hostess for the party, assisted by the other club officers, who include Mrs. Gustav A. J. Meyer, Mrs. John C. Boernsen, Mrs. Walter S. Wagner, Mrs. K. D. Hutchinson, Miss Bertha D. Scharf, and Mrs. Berthe C. Peterson. Mrs. Orson Combs is chairman of the breakfast committee, with Mrs. William F. Schumacher and Mrs. Thomas Starr Harper as vice chairmen.

Prominent Clubwomen Are to Be Special Guests.

Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, second vice president of the General federation, and Mrs. Marion H. Biel, president of the first district of the Illinois federation, will attend the breakfast as special guests.

Frank Parker, diseur, is to be the guest artist at the spring party of the Chicago Woman's aid at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the club auditorium, 185 North Wabash avenue. The art of the diseur is that of the story teller, and the allied arts of poetry, drama, music, and the dance are included in Mr. Parker's concert recital. Mr. Parker made his debut in Paris in 1928. It was during his student days at the University of Chicago that he became interested in folk lore.

Tea to Follow Program by Mr. Parker and Miss Gordon.

In his recital Tuesday afternoon Mr. Parker will be assisted by Miss Ruth Gordon, pianist. After the program Mrs. Philip L. Seman, president of the aid, will receive the guests at tea.

Mrs. William B. Bowers will be hostess at the annual spring luncheon of the Martha Washington club at 12:30 o'clock Friday in the Blackstone hotel. Following the luncheon a program will be presented by Driskill Wolfe, tenor; Maud Key Shelton, lyric soprano, and Violet Matens, accompanist. Mrs. O. F. Scott, chairman of the luncheon, has invited as special guests Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois federation; Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations; Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen; Mrs. Charles L. Gerdes, president of the second district of the Illinois Federation; Mrs. John Middleton Jr., president of the Ridge Service guild; Mrs. James J. McKenna, president of the Sunbeam league; Mrs. George Wilson, president of the Protestant Women's Service club, and Mrs. G. Henry Mundt, president of the Friendly Aid society.

MRS. AMIE HEILMANN.
[Maurice Photo.]

Chicago Woman's Ideal Club to Hold Annual Luncheon.

The Chicago Woman's Ideal club will hold its 14th annual spring luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Tuesday in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel, with Mrs. Amie Heilmann presiding. The program is to be given by the Josepper string quartet.

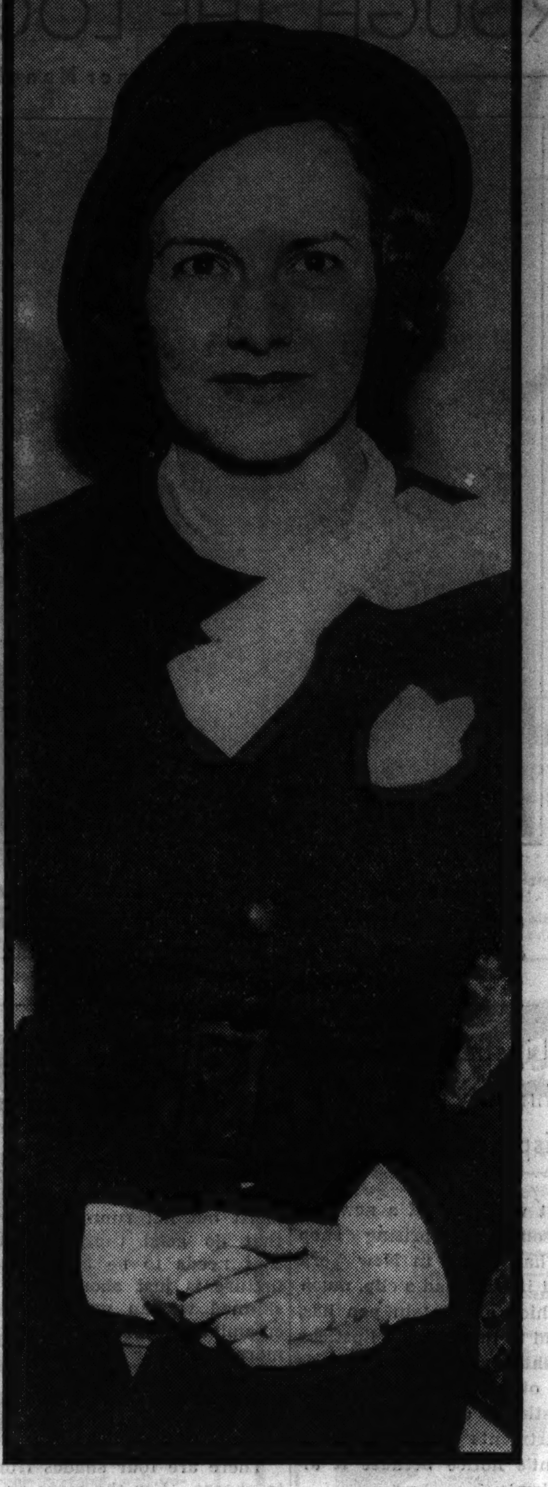
Tomorrow noon at the Union League club the Chicago Culture club will have its annual spring luncheon for its members and guests. The president of this group is Mrs. Burt E. Tuck.

The annual spring party and guest day of the Friends of Drama will be held at noon on Wednesday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. The party is being given for Marion Claire, Gladys Baxter, Guy Robertson, and Charles Romano of the "Great Waltz" company. Mrs. James E. Lukey will preside at the luncheon, which has been planned by Mrs. A. A. Frank. After the breakfast the guests will attend the performance of "Secret Service" at the Blackstone theater.

MRS. GETHEL SCHOENBERG.

Mrs. Gethel Schoenberg of Oak Park is general chairman of the annual charity card party which Delta Gamma Phi is to hold Saturday in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Mrs. Schoenberg is assisted by Miss Eileen Forden, Mrs. Cecil Horne, and Mrs. George Steinmetz.

The German Aid society, which has Judge Michael Girten as its president, is to benefit from the performance of the Viennese light opera, "Die Csardasfuerstin," this evening in the Chicago Civic Opera house. The leading parts are to be sung by George Trabert, Hanna Stein, Mme. Lucie Westen, Angelo Lippich, and Curt Benisch. The cast includes more than 100 persons.



SUNBEAM LEAGUE AID

Mrs. Russell W. Lynch certainly will be among those present at a bridge party at the Stevens hotel on the afternoon of April 14, for she is a member of the Sunbeam league which is sponsoring the party. The affair, which is the league's annual benefit, usually is one of the most successful parties of the year.

The Reminder

By Eleanor Jewett.

Easter Bunny is wearing a string!
What a curious kind of a ring!

Why do you think his finger is bound
With a piece of a string around and around?

He is scampering somewhere on fluffy legs—
I know! I am sure he has gone for eggs!

He has gone for eggs to color bright
So he can hide them on Easter night.

He has gone for eggs—he'll need a lot
To dip in the rainbow's painting pot.

Out he will bring them of various hue
To hide Easter night for me and for you.

Without his ring he might forget
It is eggs, eggs, eggs, he has to get.

So that is why Bunny is wearing a ring
Made from a funny old piece of string.

Horse Shows, Sports Divert Aiken Society

Season Drawing to Close with Many Important Annual Events Planned.

AIKEN, S. C. The Aiken season is fast drawing to a close in a blaze of horse shows, polo, golf, and dinners. Among last week's activities were the Aiken Preparatory school sports; this week schedules the Fermata school horse show, bird dog trials, and the farmers' show, with barbecue, in addition to the annual events that attract visitors from all parts of the country.

The Aiken Boys' school sports were attended by the entire cottage colony. Probably the most interesting competition was the mothers' race, in which nine started; Mrs. Columbus O'Donnell finished first, Mrs. Seymour Knox second, and Mrs. Philip Stevenson third.

Among boys who won events were Joseph E. Brown, Robert B. Deans, W. D. Culbertson, Verner Z. Reed, Seymour H. Knox, and Austin P. Niblack.

Of course the Aiken horse show, which really winds up the season, is the topic of conversation now. This show begins next Wednesday. As there are so many jumpers and hunters here, the first day will be devoted to the judging of only one class, the open jumping event. On the following day sixteen classes will come into the ring. These include events for children's ponies, hunters, harness horses, polo ponies, hunt teams, etc.

This show, held annually for more than two decades in the Hitchcock woods, probably is the most interesting in America so far as persons interested in horses are concerned. With an abundance of entries and a background of informed entertaining, exhibitors, guests, and Aiken visitors have the opportunity of seeing in competition horses which are equal to the best shown in Madison Square Garden, but which are not exhibited there because their owners do not like the limelight of the ordinary horse show. All the available parking space already has been reserved by the winter residents of Aiken.

The proceeds are for the local hospital.

Daily events in this resort include the drag, with Mrs. Averell Clark as M. F. H. These meets take place on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays and invariably have an attendance of seventy or eighty persons riding and an equal number in old-fashioned buggies, the only other means of conveyance allowed in the Hitchcock woods.

Polo is played twice daily, at least five days a week, and the golf courses at the Palmetto Golf club and the Highland Park are crowded with players. Parties at Aiken are almost as numerous as the pines in the woods.

Prominent among the hostesses from Chicago are Mrs. George McMurtry, Mrs. James Simpson, Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. Austin H. Niblack, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, and her daughters.

In the Aiken drag last week Capt. W. H. Gaylard, polo referee and riding instructor, suffered concussion when his horse slid into a jump and rolled over him. Capt. Gaylard will not be able to ride again for some time.

Stewardess Flies 50,000 Miles in Three Months

AT the age of 23, Miss Hazel Brooks, stewardess for American Airlines, has flown 50,000 miles in less than three months between Chicago and Washington, and never has been on a railroad train in her life.

Palm Beach to Entertain Many Chicagoans Over Easter Season

PALM BEACH, FLA. This week-end will be marked in Palm Beach by the arrival of a number of Chicagoans who will remain over Easter, several coming with their children for the holidays. The largest gathering of young people ever assembled here brings a lively round of parties, and Palm Beach, with the approach of warmer weather, goes informal. Invitation to the buffet dinner at the Everglades club on Tuesday read: "Be as informal in dress as you wish; wear slacks, beach costumes, or whatever your fancy dictates, as one grows now to detest formal dress."

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow and Miss Martha M. Sarver of Lake Forest arrived Thursday at the Breakers, where Mrs. Wallace C. Winter of Chicago, in company with Mrs. Walter Martin, came from Mountain Lakes club, Lake Wales, Fla., for a short sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bode of Chicago, who arrived early for their thirty-fifth winter in Florida, at the Breakers, will depart Monday for Sarasota to visit Mr. Bode's brother, E. C. Bode, at his winter home. The Bodes in early summer will visit Mr. and Mrs. George F. Groves on Cape Cod and later go to Swampscott, Mass., for the summer. Many farewell parties are being arranged here in their honor.

McKinlocks Hosts at Beach Club Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock gave a luncheon Wednesday at the Beach club in honor of Mrs. D. Mark Cummings and other Chicago visitors here. They also attended a farewell dinner party given Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shearson prior to their departure for New York and Scotland, where they have a castle for the shooting season.

Mrs. Charles C. Adsit and Mrs. James C. Sharp of Chicago, who have been at Hobe Sound, Fla., now are at Brazilian Court with Mrs. D. Mark Cummings for a visit. There also for a fortnight are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Bent of Lake Forest with C. W. Bent and Gordon Bent, their sons.

Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick gave a tea at Villa Today on Saturday and a dinner on Monday in honor of Chicago guests. Mrs. Arthur Small, who has been a guest of Mrs. Chadwick, now has gone to the Breakers.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick of Chicago has joined her niece, Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. of Chicago, and her family at Brazilian Court, where Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Ovings also are with them. Mr. and Mrs. C. Benson Dushane Jr. of Chicago arrived there Wednesday.

Charles H. Schweppes Are Recent Arrivals.

Mrs. William Waller Jr. of Chicago has a jolly house party at the Waller villa, guests including William Waller Jr., Miss Virginia Waller, Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre of Chicago, and Miss Penelope Harrison of Louisville, Ky. Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Waller will join the party this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe and their family arrived this week at the Breakers, and on Thursday Mrs. Walter Cummings, with her sons, also arrived, expecting to be joined by others of the family.

Others at the Breakers are Mrs. Arthur J. Bamford and Miss Beatrice Bamford, Mrs. Kersey C. Reed and John Shedd Reed, whose Christmas holidays were spent there; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson and Miss Dorothy Anderson of Winnetka, Miss Geneva L. Burke, J. H. Wood of Chicago, Mrs. Francis Beidler and Francis Beidler Jr. of Lake Forest, Mrs. Charles F. Elmes of Park Ridge, Mrs. Lee Robinson of Peoria, all of whom are remaining through early April.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair have been spending a week in Aiken, S. C., where a group of their friends also went, taking a house for a week and entering the golf tournament for the Hitchcock cup. The duchess of Sutherland and the duchess of Marlboro, Miss Grace Munn Amory, Maj. Cecil Pryce-Harrison, and Lucius Pond Ordway, formerly of Lake Forest, also were there.

Bath and Tennis Club Scene of Luncheon.

Miss Catherine McLennan and Noyes McLennan of Lake Forest, who are with Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLennan, gave a luncheon on Wednesday at the Bath and Tennis club.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd and Charles Hulburd of Lake Forest, who are at Brazilian Court, have joined the Seaspray Beach club. Also joining were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McLennan of Chicago, who are spending a month's honeymoon here.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, December 15, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: It has been a beautiful winter day and Will and I took a sleigh ride out to Forest Glen, away out in the country, to the northwest. It is a lovely little suburb, and we enjoyed the trip so much. We were warmly wrapped and had a soapstone at our feet, so it was not too cold for comfort. Will wore a knitted scarf, to which he clings, though they are going out of fashion, for which I'm sorry. Martha knitted this scarf for her father some years ago, and he has always liked it. It is gray, with rows of shaded colors, red, brown, and purple at the ends. Some men are taking up with the fashion of ear muffs, which are so homely. Don't you dislike seeing a black velvet lump standing out on each side of a man's head? A gayly colored scarf is much prettier, I think.

To return to Forest Glen. We went out to spend the day with Capt. and Mrs. William Hazelton. Capt. Hazelton is an army friend of Will's . . . both were in the cavalry service . . and we had promised for I don't know how long to make this trip. We should have gone in summer, when the flowers were in bloom, but even in winter the country looked attractive.

The Hazeltons would delight you, for, though they live simply, they are cultivated people, and we felt we had been in high company. The captain, as every one calls him, is of Quaker lineage. His mother was a cousin of Benjamin Franklin. Both our host and his wife came from New Hampshire, where they had been school teachers. Capt. Hazelton told us his first salary was eleven dollars a month, and "board round." I'm happy that teachers are better paid today.

Will drew from the captain the story of his pioneering days in Minnesota, when he helped build a bridge a hundred miles north of Minneapolis, on the Mississippi river. The contractor failed, at the close of the season, leaving his men . . . of whom Capt. Hazelton was one . . . unpaid and stranded in the wilderness. The men were resourceful enough to build a raft, on which they made their way down the river to the twin cities.

Will enjoyed reliving army days with our host. Capt. Hazelton, who was in the Eighth Illinois cavalry, led one of the companies pursuing Wilkes Booth after he had assassinated President Lincoln, though he was not Booth's captor.

At the close of the war he brought his bride to Illinois, buying the farm, which now bids fair to become the little town of Forest Glen, for it is being divided up into town lots, and through his efforts the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad has built a station there.

There is no church in the village yet, but the Hazeltons have started a little Sunday school in a frame house, where the captain says he is superintendent, treasurer, and janitor. Will says he has heard that he is a sort of patriarch in the village, taking care of all the needy families.

Mrs. Hazelton showed us the small nursery where they keep trees raised from seeds. These little trees are now being transferred to the streets of Forest Glen. A beautiful thing to do . . . planting trees in a prairie country. These trees promise to be a great asset to the town.

I am so pleased that you expect to be with us for New Year's day. I presume you will come by the Lake Shore route. But you'll be writing us of the exact time, before you come. Be sure we shall be on hand at the station to meet you. Love to my dear friend of many years.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Capt. William Hazelton [1832-1918], whose memory is still green in Forest Glen, was father of Hugh Hazelton, Englewood, N. J.; Mrs. Jessie Askegaard, Moorehead, Minn.; Mrs. Ellen Nichol, Detroit, and Mrs. Josephine Grant, Richmond, Ind. Hugh Hazelton Jr., a resident of International house at the University of Chicago, is a grandson.

The Congregational church of Forest Glen contains a tablet to the memory of Capt. Hazelton.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

Looking around for some new lip glorifier? Try one of the four beautiful shades in a new lipstick, ranging from a warm rust to a rich raspberry. These new sticks have clips on their cases, too. You simply clip your stick to a pocketbook compartment.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Clever Lipstick with Clip Attachment Refuses to Be Misplaced in Purse.

THE first we heard of a new lipstick some enterprising shop people had found in New York was that its case had a clip, much like that which a fountain pen has, to put an end to the problem lipsticks always present by getting lost in one's purse. In other words, you could clip this lipstick to one of the pocketbook compartments and yank it out at a moment's notice because it always was visible.

From the gadgety or making-life-simpler point of view this seemed like a slick idea, but, after all, it's not the case but the contents thereof that endear a lipstick to the feminine heart. We wanted to examine the contents.

We did, and we were conquered. This is a thoroughly nice lip rouge, moist but not runny, and in shades that do good things for the face that needs to be brightened. The texture is just about what the dry skinned woman would order. The creaminess is definitly present. What's more, the color doesn't change when the creaminess has worn off or when you press it off with a piece of tissue. The color for which you bought it remains the same after hours of wear.

There are four shades from which to choose. For the more or less sultry brunettes there is a warm rust that is beautiful with the white teeth and olive skin combination. For those who wish something more vivid, there is a brilliant flame color with orange undertone.

The light shade is our own pet. It's not wishywashy or pinky. Although it's supposed to be a fairly subdued tint, it has plenty of life and warmth. And it holds up beautifully, remaining lively and warm as the hours wear on. The fourth shade is that good old standby, raspberry, which seems to adapt itself to thousands of faces and colorings with the most flattering effect.

These, we'd say, are lipsticks with which you simply must become acquainted. Because the texture is so close to perfection and the shades so subtly suitable, these sticks can claim inspection as beauty aids. And because some designer has had a grand brain wave and put that clip on the black and white case, they will hold your affections virtually forever. They put an end to the feminine bit of business known as "fishing in the purse."

[For information about these new lipsticks, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write her care of the Chicago Tribune.]

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

IF you ever have noticed the peculiar desolation in some of the small outlying settlements reaching out in all directions from Chicago, you may be interested in helping a woman who recently wrote to me. Her home is in one of the small farming communities south of this city, and she and her family have endured a difficult winter. Homes are scattered, roads are bad, conveniences rare, and relief particularly inadequate.

She writes: "I am a farmer's wife and money is scarce in my life. We have only an acre of land and we live in our little unfinished one room house, which we are trying to buy with occasional payments.

"My main request is for clothing. I am able to sew and often can get real service out of remodeled garments. The physician who recently performed a major operation on me in a charity hospital wishes me to report to the clinic each week for examination and treatment, but my clothing is in bad condition. I particularly need a warm coat, size 40, and would be so grateful for dresses and shoes, size 5½ or 6.

MRS. J. S."

The last few years have been a struggle for this woman, requiring untold courage to fight poverty, illness, and discouragement. Your unused clothing and curtains will be of much help to her. Since the address is a good distance south, parcels will have to be mailed. The address will be supplied to any interested reader.

Women of All Nations Will Have Festival

League of Mothers' Clubs Sponsoring Three Day Homemaking Exhibition.

By Ruth De Young.

WOMEN of all nations, women who know homemaking in Poland, Germany, Italy and the orient will take part in a festival mingling old world tradition with new world progress today, tomorrow, and Tuesday in the exhibit hall of the Palmer house.

The festival is the eleventh annual home making exhibit sponsored by the League of Mothers' clubs of the Chicago Federation of Settlements. In color, interest, and attendance it is expected to surpass all of its predecessors. Every one interested in studying the responsibilities and possibilities of simple but adequate homemaking, and every one interested in knowing what the social settlements of Chicago are doing, is invited to attend.

Women of Less Privileged. Classes Allowed Self-Expression.

The exhibit comes as a fitting aftermath of the many large and influential gatherings of women held the past winter. On this occasion the less privileged women of Chicago's neighborhoods will show the handicrafts to which they devote themselves the year around in their homes. For these women the exhibit is a means of self-expression, just as a woman's club is for those of the more fortunate classes.

Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern University settlement, had the foresight to plan the exhibit several years ago. In its organization she has worked with Miss Lea D. Taylor, president of the Chicago Federation of Settlements, and Mrs. Albert Base, president of the League of Mothers' clubs.

Some of Chicago's other well known settlement workers assisting with this year's plans include Mrs. Alice Mauck, Mrs. Maud P. Boyes, Miss Ruth Austin, Miss Alice Ross, Miss Lena M. Seeman, Miss Dora Lund, Mrs. Robert Harvey, Miss Florence Towne, Miss Gertrude Ray, Mrs. Edwin Eells, Mrs. May J. Lynn, Miss eMta Meisner, Miss Bertha Moore, and Mrs. Anna Ayers.

Children of Settlements Are to Present Festival Tonight.

The publication of an international cook book entitled "Foods and Festivals Around the World," is one of the new features of the 1936 exhibit. In it the Polish Easter eve feast is explained, for instance, also the Mexican Christmas feast.

The children from the settlements are to present a musical festival at the exhibit this evening, and on Tuesday evening there will be an international style show. This will take the character of a pageant with such delightful scenes as the festival of a Polish wedding and the Lithuanian festival portrayed.

On Tuesday noon Miss Taylor will preside at the annual spring luncheon of the Federation of Settlements in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. The principal speaker on this occasion is to be Alfred Granger, former Chicago architect, who is lecturing this winter at Columbia university. Mr. Granger will discuss "Low Cost Housing in Vienna."

City's Socially Prominent Women Lend Sponsorship.

The exhibit also has the backing of a number of the city's socially prominent women and the foreign consuls. Among these sponsors are Miss Margot Atkin, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Paul Bruyere, Miss Ellen Holt, Mrs. John P. Hooker, Miss Mary E. McDowell, Mrs. Paul Rowan, Mrs. E. Crane Wilson, and Mrs. Adolph H. Wolff.

The most ambitious educational project yet undertaken by the private duty nurses of the first district of the Illinois State Nurses' association is a nurses' institute to be held next Wednesday and Thursday in the West Side Medical center. Some of the sessions will be held in the Cook County hospital nurses' home, others in the Presbyterian hospital and adjoining nurses' home, and still others in the Illinois Research and Educational hospital.

Dr. Harry Kirschbaum, of Detroit, is to address the institute Thursday afternoon on "Recent Trends in Obstetrical Analgesics." Well known members of the medical profession in Chicago who will speak to the gathering include Dr. Archibald Hoyne, who will tell about "The Present Treatment of Contagious Diseases"; Dr. Harry Mock, whose subject will be "Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy"; and Dr. Jerome Head, who will discuss "Tuberculosis and Modern Thoracic Surgery."

Institute Project of Value to Nurses in Private Duty.

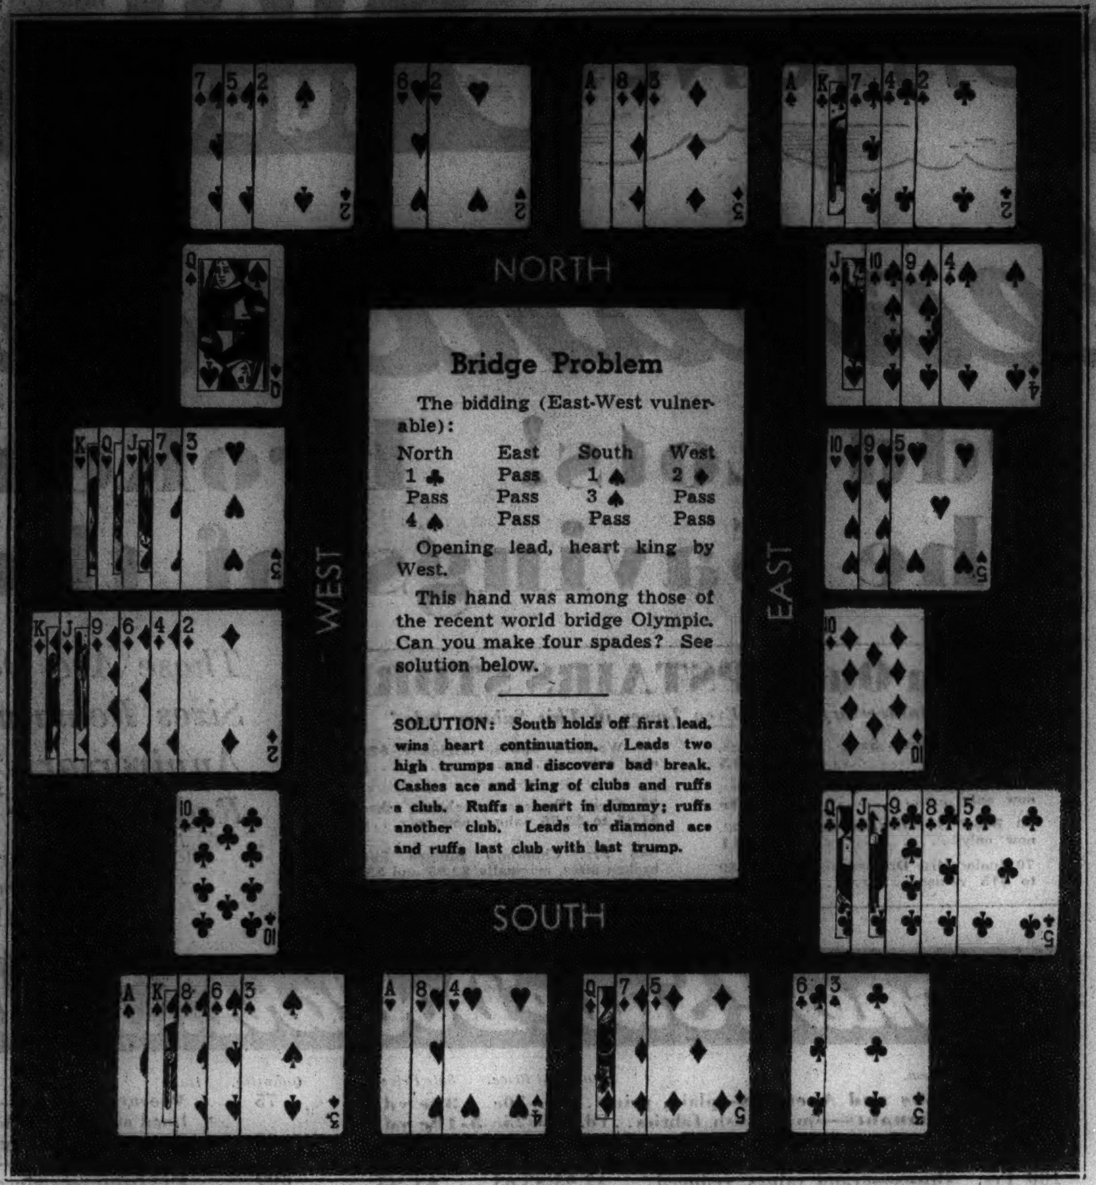
Private duty nurses in the Presbyterian hospital are to be hostesses at tea on Thursday afternoon in the Sprague home. This same afternoon visitors in groups of twelve will be shown through the recently installed John Simpson, Jr. milk laboratory on the children's floor of the Presbyterian hospital.

The institute is one project in a large and comprehensive program of education for the private duty nurses of the first district. These are the nurses who do their work in the privacy of homes or in the private rooms of hospitals. Limitations due to their isolation and their irregular hours frequently make it difficult for them to keep in touch with new developments in their own field and to work for the promotion of professional standards.

To overcome this difficulty Miss Clara I. Bollinger, a graduate of St. Luke's hospital training school, was selected a short time ago to work in the interest of these nurses.

The new program being carried out under Miss Bollinger's direction includes frequent lectures by prominent medical men and women, and classes for the study of certain subjects. These lectures and classes are held in the first district headquarters on the fifteenth floor of the Willoughby Tower building, 8 South Michigan avenue.

Contract According to Culbertson



Bridge Problem

The bidding (East-West vulnerable):

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
Pass	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead, heart king by West.

This hand was among those of the recent world bridge Olympic. Can you make four spades? See solution below.

SOLUTION: South holds off first lead, wins heart continuation. Leads two high trumps and discovers bad break. Cashes ace and king of clubs and ruffs a club. Ruffs a heart in dummy; ruffs another club. Leads to diamond ace and ruffs last club with last trump.

Rescue Bidding Is Difficult to Codify

By Ely Culbertson

I ATTACK this subject with considerable reluctance. Rescue bids always have been regarded as the prodigal sons of the contract family. Nobody wants anything to do with them until they return in the nick of time to save the farmstead.

It is well within the realms of possibility that both rescue bids and prodigal sons owe their sorry plight to lack of understanding and mishandling in their youth. Certainly, from what I have seen of the treatment of rescue bids, I can understand why in their resentment they turn on their user and bite him.

No branch of bidding is so difficult to codify as rescue requirements. No honor trick or playing trick standards can be set up. It is all a matter of individual hand analysis, qualified by such esoteric considerations as personal appraisal of one's partner and opponents. It is possible, however, to outline the philosophy of proper rescuing, and it is this that I shall attempt.

Let us take a typical situation. Both sides are vulnerable, and West opens the bidding with one diamond. North (your partner) overcalls with one heart. East doubles. You, in the South position, hold:

♠ Q J 9 5 ♥ 2 ♦ 7 5 3 ♣ K J 6 4 2

What should you do? Obviously there are three choices: (1) Pass, (2) two clubs, (3) one spade. Which is correct?

Well, you certainly shouldn't pass. You have a fair hand, but one quite unfitted to a heart play, particularly when East's double has warned that the hearts are banked against your partner's suit. Now as to the other choices. It is a very simple matter, elementary, in fact, to realize that the essence of good bidding is to "save a round" wherever possible. One spade does just that; two clubs is a waste of resources. And there is another just as weighty reason in favor of the spade bid — opponents, whether expert or average, do not double a one bid for penalties as freely as they do a bid of two in a minor suit. Suppose your partner's hand is this:

♠ K 10 3 ♥ A K 10 8 5 ♦ 6 4 2 ♣ 8 7

Obviously one spade is the best contract, and your partner will allow it to stand, doubled or not. Now change his hand, keeping approximately the same values:

♠ 7 2 ♥ A K 10 8 5 ♦ Q 9 4 ♣ Q 10 5

If your spade rescue is doubled he can bid one no trump without raising the level of the contract. Then your two club bid can be made in safety and with the comfortable assurance that you have sounded out all the possibilities of the hand. To revert to the first case, had you bid two clubs, partner could do nothing but pass, and if you were doubled you would have the Hobson's choice of sticking by your guns and being butchered or making a stab at two spades and risking worse than death.

Here is another example of proper rescue philosophy: West bids one heart, your partner one spade, East doubles, and you hold:

♠ 4 ♥ Q J 10 9 7 5 ♦ Q 6 2 ♣ J 5 3

Now, entirely too many players would rescue with one no trump—or pass. Neither is correct. Your hand will produce a good many tricks at exactly one declaration—hearts! No matter that your left-hand opponent first bid the suit. Let him hold the A K and two or three, even four, others! You will still very probably win four heart tricks and the high cards in partner's hand. At one spade you may not produce a single trick for partner. At no trump your heart suit will be killed by lack of entries.

It may be argued that your two heart bid in this position will be ambiguous to your partner—that he may read it as a cue bid showing no losing hearts. Nonsense! He would have to be a moron to interpret so badly. You failed to redouble his one spade bid — you failed to jump in another suit! How can you possibly mean that you want anything except to play the hand in two hearts?

≈

The proper management of a four-card trump suit—when the dummy as well has four — is something in the nature of a mystery to many players. Today's hand is a good illustration of correct technique.

NORTH
♠ J 4 3
♥ K 10 9 6
♦ A K J 5 2
♣ 7

WEST	EAST
♠ A K Q 6 5	♠ 10 9 7
♥ J 8 5 3	♥ 2
♦ Q 8	♦ 10 9 6 4
♣ 8 2	♣ K Q J 9 6

SOUTH
♠ 8 2
♥ A Q 7 4
♦ 7 3
♣ A 10 5 4 3

The bidding (neither side vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥ (final bid)

West opened the spade king and followed with two more rounds, declarer ruffing the last. On close analysis, South properly decided that the better plan of attack was to establish dummy's diamond suit rather than launch a cross-ruff with its attendant risks of overruffs by the opponents. Since he knew neither the diamond nor the trump distribution, he wasted no time, but went right after his objective. On the second round of diamonds West's queen fell, marking East with a stopper in the suit. So declarer led a small diamond and ruffed with the ace. He then laid down the queen and led his last trump, finessing in the dummy as a simple safety play. It should be noted that after East follows to the first trump and west to both leads, this play is proof against any lie of cards. The actual distribution was the worst possible under the above conditions. Yet when dummy's nine held the second trump lead the rest was easy. The king of hearts reduced dummy and West to one trump each, and the diamond suit remainder was run off. West could use his high trump whenever he felt like it—it was the only trick he could take.

Today's Questions

Question: Please give correct bidding of the following North and South hands, both sides vulnerable and the opponents did not bid:

NORTH	SOUTH
♠ A Q J 5	♠ K 10 9 6
♥ A K 10 7	♥ 4
♦ K Q 3 2	♦ A 9 8 6
♣ 5	♣ K Q 4 2

Answer: This hand is ideally suited to the new asking bids. The correct bidding is as follows:

NORTH	SOUTH
1 ♠	3 ♠
4 ♦ (1)	5 ♦ (2)
6 ♠

(1) Asking bid. (2) South's diamond raise shows ace specifically and denies two aces.

Question: Is the following hand a good fourth-hand vulnerable opening bid?

♠ 8 6 ♥ A Q 10 4 ♦ K Q 7 ♣ 8 7 5 2

Answer: No. It has too little honor strength and poor distribution.

A Vox Popper Nails Nature Faking in Art

Critic Finds Much to Praise in Current International Water Color Exhibit.

By Eleanor Jewett.

JAMES M. HUFF of Belvidere, Ill., is a well informed correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE whose recent contributions to the Voice of the People have done much to cheer the lonely road trodden by those who take exception to the modern interpretation of animals in art. At the time of the Hoosier salon Mr. Huff brought into relief the fact that the frightened horses in the prize winning picture of that name were not properly posed to carry out their responsibilities. Frightened horses, according to his keen observation, did not do thus and so, which the young artist said they did

In the current international water color exhibit at the Art institute, the second prize went to a modernly conceived landscape with figures by the Cuban, Gattorno, labeled "The White Goat." Mr. Huff finds the goat not so much a goat as a cow with human attributes To the critical and nonmodern eye there also is something more than a bit wrong with the boy who tends this hybrid creature. He is at least as unlike the usual boy as the goat is unlike the garden variety of goat. But we must remember we are dealing here not with photographs, but impressions. The modern artist burdens himself with no need of honest representation, he is merely concerned with an approximate guess at the correct conformation or physique of the creature under discussion.

Superficial Impression Not Sufficient for Pupil.

Walter Krawiec, the noted Chicago nonmodern painter of circus and race track scenes, had an experience not long ago which was revealing so far as present methods of art instruction are concerned. He was carefully drawing a horse at an outdoor circus, and a group of children with an art teacher placed themselves near him to study the horse also. They got their paper and pencils ready and the teacher gave the final instruction:

"Now, children, look at the horse for a few minutes and then turn away and draw what you saw."

Mr. Krawiec was appalled by the advice, for, with all his years of experience behind him, he knew that were he to follow teacher's suggestion his prospective horse picture might be a picture, but certainly not the picture it should be.

The modern system of having the pupil record merely a superficial impression seems an impractical basis for a sound development in the crafts of drawing and painting. We are told that the London and Paris art schools have forsaken this easy path for the harder and more conscientious training that produced an Ingres and a Bouguereau.

Water Color Exhibition Has Many Fine Paintings.

However, until real painting supplants the artificial, in the opinion of the leaders of our art world, persons like Mr. Huff will have to content themselves with overlooking the prize pictures in a show, and finding the modest violets of nonmodernism which, we thankfully record, do still grow.

A violet hunt can be prosecuted with excellent results in the present water color exhibition. There are many orchids, it is true, clinging to the walls, but a finer, sturdier growth is also apparent. John Whorf is responsible for two magnificent American paintings, "Tar Paper House" and "The Storm." Randall Davey is another painter whose work is beyond argument. His "Race Horses at the Barrier," "New Orleans," and "Chamisa, New Mexico" are outstandingly fine. They wipe out at a stroke the bad taste left in one's mouth by such ineffectual concoctions as "The White Goat," for example

"Low Tide," by Rachel H. Cartledge, is a more than delightful marine, and if one is looking for an attractive figure study the "Seated Nude, No 1," by Robert Philipp fills the bill. Elizabeth Hoopes supplies us with three delicious interiors, portraits in miniature of rooms in real people's houses. This is a new adventure in art and one that has infinite possibilities. Edward Hopper gives us "Cottages at Wellfleet," a clear cut and clear colored painting that is inexplicably satisfying. "Oak Glen Farm," by Mary Robinson Blair, and "Zarape," by Paul L. Gill, with its expressive blues, are interesting for different reasons. "Monday Morning Wash," by Paul C. Burns, is excitingly full of the feel of wind.

Ferat's Art Gay, Fresh, Unaffected and Amusing.

The Arts club has a contrasting exhibit which is worth seeing. The exquisite paintings by Serge Ferat are an excellent foil for the rather violent abstractions of Harry Carlsson. Surrealism seems able to lead one into and up all sorts of peculiar paths. Carlsson roams conscientiously the depth and breadth of many strange alleys.

Ferat, on the other hand, is distinctly a delicate and sensitive painter. His work is decorative and charming. A suggestion of the orient impregnates his technique, and he offers the enticing picture within a picture with which Lascaux intrigued us in a preceding Arts club show. Ferat will be long remembered for his delicious color and delightful sense of composition His painting is gay, fresh, unaffected, and amusing.

Mrs. Logan's Movement for "Sanity in Art" Successful.

A particularly fine exhibit is on just now at the Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue Mrs. Frank G. Logan, whose movement for "sanity in art" is meeting with much success, found it so inspiring a show that she immediately rewarded two of the canvases with prizes These are the "Portrait of Brothers," by Oskar Gross, and "Along the Sandy Way," by Frank V. Dudley. Both painters are represented by a stunning group of pictures characteristic of them at their best. Mr. Dudley performs such wonders of beauty with his dune motif that one can only stand amazed and delighted at the infinite charm possessed by sand, water, sky, and trees.

The room of paintings by Marvin D. Cone at the Chicago galleries is thoroughly pleasing. Cone is from Iowa, and is a fellow worker with Grant Wood. There is a little similarity about their landscapes, a fine polishing of externals, which, while it brings either artist to mind, does it with loss of prestige to neither.

The landscapes by Alfred J. Wands, which complete this four painter exhibition, differ from Mr. Cone's work in every detail. Mr. Wands paints a robust picture. Undoubtedly there are those who will find his technique sympathetic and his sense of value sincere

SUNKEN GARDEN

"Sunken Garden," by Berenice Newman, one of the many colorful and decorative canvases in Mrs. Newman's exhibition of flower paintings in the Tudor gallery at the Chicago Woman's club until April1.

Art Notes

The Anderson galleries, 336 South Michigan avenue, are showing American landscapes, and have collected a group that any gallery might be proud to hang. The south wall is a revelation Here are found "Jersey Road," by W. L. Lathrop; "Florida Sunset," by George Inness; "Presidential Range," by John J. Enneking; "Montauk Point," by Thomas Moran, and "The Woodcutters," by Henry W. Ranger. These men are of another generation, but their work is as magnificent today as yesterday. The traditions of American art are rooted in the excellent painting which was their technique. The painting of the nineties makes much of our contemporary so-called art appear as thin and purposeless as a whimsey ghost.

The memorial exhibition of paintings by Joseph P. Birren in the D'Arlier gallery, 639 North Michigan avenue, is another of the finest exhibits of the season. The beauty of Mr. Birren's painting has not faded nor its vigor weakened since his death.

An exhibition of photographic prints by George Henry High, F. R. P. S., is on view in the photographic section, first floor, Marshall Field & Co.

A brilliant exhibit of etchings by Heintzelman is hung in the O'Brien galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue. It is one of those superlatively fine shows that none should miss.

Singapore Far from "Worst City in World"

"Front Door to Hell" Appellation Fails to Tell Truth About This Seaport

By Mason Warner.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, British Malaya.—No other city in the world has been so differently appraised by visiting writers as this. It is strange but true that British authors are its severest critics. Such descriptive phrases as "wickedest city in the world," "cesspool of iniquity," and even "the front door to hell," are opinions expressed by correspondents to the London newspapers.

On the other hand, Will Rogers and Mark Hellinger, widely traveled and keen observers, have made special references to the physical and moral cleanliness of Singapore, and have written in praise of its good local government. From my own experience I can name a score of big cities in America, Europe, and Asia in which vice and crime are more in evidence than in Singapore, for the police system here is unusually efficient.

Opium Sold in Government Stores.

The opium trade in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States is controled by the government under regulations similar to the laws governing the sale of liquor in Canada. Opium is sold in government stores to addicts, who are registered and can buy only in restricted quantities, and allotments to individuals are reduced annually. There are no opium dens in Singapore where smokers gather and indulge their habit—at least, none known to the general public.

The suppression of opium smoking in Malaya is not dependent on what China or any other country may or may not do in endeavors to carry out the policy of the league of nations. Efforts to control the opium trafic by limiting production have been unsuccessful—and will continue fruitless so long as poppy growing contributes the great sums it does to the treasure chests of Chinese war lords, whose attitude to date encourages rather than discourages the planting of poppies.

In British Malaya all smokers of the drug are registered and rationed; the lists are closed; no new names are registered unless there are medical grounds for so doing. That is resulting in a defined and gradually narrowing market for government opium.

Revenue Stops When Last Smoker Dies.

At one time the revenue from opium was one-third the government's income. Now it is only a quarter, and taxing bodies are looking forward to the future when other sources of tax income must be devised, for as soon as the last smoker on the list dies the revenue stops.

That final cessation of government income is far off, for there are on the register mere youths who may go on smoking for another forty years. In discussing the question the Straits Times said editorially: "The majority of smokers may be assumed to be of middle age, with from ten to twenty working years before them, so that it may be a decade before we shall see any substantial diminution of opium revenue. At all events, the threatened loss of revenue is not immediately upon us, and the horrid necessity of fresh taxation can accordingly be postponed."

Of course, there are saloons, dance halls, and gambling in Singapore, for it is one of the world's great seaports—the gateway to the far east—where more than 45,000 vessels enter every year. They are craft manned by sailors from all the countries of Europe, America, the South Sea Islands, Africa, China, Japan, and India. The water front and districts favored by the visiting seamen present lively scenes, picturesque physiques, and bizarre costumes, but British law and order prevail throughout the city, and when crime records are compared it is to the shame and confusion of other metropolitan cities.

The First Instigator of International Trade.

The mixed array of white, yellow, black, and brown faces along the water front causes one to consider the history of this great seaport. Before the dawn of recorded history the traders of India sent their goods through Singapore to be exchanged for the products of China.

The monsoons are true trade winds. In the summer one blows from the southwest from May to October, and in the winter one blows from the northeast from November to April. Can't you picture the sailing junks and strange watercraft of past centuries carrying spices, and tea, and silk, and precious gems, and gold through the Straits of Malacca and past the proud city of Singhapura?

The free power of the monsoons may have been the first instigator of international trade. Recall that King Solomon, a thousand years before Christ, grew fabulously rich upon the proceeds of this monsoon carried trade. Many writers of authority say that the Malay peninsula was Solomon's Ophir. These richly laden sailing craft offered huge prizes to pirates, and the Island of Singapore offered shelter to these marauders of the sea, and many were the bloody battles fought in and around these waters.

"The White Woman's Graveyard."

The city of Singapore is situated on the Island of Singapore, a strait less than a mile wide separating it from the southern tip of the Malayan peninsula. While governed by the British, Singapore is really a Chinese city, for of its 514,500 inhabitants nearly 400,000 are Chinese. Malayans number fewer than 68,000. All white persons are called Europeans, no matter if they are Americans, and the so-called Europeans number fewer than 7,500. Singapore is called "the white woman's graveyard," and I will tell why in my next letter.

Washington and Europe Subject of Travel Talks

"AMERICA'S Most Interesting City" is the title of an illustrated travelogue to be given on the seventh floor of the Fair store at 11 a. m., Friday. The city referred to is Washington, and the lecturer is Mrs. William Gary Brown, a Chicagoan who has directed numerous tours to the capital.

MRS. WILLIAM GARY BROWN

"Washington is constantly in the newspaper headlines nowadays, and largely, of course for political reasons," Mrs. Brown said yesterday. "But it has another side that does not always receive the attention it deserves. That is the unique interest it holds for the visitor and the student.

"The city's charm lies to a great extent in its natural setting. Undoubtedly it is one of the world's most beautiful capitals. In recent years it is becoming recognized as a center for great universities, libraries, art galleries, and other cultural institutions. To the average American it holds more attractions than does any other city."

Edwin Robert Petre, director of the Institute of Foreign Travel, will deliver a lecture on "How to Enjoy Europe This Year," at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Marshall Field & Co. store, fourth floor south on Wabash avenue. The talk is in connection with the current exhibition of travel posters there.

New Guide Book.

Charles J. White, Chicago manager of the American Express company, says no one need get lost in Moscow or Leningrad any more. A new guide book, illustrated by Michael Getmansky, has been prepared for those going to the U. S. S. R. this summer. It has maps of the two largest cities and is designed for those who like to roam around alone and who can't read Russian street signs. It also has ethnographic maps of Central Asia, the Caucasus, Georgia, and Armenia.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

PERSONS who got a look at the interior of the new Queen Mary before that huge "hotel of the sea" left the banks of the Clyde last Tuesday relate that its decore is, on the whole, modern, but not extreme modern. Apparently it had not been felt necessary to stick to the one motif throughout.

Some of the public rooms—the smoking lounge, for instance, with its paneled oak walls and coal fireplace—could be placed in an old club and be right in the picture. The library is such as one would expect to find at Oxford or Cambridge. Its woodwork is oak and sycamore, and its upholstery is pigskin. More than 17,000 volumes are to be housed there.

- Evidently the chief aim of the architects and decorators was to create the atmosphere of an English club or country house. In spite of the liner's size they also tried to retain the spirit of a ship rather than a floating hotel. Like the Mauretania, the Queen Mary has that salty air which has been more or less lost sight of at times in recent years.

In the dining room shades of mellow peroba dominate the color scheme. This Brazilian wood, rather a stranger to North America, was used for the first time in ship decoration. The ruboleum floor covering has a marbleized effect in autumn tints ranging from sienna to pale yellow. The sycamore table chairs are upholstered in a delicate rose.

- On one of the walls of the dining room is a decorative map on which a miniature model of the Queen Mary wends its way automatically with the ship itself. This is to give every one an opportunity to get his bearings, regardless of his condition or that of the weather.

Around the other walls are fourteen panels carved in polished pine. They deal with the history of shipping from the time of the Egyptians to some time in the future. The entrance doors, executed in bronze, are carved with figures symbolizing maritime legends.

- Situated forward, directly under the bridge, is the semi-circular lounge, so planned that by means of a series of high windows one is provided with an unobstructed view of the ocean—straight ahead and on both sides.

Extending from the starboard to the port promenade deck, the vast main lounge is three stories high, has 32 windows, each 13 feet high, and a stage as complete in detail as any Broadway playhouse. The walls are paneled in maple burr, and red and gold predominate in the draperies and carpets.

On the sundeck aft is a veranda café, somewhat resembling the Ritz restaurants on the ships of other times. It has a large circular bay window looking out to sea over the stern, but its chief feature is its ingenious light control. The café will also serve as a night club, and its lighting will change in hue in accordance with the music of the moment.

- Of more importance to the traveler, perhaps, is the decoration of the cabins. There are 26 different schemes and themes there, but one thing all of them have in common is lightness of tone. Only natural woods, such as Japanese ash, white sycamore, and pear, are to be seen. All of which promises genuine relief from the atrocities of the old days.

Roman Empire Comes to Life in Modern Italy

Ancient Glamor Is Preserved in Relics of Interest to World Traveler.

By Dr. Angelo Lauria.

THE preservation of the ancient glamor of the Roman empire in its architectural relics today brings a new conception of history to the tourist in Italy. But history books are not an entirely necessary part of a tourist's equipment, for to walk through the Colosseum in Rome is to find the past at close hand. One need not be a scholar to enjoy the glories of ancient Rome, of an Italy which knew pagans, the legions of Cæsar, and the wonders of the Renaissance.

If all roads lead to Rome, they lead away from it, too. Easily, comfortably, one may reach Florence, Naples, Pisa, Milan, Venice, and a score of others. The result is a travel record of unfailing vividness.

It is not easy to forget the flaming cone of Vesuvius above the night sky of Naples . . . the excavations of Pompeii . . . the massive palaces of Florence, filled with the art treasures of the world . . . the quaint waterways of Venice, and the piazza of St. Mark's, that amazing Byzantine Christian temple with its acres of mosaic pictures . . . the Doge's palace and the Grand canal . . . the leaning tower of Pisa and the beauty of old, winding streets.

Where Writers and Artists Fail.

Many a writer has attempted in vain to describe the grandeur of the Italian Alps, the rose and purple shadows of the Dolomites, and the serenity of the Italian lakes. And even an artist fails to capture the beauty of Amalfi, on a road clinging to steep cliffs, with the Mediterranean dashing against the rocks below.

Travelers come from the world over to see the lagoons of Venice at sunset, or to enjoy the picturesque Italian landscape, investigating the pleasure of country inns, drinking country wine, and watching the white roads wind through lanes of Lombardy poplars towards dusky blue horizons.

Under the shadow of its historic monuments, modern Italy takes to sports with enthusiasm. The Adriatic, the Mediterranean and the Italian lakes have a wide vacation territory. Within half an hour's journey from Rome is the beach of Ostia. The Lido and the beaches of the Italian Riviera offer year 'round swimming.

Ancient Buildings and Modern.

Nearly all sports are followed in Italy—sailing, speed boat racing, golf, tennis, mountain climbing, skiing, shooting, and fishing.

Modern Rome offers varied entertainment, cafés, cabarets and sidewalks cafés. Great gardens with a capacity of 2,000 persons . . . tiny dugouts that hold only a handful.

The gourmet will discover hundreds of interesting dishes representative of the best cooking in every section of Italy, and wines known everywhere. Orvieto, Frascati, Castelli Romani, Montefiascone, and many more are to be had. The visitor soon learns the delight of sipping Italian wine, listening to Italian music, and combining an appreciation of ancient buildings and art with an appreciation of modern conveniences.

Ceder Joins Agency.

Martin A. Ceder, formerly with the Matson line, has joined the sales staf of Campus Tours in Chicago. He and Eugene de Rosa will be co-directors of a tour that will start on the Queen Mary June 24 and take in England, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and France. Later on he will help direct the throngs going from America to the Olympic games in Berlin.

Goes to Swedish Line.

Charles E. Faendrick, who for fourteen years has been connected with the Scandinavian - American Line, has joined the staf of the Swedish - American Line's office in Chicago. Mr. Faendrick is an expert on travel to Denmark and the Baltic states.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

ANCIENT AND FIGURATIVE.

Chicago, March 22.—To the Travel Editor: In answer to L. E. B.'s query in your columns of today's TRIBUNE as to what are "the seven seas":

It is a figurative term denoting all the seas and oceans of the world. It is often explained that the seven seas are the Arctic, the Antarctic, the North and South Pacific, the North and South Atlantic, and the Indian oceans. This explanation is purely imaginary. The term is not to be taken literally. It was part of the vernacular of several nations long before some of the oceans named were known to the inhabitants of Europe and Asia.

The seven seas was referred to in the literature of the ancient Hindus, Chinese, Persians, Romans, and other nations. In each case the term refers to different bodies of water. Sometimes it refers to mythical seas. To the Persians the seven seas were streams forming the Oxus river. The Hindus applied the name to bodies of water in the Punjab. Near Venice, Italy, is a group of salt water lagoons which the Romans called "septem maria," the Latin phrase for seven seas.

In modern times the phrase was popularized by Rudyard Kipling, who used it as a title of a volume of poems first published in 1896. The poet himself said the term might be regarded as referring to the seven oceans, although it was a very old figurative name for all the waters of the world.

N. GAYLE GITTERMAN.

A HOLY NUMBER.

Carroll, Ia., March 22.—To the Travel Editor: I offer the following as an answer to L. E. B.'s question:

Seven, as we all know, is a holy number. Seven days in creation, seven spirits before the throne of God, seven days in the week, seven ages in life, and so on for innumerable instances. It is frequently used to signify a long time, or a great many, and I think that would be its meaning when we speak of famous travelers as having sailed the seven seas—just meaning that they have been everywhere and seen a great deal.

DAISY S. MINCHEN.

THEY'RE LARGE LAGOONS.

Goshen, Ind., March 23.—To the Travel Editor: "The seven seas" are large lagoons of salt water, separated from the Adriatic by strips of sand or embankments, partly natural, partly artificial, but having openings to admit of the influx and efflux of sea water and to serve as ports of communication with the mainland. Venice is situated in the largest of these lagoons. They were formerly much more extensive and afforded a continuous means of internal navigation by what were called the seven seas [septem maria] from Ravenna to Altinum and north to Torcello.

H. A. R.

ACCORDING TO WINSTON.

West Branch, Ia., March 23.—To the Travel Editor: The Winston dictionary lists, under English phrases: "Seven Seas—the North Atlantic, South Atlantic, North Pacific, South Pacific, Indian, Arctic, and Antarctic."

W. H. CREW.

ACCORDING TO RIPLEY.

Chicago, March 23.—To the Travel Editor: In yesterday's TRIBUNE L. E. B. asked: "What are the seven seas?"

About two months ago I happened to hear Robert Ripley, on the radio, name them as follows: North Atlantic, South Atlantic, North Pacific, South Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic, and Indian.

BETTY MILLER.

A MYSTICAL NUMBER.

Beloit, Wis., March 24.—To the Travel Editor: In response to the inquiry of "L. E. B." as to what the seven seas are, the following may be of interest:

The idea of seven seas is ancient, found in Hindu myth, which imagined, rather than knew by fact, the world to be seven land masses surrounded by seven seas. The ancient mind loved to arrange ideas under mystical numbers which were sacred, among these the number seven being a favorite. It now seems impossible to say who first spoke of seven seas, but in later ages they were identified as the Arctic, Antarctic, the North and South Atlantic, the North and South Pacific, and the Indian oceans.

Though Kipling named a book of his poems "The Seven Seas," nowhere in it, I believe, did he say what they were. But Omar Khayyam, in the 53d quatrain of the "Rubaiyat," said that life is like a pebble cast into the Seven Seas. Omar, who died in 1123, A. D., probably meant by the expression all the water of all the oceans.

ANNIE S. MCLENEGAN.

ACCORDING TO THE STANDARD.

Chicago, March 22.—To the Travel Editor: According to Funk & Wagnalls' Standard dictionary, the seven seas are the North and South Atlantic, the North and South Pacific, the Indian, the Arctic, and the Antarctic oceans. It does not say where and when the expression originated.

P. O. N.

TO THE RESCUE.

Beloit, Wis., March 23.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to come to the rescue of the party signed L. E. B. The seven seas are all the oceans, namely: the North and South Pacific, the North and South Atlantic, the Indian, the Arctic, and the Antarctic.

R. B. S.

ACCORDING TO THE ENCYCLOPEDIA.

Chicago, March 22.—To the Travel Editor: My encyclopedia says: "The seven seas are the North and the South Atlantic, the North and South Pacific, the Indian, and the Arctic and the Antarctic oceans."

MRS. GEORGE UITTI.

SHE ANSWERS IT HERSELF.

Chicago, March 24.—To the Travel Editor: I am answering my own question which you kindly published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Before writing you I had consulted the Standard dictionary, the Century, and an old edition of Webster's International. I found the seven wise men of Greece, the seven churches of Asia, the seven planets, the seven lamps of architecture, the seven sciences, the seven virtues and the seven deadly sins, but not the seven seas. Today at the Public library I found the enclosed definition in the 1934 edition of Webster's New International dictionary, second edition, unabridged, 1934:

"Seven Seas: Figuratively, all the waters or oceans of the world. The phrase probably has its source in Brahmanic mythology; the seven seas dividing and surrounding the seven land masses of the earth. In modern times it has been applied to the seven oceans [Arctic, Antarctic, North and South Atlantic, North and South Pacific and Indian]."

L. EUGENIA BANTA.

[Editor's Note: Now that we're all agreed, what's the next question before the house?]

Easter in Quebec Compares with Old World Celebration

QUEBEC.—Arrival of the first spring month finds provincial authorities here already busy with plans to entertain a huge 1936 throng of American visitors.

Celebration of Easter on April 12 will inaugurate another great festival in which thousands of worshipers from the United States are expected to join. Three times the size of France and maintaining many old world customs perpetuated by the followers of Cartier and other early French colonizers of Canada, the province marks the season with ceremonies comparable to those in Paris and the ancestral villages of Normandy and Brittany.

Among observances which American visitors find interesting is the annual display in the market places of enormous beeves decorated with paper roses, and the custom of getting bottles of water from the St. Lawrence river before dawn on Easter morning.

Going to Olympics.

Nelson H. Norgren, basketball coach at the University of Chicago, has signed up to direct a forty-eight day tour to the Olympic games. The tourists will leave on the Red Star line's Westernland July 11 and will remain in Berlin for the entire sports program from Aug. 1 to 16.

Chicagoan Buys Inn.

Mark Whitman of Chicago has bought the Westport Inn and Country club at Westport-on-Lake Champlain, N. Y., and will operate it from now on. For the last three years he has been managing director of the Balsams hotel at Dixville Notch, N. H.

Chicagoans to Spend Easter in Eternal City

Prof. L. B. Ullman Leaves for Rome to See Ancient Rites and Study Papers.

DR. B. L. ULLMAN, professor of Latin at the University of Chicago, sailed for Italy yesterday on the Conte di Savoia with Mrs. Ullman, their daughter Gertrude, and his father, L. Ullman. After attending Easter rites in Rome, they will spend the summer in visiting various other Italian cities, as well as Paris and London.

While abroad Dr. Ullman intends to study famous collections of medieval and renaissance manuscripts. He will be accompanied by T. F. Rich, a student paleographer, who is assisting him in his research.

Others leaving on the Conte di Savoia were Miss Osea E. Lotti, who plans to travel extensively in Italy, and Louis T. Merian.

To Be in Europe for Easter.

Among the Chicagoans spending Easter in London will be Alvin E. Bastien and his daughter Barbara. They sailed on the Manhattan Wednesday. Miss Doris Barnett, embarking on the same ship, will join her sister, a student at the Sorbonne, in Paris, and together they will go to Rome for the Easter holiday. Fellow passengers on the Manhattan were Miss Nell Calvin, who will make a lengthy tour of Europe; Mrs. I. E. Stieglitz and Mrs. M. Eisenstaedt, who will spend a month in London and Paris, and G. B. Metheral.

Charles Kauba and a group of thirty other Chicagoans left on the Champlain Friday to attend the international rationalistic congress, to be held in Prague early in April. Mrs. Peter Dudley, departing on the same ship, will spend the Eastertide in London and then continue to her villa on the French Riviera, where she will remain indefinitly. B. E. Gill was also aboard the Champlain.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Butler sailed on the Aquitania Friday to spend a few months with relatives in England. Fellow passengers were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bender, on a hasty trip to London and back; Mrs. Bernice W. Deaver, also bound for London, and Frank Popper, all of Chicago; Clarence J. Allen and J. Kruyne of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. A. Janota of Cicero, and Dr. H. I. Down of Sioux City, Ia.

Cruising the Caribbean.

Middle westerners on the Columbus when it set sail yesterday for a cruise of the West Indies included William C. Cummings, William C. Cummings Jr., Miss Caryl Cummings, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Smith, all of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harnischfeger and their children, Henry and Betty; G. A. Hornseth, and A. L. Merriman, all of Milwaukee, and Mrs. J. A. Henske and Miss Kay Henske of Omaha.

When the Britannic started Friday for an eight day cruise to the Bahama Islands and Bermuda, among the Chicagoans aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Shumway, their daughter Grace, and son Edward; E. H. Taylor, Edward F. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Seller, Mrs. Eric Lambart, Miss Lois Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Raymond, and Miss Marie Kasper. Also aboard were Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Warrender, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Kaufman and their daughter Lucy, all of Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Welch and daughter Mary of Milwaukee; Mrs. Mary T. Barnum of La Porte, Ind.; John Ferriss of Geneva, Ill., and Mrs. H. C. Sheridan of Frankfort, Ind.

The two weeks' boat trip from San Francisco to New York by way of Acapulco, Mexico, the Panama canal, and Havana, was the travel choice of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cresmer and their daughters Jane and Bertha; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Quinn and Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Blacklock, all of whom sailed yesterday on the Pennsylvania.

On the Monarch of Bermuda when it sailed Friday for Bermuda were Miss June Provines of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Mitchell Follansbee, Miss Julie Follansbee, Mrs. F. S. Rickoords, Miss Anne Rickoords, Miss Marjorie Nicol, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Roberts, and Charles Roberts, all of Chicago, and Mrs. J. R. McDonald, Miss Peggy McDonald, Mrs. Ross Wilbur, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Patton, all of Milwaukee.

IT'S CHERRY BLOSSOM TIME ON THE POTOMAC

In the foreground, Washington's cherry blossoms, and, beyond them, the Washington monument. The Japanese cherry trees in Potomac park were presented to the capital by the city of Tokio as a token of good will. The season of their blooming is just beginning; government figures show that in the last twelve years they have first blossomed all the way from March 20 to May 1.

VAGABOND'S DIARY

HAVANA, Cuba's capital of more than half a million. . . . A hundred million dollar highway for the care of its tourists. . . . Gay hotels, old world restaurants, the casino and the race courses. . . . The Paris of the western hemisphere. . . . Morro Castle jutting up arrogantly from the sea. . . . Tales of long ago, pirates and ruthlessness of dominion . . . The city's 17th century section reminiscent of old Spain. . . . Narrow Andalusian streets, balconied houses, flower filled patios. . . . Sunny haciendas, iron grille work. . . . And lovers with guitars. . . . The Prado full of tourists rubbing elbows with all the nations of the world.

● Nassau, first of the West Indies to be discovered. . . . Our nearest tropical isles, the Bahamas, hold Nassau. . . . Set upon a coral strand. . . . Perpetual winter sunshine. . . . A Lake Killarney, with underground connection with the ocean. . . . Beaches of pink and coral sand. . . . Yachting among the isles. . . . Waters teeming with fish. . . . Kingfish, amber-jack, and barracude. . . . Bridle paths for riders amid Australian pines. . . . Charm of native life about the fish market and the sponge yard. . . . The whirl of a brilliant society. . . . Palm sheltered nooks by the quietest of seas. . . . And on dark nights the phosphorescent glow as oars turn up the light of the seas.

● There are forty Kingstons on the earth, but, for the tourist on a West Indies cruise, Kingston is in Jamaica, and second only to Havana. . . . Destroyed by earthquake in 1907, it rose from the dead and said the "shaking up" was good for its health. . . . Gardens and cocoa groves on the mountains around. . . . Shades of Nelson and British sea dogs. . . . Darker shades of pirates like Morgan. . . . Tommy Atkins gone from the street, but his English flowers are in the gardens. . . . Motoring, bathing, tennis, golf. . . . Sunrise on Blue Mountain peak luring tourists as much as cellar exploration in Bordeaux.

Yacht Race Opens Festival of States

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28.—[Special.]—Formally opening St. Petersburg's Festival of the States, a fleet of 29 yachts started at noon today in the seventh annual renewal of the St. Petersburg-Havana sailing race.

Signaling the start of the 284 mile event, a three inch gun aboard the United States Coast Guard Cutter Nemesis also inaugurated the festival, which will continue through next Saturday with a crowded program of entertainment and pageantry, climaxed by a procession of state floats.

Patroling the coastal waters and Florida straits during the race will be the coast guard's new fleet of amphibians connected with the government air base here. Two cutters will patrol the entire course, supplemented, near Cuban waters, by gunboats of the island republic.

Travelers' Calendar

April 10—Good Friday observance in England, Irish Free State, Latvia, Lithuania, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland. Religious processions at Biarritz and Amelie-les-Bains, France. Easter procession at Capri. Ceremonies at St. Maria Maggiore and St. John Lateran, with Procession of the Penitents to St. Croce, Rome. Twelfth century religious celebration at Trapani, Italy. Sacred Thorn shown at St. John's, Turin, Italy. Procession of the Dead Christ through the streets of Monte Carlo.

April 12—Easter Sunday observed throughout Europe. Procession at Assisi. Showing of Holy Relics at St. Peter's, Rome.

April 13—Easter Monday observed as a holiday throughout Europe. Egg rolling on the slopes of Avenham park, Preston, England, a medieval custom in which thousands of children take part. Fête of the Jonquils at Gerarimer in the Vosges, France. Pardon at Plougastel-Daoulas, France.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

THE question of which is the world's largest steamship keeps bobbing up every time a new superliner enters the service. Apparently it has been settled in favor of the Normandie.

James F. Nolan, general agent in Chicago for the French line, said yesterday that Morin de Linclays, the line's resident general manager in the United States, had received this cablegram from headquarters in Paris: "Official tonnage of flagship Normandie, world's largest, fastest ship, now 82,799.45 gross tons, but will exceed 83,000 when reenters service May 6."

The gross tonnage of the Cunard-White Star line's Queen Mary was placed at 80,733 just before that vessel left her Clydebank shipyard last Tuesday and started for Southampton. The Queen Mary has an overall length of 1,018, as compared with the Normandie's 1,029½ feet. Which will be the speed queen is a question to be settled when the British ship starts from Southampton for New York May 27.

✦

Lower costs and a larger number of trips are planned by the Chicago and North Western-Union Pacific department of tours for the coming summer, Manager John C. Pollock announced last week. Last year's favorite, a two weeks' tour to California, will be repeated, leaving Chicago every Saturday, and the other places to be visited include the Yellowstone, Rocky Mountain, Grand Canyon, Bryce Canyon, and Zion National parks. The program will last from the first of June to the first of September.

✦

The Cunard-White Star line's 1936 program of sailings to Europe was announced last week. The Queen Mary, the Aquitania, and the Berengaria will provide express service to Cherbourg and Southampton weekly throughout the year, and they will be augmented by a fleet including the Britannic, Georgic, Samaria, Scythia, Laconia, Carinthia, Franconia, Ascania, Aurania, Ausonia, Alaunia, Atonia, Athenia, Andania, and Letitia. With these liners there will be a choice of several sailings each week from New York, Boston, and Montreal to ports of Great Britain and the continent.

✦

A series of eight day trips by steamer on the Mississippi, Ohio, Tennessee, and Cumberland rivers has been arranged by the Cartan Travel bureau for this spring and summer. Following the journey from Chicago to St. Louis over the Wabash railroad the passengers will board the Golden Eagle for a cruise through the country made famous by Mark Twain and Edna Ferber.

✦

The Columbus of the Hamburg-American Line-North German Lloyd has been commissioned for a cruise to Nassau and Havana over Memorial day and the first week in June. Departure will be from New York May 29.

✦

Gus Anderson, Chicago travel lecturer, will conduct his eleventh annual tour of Europe this summer. His party will sail from Montreal June 27 on the Athenia and will take in eleven countries in fifty-eight days. Afterwards he will take a part of the group eastward for a world tour by way of Siberia, China, and Japan.

✦

For those travelers wishing to take in the Baltic countries, and do it in a leisurely fashion, the American Scantic line this year will operate northland cruises on the Scanpenn, Scanyork, Scanmail, and Scanstates, all built for both passenger and freight service. Each cruise is to last forty-two days and cover 10,000 miles.

✦

A fifty-six day European tour under the leadership of Charlotte Merrill has been announced by the French line in cooperation with the Drake Travel service. It will sail July 3 on the Ile de France and return Aug. 27 on the Lafayette. London, the Shakespeare country, Edinburgh, Bergen, Stalheim, Oslo, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Hamburg, The Hague, Brussels, the Rhine valley, Switzerland, and Paris are to be visited.

✦

A series of five European "thrift tours," to include Scottish cities, rural Scotland, with its lochs and Trossachs, and motor trips through northern England to the Shakespeare country, is planned by the Anchor line and Thomas Cook & Son. The first of the five is scheduled to leave New York June 20 on the California.

✦

Two of the New York passenger managers of the International Mercantile Marine company—W. H. Maybaum, in charge of agencies and promotion, and J. F. Brennan, in charge of the tourist and third class departments—were Chicago visitors last week, and on Thursday evening were guests of honor at a cocktail party at the La Salle hotel. They said there was a large increase in the advance bookings to Europe for this spring and summer, as well as a decided trend of the American traveling public toward the ships flying the American flag.

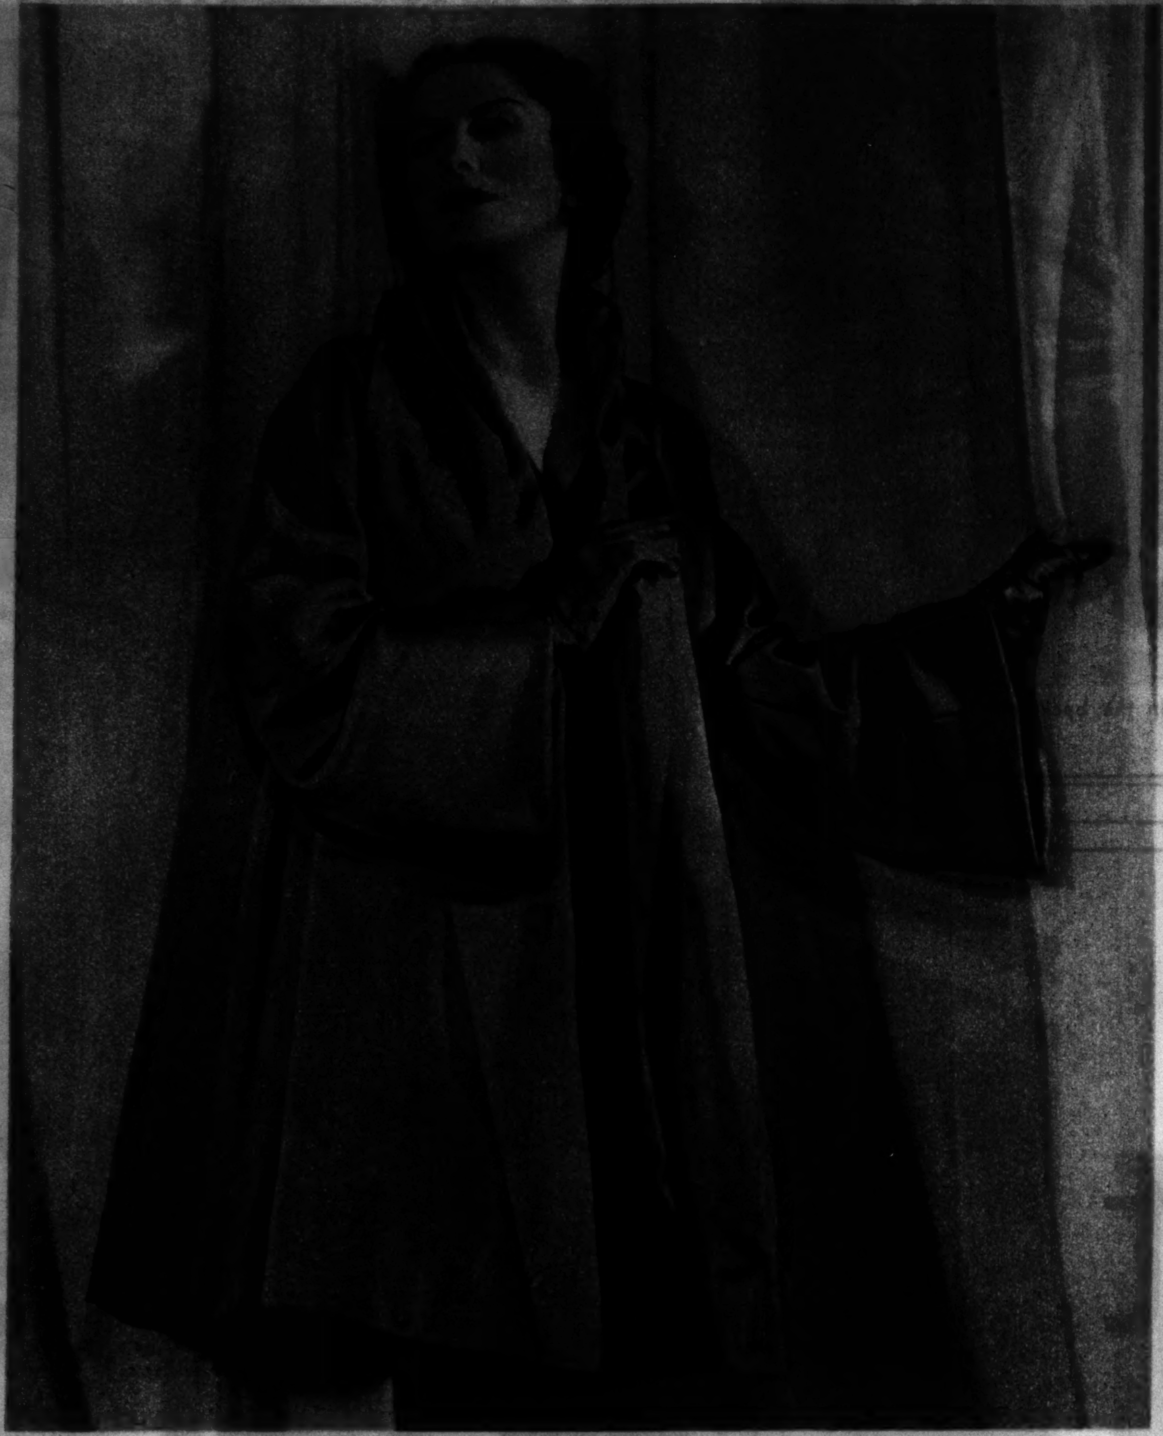
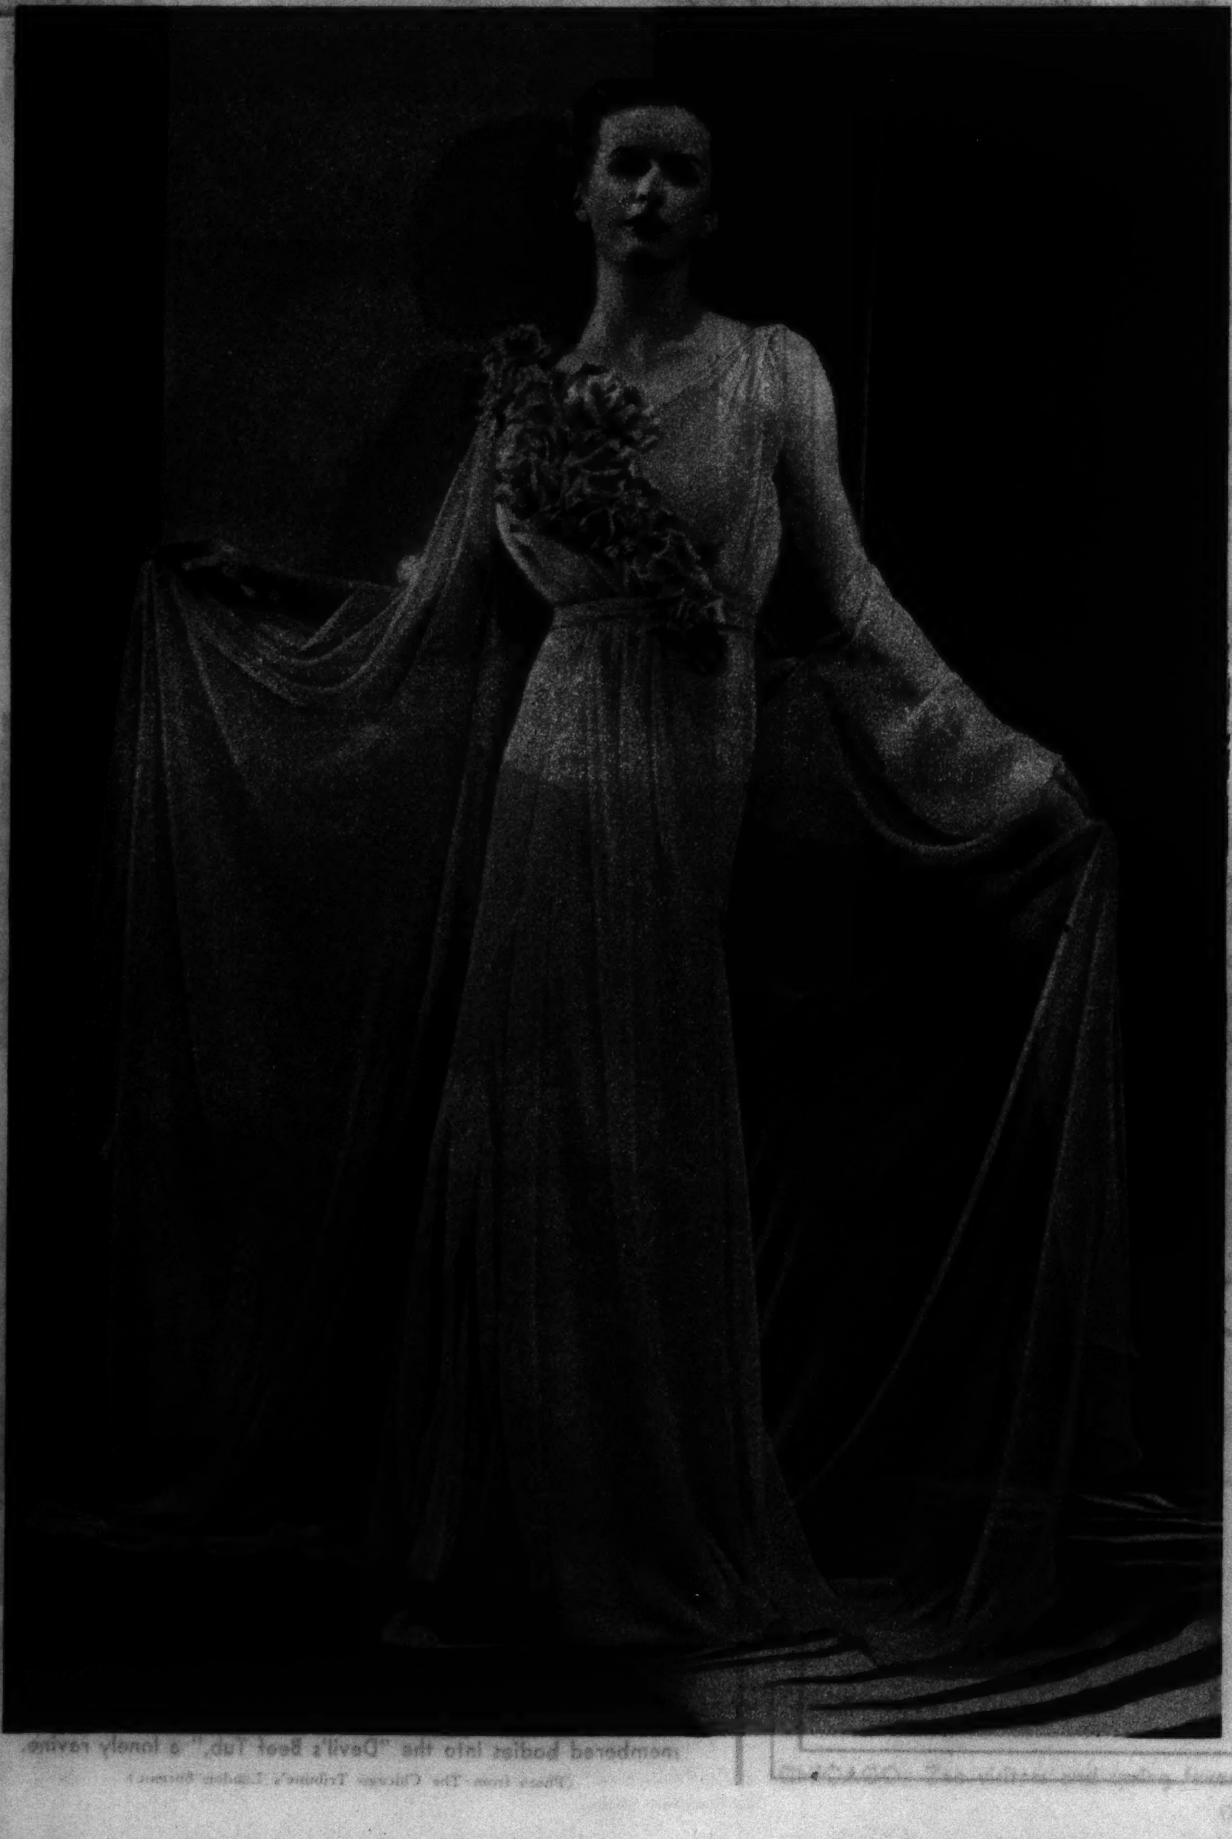
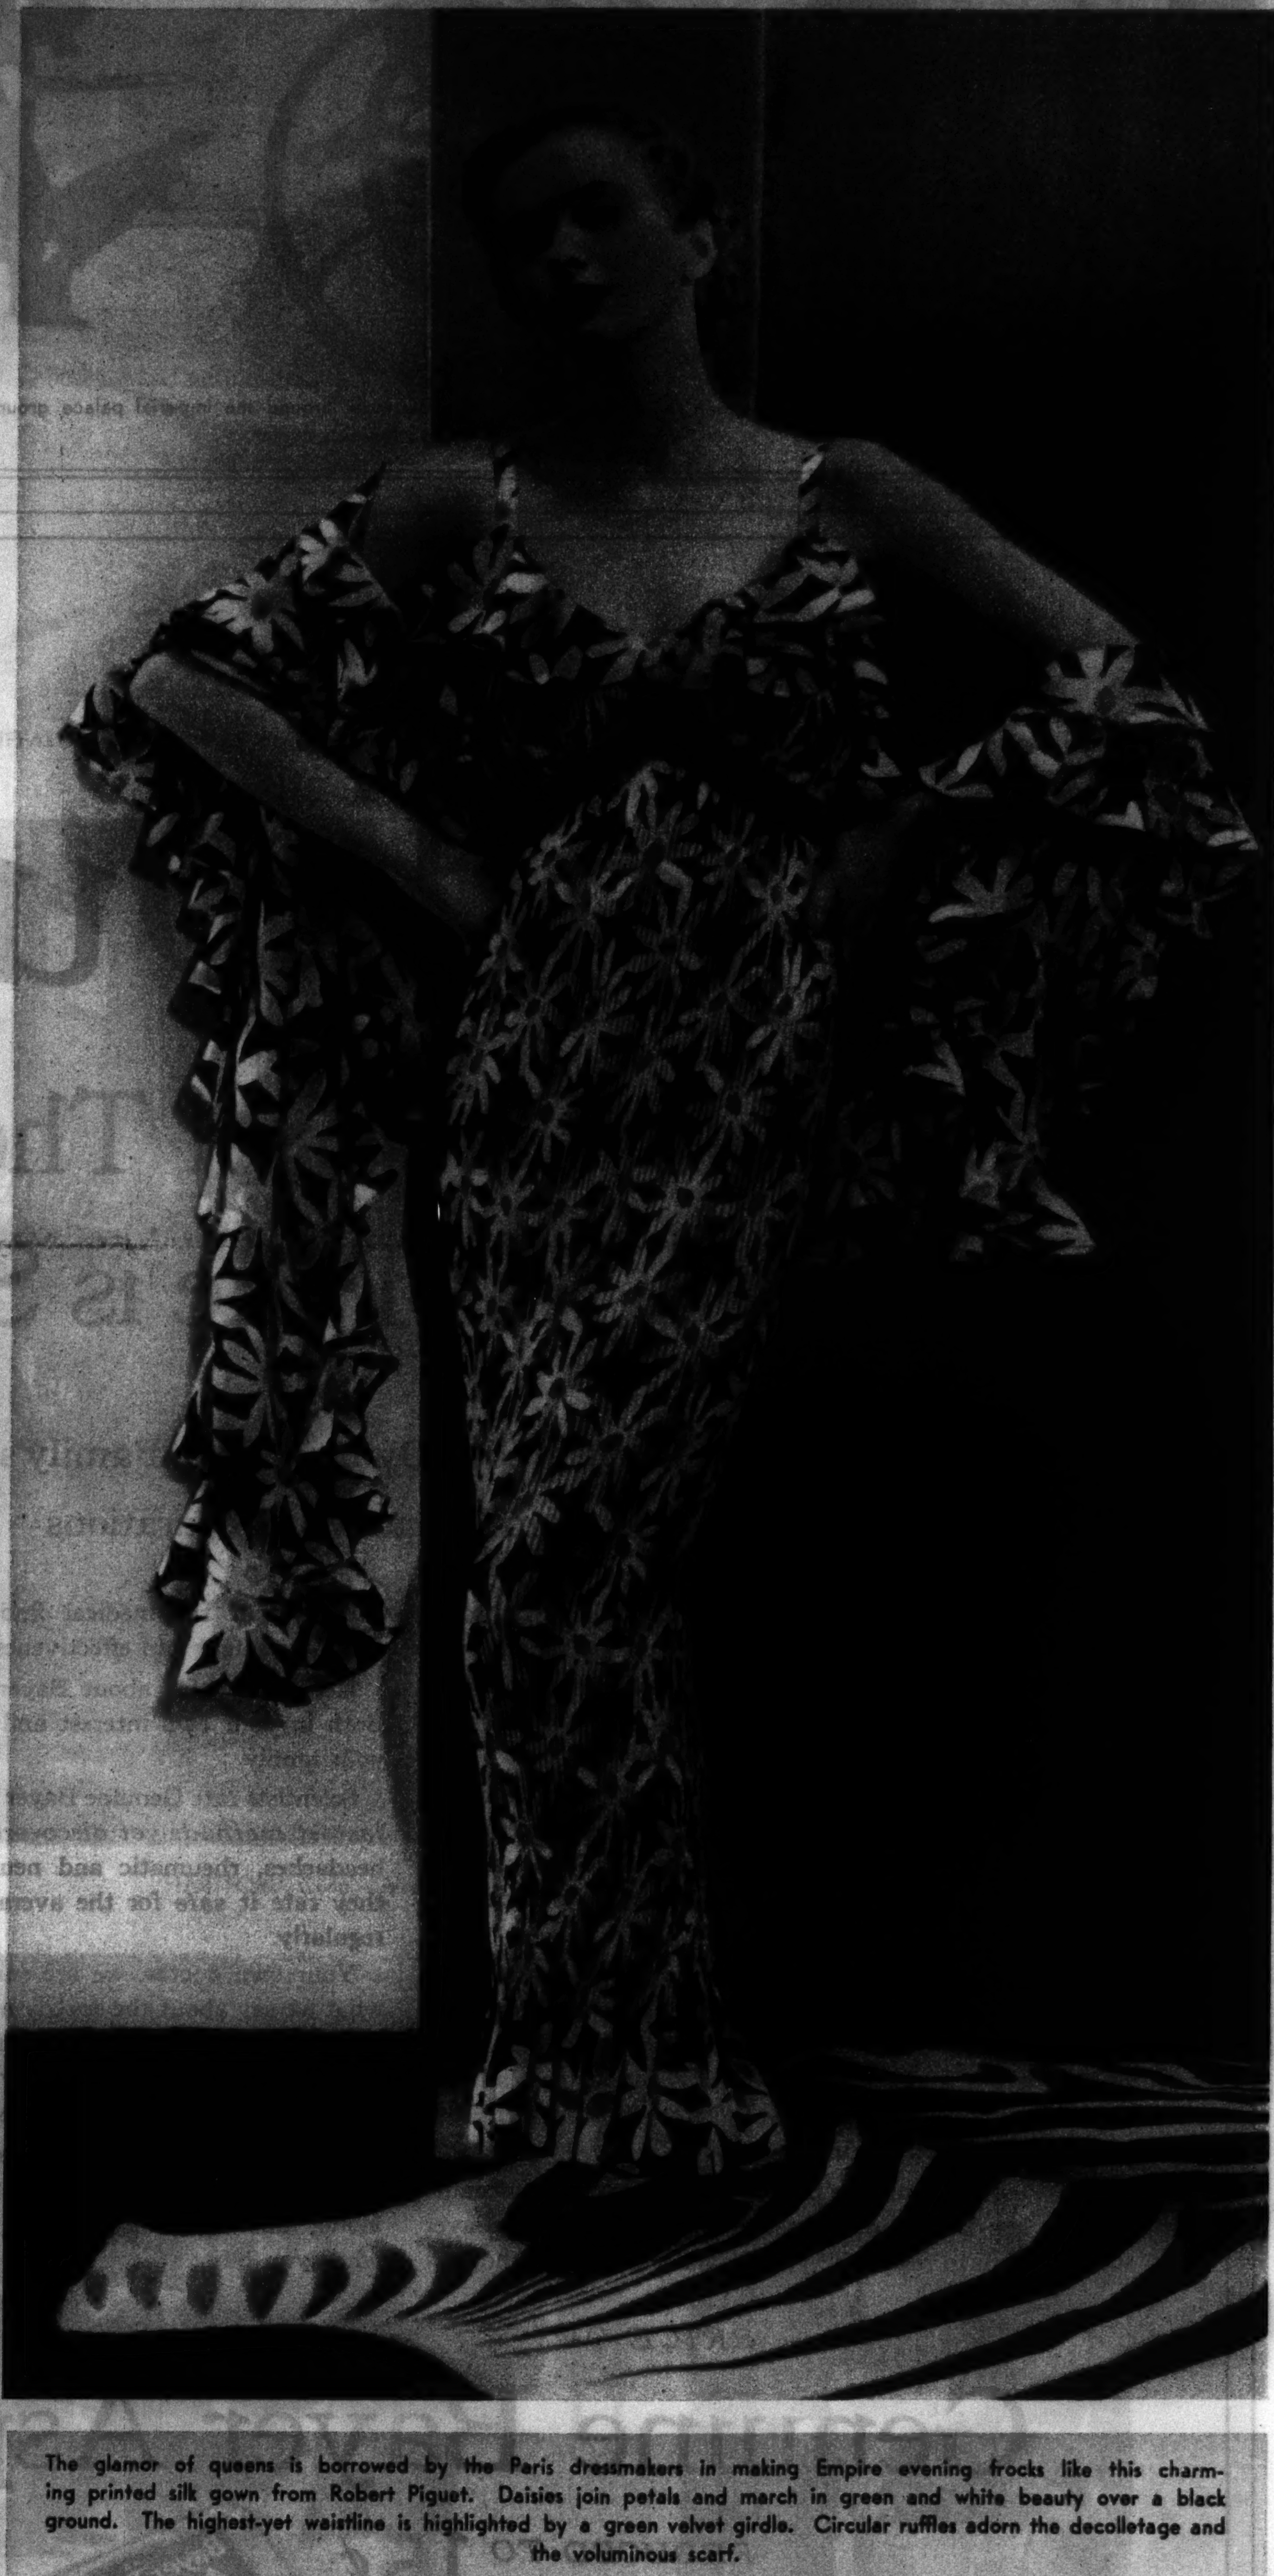
PARIS GLAMOR FOR SPRING: EXCLUSIVE COLOR PHOTOS



The Mauve Decade comes back to color the new Paris styles. Every shade of violet, lavender, and mauve that man or nature ever thought of is being worn. The smartest of evening cloaks seen in the French shows is this one from Molyneux, made of parma violet faille silk, cut swagger, and with violet gloves to match.





The glamor of queens is borrowed by the Paris dressmakers in making Empire evening frocks like this charming printed silk gown from Robert Piguet. Daisies join petals and march in green and white beauty over a black ground. The highest-yet waistline is highlighted by a green velvet girdle. Circular ruffles adorn the decolletage and the voluminous scarf.

Meet Miss Springtime, in person, in this exquisitely draped Robert Piguet gown of pale rose chiffon. Pink roses by the dozen clamber over the bosom of the brief bodice. A long and vaporous cloak of pink chiffon squires the frock.

From Your Doctor if The "Pain" Remedy You Take is SAFE

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation, you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia; ask your family doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians. Some, as bad for the stomach. And others; more pertinently; as bad for the heart.

As a result; the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice, throughout the world, in the treatment of common pains, headaches and colds. For chiefly on doctors' advice, millions of people changed from old time remedies to Bayer Aspirin.

Now, time has proved conclusively, — by countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin regularly, year in and year out, without ill effect — that the medical findings of that day about its safety and effectiveness were correct.

Keep this point about Bayer Aspirin in mind. Both in your own interest and in the interest of your family.

Scientists rate Genuine Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches, rheumatic and neuralgia pains. And they rate it safe for the average person to take regularly.

Your own doctor, we are sure, will agree with what we say about the speedy action and safety of Bayer Aspirin. And your own experience, once you try it, will emphasize and verify it.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store for only 15¢ a box — its new low price — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone; but by always saying "Bayer Aspirin" when you buy.

If you taste extra-rich fruit flavor ...you know it's genuine Jell-O!

Get the real Jell-O . . . the kind that says "JELL-O" on the box!
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Be an epicure next time you make a raspberry gelatin dessert—taste it critically! Does it really have the deep, rich, slightly winey flavor of real red raspberries?

Only if it's genuine Jell-O! For no other gelatin dessert can match Jell-O's extra rich fruit flavor. Jell-O alone has the secret process which blends fruit flavor right into the crystals—fills every particle with juicy fruit goodness.

And when you dissolve Jell-O, none of the fruity taste drifts away on steam. Jell-O dissolves in water only slightly hotter than lukewarm.

Don't lose out on fruit flavor—the most precious part of a gelatin dessert. Insist on genuine Jell-O! Look for the name "Jell-O" on the box. Six different extra-rich flavors—try them all!

Tune in every Sunday night!
JACK BENNY—America's most popular radio comedian, on the air for Jell-O, with Mary Livingstone, Kenny Baker and Johnny Green's orchestra, 6 o'clock Central Time, WENR Chicago, WLW Cincinnati, KSD Des Moines, WTMJ Milwaukee.

NOVEL GARNISHES FOR RASPBERRY JELL-O

What goes best with real red raspberries? Ask yourself that—and you'll find ideal companions for this new Raspberry Jell-O. Its extra-rich flavor is so true to the fruit.

Grapefruit sections, alternated with half-slices of orange, make a lovely setting for a gleaming mold of Raspberry Jell-O. And the contrast of tart, rich flavors is irresistibly tempting!

To provide an unusual variation on the Raspberry Jell-O theme, add a sauce of smooth, golden custard.

And for an exciting company dessert, fill a ring mold with Raspberry Jell-O and serve it with small scoops of pistachio ice cream piled in the center.

...NOW SEE HOW THE TRIPLE-TEST PROVES EXTRA-RICH FLAVOR!

1 Open a package of Jell-O and sniff the luscious fragrance that rises. You'll be amazed at this proof of Jell-O's extra-rich flavor.

2 Now dissolve Jell-O in warm water. Smell the delightful aroma of fresh, ripe fruit! Proof again of Jell-O's extra-rich flavor.

3 Now for the final proof—taste it! Take Raspberry Jell-O. What a revelation! Extra-rich, crammed-with-fruit flavor! Only Jell-O gives you that!

WARNING! Real Jell-O comes only in this package. Look for the name Jell-O when you buy! Six extra-rich flavors: Strawberry, Raspberry, Cherry, Orange, Lemon and Lime.

SPARKLET SYPHON
WORLD FAMOUS SINCE 1895

Strange, how many shrewd men haven't heard about the great economy of sparkling club soda—as made by Sparklet.

"It's becoming known as the 'One-Bottle Case.' 10 refill bulbs, costing you 75¢, will make a whole case of fine, fizzy soda. That's 7½¢ a quart."

So simple, too, and lasts a lifetime. Anyone with hands can do it.

"Just fill the handsome Sparklet Syphon with the fresh cold water you drink in your home. Insert the little bulb, give it a turn, and thar she blows! Millions of bubbles!"

Buy on Proof!

The New Frigidaire with the "Meter-Miser" meets all five standards for refrigerator buying!

Current Cost

MEET THE "Meter-Miser"

Quiet • Unseen • Trouble-Free

CUTS CURRENT COST TO THE BONE

The new Frigidaire's cold-making unit gives more cold for much less current cost. Built with only three moving parts, permanently oiled and sealed against moisture and dirt.

PROOF 1 LOWER OPERATING COST

An accurate electric meter measures the amount of current used by Frigidaire and proves how little current the Meter-Miser uses. Compare it with others.

PROOF 2 SAFER FOOD PROTECTION*

Frigidaire dares to build a Food-Safety Indicator into the center of the food compartment to prove that Safety-Zone Temperature is maintained throughout. Compare it with others.

PROOF 3 FASTER FREEZING—MORE ICE

The Thermo-Gauge proves Frigidaire's ability to freeze larger quantities of ice—faster. Compare it with others.

PROOF 4 MORE USABILITY

Wider, roomier, handier to use. Automatic Reset Defroster. Full-Width Sliding Shelves. Portable Utility Shelf. Double-Range Cold Control. Saves steps. Saves work. Compare it with others.

PROOF 5 FIVE-YEAR PROTECTION PLAN

Frigidaire's sealed-in mechanical unit—a marvel of outstanding design and engineering—comes to you protected for Five Years against service expense. Compare it with others.

On Guard!

*Food-Safety Indicator Built Right Into the Cabinet

Frigidaire dares to give you the Food-Safety Indicator—visible proof that foods are kept at Safety-Zone Temperature, below 50 degrees and above 32 degrees.

America welcomes this safe, sure way to buy a Refrigerator

● On proof alone, they're marching into thousands of homes—these beautiful, durable New Frigidaires, with the spectacular Meter-Miser unit.

On proof alone, women are selecting Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser. For Frigidaire combines these five vital advantages in one refrigerator—1. Lower Operating Cost. 2. Safer Food Protection. 3. Faster Freezing—More Ice. 4. More Usability, and 5. Five-Year Protection Plan. Here, at last, is the complete refrigerator—one that meets every requirement for ideal home refrigeration.

And Frigidaire proves it! We urge you to see the "eye-proof" demonstration in any authorized Frigidaire dealer's store. It takes the guesswork out of buying refrigerators. It substitutes certainty for gamble. You will agree that no refrigerator is really "1936 value" unless it meets the five basic standards. This year, buy on proved facts, instead of vague claims.

Frigidaire's Greatest Triumph—The Meter-Miser

Chief among Frigidaire's betterments is the Meter-Miser—the new cold-making unit that cuts current cost to the bone . . . and keeps "Safety-Zone Temperature" inside the cabinet. This powerful little mechanism, with only three moving parts, does a giant's work on a pigmy ration of current. Precision-made and sealed in oil to insure trouble-free operation for years. Only Frigidaire has the Meter-Miser—that's why Frigidaire saves money in operation, prevents food spoilage, and offers a Five-Year Protection Plan. So amazingly economical is Frigidaire that it actually pays for itself, with money left over! By all means see this New Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser. It will meet your approval, not only in performance, but in beauty and convenience, too. It is wider, roomier, more "usable" than ever before. This year, too, Frigidaire is equipped with a Food-Safety Indicator, visible proof that Safety-Zone Temperature is maintained—even in the hottest weather.

Now, more than ever, Frigidaire is the ideal refrigerator for your home. And the proof awaits you in the nearest authorized Frigidaire dealer's showroom.

So Remember this

WHEN YOU ask for a Frederics Vita-Tonic or Vitron Permanent Wave and are offered a substitute—masqueraded as being "just as good" or better than a Frederics Permanent—Beware! That permanent waver is not interested in "beautifying your hair." She may not be licensed to give Frederics Permanents or may selfishly hope to gain some extra profit by giving "substitute" permanents.

Let us send you a list of Frederics Franchise Salons. These salons are all qualified and equipped to give Frederics Vita-Tonic or Vitron (Croquignole Style) Permanent or a combination of both.

Frederics Vitron (Croquignole Style) Permanent—provide those soft, deep waves at the top, with enchanting, tight ringlet ends. Frederics Vita-Tonic (Spiral) Process produces deep, tight, lasting waves and are recommended for hair exceeding 6 or 7 inches in length. This is the permanent that made Frederics famous.

Be sure that 30 or more of these genuine Vita-Tonic and Vitron Wrappers are used on your hair. Insist on their use for your own protection!

Enclose 10c with the coupon and we will send you a beautiful, translucent Frederics cigarette lighter (purse size).

British Lounge Model

The Worsted-tex Suit

LINED WITH SUPER CELANESE

This is the famous British Lounge Model as shown in the Worsted-tex Suit. Its great popularity is due to the fact that it is the first suit with accented waist that provides great comfort and complete freedom of motion, and that makes your chest look broader, your hips slimmer, and your figure taller.

The photograph above shows you the longer jacket—the lower waist-line—the sharply angled lapels—the extra folds of fabric at the chest to give breadth and ease—the comfortable waist which creates the illusion of being snug—and the tapered sleeves and trousers.

The Worsted-tex Suit is also made in other models—conservative and semi-conservative to please every type of man. Worsted-tex cloth is one of the most expensive suit fabrics woven in America.
